Circuit Clerk Horsley White announced today that the Criminal Division of the Law and Equity Court, scheduled to be held on March 2nd, had been postponed. The new date set is April 6th.

Homecoming Day Of First Methodist Church Big Success

Despite disagreeable weather and a tremendous number of cases of illness, the Homecoming and 30th Anniversary was well attended and enjoyed by all. The sanctuary was beautifully decorated with flowers dedicated to members of the original building committee, both living and dead. Among those present were a number of the third year members. There were out of town guests from Mntgomery, Birmingham, Goodwater, Monmouta, Illinois, and many other places that are too numerous to mention in this space. Bishop Clare Purcell brought the morning message, using as his subject, "The Glorious Church." The Choir special, "God So Love The World," added much to the service.

Following the morning worship, the birthday cake, decorated by Mrs. W. H. Simpson, was lighted, and after a few remarks by Bishop Purcell, the candles were blown out and he returned "Thanks." Mrs. Simpson cut the cake and served it to all the guests. The dining room and other serving rooms, were decorated with spring flowers, and a bountiful dinner was served to about 550 people. Everyone present enjoyed a wonderful fellowship hour.

Rev. J. L. Daniels, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Opp, Ala., and former pastor of this church, brought the evening message. His subject was, "The Indestructible Church." Following the evening worship, a fellowship hour was enjoyed in the recreatin room of the church.

The Wesley Fellowship Class of the Church School held it's annual Homecoming Day at this same time, and many old members attended to renew old friendships, and enjoy a special Homecoming Lesson by Mr. Omar Reynolds, who has served this class as teacher for 16 years.

The Bible Study of the First Methodist Church will resume again next Sunday evening at 6:00 p.m Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Lee Roy Ussery of the Guarantee Life and Savings Insurance Co., in Montgomery, will be guest speaker at the First Methodist Church Sunday morning at the 11:00 a.m. worship service.

This is Layman's Day in our church.

Regular meeting of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church will meet Monday evening at 6:30 p.m. at the City Grill. The hosts for the evening, will be Otto Jones, chairman, Jim Wade, W. C. Davidson, R. M. Tucker, Joe Murphree, Joe Campbell and Gordon Robertson.

There will be a meeting of the Workers Council at 6:30 on Tuesday evening with a covered dish supper.

Beginning Monday, March 2nd, 1953, and every Monday through March 23, at 7:00 p.m., the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist Church will begin their study on Africa.

March 2 — "This Is Africa," Mrs. Marvin Vickers. Devotional, Mrs. H. S. Crosland.

March 9th — "Africa On Safari," Mrs. Lola Christensen. Devotional, Mrs. George Tucker. Family Council: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tessier, Mr. Ed Waldrup, Mrs. Cecil Carter, Judge Dave Tingle.

March 23 — African Dinner and Festival Hostesses: Mrs. Campbell White, Mrs. Norman Roberts, Mrs. M. K. Vickers, Mrs. Joe Mullins, Mrs. B. L. Venable, Mrs. Florence Wilbanks.

Devotional — Mrs. Jack Hunter.

Singing At New Salem Friday Night

The monthly singing will be held at New Salem on Friday night, February 27th, beginning at 7 o'clock. Everyone is cordially invited to attend especially those who are interested in good singing.

Now that most of the flu is over we urge members of this community to come out and help in this gospel work. — Emily Smith, Reporter.

Boutwell Speaks To Jaycees

The newly organized Clanton Junior Chamber of Commerce had as its guest speaker last Monday evening State Senator Albert Boutwell, President pro tem of the State Senate from Birmingham. Senator Boutwell was introduced to the Club by Ike Allums, president of the Birmingham Chapter of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The Senator spoke of the things to come in the State Legislature and some of the measures that will come up in the Legislature this session. At the conclusion of his talk, the Senator held a question and answer period and some very interesting questions were brought up.

At the next meeting of the J.C. they will hold a banquet in honor of charter night. It will be quite an affair with dignitaries of Clanton Civic Clubs and Birmingham Clubs invited.

Biggest Problems of Young People Are Unhappy Homes and the Draft

The problems of the nations youth have concerned the entire country in recent years.

Now, a national survey of 7,037 young people, reports that young people today are most worried about two problems: the draft and the threat of war, and unhappy relationships between fathers and mothers.

The survey, which included such diversified groups as a young ladies' finishing school in Massachusetts and a state reform school in the midwest, listed 23 problems that face today's youth.

Of the replies, 56 per cent listed the draft and unhappy relationships between fathers and mothers as the top problem.

The next seven included:

1. Developing healthy attitude about sex.
2. Being misunderstood by parents.
3. Finding the right job.
4. Use of narcotics.
5. Responsible driving of automobiles.
6. Use of alcohol.
7. Religious uncertainties.

The poll was devised by Miss Elma Phillipson, executive secretary of the National Midcentury Committee for Children and Youth.

It was not a scientific sampling, she explained. Nor did they attempt to differentiate between the voter's selection of problems that were important to him and problems that he thought was important to others.

Miss Phillipson reports that in her opinion, despite the obvious limitations of the poll, the results merit attention because they are unique. "So far as we know, there has been no similar attempt in recent years to find out which are the most serious problems of the young."

A surprising result of the poll was the low ratings given economic problems. A good home was voted 15th in the list of 23 problems. Good clothing and an automobile and television set were put at the very bottom.

"Since almost one-third of the nation's young people don't have living condition that measure up to the American standard, the low ratings were a surprise," Miss Phillipson said.

The overwhelming majority of the replies to the poll came from persons under 21. The total was 6,181.

It's easy to make last minute decisions when you don't have any work to do in the first place.

One thing we have never figured out. Just as soon as a man gets old enough to know anything much, his life ends.

You can help make this community a better place in which to live by helping the less fortunate and refusing to spread petty gossip.

Most reform moves run into heavy going as soon as they touch the pocketbook.

The less a fellow knows the more sure he is that he is right.

DISLIKE OF AMERICANS ABROAD

An important conference was recently held in Paris, with officers of the Army, Navy and Air Force participating. The purpose was to study ways to reduce the growing amount of dislike of American soldiers and other armed forces personnel in Europe.

The conference was one of a series, which has been held at the instigation of Gen. Thomas T. Handy, deputy United States Commander in Europe, who seeks solutions for the unpopularity problem.

One of the reasons for this growing unpopularity is the high living standard of U. S. armed services personnel abroad. Even the lower ranks in U. S. service receive enough dollars to easily outdo their native competition in the pursuit of female company and this is naturally resented, in many instances.

There has also been the problem, at some times in the past, of the boisterous nature of many Americans when they find themselves three thousand miles from home. Their conduct in such a faraway theater is often not what it would be were they in their own home town or home state.

Then, there are the irritations which cannot be helped, such as noise created by warplanes and military trucks, sharp price increases in towns where U. S. troops are stationed and the destruction of roads by heavy U. S. equipment, weighing more than the small European roads were designed to carry.

The studies going on, in an effort to ease this growing tension, are vitally important. Although liberation and wartime occupation is one thing, large numbers of U. S. troops occupying foreign countries in peacetime present different problems. These problems have become so serious that every effort must be made to find a solution and prevent a serious breakdown in relations.

MISINFORMATION ON FLUORIDE

A six-year experiment in the East Texas city of Marshall was recently cited as proof that fluoride in drinking water can reduce dental cavities considerably. The test, which was hailed as one of the most carefully conducted in the country, was carried on with the cooperation of the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association.

Dr. Edward Taylor, chief of the Texas Health Department's dental division, in announcing results of the test recently, said that Marshall children have had 57 per cent fewer cavities than those of the same age group in another town, included in the test, where fluoride was not provided. In fact, the cavity rate among Marshall children is reported to be declining steadily while cavities among children in the other town, where fluoride is not being used, are increasing.

Since fluoride was first announced some years ago, there has been a continuous stream of articles, some pro and some con, some conservative, and some claiming great achievements for the chemical. As with any new discovery, it has seemed that a number of men in the dental field have delighted in dousing cold water on the enthusiasm about fluoride. Also there have been countless articles, saying that tests so far conducted are not conclusive.

This latest test, which covered a period of six years and which was conducted with the cooperation of both the American Medical Association and the American Dental Association, should settle the arguments once and for all. Every town and community in the country, which has the money, should look into the possibility of adding fluoride to the drinking water supply.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

My week's activities were highlighted by three busy sessions of Congress; a Veterans of Foreign Wars dinner; meeting with Billy Graham; and introduction to both the 1952 presidential candidates.

Following two days of debate, the House approved a supplemental appropriation bill to make up for deficiences in certain 1952 funds. An amendment to add $20.5 million to the appropriation for federal assistance to overcrowded schools in defense areas was approved by a large majority. On the other hand, the House turned down an amendment to restore $10 million to the Veterans Administration for hospital purposes. Although the $20.5 for schools was added to the bill after it reached the floor of the House, the entire amount was still almost $1.4 billion below the budget estimates.

After three meetings during the week, our Veterans Affairs Committee completed discussions relating to the medical program of the Veterans Administration. Admiral Joel T. Boone, the VA's Chief Medical Director, testified during two meetings; and on the third day chief speaker was James W. Cothran, VFW national commander. A number of state VFW commanders appeared with Mr. Cothran.

Meets Stevenson—

Events in Washington last Sunday and Monday were reminiscent of the pre-election days of 1952. The first day, Stephen Mitchell, national chairman of the Democratic Committee, entertained at a reception honoring the Democratic members of Congress and their wives. Principal guest on this occasion was Gov. Adlai Stevenson. The following day Stevenson was honored guest at an informal meeting in the House Office Building where he talked with members of Congress and their staffs. Gov. Stevenson is certainly an able and colorful speaker, and it is easy to see why he made such a fine impression on the American people in his unsuccessful campaign for president last fall.

President Is Guest—

That evening the events were reversed and the spotlight shone on President and Mrs. Eisenhower when the Congressional Women's Club entertained in their honor. Sharing the position of honor on this occasion were Vice President and Mrs. Nixon. After attending all three functions, I felt I had set a new record for myself—and probably one that will not be repeated—in meeting and talking with four major figures of the past election within a 24 hour period. The fourth major figure was, of course, Senator Sparkman who, with Mrs. Sparkman, attended both the receptions.

About 60 Congressmen attended our Breakfast Club meeting Thursday to hear the Rev. Billy Graham speak on his recent visit with American troops in Korea.

He opened his talk by describing the "breath-taking beauty" of Korea and how scenic the country would be if it were not marred by the scars of war. As he began to speak, I was particularly impressed by his youthful, neat appearance and the vivid manner in which he related the high points of his Korean trip.

He remarked that his reactions to Korea were three-fold, political, military, and spiritual, and he continued to explain each subject. He said the South Koreans, including President Syngman Rhee, agree that Korea cannot survive as a separated nation and will one day be united either as a democracy or under communism. Graham was told that 90% of the North Koreans were disggusted with communism.

On the military question, his conclusion was that the 8th Army is the finest in American history. He said the commanders were outstanding and that he was amazed at the moral and spiritual leadership given the troops.

"In spite of the horrible suffering and tragedy," he said, "great spiritual good is coming out of the conflict." He explained how religion is sweeping over Korea among our men as well as natives of the country. This is evidenced by the growth of churches. Before the war there were only seven churches in Pusan; today there are 70, many of them holding services at six o'clock in the morning.

Stassen Speaks—

Principal speaker at the Veterans of Foreign Wars annual dinner honoring members of Congress was Harold Stassen, new director of the Mutual Security Agency.

Stassen gave the first public report on his recent visit to Europe where he observed phases of our foreign economic aid programs. He spoke to a large audience which included many members of Congress and top military leaders.

In addition to Stassen's talk, General Bradley himself presented the Omar N. Bradley gold medal award to the president of Scripps-Howard newspaper association who accepted it in behalf of Jim G. Lucas, war correspndent. Lucas is still in Korea where he writes daily reports of the conflict as it affects individual soldiers.

It was my pleasure to attend this dinner with other members of the Alabama delegation as the guest of David U. Patton, Alabama State VFW commander and John A. (Buck) Jenkins, deputy vice-commander.

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

Before and during the war Eva St. Charles, 1960 Santa Fe Avenue, Long Beach, California, and her family operated several restaurants. They made a lot of money but she detested the business. She had once been away from it for several years and when she had returned to it she had forgotten how she really felt about it.

By and by she and her husband bought a restaurant. She says she can hardly excuse herself for not knowing better than to go into it, but here she was in the same business she had promised herself she never would go into again.

CARNEGIE

A few days after they took over the restaurant, she began to question her sanity. A state of depression settled on her which steadily became worse. Instead of looking forward to each new day with cheerful thoughts that might lift her out of this mental state, she let morbid, unhappy thoughts take possession and they would last through the day. The only relief she had from this terrible suffocating feeling was when she was asleep. She wondered if she ever would be able to overcome it and be happy again.

Then someone gave her a copy of a book on Worry. As she read it, her slant on life gradually changed. She started applying to her life some of the rules contained in the book. Soon she felt like a new person and she declares she is happier now than she has been in a long time.

Here are some of the rules; the application of which she says is transforming her life:

1. When you are inclined to worry, lose yourself in action.
2. Cooperate with the inevitable.
3. Don't permit trifles to irritate you.
4. Think cheerful thoughts; act cheerful.
5. Learn to relax—preferably out of doors.
6. Stop thinking about people you don't like
7. Count your blessings every day.

2 For 1½ years against accidental failure

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Duncannon Record, Duncannon, Pa.: Once upon a time, long, long ago, being in business was a simple matter. A man was able to compute his profits at the end of the year by a record of income and expenditures, and the difference in inventory at the close of the year. He paid his income tax, and the rest was his.

Maybe the net result is still the same—we wouldn't know. We do know that it is no longer a simple process. Now a businessman collects the income tax from his employees, and turns it over to the government. He must file a quarterly return on this tax. He not only collects the employees' share of social security and turns it over to the government, he also contributes a like amount. For this job, he must also submit a quarterly return to the government. He must give each employee a statement of his earnings, tax withheld, social security deducted, number of dependents, etc., etc. Unemployment compensation insurance is also compulsory. For this, too, quarterly reports are required.

Don't get us wrong. We are heartily in favor of social security, unemployment insurance, and hospitalization. We wouldn't want to be without them. But we're not in favor of having a report waiting to be filled out every time we turn around. Here are some statistics asked for a report we're struggling with now: Capital invested, days in operation; rated horsepower of motors driven by purchased current; total primary horsepower; total number of electric motors and horsepower: wage earners nationality; wage earners, sex and wages paid; salaried persons and office force, and total salaries for year; cost of materials, cost of fuel, cost of purchased electric energy, cost of contract work done for you.

Add these all up, throw in the headaches of labor turnover, skyhigh prices, wage stabilization and a few dozen other agencies, and there you are. Sittin' on top of the world, a business of your own—even if a couple dozen governmental agencies know more about it than you do. This is Utopia?

From the Lamar County Echo, Lamar, Texas: Our neighbors have two pet rabbits which are kept in a cage about four feet square. Every morning another rabbit hops up to the cage for a "visit" and then, when he sights a dog or other danger, scampers off to safety. Why do we have an item like in an editorial column? Simply to illustrate the difference between "security" and "freedom." The pets are undoubtedly secure—no harm can come to them, but they have no freedom. Which do the people of this country prefer—security or freedom?

From the Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: The press has sometimes been criticized for squawking too much about their own freedom. But it is not their own freedom in question, it is the freedom of the people who have a press which can give them all the facts on the news of the day without being subject to censorship.

Cut Death Rate, Gather More Eggs

Auburn, Ala.—A high death rate in the laying flock will ruin egg profits.

There are several ways flock owners can cut death loss. First, select stock from a strain of birds known to have a low death rate. Grow chicks in clean houses and on clean ranges away from older poultry.

Another good practice is to keep a pair of rubber shoes at the entrance of the brooder house to slip on when entering the building. The shoes should be left in the same place after leaving the building. This will help prevent spread of disease.

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

The attendance was fair for Sunday School and worship service Sunday. We give everyone a very special invitation to be with us next Sunday, also on Sunday night for Training Union, as much good can be accomplished by the lessons we have. At Wednesday night prayer service Bro. Cook is teaching the Book of Phillipians. You are invited to attend. We are happy to have had the new ones out last Wednesday night.

Our Spring revival will begin the fifth Sunday in March at the eleven o'clock hour, with Bro. Bill Cox doing the preaching.

Our W.M.S. met with Mrs. E. W. Hill last Thursday for our mission study. The book, "The West Is Big," was taught by several members of the W.M.S. and enjoyed by all present.

We invite everyone to meet with us on Wednesday, March 4th, for our Annie Armstrong program and Day of Prayer, in the home of Mrs. W. C. Moore. Each lady is to bring a dish of food for lunch.

We ask that everyone still be much in prayer for our pastor's mother, who has been in Central Alabama Hospital for several days with pneumonia. We hope she will be home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Parker and boys of Grimes Chapel Community visited Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook over the week end, and attended church with us Sunday. We were happy to have them.

Mrs. T. J. Stewart honored Tommy with a party on his eighth birthday. Thirteen of his little friends enjoyed the occasion with him, playing several games. Then Tmmy opened his gifts and all joined him in the dining room and sang Happy Birthday, as he blew out the candles on his lovely birthday cake, made by his mother and grandmother, Mrs. Tibbs. Then everyone had their fill of ice cream and cake, and bubble gum.

JEMISON HIGH PLAYS PRATTVILLE HIGH FRIDAY

The Jemison High Panthers roll down the curtain of the 1952-53 basketball season on Friday night, when they play host to Coach Jensen's Quint from Prattville. The season's record indicate that these two teams are fairly evenly matched, thus assuring all comers a real lively game.

The JHS Panthers have won 12 games out of 21 played; losing nine. The Baby Panthers' record shows 15 wins out of 21 games.

Jemison enters the AA District Tourney at Selma on March 3-4-5. They drew a bye the first day and must face the winner of the Selma-Catholic game. Tough competition right to begin with. Last week's play saw Jemison trip a dandy little high school team from Maplesville, 38 to 36 in an over-time game; then Friday night they were tripped by the sparkling little team of Isabella High 65 to 56.

Don't forget the final game of the season, Friday night at Jemison Gym. JHS versus Prattville. Game time 7 and 8 p.m. — R. B. Johnson, Sports Reporter.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

I have a friend who has a habit of driving up to a stop light, right to the white line, and as he waits for the light to change races the motor of his automobile. It has a startling effect on the pedestrians.

Three times he did it to me and every time I nearly jumped out of my shoes.

Then, the other day he did it again. But this time when I jumped I didn't come down in my shoes again. I flopped in the middle of the street.

My friend jumped out of his automobile to help me to my feet. The guy thought for a minute he had hit me. A crowd collected and with them the law.

"You're under arrest," says the policeman to my friend.

My friend protested that he hadn't hit me.

"You'll get 30 days," says the policeman.

"Please tell him," says my friend, "it's only one of your little jokes."

"I think I'm gonna die," I moaned.

"Please, you stinker," pleads my friend. "Tell the kind policeman your only doing this to break me of a bad habit."

"So-o-o-o," bellows the policeman. "Drunk driving, huh!"

"Oh-h-h." I moaned.

The crowd murmured in sympathy.

"This will get you 90 days," says the policeman and takes my friend by the arm.

At this point I thought I had better tell the truth. I tried.

"Don't feel sorry for this bird," says the policeman. Off he marches dragging my reluctant friend.

Two hours later I had him free again, but it cost me $10?. And the stinker won't pay me back. How am I going to explain the bank balance to the wife?

A Plan For Church Financing

William R. Morgan.

In approaching the subject of church financing, it is well to remember that it goes ultimately back to people and the work that people perform. Money given to the church is more than mere cold cash, it is the thought, toil, skill, sweat, and sometimes even snffering of the people. I am convinced that the incident of the widow's mite as recorded in Mark 12:41-42 and Luke 21:1-4, is repeated in our churches far more than we realize.

With this in mind, I would like to discuss a plan of church financing that Lutherans have, for the most part, found successful.

Freewill offerings of the members is the first phase of this plan. They are deposited in the offering plates passed during the services of the church. Needless to say, they constitute the bulk of the church's income. The main point I try to stress is regularity in giving. If a member is obliged to miss church, he should make up his offering the next Sunday. You may say, "What shall determine the amount each individual should give?" My answer is simply that the individual should honestly decide for himself on the basis of the needs of the church, and his ability to pay. It is not for the church, or the pastor, to specify a certain amount for each person to pay. When Christians see the need of the kingdm, and know how their money is being spent, they will give most generously.

Special Gifts constitute the second phase of this plan. These are, to be sure, offerings also; but they are classified separately because of their somewhat different nature of reception. Special gifts may come through donations, bequests, trusts, dedications, and the like. We feel that it is perfectly proper for the pastor to suggest to wealthy members to remember the church in their wills. Over the years Lutherans have been thoughtful about remembering the church in their will. Occasionally people of other denominations leave money (usually to our institutions) and if it is given in good faith, we accept it. I would like to cite a recent illustration of that.

Our home for the aged and helpless at White Rock, S. C., recently received a gift of $100,000 from a Baptist lady whom the home had befriended in her last years. That money has been used to erect a new building in her memory.

Many gifts other than bequests, are also given to further the work of Christ and His church and to carry the Gospel to all the world.

Investments will be the final phase of my plan. Sometimes a congregation will come into possession of a large sum of money that cannot be disposed of readily, or may receive a bequest with certain strings attached. Rather than let the money lie idle in the bank, it will be invested in stocks, securities, or government bonds and the interest used to further the income of the congregation.

During recent years, however, the demands of the church at home and abroad have been so excessive that most congregational surpluses have been wiped out as our people responded graciously to the needs of the church.

Whatever method is used to finance the church must be free of coercion or pressure. Unless people give freely, the gift doesn't mean much. The church is not to be an ecclesiastical bureau of internal revenue demanding that the people give so much of their money; but encourage them to give out of hearts of love and gratitude to God for His manifold blessings. If I had to choose a single text for financing God's work, without hesitation I would choose Christ's admonition to His disciples in Matt. 6:33, "but seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all of these things (material gifts) will be added unto you."

Birthday Dinner—

Mrs. Ethel Cummings was honored by her children on Sunday, February 22, with a happy surprise birthday dinner at her home. She was 67 years old. While Mrs. Cummings was attending church services at Mulberry all the children and their families gathered at her home, except two girls. Each one brought a well-filled basket of good eats. As she entered her room everyone sang, Happy Birthday, to her. She was overjoyed with happiness. After exchanging greetings all present gathered in the dining room where the dining table was filled with delicious food. In the center of the table was a large 6-layer white cake topped with the sixty-seven blue candles and decorated with several different shades of rosebuds. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lloyd Cummings, baked this cake, and each layer was a different kind and different size. Everyone present enjoyed this bountiful meal toegther.

The remainder of the day was spent in talking and looking at gifts, which Mrs. Cummings received. She received very nice gifts, which she appreciated very much.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Stevens, Mrs. Douglas Fox and Miss Jeanine Nelson of Alex City; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Cummings, of Goodwater; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lecroy, Mr. and Mrs. Quinton Cummings and Diane, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cummings, Hubert and Richard, Mr. and Mrs. James Veasey, Mary Nell, Bobby, Annette and Nora Jean, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. C. and Emogene, Mr. and Mrs. Casey Cummings, Charleen and David, Mr. and Mrs. Judson Cummings and boys, Robert Cummings, all of Isabella; Mr. and Mrs. Zane Lowery of Liberty Hill and Miss Jessie Holcomb of near Montevallo.

Mrs. Emma Manning and Mrs. J. H. Wells called in the afternoon.

Everyone enjoyed the day together. On departing each one said goodbye with the expectation of meeting again next year for this happy occasion.

SARDIS - VERMONT

Our church attendance was low due to much sickness in our community. Let's all remember them in our prayers. We urge our members to come to church and visitors are always welcome.

Earl Ousley, Training Union Director, has set aside the week of March 1st, as "Enlargement Week" and extends a special invitation to all to come to Training Union. Training Union each Sunday night at 6:30.

The chicken supper and community singing at Vermont School last Thursday night was a success and everyone enjoyed themselves. Thanks go to Mrs. E. F. Klinner who worked so hard along with the mothers of the community. There was a good crowd for the singing. Visitors from Prattville were the C. M. Billingsleys, the R. E. Berry's and the Chordetts.

Mrs. Raymond Kendrick who recently underwent a serious operation in Birmingham is said to be improving nicely and is expected home some time this week.

Rev. and Mrs. Vester Bice spent Sunday with the Earl Ousley's.

Mr. Earl Short, who has been ill much of the winter is improving.

Remember the Red Cross Drive beginning March 1st. Have your donations ready for the workers. This is a worthy cause. Let's go all out and put our community over the top.

You'll get more wear from your hose if you observe these simple precautions in both wearing and laundering:

Be certain your hose are large enough to fit. Too small a size or too short stocking cause holes and runs.

Wear the proper weight for the function. Too sheer hose worn to work or at home will run easily because they need to take too much of a strain. Sheer hose are designed for dress and leisure occasions when you're not walking too much or bending to do some task.

Keep your toe nails trimmed and smooth so hose won't snag when you're putting them on. The same applies to fingernails, which, if too sharp, will easily cause holes or snags as you put the hose on the foot.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Seafood Creole

(Serves 6)

2 cups cooked fish (shrimp, lobster, etc.)
2 cups onions, chopped
2 cups green pepper, chopped
1 quart canned tomatoes
2 tablespoons butter
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 clove garlic, chopped
Salt and pepper

Melt butter, add paprika and blend. Add onion, green pepper and garlic and saute until tender. Add tomatoes and other seasonings. Allow to simmer for 5 minutes and then add fish and continue to simmer for 10 minutes longer. Serve with rice, if desired.

Do not wring or twist hose in washing or rinsing. To dry quickly, roll in heavy towel, knead out moisture and unroll at once. Ease and shake into shape, dry on the wrong side just as they were washed and the hose will be ready to wear when dry.

Always remove rings, except plain bands, and bracelets when putting on hose so that you won't be getting needless runs and snags in the hose. The same applies to the hands when you're washing them.

Wash out hose as soon as they're off the foot, if possible. Perspiration from the foot remaining in the stocking weakens it.

Local Social Items

Little Faye Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Williams, celebrated her sixth birthday at the home of her parents on Selma Road Saturday afternoon, since her birthday came on Sunday, February 22.

The honoree greeted her little guests wearing a pink taffeta evening dress with bouffant skirt, and corsage of pink camellias. Her sister, Lynn, dressed in a white taffeta evening dress, assisted in the entertaining.

Several musical games were played and then the children enjoyed "fishing" where they each received a favor.

After opening the many gift wrapped presents, the guests were invited into the dining room. The birthday table was covered with an imported double damask linen cloth, and centered with the birthday cake, embossed with many colored candy balloons and holding six burning candles on a musical cake plate that played "Happy Birthday" as the children came in. There were pink and blue ribbon streamers running from the center arrangement, to each plate, interspersed with pink camellias. After ice cream and cake, each child received a paper party hat and an inflated balloon.

Those enjoying this delightful courtesy were:

DELTA KAPPA GAMMA

Alpha Beta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma held an initiation and banquet meeting for the February meeting. The Curry Thomas home was the setting for the initiation. Spring flowers and choice camellias were artistically arranged throughout the rooms. The dining room, the setting for the initiation, was appropriately decorated with red roses. From the Thomas home members went to the Dixie Cafe where the guests joined them in a formal banquet. The tables afforded outstanding beauty in the arrangements of red roses and emblematic napkins and place cards.

The initiates new members, Mrs. Irby Deramus and Mrs. J. B. Fort, from Verbena, were welcomed as chapter members by the president, Mary Clements, who presided at the banquet. A welcome was extended the guests who were husbands of the chapter members, and Mrs. Nell W. Walton of Jemison, Mrs. Vera W. Griffin of Clanton, Miss Louise Foshee of Maplesville, and Mrs. H. W. Yeager.

The program committee presented Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson who was graciously introduced by Mrs. Ruth Waters. A trip to the Hawaiian Islands with Dr. Hutchinson in speech and screen illustration was enjoyed by each one present.—Publicity chairman, Edna Williams.

HOMEMAKERS HAVE INTERESTING MEETING

On Friday evening, February 20th, Mrs. Dick Hayes, Mrs. M. C. Hamilton, Mrs. W. C. Dickinson and Mrs. A. K. Crbett were joint hostesses to the Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church, Clanton.

A profusion of early spring flowers in most attractive arrangements and burning tapers were used to add to the loveliness of the Hayes' home on Seventh Avenue North.

The meeting was called to order by the class president, Mrs. Willie Bean, with the group singing the class hymn, "Help Somebody Today." This was followed with prayer.

Mrs. W. W. Brown, program director, presented Mrs. Frank Scott, who brought a most interesting devotional period. Mrs. Scott spoke on the District Sunday School Convention she and others from Clanton had recently attended in Sylacauga. Telling of the convention, the speaker quoted the familiar theme for the session, "A Million More In '54." Reminding her listeners that the Baptist Churches and Sunday Schools will grow through visiting. Referring to Bible Scriptures from Luke, John, Acts, and Matthew.

During the business period the president called for the minutes to be read and reports from the various committees to be given. A committee was appointed to find a worthy project for the class for the coming month.

Two Washington contests were directed by Mrs. Brown during the social hour, at which time the hostess served a delightful refreshment plate.

West End Baptist Church News

The members of West End Baptist Church are proud of the good attendance we have had this month in Sunday School and Worship Service. Last Sunday we had 111 persons attending Sunday School. Our pastor, Bro. R. E. Wilkins, brought the morning message with the subject, "Paul's Heavenly Vision." Rev. Herbert Lowery, visiting with us from Fort Worth, Texas, brought the evening message.

Those people who heard Rev. Lloyd Jones, member of the West End Baptist Church, were impressed with his message given over WKLF last Thursday morning.

We are much indebted to Mrs. Russell Williams who taught our Home Mission Book, "The West Is Big," for the W.M.U. last Thursday night. Her message was one well to be remembered by those who are "on the go" for Christ.

The Young Matron's Circle met Tuesday night, February 17th, at the home of Mrs. Jack Meek with the majority of the members attending and were honored to have Mrs. Jesse Jones, our W.M.U. President, to meet with them. She gave an interesting talk on "The Right Way" or "What Baptists Believe."

Our Spring revival will begin on March 15, 1953, with Bro. Bob Barker, Chickasaw, Alabama, as evangelist. Everyone is invited to attend. We urge you to pray that many souls will be saved in this community. We are grateful to God for those who have identified themselves with our church during the month of February with nine candidates for baptism and six persons by transfer of letter.

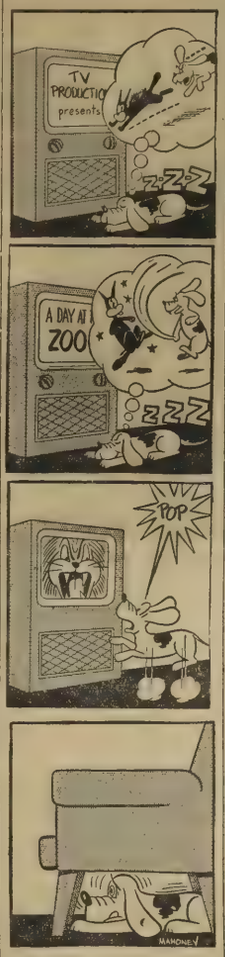
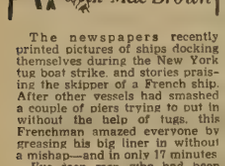
THE BAFFLES

By Mahoney





The newspapers recently printed pictures of ships docking themselves during the New York tug boat strike, and stories praising the skipper of a French ship. After other vessels had smashed a couple of piers trying to out in without the help of tugs, this Frenchman amazed everyone by greasing his big liner in without a mishap—and in only 17 minutes.

I've seen men who had been Air Force pilots during the war whistle in admiration as some pilot of a fast plane brought his craft in for a slick landing under trying conditions. Everybody who understands the difficulties of a job gets real satisfaction out of seeing an expert do it right.

As I drive along the highways of Alabama, every once in a while I see somebody driving another truck or a car, and I think to myself, "Now there's an expert." Lots of people recognize that there is an expert status for some kinds of work, but never realize that anybody can be an expert driver, or a sorry one.

I think that long-hoped-for day of greater safety on the highways will come when people start taking pride in being expert drivers rather than hot-heads. I know that most truck drivers are trying to build good reputations for themselves. As for myself, I've got seven years behind me without an accident. I hope to make it many more. There's one trucker in Alabama who has been at it fifty years, and never had a bump.

SAMARIA NEWS

We, the people of Samaria Community, extend our heart-felt sympathy to the Webby Cooper family in the loss of their mother, Mrs. Alice Chambers.

The people of Samaria would like to remind each and every one of you that we have Sunday School each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock and Training Union each Sunday night at 6 o'clock.

The church as a whole would like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Ed Goodgame and Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Glenn for the nice job they did to improve the looks on the inside of our church.

We would like for each of you young people who don't have a place to go on Sunday night to come and be with us at Training Union. We have just recently re-organized our Training Union and we are hoping it will be a great progress in the future.

Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Hand visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Goodgame and Marsha Sunday afternoon.

We wish to thank Mrs. Lois Mims and Mrs. Newt Popwell for the lovely flowers they brought to the church Sunday. We all enjoyed them very much.

Let's don't forget to pray for all the sick and for the boys who are fighting for our freedom. — Reporter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to all who helped me when I lost my mule, especially Mr. A. B. Milford, and all. Thanking you.—C. R. Mims and Family.

SLEEPY JAKE'S RABBIT

By Virginia Struble

It was mid-February and two cold to placer the creek, so the miners were gathered in the Crystal Palace Saloon. The Crystal Palace had no crystal and was as flimsy as any building on the gulch. But it was warm and the boys sat near the stove swapping yarns because they couldn't afford to drink or play faro.

"Wish something would happen," said Hank with his elbows on the bar. "I don't get even the exercise of turning a spigot when you boys are broke."

"Here's news," Mike announced. "Sleepy Jake's shot a rabbit. Got it while he was setting coyote traps probably."

"That's news all right," yawned Steve, who sat tilted back in a chair with his feet on a table. "The rabbit must have been sleepier than old Jake."

"How sound do you suppose Jake sleeps?" asked Buckeye Williams.

"We was Pike's Peakers together," said Jack. "He slept so sound one night his cabin liked to burned down on him. Had to throw water on him to wake him up. I got a Lincoln skin that says Jake wouldn't wake up if we was to walk in and eat that rabbit right under his nose." Jack held the bill.

Steve brought the front legs of his chair down to the floor with a bang. "Tell you what, Buck and me are disinterested parties since we can't bet. We'll go over to Jake's and eat the rabbit."

"That's one way to get a square meal when you're broke." Mike's laugh took the sting from his words. "First we got to be sure the rabbit is cooked and Jake's asleep. How long does it take to cook a rabbit, Hank?"

"'Bout three hours, I'd say, if it's an old one." He pulled on his black mustache. "If Jake ketched him, he's sure to be old."

Three hours and several games of seven-up later, the miners wrapped themselves in heavy coats, caps and mittens and tramped out into the snow packed street.

The four moved quickly toward Jake's shanty. There a savory odor greeted them.

Big Mike pulled the rags out of the broken window to watch the proceedings. Jack crowded up beside him. Steve pushed the door open and Buck followed him inside.

Jake slept in a chair. A heavy skillet was steaming on the stove and the men tip-toed toward it. Steve set the lid aside. Buck took a fork from the table and speared a piece of meat. While he waved it in the air to cool, Steve knifed himself a brown-crusted leg."

Buck bit into his piece and pantomimed its excellence to the men at the window. He cleaned off the choicest of the meat and reached for another piece.

"Give us some," whispered Jack. Two rib pieces were pushed through the hole. Steve stumbled over a coyote trap but Jake in his rickety chair, continued snoring.

They piled the bones on the table and Buck smeared grease on Jake's lips and hands. Reaching for Mike's flashy tie pin, he motioned Steve outside. Buck knelt behind Jake's chair and gave a vicious stab with the pin.

Jake let out a startled yelp and sprang to his feet. He looked at the empty skillet, the pile of bones, his greasy hands, and ran his tongue over his lips.

"I must have et that rabbit in my sleep," he said doubtfully, "but it sure lies light on my stomach."

After the laughing was over, Jake shook his head. "Sorry to tell you this, boys, but that rabbit was bad sick. I was cooking it for coyote bait."

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Got a kick out of listening to Lester Carter tell about the time he picked up the shaving soap to wash his teeth with—thought it was tooth paste. Can you imagine anyone doing a thing like that? Excepting yours truly, that is. The other day we rushed into the bath room to get a quick shave and picked up the pepsodent tube and smeared the stuff all over our face. Didn't notice the difference until we got that first whiff of peppermint and wondered when they had started making shaving soap that flavor.

JUST CORRECTING RUMORS

There is no truth in the rumor that the new courthouse will be built instead of the county hospital. There is no connection between the two projects and as soon as the Federal Government says "go" work will start on the hospital. . . . The rumor that building the new courthouse would take money that would go to the schools is false. The county governing body has no authority over the Department of Education or does it have any way to divert funds allocated to it. . . . The rumor that no local labor will be used on the new courthouse. There will be a clause written into the contract that local labor will be used whenever possible. This has been assured by the Chairman of the Board of Revenue and Control.

A RESOLUTION

A Resolution Endorsing the Action of the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, in Passing Resolutions for the Erection of a New Courthouse, Jail and Auditorium in Chilton County, Alabama.

THAT, WHEREAS, the present courthouse of Chilton County, Alabama, which is located on the corner of 6th Street and 2nd Avenue, North, in Clanton, Alabama, is badly in need of repair, and is inadequate for the housing of the public records of Chilton County, Alabama, and,

WHEREAS, there is a need for a new Courthouse and Jail, as the old Jail is in bad condition, and needs certain repairs, and also there is a need in the County for an auditorium for the holding of public sponsored programs as well as certain private sponsored programs for the raising of funds for charitable purposes, public meetings, etc.

AND IT FURTHER APPEARING that said County is paying large sums of money for rent of space to house the Board of Education, County Engineer and other public officials, which sums of money could apply on the erection of a new courthouse and Jail.

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED BY THE CLANTON LIONS CLUB, they go on record endorsing The Board of Revenue and Control in taking the necessary steps starting the construction of a new courthouse, jail and auditorium which will be adequate to take care of records and needs of Chilton County for the years to come, and not only adequate for the housing of the present officials in the courthouse, but those which said County pays rent for.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be given each Associate Member of the Board of Revenue and Control, the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, and to the local newspapers and radio station.

ADOPTED, APPROVED AND INDORSED by the Clanton Lions Club at the regular meeting of the 9th of February, 1953.

R. L. SCOTT,
President, Clanton Lions Club.

Community Concert Association Presents John Knight, Pianist

JOHN KNIGHT — PIANIST

The Chilton County Community Concert Patrons have a rare treat in store for them, when John Knight, brilliant young pianist, will appear as guest artist on Thursday evening, March 5th, at the auditorium of the First Baptist Church at 8:00 p.m.

A prodigy who has grown up to mature artistry, John Knight began at the age of two to astound musical friends. His mother, a concert pianist herself, realized that the infant had absolute pitch. At four, he became a pupil of the well-known teacher, Mona Bates, in Toronto, where he was born. At five he made his first public appearance.

The pianist never was exploited as a prodigy, but was allowed to develop in a natural way. At nine, he received this commendation from the critic, Augustus Bridle: "He is a normal boy with an abnormal development in music."

On February 11, 1951, at the age of seventeen, John Knight was chosen by Sir Ernest MacMillan as soloist with the Toronto Symphony in the Grieg Concerto, an auspicious debut which led to other major engagements. His career was, however, interrupted by the war. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F., and served for three years as a wireless air gunner. Since his return to the concert stage, he has won wide success in his native Canada, and also conquered audiences from coast to coast in the United States.

When he made his New York debut, on February 21, 1949, the New York Times wrote: "A young Canadian pianist with a bright future—his talent bearing held the audience in breathless silence, and he filled his playing with delicate, but sharply delineated musical shapes—we shall hear more of him."

This prediction has come true, for John Knight has played in dozens of cities in the United States, and has won warm approval everywhere. After an appearance with the Toronto Symphony recently in the Liszt Concerto, the Toronto Star wrote: "Just about every aspiring concert pianist in town turned out to see the colleague who had hit the major league. . . .Knight showed himself an artist who thinks for himself at the keyboard and with a genius for infusing drama and poetry into his playing."

John Knight is filling another coast to coast tour in the season of 1952-53, and is also heard many times in Canada, in solo recitals and with orchestras.

B. F. WILLIAMS, L. & N. SUPERVISOR, RETIRED AND REHIRED

Mr. B. F. Williams retires from his 50-year service as L. & N. Supervisor on territory from Birmingham to Montgomery this February.

February 28th was a big day in the life of Mr. Williams. The L. & N. force from up and down the road, gathered in Birmingham to be with Mr. Williams on his last day with the company. During the program, a lovely Mahogany Cabinet Television, a Universal electric blanket, and a pocket full of money was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Williams. Tears were shed and many good things were expressed about the work of the retiring supervisor.

Mr. Williams starts Monday in a new field of work as a supervisor for the Thomas Construction Company out of Birmingham. Still facing railroads, as a dyed-in-the-wool-railroader, he would not turn otherwise.

This paper congratulates Mr. Williams on his successful past railroad services, and wishes for him the same success in the future with his new work.

SEVEN GIRLS IN 10 YEARS

Chicago, Ill. — When Mr. and Mrs. Hendry Drabik announced, after their marriage in 1941, that they wanted 10 children—all girls, friends laughed good naturedly and wished them luck. On January 31, 1953, their seventh child was born — the seventh girl in the family. They still want ten children — all girls.

Red Cross Announces Drastic Change In Blood Program

A drastic change in Red Cross blood program, the effects of which are expected to be far-reaching, was announced by Dr. F. M. Cook, chairman of the Co-Ordinating Committee of Birmingham Regional Blood Center; which change is designed to place our blood program on a much sounder basis. This change in policy is believed will result in people obtaining Red Cross blood who have previously donated their blood. The new policy means that every donor and his or her immediate family is assured that Red Cross blood of the required type will be available at the time such blood is needed by them, or that Red Cross will make every effort to procure the necessary blood from all sources in emergency cases.

The Co-Ordinating Committee has defined "immediate family" to include husband, wife, minor children (under 18 years old) and dependent parents. In other words—the new Red Cross Policy in respect to distributing blood is now to make Red Cross blood available to those (including their immediate families) who donate blood to Red Cross program, to Armed Forces, and to the program for prevention of paralysis in polio. Under this program every person who gives of his blood to Red Cross will receive a card which will entitle him or her and his or her immediate family to Red Cross blood at the time it is required by any member of such group. As it has been in the past—no charge will be made for blood supplied through the Red Cross. Hospitals and doctors, however, do reserve the right to charge a laboratory and-or an administration fee; and this is not a Red Cross charge—nor does Red Cross receive any part of the fee.

Under the new plan: If a person offers to donate blood but is rejected by Red Cross for physical reasons, then that person should and will receive a valid donor card regardless. Each card issued will expire within six (6) months by successive donations of blood.

Under the new plan: If a donor holding a valid card (or a member of his or her family) requires blood he must present the donor card to the hospital and he will then receive Red Cross blood without any obligation.

To those persons in the County who have not donated blood in the past, an invitation is extended to you to participate under the new policy in order to assure you and your families of Red Cross blood when it is needed. There has not been an adequate supply of blood to meet all demands as many persons who had donated blood even have been unable to receive same when needed.

Dr. Cook further stated that many of the public look upon the program as they look upon a banking institution — when they deposit money, they expect to draw upon their deposit — same should apply to blood.

Your local Red Cross wishes to announce the bloodmobile unit will arrive from Birmingham to collect blood in our County March 9th. Blood Center will be First Methodist Church basement, Clanton, and Center will be open from 10:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. You will note a change has been made in the time and the place. You are urged to come to the Center and donate a pint of your blood and receive a card which will entitle you and your family to receive blood whenever needed. — Mrs. Maye P. Esco, Ex-Secretary.

Selden Asks FPC To Extend Gas

Rep. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., appeared before the Federal Power Commission at a recent hearing to urge extension of time for Jemison, Thorsby, and Helena to complete pipeline facilities to receive natural gas.

The Federal Power Commission, which controls all gas allocations, must make the final decision as to whether or not a number of Alabama communities will be granted additional time in which to finish financing of their pipeline structures. Gas will be furnished by the Southern Natural Gas Company.

Selden pointed out to the FPC officials that Jemison and Thorsby are requesting an extension to the end of 1953 and that the town of Helena is seeking an additional year's extension.

"I am familiar with the public interest in the towns I represent," he said, "and would like to voice their interest in natural gas and their desire for the time extension necessary to complete these facilities."

"I respectfully request that due consideration be given these requests, and, if possible, the extensions be granted."

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons became the first official contributor to the 1953 Easter Seal Campaign in Alabama when he purchased the first sheet of 1953 Easter Seals.

The Governor made his contribution to Patricia Ann Rawlinson who represented the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, sponsor of the appeal in Alabama.

A quota of $200,000 is the goal set for the campaign. Services supported by Easter Seal funds in Alabama include:

Provide crutches, corrective shoes, braces, etc.

Provide wheel chairs and other appliances.

Help maintain clinics.

Provide speech therapy and special education.

Maintain sheltered workshops for the handicapped.

In his proclamation setting March 5-April 5 as Easter Seal month in Alabama, Persons said that there were in the state some 30,000 crippled children and 20,000 handicapped adults.

He said that "helping dependent crippled children now so that they will become independent, productive citizens in the future is one of the basic precepts of good citizenship.

"It is not only an American heritage and responsibility, but a basic precept of good citizenship and a privilege of the people of this state to help our crippled children have happy, more useful lives and the opportunity of becoming self-sustaining adults," Persons declared.

He urged Alabamians to give greater support than ever to this year's Easter Seal Campaign in order to meet rising costs in providing vital services for the more and more crippled children who desperately need them.

DELOS P. CULP

DELOS P. CULP TO TEACH AUBURN CLASS IN CLANTON

Dr. D. P. Culp will be the instructor in the Auburn off-and-on class that is scheduled to begin on Saturday, March 21. The class will be in Guidance and will carry five quarter hours of credit for 11 meetings, five of which will be held in Clanton.

Dr. Culp will be remembered as a Chilton County man and as former Superintendent of Education for the county.

Those interested in enrolling for the course should contact the office of County Superintendent immediately. The class is being organized and all interested should be enrolled within a few days.

MISSING IN ACTION

Pvt. William O. Huett was reported missing in action in Korea recently. He is the husband of Mrs. Betty J. Huett of Clanton Route 2.

Growing Communities Need Playgrounds for Children

More adequately-equipped playgrounds so children may play in safety are needed along with more classrooms to take care of the nation's growing crop of young Americans, is the opinion of youth authorities throughout the nation.

They point to statistics to substantiate their claims. Back in 1946, there were 19,996,055 children in the elementary schools. In 1952 the figure climbed to 26,068,000. And the prediction is that at least 1,600,000 more will be entering this age group in 1953.

These elementary school children, ranging from 5 to 15 years of age, along with the pre-school group down to two years of age, are full of vim and vigor. They need proper outlets for their energy and enthusiasm. They get it by running, skipping and jumping, by swinging, climbing, sliding and whirling on playground devices.

Small towns are getting larger just from their birth rate increase since World War II. Migration of populations has changed others drastically. New residential suburbs are building up almost overnight in metropolitan areas, each with their own shopping districts, neighborhood newspapers and other facilities. The past decade's boom in California and the Pacific Northwest has created entirely new communities.

Wisely, many of these new communities have allocated space for new schools, parks and playgrounds. Local newspapers, chambers of commerce, planning commissions, and other civic service groups are seeing to it that the children are getting the recreational and educational facilities they deserve.

Civic-minded citizens realize that by providing well-equipped playgrounds they can curb juvenile delinquency and crime. In Anaheim, California, delinquency dropped 70 per cent within two years after the opening of supervised public playgrounds.

Safety for the children is a major consideration of a recreation program. Some years ago, a Pennsylvania community delayed opening of its playgrounds until July. During June, street accidents brought death to one child and injured 26 others. When the playgrounds were thrown open in July, accidents dropped to 11 injured and none killed.

A report of the National Conference on Physical Education for Children of Elementary Schools suggests playgrounds with three divisions, a primary area for small children, a junior area, and a senior area with proper equipment for each area.

The cost varies of course with the needs of the community. In 1940 it was considered that $1.50 per capita was the minimum amount for providing supervised recreation for young and old and the maintenance of facilities. Now, with salaries and equipment costs up, a recreation expenditure of at least $2.25 per capita is being recommended.

This Week in Washington

● During the past week the domestic problems of President Eisenhower's administration continued to grow until it appears that some kind of explosion is inevitable. This explosion may come about much sooner than most observers expect.

To set the record straight, here are the items that are causing increased strain within the administration:

● 1. Taxation. In his first White House news conference President Eisenhower said that the government can not afford to reduce taxes or federal income until it has in sight a spending program which balances income and outgo.

In spite of this statement of policy, which is supported by Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, the House Ways and Means Committee has approved a policy of putting spending cuts ahead of any reduction in taxes. A tax cut must "precede, not follow" budget reductions, the committee said in its policy report.

The House committee gave a number of valid reasons for a cut in taxation. In addition, GOP congressmen are remembering the promises of the recent campaign. One of those promises was a tax reduction as soon as possible. The President himself never made such a promise, but other Republican candidates pounded home at the theme.

The situation presents a possibility that could split the administration. If a tax reduction bill is passed by congress, and there is a good chance it might, will President Eisenhower veto it when it reaches his desk? He has not said, but he did say he would not consent as things now stand to any reduction in government revenue without a substitute which would bring in as much.

● 2. Farm Prices. For several months farmers have been pouring their trouble over declining prices into the ears of their congressmen. Since January 20 the congressmen have been taking them to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Particularly hard hit has been cattlemen.

The cattlemen have been urging emergency action in the form of loans to help stabilize the cattle market. Benson indicated he would take no action. This caused concern, but farmers were really startled when he said he regarded price supports as "disaster insurance" and opposed them when they resulted in surpluses and subsidies.

Now, farm leaders in the House have agreed to a four-point program based principally on increased government credit to livestock producers. This is not in accord with Benson indicated policy.

And the problem of surpluses has yet to be faced. Grain men estimate the nation's pile of unsold wheat from past crops may reach a towering 585 million bushels by July 1. This big buildup is the product of hefty supplies and shrinking exports. What's to be done about it will be a major administration problem.

In addition to other problems, Mr. Benson has found himself under fire from farm leaders to such an extent he has tried to explain his actions and defend his farm program. This has brought up the speculation that perhaps the new Secretary of Agriculture is expendible.

● 3. Social Security. President Eisenhower's request for prompt action to extend social security benefits to millions of persons not now covered has been side-tracked by Republicans on the House Ways and Means Committee. It is being delayed by a survey that will take months and which means there will be no action this year. The seriousness of the situation depends upon developments within the next two or three weeks.

● 4. Taft-Hartley Act. Dispute has developed among GOP senators over the Taft-Hartley labor law's controversial injunction provision. The seriousness of this situation, too, depends upon developments within the next few days.

Life's little puzzle: How two sports experts can see an athletic contest so differently.

You often see grown people act like children, but it is rare to see a child act like an adult.

Most every resident of Chilton County will believe anything you say if it's complimentary.

Why some people take themselves so seriously is a puzzle that probably escapes their own solution.

There are mentalities that would not care to read the daily newspapers if the sports or comic pages were left out.

Advertising is not a racket, regardless of what some high pressure sellers of alleged publicity may tell you.

Subscribers who pay up this month are entitled to enjoy the Spring days without further molestation.

Some people give so much time to attending to the business of others that they forget to attend to their own.

Don't worry too much about your boy or girl—just be sure their parents set them an example worth following.

The man who attempts something unusual is generally laughed at, if he fails, and hailed as a great guy, if he succeeds.

IKE AND ADLAI

The reception given defeated Democratic Presidential candidate Adlai E. Stevenson in Washington recently, by the new Republican Administration, was a most respectful and generous one. President Eisenhower spent some time with the prominent Democrat and joined with a group of Republican and Democratic congressmen, meeting with the former Illinois Governor afterwards.

In addition, the new Administration arranged for its top leaders to brief the 1952 Democratic Presidential candidate on foreign affairs. The group of Republicans briefing Stevenson included the Secretary of State, John Foster Dulles. Stevenson is leaving for a five-month trip around the world in the near future and the Administration seems to be cooperating with him fully in an effort to make his trip a fruitful one.

Another mark of respect and courtesy, paid the Democratic candidate was the action of House Speaker Joe Martin and House Majority Leader Charles A. Hallect, of Massachusetts and Indianna, respectively. The two Republican leaders came over to greet Stevenson at a meeting organized by the Democrats in the House caucus room which was packed with about 500 congressmen and others, of both parties. Speaker Martin said afterwards he could recall no similar reception for an unsuccessful Presidential candidate. And he has been in Washington during five successive defeats of his party and his party's candidate.

The official actions of the Eisenhower Administration, indicate that there is no animosity or bitterness between the two Presidential candidates of 1952. On the other hand, they seem to be working together, as closely as two men of different party allegiance can. It will be remembered that Governor Stevenson kept his campaign on a high level last year, never indulging in bitter attacks on personalities. Nor did President Eisenhower. Today's events and the Stevenson-Eisenhower cooperation, are proof that political campaigns conducted on such a level are not only best for the country but best for the candidates, in the long run.

AIRLINE DEATHS

The National Safety Council recently presented Admiral Emory S. Land, President of the Air Transport Association, with a plaque, honoring the domestic scheduled airlines for completion, in early February, of 12 months of operation without a passenger fatality. This record may surprise many readers who have seen many headlines about tragic air crashes in recent months.

However, these crashes involved military aircraft and unscheduled airlines. The scheduled airlines' year record ended February 11th, at which time they had carried over 25,000,000 passengers without a fatality. A total of 13,150,000,000 revenue passenger miles were flown by the airlines in this period.

During the year, an average of one landing or take-off every seven seconds, or about 13,000 a day, was maintained. Interestingly, the fatality-free period ended Saturday, February 14th, with the crash of a plane in the Gulf of Mexico. Had this crash come several days sooner, the airlines would not have completed a year of fatality-free operation.

Nevertheless, the record of the scheduled airlines is an encouraging one, indicating that progress is being made in the air safety field. While we point out the number of air crashes, it is only fair to point out the record of the scheduled airlines when justified.

From the Bassett Journal, Bassett, Virginia: The Army doesn't care what costs the taxpayers are stuck with, or so it seems. That department of the government believes in book-balancing no matter the amount it spends, and here's proof. Six months ago a young soldier whose home is in Guilford County, North Carolina, was given an honorable discharge, having served his allotted time, and returned to his home.

Sometime back young Oldham lost a 45-cent tie. He reported it to the officials, and was promptly issued another. That was all there was to it. In checking up its books in Japan it was found that the young soldier's indebtedness to the Army wasn't cleared up, as he failed to make good the price of the tie—and the books were out of balance just that much. And the officials of the department got busy and sent a major all the way to Greensboro to collect that sum. Remember the tie was a 45-cent item, yet the cost to the taxpayers amounted to something like $125. All of which shows that waste and extravagance continued to hold forth throughout the entire governmental set-up.

Oldham forked over the 45-cents, the major carried the funds back to headquarters and now the matter of balancing the books is only a matter of record—a record that is intriguing enough to make the public set up and take notice: that not only the Army is wasting billions but every other department as well.

From the Fort Mill Times, Fort Mill, S. C.: In its seventh day of deliberation, a jury in Federal Court in New York convicted the 13 second-string Communist party leaders on conspiracy to overthrow the government. Judge Edward J. Recalling that eight other Commies had jumped bail, his honor disagreed. So they're in jail. Maybe we're gaining on 'em!

DALE CARNEGIE
AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

"FIFTEEN years ago," says Walter E. Bray, 1326 Curtis Avenue, San Jose, California, "I was the most depressed person in the world. I was ill in body with paraplegia and had been for five years I couldn't walk—and had tried everything for help, even witch doctors, but to no avail. During this time I hadn't made a dime. I was becoming ill in mind, the thing I feared most. My thoughts were unwholesome."

Finally Walter Bray realized he had been waiting for a miracle to happen that would never come to pass and he would have to face reality and adjust himself to the situation. If he were ever going to have the things that meant so much to him, that seem to come so easily to others it would be entirely up to him.

CARNEGIE

With his new attitude and with the help of a few pats on the back which he had previously rejected, he went back to Engineering School and when he finished, he reached for a job; not much of a job at first. Then came a better job, a wife, home, family and a certain amount of security. He was accepted socially, and with all of this came happiness and love and self respect. Finally he had acquired most of the things that had seemed at one time so far out of his reach.

Now when he starts to worry, he realizes that if he were to suddenly lose everything he has today, and then get them back tomorrow, he would be the happiest person in the world because he can remember five years of despair when he thought it would take a miracle to give him what he has today.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HEADACHE

A famous physician once said, "If I wished to show a medical student the difficulties of medical practice, I should give him a headache to treat."

Headache is one of the most common of complaints, and more treatment is given for this disorder than for anything else. It is not a disease in itself; it is but a sign and a symptom of a disorder somewhere in the body. There are a great many causes for headache, and yet the mechanisms producing it are far from being clearly understood.

The headaches of the nervous, tense and emotionally unstable persons are most common and are properly termed tension headaches. The patient has mental fixations on disease and treatment includes, besides sedatives and analgesics, a sympathetic understanding of the doctor in an attempt to persuade the patient to relinquish his emotional conflicts.

The migraine headache is severe and painful. It comes, usually, in a sensitive, wide-awake, intense, eager type of woman, is of a throbbing nature, affects one side of the head, and is ogten associated with nausea, vomiting, dizziness, numbness. Migraine headache is frequently brought on by nervous tension, anticipation, excitement, and certain foods. Many a woman suffers a migrainous headache when planing and preparing for an important dinner party.

A physician finds it difficult to learn much about the nature of a particular headache from examining a patient, and he usually depends for his diagnosis on a carefully taken history. The common type of harmless headache due to fatigue of nervousness is not difficult to diagnose as it soon disappears. With a constant or recurring headache, one should consult a physician.

Disaster Coordinator For State Named

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Persons has named State Civil Defense Director James M. Garrett, Jr., as Disaster Coordinator for Alabama.

The appointment was requested by the Federal Civil Defense Administration to bring closer coordination between state and federal agencies in time of disaster.

Duty of the Disaster Coordinator will be to act in an advisory capacity to Governor Persons in alleviating suffering and damage resulting from major disasters, in repairing essential public facilities, and help prepare for emergencies.

All authority will still be vested in the chief executive but the coordinator will advise him in connection with the severity of an emergency, help coordinate state agency activities in disasters, and act as liaision between the governor's office and the Federal Civil Defense Administration, if the governor asks for U. S. assistance in any emergency.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

There are some mothers with lots of children and no help who manage somehow to keep their homes as shining and orderly as pictures advertising floor polish. Such is not the case around our house.

We usually live amid what one tactful guest once referred to as "comfortable disarray." There are other less flattering and more accurate terms which could describe the clutter. Oh, we have great sprees of cleaning and straightening, but it is doubtful that the results are really worth the effort—before the bedrooms can be put in order, the living room has reverted from its unaccustomed order to its natural state.

The other day we went calling on a meticulous housekeeper. The six-year-old looked at the polished floors (not a funny book or a toy was scattered about), the dust-free tables, the gleaming woodwork (no dirty fingerprints on the white doors) and the precise arrangements of pictures and ornaments.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "you must have sixteen maids!"

Because of general untidiness around our house, I couldn't help laughing at an article in a magazine recently in which a memory expert declared the way to remind yourself to do things is to put some household object in an unusual place. For instance, a milk bottle in the middle of the living room floor or a can opener in the lavotory is supposed to remind you to pay the rent or to buy some bread.

A milk bottle in the living room or a can opener in the bathroom wouldn't be unusual enough to remind us of anything except maybe to ask the children for the hundredth time to put things back, please, where they belong. But the system of jogging your memory might work very well in other households.

Of course our next door neighbor is a marvelous housekeeper, and she has passed along a good many cleaning tips to me, tips that I may get around to using one of these days.

For instance, her silver vases, picture frames and candle sticks are always shining without even a trace of tarnish. She keeps them untarnished by rubbing them with furniture polish every few months.

Her windows and her mirrors are always sparkling, and she says the secret is to add a tablespoon of household ammonia to the water used in washing them. After they have been given the ammonia treatment, she dries and polishes them with tissue paper.

She uses ammonia, too, to clean her leather book bindings. A soft cloth dampened in ammonia and rubbed over the bindings keeps them spic and span for a long time.

Did you ever try to type with a six-months-old baby in your lap? It's quite an experience!

Our good cook neighbor was preparing a salmon casserole when we stopped by the other morning. It looked so good I had to have the recipe, and here's how:

Melt 2 tablespoons margarine in big skillet. Add 2 tablespoons finely cut onion and ¼ cup diced green pepper, cooking until onion is soft. Blend in thoroughly 1 can of mushroom soup and 1 cup of milk. Stir in 3 cups cooked noodles, ¾ cup grated cheese, 1 can salmon, 3 sliced hard-boiled eggs, and ¾ teaspoon salt. Blend well. Pour into oiled casserole, sprinkle buttered bread crumbs on top and bake in moderate oven for 45 minutes.

Letter to the Editor

I have just received from the City of Clanton an envelope stuffed full of paper informing me that if I wished to do business with the said city it would be done at their convenience, in their manner and at their prices.

First, I would like to bring up the subject of gas prices.

Like most of the citizens of Clanton who connected to Natural Gas, I did so to save money on fuel and not because natural gas has any heating advantages. Since that time of conversion my fuel has steadily increased until I am now paying more for natural gas than I was for kerosene. This is not only the case with me, but with other citizens of Clanton.

Someone at the City Hall must have foreseen this increase in price—the envelope contained a statement that sometimes the humidity outside the house caused a larger fuel consumption inside the house. But, did said humidity in the past month more than double my normal consumption?

Now there has been proposed a ninety per cent increase in the present gas rates. If this proposed increase is granted, then I can foresee a booming business in Butane and Propane gas.

First, it was parking meters, from which the taxpayers of this city have gained nothing after feeding them for months. Now its a natural gas system from which the same taxpayers are only gaining higher bills.

The City of Clanton, as a business firm, is a noble and outstanding flop.

The people of Clanton want an auditorium. In my opinion, they should leave well enough alone.—A Taxpayer of Clanton.

Care Of Pigs Before Weaning Is Profit

Auburn, Ala. — Hog producers who own big litters of eight to 10 healthy, thrifty, worm-free pigs weighing 40 pounds or more at weaning are already half way along the road to marketing profitable hogs.

However, G. B. Phillips, API Extension specialist in animal industry, reminds farmers that another big step in hog production is the period from weaning to market. But the period from the time the sow is bred until pigs are weaned cannot be overemphasized.

Phillips explains that little pigs are actually around 114 days old the day they are born. And the size of pigs when they are born has a great deal to do with whether they will live or not and make a profit for the owner. Of course, the weaning weight of pigs affects their daily rate and economy of gain during the fattening period.

"Too many Alabama pigs weigh only 20 to 25 pounds at weaning," declares Phillips. Therefore, he advises anyone interested in producing profitable hogs to get complete information from the local county agent.

An Adequate Supply Of Beef And Poultry

Auburn, Ala. — For the next several months much emphasis will be placed on marketing an increased supply of beef and poultry.

A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, points out that there were 16 per cent more cattle in feed lots January 1 than there were at the same time last year. Also, cattlemen intend to market cattle at a faster rate this year. They indicate that 41 per cent of the cattle now on feed will be marketed by April 1.

"Furthermore," states the specialist, "broiler production throughout the country is running about 10 per cent above the number produced last year."

However, the total supply of all meat per person will not run much higher than last year because of an increased population and the fact that hog slaughtering will be less than last year for the next several months.

Legislators Being Supplied With Data

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama legislators at the May session will come supplied with complete information on the various state departments as result of data being sent them regularly by Gov. Gordon Persons.

Governor Persons wrote the legislators that the State of Alabama is a tremendously big business, "and the more the Legislators and the Governor know about our state affairs, the better government we are going to get."

He said facts and figures were being assembled by the State Finance Department on the various departments in connection with the coming session. In the past, individual legislators have often had to gather this information personally when it was needed.

In connection with the data, Persons said, "It quickly became apparent that some of the information which was needed had never been assembled in an easy-to-read and concise form. For this reason, I have had the Finance Department to begin work along this line."

He pointed out that although most state agencies receive their money through the General Fund, those such as the Highway Department, Industrial Relations and Welfare Departments, have their own income through earmarked taxes, licenses and federal participation. He added that the Education Department, where such tax money is spent, obtains its funds from both state and federal sources.

"Knowing that you will be interested in going over this type of information before the Legislature begins, I am going to send this data to you as it is finished," Persons wrote.

He also urged Alabama senators and representatives to suggest how the information gathered could be made most advantageous to all.

Give Refrigerators Door The New Look

A decorative band can be worked out that will match kitchen decorations and at the same time cover a worn spot on the refrigerator door.

"First," says Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, "mark a band, from three to four inches wide, across the top and down the handle side of the door. Sandpaper this area with No. 00 sandpaper. Then, with a brush about two inches in width, apply enamel which has been tinted with oil colors to the shade desired. Only one coat is needed."

Keep A Supply Of Dry Milk At Home

Auburn, Ala. — Homemakers interested in using dry milk from time to time may easily keep a supply on hand, according to Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist.

She suggests that milk powder be kept in a cool, dry place, preferably not warmer than 75 degrees Fahrenheit. Under these conditions it will keep on the shelf for several months. The non-fat dry milk keeps somewhat better than the whole milk powder.

"If the milk powder is put in the refrigerator," says the specialist, "it should be transferred to an air-tight jar or can."

Whenever dry milk is stored, the container should be covered tightly. Milk powder takes up moisture and gets lumpy if exposed to air too long.

"Of course, fluid milk made from milk powder and water needs to be kept clean, covered, and in the refrigerator just like any other fluid milk," adds Miss Hulsey.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. H. T. Bonnell, Spanaway, Wash.: I remember when it was the proper thing to ask a young man if he objected to taking your younger sister (14 or 15 years old) along to dances, the theater, or circus to which he had asked the older girl. If he objected he was not considered the proper company for the older girl.

From Mrs. Homer Robey, Casey, Ill.: I remember the first automobile I ever saw. My brother threw his hat at it and we never saw the hat again. At the time we were living on a claim in South Dakota near a little town named Meirs

From John F. Ryland, Caldwell Kansas: I remember when I went with my folks into the Cherokee Strip to gather bones. We hauled them to Wichita, Kansas, 60 miles away, across rough country and unbridged streams, and brought back bacon, beans, brown sugar and flour. It took a week to make the trip, but we had enough provision to last a month.

From H. B. Stogdill, South Bend Ind.: I remember when my father would bring home corn every Friday night and we would shell it by hand in a tub so he could take it to the mill on Saturday to be ground into meal.

From George P. Moeller, Bel Fourche, North Dakota: I remember when the school geography listed all the territory between the Missouri River and the Rocky Mountains as the great American desert

From Mrs. Connie Colton, Montrose, Calif.: I remember when old ladies wore lace caps all day but a nightcap at night. And I remember, when I was a small child, I slept on a rope bed with a tick filled with shucks and on that a feather bed.

Under The Study Lamp

GOOD CHRISTIANITY—GOOD CITIZENSHIP

"Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." Matthew 22:21.

In this brief pronouncement is given the entire range of a man's obligation to God and to the civil authority.

It is not our purpose to discuss here the character of one kind of government or another. The point is that God laid upon men the responsibility of governing themselves in their civil relationships and that His wisdom should be sought if a well-ordered state is to be maintained. "The powers that be are ordained of God."

During the earthly ministry of our Lord the Jews were being exploited by Rome, the then Mistress of the World. Suffice it to say that they were an unhappy lot. For instance, the burdensome taxes to which they were subjected were unfair and oppressive, and were used in part at least to support the army of occupation, whose business it was to keep the taxpayers in subjection.

The Herodians mentioned in this passage were a group of disloyal Jews who were conniving with Herod (Caesar) in oppressing their own people. In asking the question, as to whether or not the Jews should pay taxes to Caesar, those Herodians were trying to entrap Jesus by forcing a reply from him that could be construed as rebellion against Rome, so that they could put him to death as an insurrectionist.

He spiked their guns, as it were, in the reply, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's."

In that reply we find a statement of the board principle of a citizen's duty. The fact was that the Jews had on their own motion committed themselves to the regime of Caesar, sixty-three years before Jesus was born. Therefore in his reply he caught them in the very trap that they had laid for him.

Aside from the acute situation in which the Jews were involved at that time, the declaration of Jesus was a wholesome lesson for any people at any time. Moreover, in that declaration is reflected the Bible attitude throughout the volume. Good Christianity and good citizenship are twins. The best Christian is the most dependable citizen. Had those Jews been rendering to God the things that were God's in former generations, they would never have become slaves of a foreign power.

Contour Farming Will Hold Soil And Water

Any farming operation that slows down flow of water across cultivated land reduces loss of topsoil and helps hold water in the soil for plant use.

National Guard Projects Receive Low Bids

Montgomery, Ala. — Brig. Gen. Walter J. Hanna has announced that a Montgomery and a Birmingham building firm have submitted low bids on 15 construction projects for the Alabama National Guard.

Hanna, head of the State Military Department, said the contracts would not be awarded until approved by the U. S. National Guard Bureau. They have been sent to Washington for action.

The Montgomery Construction Company of Montgomery and the Robins Construction Co., of Birmingham submitted identical lump sum bids of $180,000 for building armories at Sheffield, Anniston, Dothan, Bessemer and Huntsville.

Low bids on 10 armories and the locations are:

Calera $84,512 by Reeves Construction Co., of Birmingham; Hamilton, $89,68, by Montgomery Construction Co.; Monroeville, $88,312, by Curry Construction Co., of Albany, Ga.; Alexander City, $80,860, by Reeves Construction Co.; Lineville, $82,950, by Reeves; Grove Hill, $79,482, by Reeves; Fairfield, $79,910, by Reeves; Phenix City, $89,683, by Montgomery Construction Co.; Bay Minette, $89,683, by Montgomery; and Tuscumbia, $81,779, by Bryce Construction Co., of Birmingham.

Proper Lubrication For Farm Tractors

Efficient tractor service is obtained over a longer period when engines are properly lubricated, according to J. T. Gaillard, API Extension specialist in farm mechanization.

And owners of such tractors find that a well lubricated engine continues to serve without excessive maintenance and repairs. In turn, these tractors earn their keep by continuing to develop full power at a substantial savings in operating cost, resulting from a more economical use of fuel and lubricants.

REASONS FOR FARM PRICE DECLINES

Prices received by farmers dropped [illegible] nine per cent from August last year to mid-January, 1953. Record large supplies and reduced foreign demand were the major factors responsible for the decline in agricultural prices, according to economists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

ANNIVERSARY PRESENT

By Shirley Sargent

Dearest Claire:

Before I launch into any explanations, I want you to know that I'll be thinking of you on our anniversary. Just think we've been married two weeks tomorrow! I know you've been worrying because you haven't heard from me since I returned to camp. The fact is, in Army terminology, I overstayed my leave, but those last two days of our honeymoon were worth it. The Army has a phrase for such a condition—AWOL meaning absent without leave.

Even with those two days of stolen time, I figured to make it here all right and I would have if my plane hadn't been bumped on account of weather. What with a bus slower than Army red tape and running out of cash, I was six days late . . .

Since I'd gotten right fond of my Pfc.'s stripe and never liked the looks of the guardhouse, I was one worried GI! In order to avoid the MP's stationed at the gate, I had to sneak into camp. Unfortunately, I tore my uniform as I slithered under the barbed wire. Typical Atwell luck! Cherishing a forlorn hope of slipping into the barracks unnoticed and making a deal with my first sergeant, I was set to run for it when along came Quincy Creb Humphreys. The major himself!

"Well, if it isn't former Pfc. Herbert-Atwell," he said sharply.

Naturally, I'd given considerable thought to my predicament, planning on what attitude to take if I was caught, but I hadn't expected to be confronted with old Quincy Creb. With my knees knocking while the major stared right through me, I decided to be bold. I ripped my stripe off, handed it to him. "Yes, sir," I said "Former Pfc. Herbert Atwell reporting to duty, sir."

"Six days late," the major said acidly, looking a trifle startled at the sight of my discarded stripe.

"Yes, sir."

"AWOL," the major emphasized each initial.

"Yes, sir."

"Reporting with a muddy, torn uniform."

"Yes, sir," I admitted again.

"All right, Atwell, I suppose you're going to give me that corny line about a sick mother?"

"Oh, no, sir," I said. "I was making mad love to my girl."

"For six days? Your girl!" From the outraged tone in his voice, I knew he was a stickler for morals.

"My wife, sir," I said proudly, "I married the girl, sir.

Evidently that reassured him as to my honorableness. I was all set to explain about being bumped when he started talking.

"I'm glad to meet a man with enough nerve to tell the truth. Most men in your position would have handed me a cock-and-bull story about missing their plane."

I kept still.

"Well," he barked, but there was an odd glint in his eyes as if he were testing me, "after sneaking into camp, six days late, with a torn uniform, what do you have to say for yourself?"

"No excuses, sir," I said. "I'm sorry I'm AWOL, but I'm glad we had our honeymoon."

"At ease, soldier," he said.

While I took the stripes off the rest of my uniforms that night, I wondered when the MP's would come for me. My buddies felt so badly, they retold all the old guardhouse stories and my finest sergeant painted a future, too horrible to put down on paper.

The following morning orders came through from the major that I be promoted to corporal with the Military Police! I don't like the black armband but my favorite tour of duty is past the guardhouse. So you see, Claire, there's no sense worrying in the Army. Consider the extra stripe your anniversary present.

Much love,
HERB

A "SLIGH" ERROR

Chicago, Ill. — When William urner looked at his pay check for 26 hours of part-time work at The University of Chicago, he found he had been paid $8,000,000 too much. The check was made out for $8,000,031.70 — the $31.70 was the correct amount.

Bacon will fry much better if it is soaked in cold water for a few minutes before placing in the skillet. This will lessen the tendency to shrink and curl. Put the slices in a cold skillet, turn often, and pour off excess grease as it accumulates.

Women's Club Federation 5th District To Meet

The Spring meeting of the 5th District, Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs will meet at the First Methodist Church, Tallassee, Alabama, on Wednesday, April 1, at 9:30 a.m.

All clubs in the district planning to send representatives are urged to write Mrs. J. H. Timmerman, Jr., registration chairman, Tallassee, Alabama, on or before Wednesday, March 25, in order that reservations may be made for lunch. Cost of the luncheon will be $1.50 per person.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

I owed this business friend a favor, so the other evening, with a little extra cash in the jeans, I asked him out to dinner. We went to a restaurant on the edge of town, ordered up two of the biggest T-bones in the house and settled down to nibble on the appetizers. Then up walks some Joe, slaps my friend on the back and sits himself down.

"Glad to see you, old boy," says my friend. "It's been a coon's age."

"Ain't it the truth," says the stranger.

From there they launch into a conversation on the state university's prospects for the fall football season. On and on it goes. Discreetly I cleared my throat. My friend ignored me and performed no introductions.

The steaks arrived. Still they talked and I fiddled with my fork and knife while they grew cold. On and on it went and no attempt on my friend's part at making an introduction.

This has gone on long enough, says I to myself, and aims my number 12 right foot for my friend's shin. I was determined to make the punt a good one and put force behind it.

"Oh-h-h," screams the stranger. "My leg's broken!"

"Sorry, old man," I murmured. "I have an unfortunate reflex."

"I should punch you in the nose," the stranger says. He gets up and hobbles away, but not before he said to my friend, "Boy, the company you keep."

"What's the idea," says my friend. "Trying to kill the guy?"

"What's the idea, yourself," says I. "Why didn't you introduce me to that goof?"

"Introduce you. Him?" says my friend. "Why I never saw him before in my life."

U. R. HOOKED

Bedford, Ind. — Bank officials took one look at the signature on a $10.37 check and prompt stamped it "No funds." The signature read, "U. R. Hooked." The bank returned it to Grocer Ray Lee, who had deposited it, and wrote below the signature, "You sure are."

BUYS CARDINAL CLUB . . . August A. Busch, Jr., head of Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co. of St. Louis, has purchased the St. Louis Cardinal baseball organization for $3,750,000. Busch, shown with former owner Fred Saigh (left) and National League president Warren Giles, said he plans no drastic changes.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

George Washington's birthday was celebrated by the Good American Club on Friday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Lowell Patterson, acting president. The secretary, Betty Joyce Dale, read the minutes. The treasurer, C. C. Craig, Jr., gave the report.

Claire Mullins, program chairman, gave the following program: Song, America, Club; Scripture reading, Sara Wilson; prayer, by group; Lincoln, Man of Might, James Tiffin; Washington on TV, John Reid Gray; play, Hospitality at Mount Vernon, with the following characters: George Washington, Marvin Vines; Martha Washington, Hilda Cox; Nellis, Mary Frances Popwell; George Washington Parke Curtis, David Cobb; Chloe, Mollie Dennis.

Norma Jo Tew introduced her guest, Elephteria Mellos, who moved to America from Greece. She recited the Greek Alphabet for us, counted to one hundred and prayed the Lord's Prayer for the Club in Greek.

We were so happy to have Elephteria visit us, we gave her a box of candy.

At the conclusion of the club meeting, punch and cookies were served.

U. S. JOBS DROP

Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia reported that the number of civilian government jobs dropped 38,880 between July 1st, 1952, and January 1st, 1953. The number has declined for five months in a row.

Alabama Not In High Tax Group

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has sent state legislators' copies of a tax chart prepared by the Commerce Clearing House of Chicago comparing state tax rates throughout the nation.

In the second of a series of informative letters to give legislators a complete background on state finances for the May 6 opening of the 1953 session, Governor Persons quoted showing that "Alabama has the lowest taxes of any Southern state." The Clearing House chart showed 45 other states with higher tax rates than Alabama.

In his letter, Persons said: "From time to time, I feel sure that you hear much about 'high taxes.' "

"I think, therefore, that you will be interested in the enclosed tax chart prepared by the Commerce Clearing House of Chicago, which shows the 'State Tax Burden Per Capita in 1952.' In the 48 different states, the average state taxes (not including Federal taxes) for each person range from $36 in New Jersey, which is the lowest, to $103 in Louisiana and Washington. In Alabama, the average year state tax is shown to be $43 for each person.

"Our own good State, you will notice, is not in the high tax group. In fact, 45 other states have higher taxes than we do. Only two have lower taxes per person. In fact, Alabama has the lowest taxes of any Southern state."

Governor Persons said he felt that the legislature should be extremely proud of these figures.

"The truth of the matter is that 'high taxes' are brought about, not alone by the average of $43 that each of us in Alabama pays in state taxes. Compare this to the $431.39, which is the average collected by the federal government. In other words, average federal taxes are 10 times as much per person as average Alabama state taxes."

Persons added that he planned to send out complete information on the Public Welfare Department next.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

About 35 Alabama businessmen were in Washington during the past week to discuss legislative recommendations with members of Congress from the State. Representatives of the Associated Industries of Alabama met with us to outline proposed action on pending bills which tie in with the legislative program they advocate.

Following the meeting, the delegates lunched with their particular Congressmen. Sixth District businessmen who attended and later dined with me included J. L. Morrison, L. Yon, and A. B. Morrison, all of Greensboro; J. W. Mustin, Jr., H. D. Warner, and Philip H. Zuiderhoek, of Tuscaloosa.

The main topic of discussion with AIA members concerned economy. The representatives pointed out their belief that an efficient government can operate on a much smaller budget, and they urged their Congressmen to use influence in promoting economy whenever possible. They presented views on a number of bills which concerned wasteful and unnecessary spending, taxation, federal controls, (they recommended end of all controls except necessary allocation of materials used for defense production), labor problems, social security, submerged lands, treaties, and other miscellaneous subjects.

All the business men were well acquainted with details of their proposed legislative program, and it was certainly beneficial for us to receive their constructive views.

Represents University—

It was my pleasure last Monday to represent the University of Alabama at ceremonies marking the inauguration of Hurst Robins Anderson as new president of the American University in Washington.

The dedication address was given by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist Church. Among the other principal speakers during the day's events were former Vice President Alben Barkley and Senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama who is a member of the Board of Trustees for the school.

Legislative Notes—

The House and Senate approved a bill to give the Federal Housing Administration an additional $500 million for use in its mortgage insurance program. The bill was sent to the White House, ready for the President's signature or veto. . . . Several members of the Senate Banking Committee have introduced a bill to give the President temporary standby authority to order a 90-day wage, price, and rent freeze. This would make it legal for the President to enforce controls for 90 days at any time it appears wages and prices are getting out of hand and tending to cause inflation. . . . At the Governors' conference at the White House last week it was decided to establish a special bipartisan commission which would recommend legislation to eliminate duplication of federal and state powers and functions, particularly in taxation and social security. Attending the meeting with the President and the governors were several congressional leaders. There will be more news about this study of federal-state relations when members of the proposed commission are named.

Chairman Reed of the House Ways and Means Committee hints that legislation to extend social security coverage to more people will not be acted upon this year. President Eisenhower himself has urged action on this legislation, but Rep. Reed says the problem is so large that it will take a long time to complete study of the present social security system. He has appointed a special committee to undertake this study. . . . The House passed a bill this week to make funds of $300,000 available to the House Un-American Activities Committee for its communistic investigations.

Key West, Fla. — Two men, described by officials as "sadistic monsters," raided the city cemetery recently and pulverized 39 tombstones, worth $38,000 with a sledge hammer. The marauders eluded a police cordon thrown around the historic old cemetery.

RCA Ships UHF Transmitter To Mont'g TV Station

Camden, N. J. — A new UHF (ultra - high - frequency) television transmitter was shipped today to station WCOV-TV in Montgomery, Ala., by the RCA Victor Division of the Radio Corporation of America, it was announced here today by the company's Engineering Products Department.

The new UHF station, which will operate in Channel 20, is owned by the Capital Broadcasting Co., Inc. RCA expects to ship next week the station's special UHF broadcast antenna and auxiliary equipment, final requirements for going on air, a company spokesman said.

The new transmitter, which is the result of three years of intensive commercial development work by RCA, has a visual power output of 1-kilowatt. The RCA slotted-pylon high-gain antenna and special transmission line used with it are designed to multiply the strength of the signal to from 21 to 27 kilowatts, depending upon the assigned channel.

UHF stations are now in operation in Mobile and in many parts of the country, and surveys have shown they are providing service comparable to that of VHF stations. The new UHF service has made possible a truly national expansion of television which will bring programs to virtually every community.

COOPER SCHOOL

The Jemison F.F.A. Quartet of Jemison High School will be in concert here on Saturday night, March 14th, at 7:30 p.m.

The Quartet, accompanied on the piano by Miss Jean Dennis, is composed of Charles Williams, bass, Donald Gothard, baritone, Lloyd Sample, soprano, and Billy Conway, first tenor. This quartet is tops. The boys are from 18 to 20 years of age. They won the County and District Contests last year and would have won the State Contest had it not been for sickness. Charles Williams last week was chosen winner in the County in the F.F.A. Essay Contest.

This will be a real evening of entertainment you'll certainly want to see and hear these young men in person.

Proceeds will go to the school.

Dobbins Cautions Business men

Alabama businessmen today were cautioned by Charles G. Dobbins, state director of the Office of Price Stabilization, against premature disposal of records required under OPS regulations.

Dobbins pointed out that while the State office will close March 18, all records required by OPS regulations must be preserved for specified periods of time after decontrol. The maximum period for such retention is two years after the expiration of the Defense Production Act. The usual required information consists of records of "base period" prices and of sales transactions during the period of control. Preservation of these records, Dobbins said, is required by law.

The director explained that enforcement actions for violations which may have occurred while OPS regulations were still in effect could require the production of these records. He said that civil suits could be filed by the Department of Justice up to one year, and criminal actions up to three years after a violation.

A list of the records to be preserved, and a statement of the period during which they must be preserved, is to be found in each regulation. Any businessman desiring specific information as to the records he should keep may obtain this information from the Montgomery OPS office, 14 Commerce Street, telephone 3-7521.

HEAVY FINANCE

Joliet, Ill. — Fred Francis recently received a check in the amount of five cents — a rebate from the telephone company for an overcharge on a telephone call Francis, a member of the County Board of Commissioners, drove 5 miles to the courthouse to deposit the check with the county treasurer. After multitudinous red tape the check was accepted. Returning to his car, he found a ticket for over-time parking, for which he had to pay $5 cents.

Sidney L. Griffin To Speak Thursday

Mr. Sidney L. Griffin of Jemison will be the guest of the A.A.U.W. on Thursday, March 5th, and will speak on, "The Proposed Legislation Program of the Alabama Education Assciation." Mr. Griffin is the past president of the Chilton County Teachers' Association, present chairman of the legislation in the Chilton County Teachers' Association, and also teacher at Jemison. He will speak at 4:00 p.m. at the Chilton County High School library. Everyone is cordially invited to come and hear Mr. Griffin.

Previous to the program, the A.A.U.W. will hold a short business meeting. All members are urged to be there at 3:30 p.m. for this purpose.

Dr. Blanche Dow To Speak March 13-14

BLANCHE H. DOW

Anniston, Ala. — Dr. Blanche H. Dow, vice president of the Southwest Central Region of the American Association of University Women, will be principal Speaker at the 1953 Alabama AAUW convention in Anniston March 13 and 14.

Dr. Dow, who is president of Cottey College at Nevada, Mo., will give the opening address at the Friday night banquet. She will also participate in a breakfast roundtable discussion Saturday, and will sum up the convention reports Saturday.

Dr. Dow is author of the idea of coordinating the programs of the six AAUW committees toward one main emphasis. The Alabama Division is the first in the nation to select education for the coordinated emphasis of the education, fellowship, international replations, legislative, social studies and status of women commitees.

The theme of the convention will be the progress Alabama branches have made in coordinating their programs.

Dr. Dow was chairman of the department of foreign languages at Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at Maryville before her appointment as Cottey College president in 1949. She has served as Missouri Division president of AAUW, and has been a member of the national committee on standards and recognition of coleges and universities.

She is the author of "The Varying Attitude Toward Women in French Literature of the Fifteenth Century." Dr. Dow is a graduate of Smith College, and holds a Ph.D. degree from Columbia University. She has also studied at the University of Paris, France, and has done special work for UNESCO in Europe.

Mrs. Franklin C. Sewell is president of the Anniston branch, and Miss Mary Elizabeth Lloyd is general convention chairman.

Mrs. R. E. Tidwell, state president from Tuscaloosa, will conduct executive committee and board of directors meetings Friday afternoon before the convention opens.

Wichita, Kan. — A month or so ago, M. E. Stone, furniture dealer, put a quart pail on a nail outside the store with $4 in change in it and painted a sign on the store window, urging motorists to "make your own parking-meter change." At last check, Stone says the bucket had $3.96 in it and that it's never been more than 7 or 8 cents short.

GOV. GORDON PERSONS was the first purchaser as Alabama's 1953 Easter Seals Sales got underway. The governor, seated, bought the first sheet of stamps from little Patricia Rawlinson, who is standing at his right. Left to right standing are: Mrs. Dan Wilson, Jr., Montgomery, a member of the District Clinic Committee of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults; Ben Goltsman, Montgomery County chairman for the Easter Seals sales drive, and Miss Margaret McFall, a director of the Montgomery County Chapter of the Alabama Society. Patricia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Rawlinson, of Rt. 1, Prattville.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

The State Capital was established at Cahaba in 1819, with the provision that Huntsville should be made the temporary seat of government until the town of Cahaba could be laid out and the necessary buildings erected.

Cahaba had acquired a remarkable industry and culture for a pioneer town but it was doomed; it was situated on low ground that subjected it to overflows from the Cahaba and the Alabama Rivers and to epidemics of fever during the summer months. It was some times almost impossible to reach it except by water, and during the sickness season officials and other citizens deserted it. While the legislature of 1825 was in session a flood of unrecorded proportions swept over the town, and the legislature, in whose hands rested its fate, had to be rowed in boats, it is said, to the second story of the Capitol to reach their legislative halls. As a crowning blow to the hopes of the little city, a portion of the Capitol crumbled. It became clear that the seat of government would be removed, and several ambitious towns—Selma, Montgomery, Autaugaville, Centreville, Wilson's Hall (now Montevallo), Greensboro and Tuscaloosa—put in strong bids for it.

Tuscaloosa became the capital in 1826 and held this distinction until 1846. The Bell Tavern, which stood on the site of the present post office at Tuscaloosa, served as a temporary state headquarters while a two-story wooden statehouse for the legislature was built on the northwest corner of Broad Street and Twenty-fifth Ave.

In this frame structure the legislature of 1827-28 held its sessions. Between 1827 and 1829 a very substantial and artistic Capitol building was erected on the block now known as Capitol Park. This building served as state headquarters for 17 years and was then occupied for sixty-six years by a school for women. The building was destroyed by fire in 1923.

In less than ten years there came a demand for the removal of the capital from Tuscaloosa, resulting from the growth of the central and eastern parts of the State. There had been a marked shift in the center of wealth and population to the southeast, and it seemed likely the leading transportation development of the future would take place along the eastern side of the State.

The contest for the new location was really between Tuscaloosa, Wetumpka and Montgomery. Wetumpka and Montgomery were promising towns of three thousand or more inhabitants, some of whom had become famous in the affairs of the State. They were surrounded by rich agricultural regions and located on the great river system that drained the richest and most promising part of the State at that time. Wetumpka was already the seat of the penitentiary and was at the head of navigation on the Alabama River system.

It is generally agreed that, in deciding upon Montgomery, the proper selection was made.

MACEDONIA

Seems that most of the people in the community are about to get well. We had a good attendance at both services Sunday. Bro. Finnley brought some real good messages.

Visitors at church Sunday were Mrs. T. I. Ward of Fairfield; Mr. Wallace Veasey of Childersburg; and Mrs. Lelia Vinson. We invite them back. Visitors are always welcome at our church.

Mrs. Woodie Rasberry and her Junior G.A. met in the home of Mrs. Mattie Gibson recently and had their program. They carried her a basket of fruit.

The B.T.U. social was well attended at Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Rasberrys' Saturday night. Before the social the men had their Brotherhood meeting. We were happy to have our pastor and wife with us.

The W.M.U. ladies will be at the church Thursday afternoon for a mission study book.

Mrs. Elmer Crane and her Intermediate G.A. met in the home of Mrs. Sally Armstrong recently and had their program. Mrs. Armstrong is a shut-in. They carried her a valentine box of candy.

Rev. and Mrs. Finnley had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hayes Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Veasey of Childersburg had dinner with his mother, Mrs. Mammie Veasey.

Mrs. Nola Easterling of Birmingham is visiting her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ermon Rasberry.

Mr. and Mrs. T. I. Ward of Fairfield spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Ward and Mr. Joe Ward.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Langston and children and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Mattie Gibson and Mr. Crit Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore and family help celebrate her father's birthday recently. This was an enjoyable occasion. All his children were present except one, Mrs. Jimmie Ward.

Know Your Schools

by W. J. Terry
STATE SUPERINTENDENT

At the present time there are 23,027 teachers, superintendents, supervisors, and supervising principals employed in the public schools of Alabama.

The present allocation schedule of State funds to local boards of education for the employment of teachers is as follows:

Rank One, based on the Master's Degree, $2,700.

Rank Two, based on the Bachelor's Degree, $2,400.

Rank Three, based on three year's college work, $2,100.

Rank Four, based on two year's college work, $1,800.

Rank Five, based on less than two year's college work, $1,500

The average salary for teachers in Alabama is $2,486. These figures are based on State appropriations and might vary in some communities due to supplements by local boards of education. Funds allocated to local board of education provide for the employment of 21,527 teachers. The salary of any teachers employed above this number is paid from local funds.

In the fall of 1952 there developed an acute shortage of teachers in Alabama, especially in the high school fields of science, mathematics, and commercial work. There was also a shortage of qualified elementary teachers which may become even more severe in the fall of 1953 due to the fact that the 72,242 children who were born in 1947 will enter the first grade.

Some studies have shown that approximately 25 per cent of the persons trained to teach do not enter the teaching profession. If this should be the case in Alabama, and if our teachers continue to go to states that pay better salaries, we may expect an even greater shortage of teachers for the white schools in September of 1953 than last year.

A study of the birth rate since 1947 indicates that the enrollment in the first grade for at least the next five years will be substantially greater than the enrollment each September prior to 1952.

Taking into consideration all factors involved it appears reasonable to expect a continued shortage of qualified teachers in Alabama.

Unemployment Claims Increase

Montgomery, Ala. — State Industrial Relations Director Joe Coleman says unemployment compensation claims increased about one-half during the past month over December.

Coleman said a slowup of business and bad weather were responsible for a large number of workers laid off. Most of the slowdowns were in the apparel, lumber and primary metals industries.

While the claims were up, full employment payments increased only two per cent. Coleman said the department paid out $958,414 to about 18,000 persons in January.

Oak Mountain Park Will Not Open March 1st

Montgomery, Ala. — State Parks Chief James L. Segrest said here today that Oak Mountain State Park Lake near Birmingham will not be opened for fishing March 1st as originally scheduled because of construction work being done at the lake at the present time.

Segrest said, however, that the 18-acre lake will be open April 1-30. In the past fishing has been permitted at Oak Mountain Park during both March and April.

Segrest said the water level in the lake will have to be raised and lowered during the next month to allow completion of excavation work being done near one shore. This will spoil the fishing during March, he said.

U. S. EXPORTS HOLD

The Department of Commerce says that U. S. exports in 1952 were about the same as those of 1951. The total indicated exports in 1952 are $15,157,000,000, compared to 1951 figures of $15,032,000,000.

State Department Of Health

Montgomery, Ala. — There are probably enough Alabamians suffering from mental illness and what the psychiatrists call "other personality disturbances" to populate a city as large as Montgomery, Opelika, Talladega, Tuscaloosa and Clanton combined, according to Dr. D. G. Gill, State Health Officer.

Dr. Gill called attention to an estimate by the National Association for Mental Health, Inc., that about six per cent of the people of the United States are victims of "mental illness and personality disturbances." Applying that percentage to Alabama's population of 3,061,743, as shown by the 1950 census, he arrived at 183,704, approximately the combined population of the five municipalities mentioned.

"This does not mean of course that nearly 184,000 people in this state are insane or are victims of any other serious mental or emotional condition," the State Health Officer explained. "But that is probably a fairly conservative estimate of the number of Alabamians who could profitably receive help in the solution of their emotional and personality problems."

BOND SALES RISE

The Treasury has announced that sales of United States savings bonds in January exceeded redemptions by $69,000,000, and were fourteen per cent above sales in January, 1952. In January, 1952, redemption exceeded sales. In announcing the totals, Deputy Treasury Secretary W. Randolf Burgess, ascribed the gain, in part, to intensified promotion of the payroll savings plan.

1953 Alabama And National Oratorical Contest Finals Set

The Alabama State Finals of The American Legion's Oratorical Contest have been slated for Woodlawn High School, Birmingham, on March 25, 1953, at 10:00 a.m.

Last year's finals were also held at Woodlawn High School and, according to Director of Americanism David M. Vess, the fine cooperation and facilities afforded The Legion there have prompted a return engagement for 1953.

In Birmingham in 1952, Steve Kimbrough, 16, of Cullman, was judged State Champion and winner of the $750.00 cash prize for first place in the state. Runners-up Tommy Thagard, Greensboro and Milam Turner, Selma received awards of $250.00 and $125.00 respectively. With these cash awards totalling $1,125.00, Alabama Department enjoys the distinction of leading all other Legion Departments in the nation in Oratorical Contest awards.

The National Finals of the 1953 American Legion High School Oratorical Contest will be held in Jersey City, N. J. next April 20th. Host for the event will be Quinn Post No. 52 of the American Legion.

Last year's finals were held in Baton Rouge, La., on April 21st. with Cliff Thompson, 17, Kansas City, Kansas, the winner of the Grand National first prize of a $4,000.00 college scholarship.

The National Americanism Commission of The American Legion expects more than 350,000 high school students all over the country to enter the 1953 Oratorical Contest. State winners must be certified to the Commission by April 2. The twelve Regional and four Sectional tournaments will be held between April 13 and 17, 1953.

The Department of Alabama's Americanism Commission is expecting participation in this year's contest by a record several thousand high school students. School contests close on February 1. County finals will be held between February 2 and 9. District finals are to be completed by February 20 and Area eliminations will be held between the 21st and 28th of February.

IKE SIGNALS IGNORED

The recent pleas from President Dwight D. Eisenhower have failed to slow down the tax-cut drive in the House of Representatives. Chairman Daniel Reed, of the Ways and Means Committee, is going ahead with bills designed to give tax relief this year, some on July 1st. The New York Republican had announced prior to President Eisenhower's speech calling for a balanced budget first and lower taxes second that he would do everything possible to bring about immediate tax relief. Prospects for passage of Reed's tax-cutting bills appear to be good but, chances of passage in the Senate are not thought to be as bright.

Be Wise

Protect Winter Clothes From Moth Damage

NOW that spring's here the little moth has a big appetite. But that's no reason why you should feed him your best woolen suit. Treat and store your clothes safely away from the pest says Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist. A new insecticide is on the market this spring, which will protect woolens from fabric pests. It is EQ-53 and can be bought at your local drugstore.

The solution contains DDT and is easy to use. You can mothproof your blankets, sweaters, and other washable woolens by pouring a few spoonfuls of the solution into the washing machine while the clothes are washing. Or EQ-53 may be added to the woolens during or after rinsing. Garments can be treated in nearly all types of home washing machines—automatic, semi-automatic, or wringer-type. They can also be treated in a wash basin or tub.

The specialist said that tests with EQ-53 have shown that for each pound of woolens being washed, as little as two teaspoons of the solution added to the water of an average-size washing machine, thoroughly mothproofs the fabric with DDT. Woolens treated in this way and then stored were completely protected against the feeding of the larvae of both clothes moths and carpet beetles for more than a year.

If woolen items which must be dry cleaned are not mothproofed by the cleaners they should be thoroughly brushed, (giving spe-

4-H'ers Visit Magic City

MORE than 100 4-H officers who attended the annual planning session in Birmingham last month found that Birmingham Chamber of Commerce folks could make the words of this sign come true. The youngsters representing every Alabama county were treated with a banquet and theatre party as well as tours of Vulcan Park, Municipal Airport, and beautiful residential sections of the city. Highlights of the business and planning session were discussions on next summer's 4-H camp and short-course, National 4-H Week celebration, and how to organize a county-wide club. Looking at the welcome sign in the hotel lobby are, left to right, Lee Rickard, state vice president, Lauderdale County; Betty Wilder, Jefferson County; Ed Young, state president, Montgomery; Jean Talley, state treasurer, Talladega; Bobby Aderholt, state secretary, Winston, and Beulah Lee Duke, county council president, Marengo.

Plant Early Corn For Those Spring Pigs

By G. B. PHILLIPS
A.P.I. Extension Hog Specialist

AROUND March 1, in South Alabama, a little later upstate, you will want to plant your early hybrid hogging corn. A good rule to follow for the first crop is to plant as soon as you think danger of killing frost is over.

If you have normal weather and fertilize heavy, the corn will be ready for hogging in about 80 to 90 days after planting.

With government estimates for the smallest spring pig crop since 1938, the predictors are saying that hog prices will be stronger this summer and fall.

This being true, you can expect top prices for hogs sold in July, August and September. Therefore, it is important to make use of early hybrid corn and get those spring farrowed pigs ready for market during these high prices.

There are several advantages of hogging corn in the field as reported by farmers from all counties in the state.

These corn-hog growers say they like this system because:

1. It saves the labor and expense of harvesting and feeding.
2. There is less storage space needed for the corn crop.
3. A large part of the fertility is returned directly to the land, as the crop is fed where it is grown.
4. The practice helps to keep hogs healthy and thrifty because of more sanitary quarters.
5. The corn stalks are in better condition for the next year's crop.

One disadvantage of hogging down corn is the amount of fencing required. However, this expense needn't be great since well fed shotes are not bad about breaking out. Many farmers use a temporary fence made by attaching wire loosely to cheap posts which are not too close together. A furrow is then thrown on the bottom of the wire. The labor required for building this portable fence is considerably less than the amount needed for gathering and hauling in the corn produced on a field.

Research and farmer experience both have proved that if shotes are turned on only the amount of corn they can clean up in three to four weeks they will harvest the corn with no more waste than humans. The fence should then be moved to another area about the same size. It has also been proven that the shotes will make as much or a little more gain than if the corn were cribbed and fed to them by hand.

If green grazing, such as alfalfa or kudzu, is not adjacent to the hogging corn field, you should plant a patch of Ototan soybeans or cattail millet at the proper time so it will be available for the hogs when they are grazing the corn.

In This Issue—

Use plenty of fertilizer for corn—see page four.

Keep hens alive—see page two.

How to grow tomatoes successfully—see page three.

Garden chart for March—see page six.

Plan for mechanical cotton harvesters—see page eight.

FOR GOOD, FAST-GROWING SHOTES—To get his hogs in the best possible condition before they go onto fields of green grazing, Ellis King of Guntersville, Rt. 1, is treating them for worms. The Marshall County farmer mixes a pound of sodium fluoride to each 100 pounds of feed and gives the shotes all of this they will eat in one day. Free of worms, the animals will make faster and cheaper gains on the grazing crops and supplement. King hopes to make a profit on 75 market hogs this year, even though he must buy corn and supplement. Green grazing, he figures, will be the biggest help in giving him the profit.

Stop This Waste

Increase Egg Profits By Keeping Hens Alive

ALABAMA poultrymen are losing too much of their profit through laying house deaths.

John Weeks, Extension poultryman, says leucosis (paralysis) and cannibalism are the two biggest killers. He adds that both of these can be greatly reduced if proper precautions are taken.

Weeks has this to say: Leucosis can be recognized by birds becoming lame and eventually dying. Sometimes apparently healthy birds drop dead. If internal examinations of these birds were made, you would find they have greatly enlarged livers or tumors in the digestive or reproductive system.

There is no treatment for this disease. Most of the infected birds contract it when in the brooder house or during the early growing period. The disease develops slowly and greatest losses occur when birds are six to eight months old. Loss from this disease can be kept low by using strains of birds bred for resistance. In many cases, it is contracted from old birds, therefore, the loss can be further reduced by growing young chicks, from day-old to laying age, away from infected flocks. All baby chicks should be brooded at least 100 feet from the old hens and then moved to clean range where no chickens have been for the past two years. To keep from spreading leucosis, you should keep a pair of rubber boots just inside the entrance of the brooder house, put them on as you enter, pull them off as you leave the building. This will prevent tracking the disease into the brooder house on your feet.

Cannibalism, or feather picking, usually starts in a flock during the early growing period. Too few feeders and waterers, too little floor space, and lack of feed are common reasons why this trouble starts. Confined, hungry pullets also give trouble.

Once the habit is started it is hard to control. As soon as this condition is noticed, you should try to determine the cause and correct it immediately. If it does not stop, you should debeak the birds or put beak guards or chicken specs on them. If you do nothing to stop cannibalism, a good part of your flock may be killed.

Most of the so-called blowouts in layers are the result of picking and cannibalism, which injures the vent and causes difficulty in laying. This is a needless loss.

THE LADIES ARE CIVIC MINDED—Eutaw Ideal H. D. Club members, most of whom are business women, believe in marking their town's streets to the tune of a $50 donation. They hope their start will get the civic clubs in Eutaw interested in purchasing additional markers. Mrs. E. Solomon, president of the club, presents Mayor W. H. Tuck the $50 check to get the project under way.

Along the Way with P. O. DAVIS DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

EACH day in many ways this nation grows. The most important growth is, of course, people. Last year our population increased by 2,600,000—or 7,104 people daily.

This daily increase needs 16 tons of food, a surprisingly big amount. Yet, we are a nation capable of increasing our production of food and of other things to meet real needs.

Most of this food is produced on farms where the population is now declining at the rate of 1,000 daily. Thus, each farmer needs to produce more each year. In fact, more must be produced for everybody to be well fed, and supplied with enough fiber such as cotton and wool to meet all of our needs.

You, as a farmer, may study the meaning of this to you. Certainly, it offers a bigger opportunity for you to produce and increase your income.

Edward A. O'Neal of Florence recently visited in California. He studied cotton production, and found that 30 per cent of the cost of making cotton in one of the valleys (where farmers average 1.75 bales per acre) is for water and its application. The cost for this is $29.50, out of a total cost of $98.50 per acre.

Fertilizer is next to water, with $25, or about a fourth of the total; and insect control cost $12.50, or half as much as fertilizer. These three practices account for two-thirds of the total cost for producing cotton in that valley, not including picking.

These figures are instructive. For example, they have enough but not too much water. So they go strong on fertilizer, as revealed by $25 per acre.

We can do much more irrigating in Alabama. In fact, it should be done not only for cotton but for pastures and other crops by each farmer who has or can have enough water.

A major weakness of fall and winter grazing in Alabama is a combination of poor stand and late growth. Russell Kilburn, a young farmer of Florence, Rt. 1, in Lauderdale County, has found a good solution to this weakness.

Last July he broke his land that was to be planted in crimson clover and barley for fall and winter grazing. Before planting he disked it four times. This made an excellent seedbed.

Thorough preparation accounted for his good stand and early growth. He had grazing in the fall long before other farmers, and it continued during the winter. This bears out the fact that a good seedbed is essential.

The same is true of spring planting. Many poor stands of cotton and other crops are due to improper preparation of soil.

It's time to keep a keen eye on exports of farm products, especially cotton. In recent years we have averaged exporting as follows: 55 per cent of our rice production, 35 per cent of cotton, 45 per cent of wheat, 20 per cent of tobacco, 20 per cent of lard, and 15 per cent of soybeans.

But most of these have declined of late. This is reflected in lower prices and cotton seems to be leading the list.

Farmers should keep this in mind at cotton planting time, as the probability is very great that marketing quotas will be needed in 1954 unless the 1953 crop is less than is now expected or unless exports increase in a big way.

YOU'D NEVER GUESS—The art of home decorating and planning seems to be a hobby with most women. And some do very well with it, too. For example, when Mrs. Ralph Hunt of the Cleveland Home Demonstration Club needed an extra bedroom, she decided to change a storage room into the needed space. Things went along smoothly, until the switchbox problem reared its head. The switchbox stuck out in the room like a sore thumb, just where it would look bad. Undaunted, Mrs. Hunt hit on the scheme of using the box as a part of the room's decorations. Now you would never guess that the nice looking cabinet, which Mrs. Hunt points out, is the switchbox. For her good work, she was chosen the bedroom improvement winner in Blount County last year.

A Good Crop

Here's How To Grow Tomatoes Successfully

TOMATOES have won a respected place as a commercial crop on many Alabama farms, says John Bagby, Extension horticulturist. Last year state farmers had over 6600 acres in tomatoes, 4500 in summer and 2100 in fall. Prices were generally satisfactory, but dropped when local markets were flooded.

The outlook for tomato growers is favorable again this year. Although prices may not be as high as in 1952, farmers who make high yields of good quality fruit should make a nice profit.

If you are interested in growing some tomatoes for sale this year, Bagby says, here are some pointers you should follow:

1. Plant tomatoes on a deep, fertile, well drained loamy soil that holds moisture fairly well. The land should not have been in tomatoes for at least three years and preferably not in any truck crop the previous year. This is necessary to safeguard the crop from such pests as nematodes, Southern blight, wilt, and other diseases.

2. If possible, apply a generous amount of stable manure, 8 to 10 tons per acre, broadcast before plowing. If manure is not available, turning a cover crop of vetch, crimson clover, or rye will increase yields.

3. Plow land early and deeply, especially if organic material is turned under. Disk land two or more times to break up clods and to make a smooth firm seedbed. Apply fertilizer and make beds 10 days to 2 weeks before planting seed or setting plants. Early plowing and fallowing will be especially helpful for the fall crops by conserving moisture. Good land preparation before planting will save trouble and hard work later.

4. Use the best seed or plants available. Get stocky, vigorous plants that have not been stunted. The cost of high grade plants or seed is small compared with the total cost of producing the crop. Rutgers is still the standard variety for Alabama. Stokesdale is also good and slightly earlier. Urbana, a new variety, has shown up well in trials of the Experiment Station.

5. Plenty of fertilizer is needed to make a good crop of fruit. Use 500 to 600 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre before planting seed or setting plants. Apply the same amount of 6-8-4 about 3 weeks after setting plants. Then side-dress with 180 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent when first fruits have set. Research work has not shown any evidence that reasonable amounts of nitrogen on tomatoes hurts the quality.

6. Control insects and diseases by dusting every week or 10 days with a mixture of 1 per cent rotenone and 6 per cent zineb or 5 per cent DDD (rothane) and 6 per cent zineb. The tomatoes saved from worm damage alone should more than pay for the cost of dusting.

In Seven Short Years

Lowndes County Cattlemen Have Built A Fine Herd

HOW long does it take to build a herd of registered cattle?

Folks around Hayneville will tell you that quite a lot can be done in a pretty short time, for they have watched the nearby HB Ranch develop mightily during the past seven years.

The owners of this ranch, Walter and Richard (Zeke) Harrell, started with two grade cows in 1947. At that time they had no land and very little experience in the cattle business. They kept these cows on a small piece of land owned by their father.

"We gradually increased our herd until we had to sell some cows or buy more land," recalls Walter. "After a lengthy discussion, Zeke and I agreed that the best thing to do was to buy land."

And that's just what we did. There was a small farm for sale just a few miles from our home in Hayneville. After looking it over, we decided it was just what we needed. We bought the land and within a few days our herd was moved to their new home."

A year later the Harrells were faced with their same old problem: Too many cows on too few acres. And again they bought more land. This same thing has happened over and over, and now their ranch sprawls over 800 acres of some of the best grazing land in Lowndes County. And what's more, the land has all been fenced and sowed to improved pasture since they bought it.

During the time the men were buying more land and increasing their grade herd, they began to buy a few registered Angus cows. They have attended most of the Angus auctions in the Southeast and have bought cows and bulls from the top end of these sales.

It has taken seven years to build a herd of only 15 registered brood cows. But, according to the Harrells, the hardest part of the job is over. From now on the building will consist mainly of selecting the best individuals for brood cows. "Of course, we will always be on the lookout for good animals to add to the herd," adds Walter.

Their grazing program consists of Caley peas, Ala-Lu clover, crimson clover, button clover, oats, and ryegrass during winter. Dallis grass is depended on almost entirely for summer pasture.

In addition to the pasture, the registered cattle feast at will on a mixture of cottonseed meal and hulls, wheat bran, chopped corn, and oats. The oats do double duty for the Lowndes ranchers. They are grazed during winter and combined for grain in summer.

THEIR FUTURE SHOULD BE GREAT—These two young bulls (top picture) on the Harrell Brothers Ranch, near Hayneville, are both sons of Prince Envious of Bates, the $26,000 American Royal Grand Champion. Brushing the bulls are Walter (left) and his brother, Richard. The Lowndes County farmers started in the cattle business seven years ago with two grade cows.

THRIVING IN LOWNDES—These brood cows are part of the 15-cow herd of registered Angus owned by Walter and Richard Harrell of Hayneville. They are eating a mixture of cottonseed meal and hulls, wheat bran, chopped corn, and oats. In addition, they have green grazing available at all times on the Harrell's 800-acre farm in Lowndes County. The Harrell brothers hope to one day have the South's best Angus herd.

FOUR counties named district winners in the 1952 state-wide 4-H Club cotton production contest last year are Cullman, Coffee, Baldwin, and Calhoun. The county 4-H council in each will receive a $125 cash award from the Atlantic Cotton Association.

The 347 young growers in the four counties produced an average of just over 400 pounds of lint cotton per acre, compared with the state over-all average of 285. Over a bale per acre was made by 146 of the growers.

The highest producer was Myles Arnold, Cullman Rt. 7, who made 950 pounds of lint cotton on eight-tenths of an acre. His profit was $278, after deducting $110 for expenses.

The 4-H growers in Baldwin averaged 532 pounds per acre to lead the counties.

For More Corn

Use Plenty of Fertilizer, Space Thick, Side-dress

By F. S. McCAIN and J. T. COPE
API Agricultural Experiment Station

THE API Experiment Station recommends that you fertilize each acre of corn with 60 to 90 pounds of nitrogen and 20 to 30 pounds of P_2O_5 and K_2O (phosphorus and potash). You can supply these amounts by using 300 pounds of either 8-8-8 or 4-10-7 or 250 pounds of 4-12-12 before planting and then side-dressing with 50 to 75 pounds of nitrogen. Spacing in the drill should be 18 to 24 inches for prolific varieties and 15 to 18 inches for one-eared varieties.

Last summer's extreme drouth and the resulting low yields have caused many people to question these thick spacings and high rates of nitrogen. Some growers even believe they would have made more corn had they spaced plants 36 inches apart and used no fertilizer. Results of the Experiment Station's corn variety, spacing, and rate of nitrogen tests do not bear this out. These results show what happened in 1952 and what may be expected to happen in the future.

From Figure 1 it can be seen that high rates of nitrogen did not decrease yields of corn. True, there was no great increase when more than 30 pounds of nitrogen per acre was used. This was because the lack of water kept plants from using more nitrogen.

On the other hand, a look at Figure 2 will show that good responses to nitrogen can be expected in normal years. Average yields obtained in a series of 309 experiments over a period of about 30 years give an indication of expected returns from added nitrogen. In these experiments the average acre of land yielded 13 bushels of corn without nitrogen.

When 30 pounds of nitrogen were added, the yield was about 31 bushels of corn per acre —an increase of 18 bushels from nitrogen. (At present prices, 3 bushels of corn will just about pay for 30 pounds of nitrogen.)

When a second 30 pounds of nitrogen was added, the yield was increased another 16 bushels per acre, or 13 bushels more than cost of the additional nitrogen. A third 30 pounds gave an increase of 11 bushels of corn or 8 bushels above cost of additional nitrogen. A fourth 30-pound increase returned 2 bushels per acre above cost of additional nitrogen.

Returns from high rates of nitrogen fertilization will be greatest when used with the proper number of plants. Figure 1 shows that in 1952 only the closest spacing caused decreases in yield. These decreases occurred only when low rates of nitrogen were applied. Spacings as thick as 12 inches in the row will decrease yields even in years of normal rainfall if less than 60 pounds of nitrogen are applied.

Further examination of Figure 2 shows that at 60 and 90 pounds of nitrogen small differences in spacing do not greatly affect corn yields. Spacings of 18 to 24 inches for prolific corns and 15 to 18 inches for one-eared corns are most satisfactory at these nitrogen levels.

Early Corn For Pigs

The yield of extra early hybrids is not usually as high as later maturing corn. And, too, they are usually soft and don't keep as well as later ones. Therefore it is recommended that only enough of these extra early hybrids be planted to carry your hogs 30 to 40 days or until later planted hybrids are ready for grazing.

In figuring your acreage, remember that about 7 bushels is needed for 100 pounds of gain. And the shotes will average gaining 1¼ to 1½ pounds daily when green grazing, supplement, and mineral mixture are provided. Remember also that 10 shotes weighing between 75 and 100 pounds will eat about 1 bushel of corn daily. This means eight or ten shotes averaging 75 to 100 pounds will clean up one acre of 30 bushel corn in about 30 days.

MILKING TIME AGAIN—Ten cows and plenty of grazing give Buren Smith (left) a good dairy enterprise on his farm in Cleburne County. The farmer went into the milk business after a water shortage forced him out of broiler production. Watching as his father gets ready for the milking job is Tommy, who is pretty handy around the dairy barn.

This Month on the Farm
by API EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

The laying flock is one of our best markets for home-grown grains. Plant enough corn to have one bushel for each pullet you plan to put in the laying house next fall.

Make your turkey plans now and place orders for poults. USDA White turkeys should be started about 24 to 26 weeks before market time while bronze turkeys need two weeks longer—buy poults accordingly. Sell your turkeys when they reach prime condition. Your market demand and own preference will determine whether or not you grow the large or small birds. Last year there was a good premium for small turkeys.

Turn your winter legumes as soon as they have made a profitable growth. Vetches, Austrian peas, and crimson clover should be plowed under when the green tops on 100 square feet of average growth will weigh 20 pounds or more. Lupine should not be turned until the green tops on 100 square feet weighs at least 40 pounds.

Before farm machines begin another year's work they should be checked now for needed repairs and all bolts and nuts should be tightened. Be sure to get a supply of the proper lubricants for your farm tractor and other machines.

Now is the time to cut fence posts for treating. The posts should be peeled immediately after cutting and open stacked, so that they will dry as rapidly as possible. It usually takes about 90 days for posts to dry thoroughly for treating.

If you plan to irrigate in 1953 you should buy your system soon so it will be ready for use during the late spring dry season which usually occurs in May or June.

Drainage with explosives should be done this month because the ground is wet and results will be easier to obtain. That wet area on your farm, if properly ditched, will be in good condition for planting later in the spring.

Each year cattle are lost during March because of bloat. In many instances this can be remedied by keeping check on your animals each day. Since most bloat occurs between 3 o'clock and dark, all cattle on succulent legume grazing should be observed each afternoon. Bloating cattle should be removed from the pasture immediately, placed in a dry lot, and given additional treatment if necessary.

The home freezer should be defrosted once or twice a year or when about one-half inch of frost accumulates on the inside walls. Thick layers of frost reduces storage space, and makes the freezer inconvenient to use. Some common causes of frost are: opening the freezer too often, poorly packaged food, (not in air-tight packages) and top gasket making poor seal.

1. THE FIRST STEP—All dairymen agree that one of the secrets of producing milk for a profit is growing feed at home. This practice is put into action too on J. C. Robinson's farm out on Fayette, Rt. 1. The 16 grade A milkers on his place feast on 60 acres of rye, fescue, oats, and crimson clover. The Pickens County dairyman tells Jack Howell (right) that his cows are now producing an average of 18 pounds per day off the good green grazing.

2. GOOD COWS HELP TOO—To keep the milk profits up, dairymen should use good high producing cows. This point is kept in mind by J. E. Pate of Gordo in Pickens County. For the fine registered Jersey shown here is one which he recently bought from Tupelo, Mississippi. Pate plans to continue improving his 20 grade A producers too by breeding artificially to fine bulls in the Starksville, Mississippi, stud.

3. AND NOW A GOOD HOUSE—Fast growing pastures, high producing cows and a comfortable barn all add up to a good dairy business. The nice new construction is on the farm of L. B. Koon out on Gordo Rt. 1 in Pickens County. Dairyman Koon (left) points out two of his contented producers to County Agent J. H. Sellers after they have been placed in their quarters for milking. This new barn plus 19 others which have recently been erected is evidence of a fast growing dairy program in Pickens County.

4. FINALLY THE FINISHED PRODUCT—The work is over now and it's just about pay-day. Here Jack Howell, another dairyman in Pickens County, places a can of fresh grade A milk in the cooler. From here it is picked up by truck and will go to the processing plant in nearby Tuscaloosa. Jack has been in the dairy business for three years now and is leading the way in producing better cows for his county. He is helping get an organized artificial breeding program established so all dairymen will have use of good bulls.

Good Business

Dairying Increases Farm Income In Pickens County

DOWN Pickens County way an old business is getting a new lease on life. Farmers in this west Alabama county are rising early and turning out more gallons of grade A milk.

For years there were a few commercial dairies in the county, but the number grew slowly because there was no suitable outlet for more milk. Now all that's changed. Today, with processing plants in nearby Tuscaloosa providing a better market, several farmers have been going into the dairy business in a big way.

County Agent J. L. Sellers reports that grade A milk sales brought Pickens farmers about $164,000 last year. He expects this amount to be doubled in 1953 as a result of 20 additional dairy barns built during the past year. "The encouraging part of the program," says Sellers, "is that all new producers are going in the business on a sound basis. These farmers are growing their feed and using good cows. Another important point not being overlooked is that of supplying herd replacements. Each dairyman selects his best heifers and raises them for future milkers."

Typical of dairymen in this county is Jack Howell of Gordo Rt. 3. He has been in the dairy business for four years and is doing a good job of producing milk at a nice profit.

Howell has 18 cows that average producing 20 pounds of milk a day. And what's more, he continues to improve his herd each year by using good bulls and saving the best heifers. The young dairyman, with an eye on better herds on all Pickens dairy farms, is helping to organize an artificial breeding program. He and other farmers, along with County Agent Sellers, are working with officials of the Starksville, Mississippi, bull stud and making plans for a local association for those who want the services of good bulls.

Another factor that helps improve Howell's dairy program is membership in the dairy herd improvement association. Through this organization he gets help in keeping records on individual cows. Since he is thus able to spot and continually cull the poor producers, his herd had one of the highest butterfat records in the Tuscaloosa-Pickens DHIA last year.

The young Pickens County dairyman is well on the way with plans for developing a herd of purebred cattle. At present there are 13 registered heifers raised from some of the farm's best cows.

> The rise in grade A dairying in Pickens County hasn't cut into the production of milk for manufacturing purposes. In fact, sale of this milk is steadily climbing. Last year 215 farmers sold $125,000 worth—and will market even more in 1953.

About all this, Howell says, "I like the steady source of income from my cows, but I don't plan to quit row crops. I don't like all of my eggs in one basket."

Another new dairyman is J. E. Pate of the Center Elmore community. Starting in the business only last year, he now milks 20 cows. When there's more pasture, the number will be increased.

Proof that Pate believes in having the best cows available is the fine registered Jersey recently purchased from Mississippi. She will be bred to bulls in the Starksville stud and her best heifers will be saved for future herd replacements.

L. B. Koon of Gordo Rt. 1, another newcomer in the grade A dairy business, has 16 cows that are producing about 250 pounds of milk daily. To make sure of a milk profit, plenty of green grazing is produced for the cows. They feast on oats and crimson clover in winter and on permanent pasture in summer.

All the Pickens County farmers admit that dairying was added to their farm operation as a supplemental source of income; each will continue to grow row crops. But they also agree that the steady income from milk beats having all the year's money at one time.

During the first week of the suckling period, sows are more often over-fed than under-fed, while during the remainder of the suckling period the reverse is usually true. Take a week or ten days to get the sow on full feed after the pigs come and then pass the victuals to her in a big way for fast growing little porkers.

Mother's Helper

Makes Good On A Bevy Of 4-H Projects

WHEN Elizabeth Carroll is in the kitchen, you can bet there is a good meal in the making.

Moving around in that room like a fish in water, the 11-year-old Sardis 4-H Club girl can whip up a good meal in short order. And a complete meal it is—from appetizer to dessert.

All of this is a great help to Elizabeth's mother. For often during last fall's harvest season when her parents returned home from a hard day's work, they would find waiting for them a hot meal prepared by their sixth-grade daughter. All told, she has prepared over 500 meals.

What's more, much of the food has come from a garden worked by the farm youngster.

Along with cooking and gardening, Elizabeth has been busy at the sewing machine. Her sewing was considered pretty good by judges of the county dress revue last year because they picked her junior winner of this event.

Elizabeth is always busy with one or more of the many home chores. Canning is another of her projects. A quick survey of the 4-H'ers activities shows that she is carrying more than 10 projects. And this is only her second year in 4-H work!

Elizabeth confides that she plans to keep up her 4-H work and hopes that one day she will be named to attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. This is a worthy goal for the young homemaker who is working so hard to make her dream come true.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Carroll of Boaz, Rt. 5.

The ewe flock and rams should be shorn as soon as warm weather sets in. The ewes will be more thrifty and be better milkers without their winter coats. Use improved methods in shearing to increase the value of fleece. A good shearer can increase the value of each fleece by at least $1 by cutting closer to the skin and by eliminating second cuts, which cut the staple in two.

Meat-Type Hogs On The Preferred List

G. B. Phillips, A.P.I. Extension specialist in animal industry, points out that during the past year reduced lard prices have lowered hog prices an average of $1 per 100 pounds of live weight.

"The answer to this problem," says Phillips, "is a hog called the intermediate or meat type. And there is a simple method swine growers can use to see if they are producing such hogs. It's done by checking the length of carcass and thickness of fatback when the carcass is on the pole."

The specialist states that a 225-pound meat-type market hog has a carcass length of about 30 inches from pelvic bone to front side of the first rib. The fatback is uniform in thickness, averaging about one and one-half inches.

General Rules For Removal Of Stains

TREAT garment stains as soon as possible because after they have dried or have been set by laundering it may be very difficult or impossible to remove them.

Kathleen Thompson, A.P.I. Extension clothing specialist, advises that the mildest treatment be used first. If the stain is not greasy, try sponging it with cold water. Sugary stains are easily removed with clear water. If the stain contains grease, a dry-cleaning fluid or soapsuds may do the trick.

"Some stains are combinations of several types and may require several kinds of treatment," reveals the specialist. "For example, a fruit-flavored, ice cream stain should be treated as a sugar, egg, grease, and fruit stain."

Best Ways To Keep Milk Quality High

DAIRYMEN agree that high investment, Feed, and labor costs make efficient dairy operation more necessary than ever.

"And one of the ways to realize the most profit from a dairy cow is to see that all the milk she produces reaches the plant as soon as possible," says Pete Turnham, assistant A.P.I. Extension dairy specialist.

When the milk gets to the plant it should not have lost any of its high quality. Such milk assures that neither the producer nor distributor will lose money.

Turnham points out that high quality milk production does not call for expensive equipment, but there are certain requirements that must be met.

Steps to take include careful washing and rinsing of all utensils, proper cleaning of each cow's udder, prompt cooling of fresh milk, and effective insect and pest control.

Do not operate a machine faster than the speed for which it is designed. High speeds cause excessive vibration and overheating of bearings, thus reducing efficiency and shortening the life of the machine. Horse-drawn machines are not designed to operate at the faster tractor speeds.

NO FOOD SHORTAGE HERE—To keep the family well fed the year around, Mrs. E. H. Huff of Millport, Rt. 3, goes in heavy for canning when vegetables and fruits are plentiful. Last year the Pickens County housewife canned more than 600 quarts of foodstuff from her garden and orchard. All surplus canned goods are sold to a local school lunchroom at a dollar a gallon. Mrs. Huff, vice president of the Antioch H. D. Club and a member for 15 years, says she learned many of her canning tricks at meetings.

HOME CANNED AND GOOD TO EAT—When it comes to canning, Doris Ann Beard, a member of the Pine Apple 4-H Club, can answer most any of the questions. She helped her mother can 350 quarts of fruits and vegetables last summer. Doris Ann has been in the 4-H Club for five years and is now serving as the song leader of her local club. She won the county medal in frozen foods in Wilcox County in 1951. This young 4-H'er also has a dairy calf, home garden, and home improvement as other club projects. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. D. Beard of Pine Apple.

EXTRA PROFIT FOR THE WINNER—The title of 1952 Greene County 4-H cotton production champion has been bestowed on Melvin Sellers of the Beulah community. Dry weather, which hit most of the cotton in Alabama, cut Melvin's yield. Yet he managed to turn out 391 pounds of lint on his acre of Coker 100 wilt. Mr. R. G. Colson (center) and his son, H. E. (right), owner and operator of the Eutaw and Clinton gins, present a $25 Savings Bond to young Sellers. Melvin, a member of the Greene County High 4-H Club for five years, also has projects in corn, poultry, and tractor maintenance. He owns a tractor and operates a 40-acre farm.

Did You Know?

THE mortar required for 1,000 bricks will average about 18 cubic feet. It may be made with six sacks of special mortar cement and 18 cubic feet of sand.

Contact your county agent and get a copy from him. The price is only 75 cents.

The Forest Farmers Association will hold its 1953 Southern Forestry Conference on March 5 and 6 at Pensacola. The theme will be "Lumber's Increasing Responsibility in the Nation's Economy." Timber owners in South Alabama should be interested in attending.

FROM FEED TO MEAT—C. O. Neighbors started in the broiler business with 8,000 New Hampshire chicks two years ago. Since then, he and his son have increased their output to about 12,000 birds per flock, and are planning to double this number during the year. Day-old chicks that come to the Neighbors' farm on Alexander City, Rt. 4, are fed only one ration during the 10-week-stay—broiler mash. Neighbors says quite a few dollars are saved on each house of birds by using this feeding method.

For Extra Profit

Make High Yields Of Quality Cotton

COTTON is still Alabama's biggest cash crop. It brings in 40 per cent or more of the cash farm income each year. Grown on two out of three farms in the state, cotton occupies about 1,500,000 acres annually —only half the amount planted 20 years ago. What's more, the average yield has increased 33 per cent, while the staple length has gone from 7/8-inch in 1932 to more than 1 inch at present.

The supply of U. S. cotton increased one-half million bales during the past season, and folks who study the situation say there will be about one million fewer bales exported and used locally this year. This means a larger supply of cotton on hand.

Andrews said cotton growers in Alabama are faced with keen competition from other high yielding areas of the U. S. and synthetic fibers. The cost of producing a bale of cotton must be lowered to meet this competition.

This situation calls for the greatest possible use of labor saving machinery and higher yields of quality cotton.

1. Plant on good fertile land.

2. Break, and disk land early so rain will settle the seedbed before planting. If this cannot be done, use disk harrow and cultipacker to firm soil.

3. Grow a recommended variety. Coker 100 Wilt, Plains, Stoneville 2B, Fox (DPL), Empire, Stonewilt, Auburn 56, and Smith 78 have made best yields in Experiment Station variety tests.

On wilt land, prevalent in Central and South Alabama, grow Plains, Coker 100 Wilt, Smith 78, Auburn 56, or Stonewilt.

4. Fertilize right. On most soils of the state use enough fertilizer to supply 50 to 60 pounds of nitrogen (N), 50 to 60 pounds of phosphorus (P_2O_5), and 35 to 60 pounds of potash (K_2O) per acre. To supply this plant food, apply (1) 500 to 600 pounds of 4-10-7 per acre and side-dress with about 200 pounds of nitrate of soda or 100 pounds ammonium nitrate or equal nitrogen from other sources or (2) 400 to 500 pounds 4-12-12 and side-dress with about 225 pounds of nitrate of soda or 115 pounds of ammonium nitrate or equal nitrogen from other sources.

On Sand Mountain where cotton is planted at the recommended time (April 20-25), an additional 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or 50 pounds of ammonium nitrate side-dressing may be added.

On good red soils of the Tennessee Valley use 600 pounds of 6-8-4 per acre or equal plant food from other sources. On the poorer red soils add 100 pounds nitrate of soda or 50 pounds of ammonium nitrate at planting or as a side-dressing. On the grey soils of this area apply 600 pounds of 8-8-8 per acre or 400 pounds of 4-12-12 plus 200 pounds nitrate of soda or 100 pounds ammonium nitrate as a side-dressing.

Bed on fertilizer a week to 10 days before planting or place it 2½ inches to the side and 2½ inches below the seed at planting. If this can't be done, thoroughly mix fertilizer with soil in the row and plant seed 2 to 3 inches above the fertilizer.

5. Plant on time. Early planting pays in most years. Plant as soon as danger of frost is passed. Highest yields for four or more years have been made by the API Experiment Station when cotton was planted on the following dates:

South Alabama—March 25-April 10.

Central Alabama—April 1-15.

Tennessee Valley—April 10-25.

Sand Mountain—April 15-25.

6. Get a stand. Plant at least 3 pecks of reginned and treated seed or 12 to 16 pounds of acid delinted seed per acre in 3 to 3½-foot rows. Be sure germination is 80 per cent or more and seed are delinted and properly treated. Adjust planter to plant regularly and at uniform depth. Plant on a firm seedbed.

7. Leave plenty of plants. Thin when plants have 4 to 6 leaves and danger from dying is passed. There should be enough plants left so there will be 2 to 3 stalks in hills spaced 12 to 18 inches apart. "Skips" make weed control difficult and reduce yields.

8. Cultivate shallow and often enough to control weeds. Proper use of rotary hoes, weeders, harrows, or similar implements when cotton is young and grass is in the hair stage will save hoe labor.

9. Control insects. In most years you must poison to control insects to make high yields. See your county agent for publications and specific information on insect control.

At Cotton Picking Time

Get Best Results From Mechanical Harvester

ARE you planning to gather your cotton with a mechanical harvester next fall? If you are, now is the time to get started.

The agricultural engineering department of the A.P.I. Experiment Station has found that every operation, from the time the land is selected until the crop is harvested, will have a bearing upon the successful performance of the harvesting machine. The following procedure should be followed very closely:

1. Select land that is best adapted to the production of cotton. Follow practices which will result in the most efficient use of machinery and equipment. These include removal of rocks and stumps, construction of broad-base terraces to accommodate all tractor operation, and increasing size of fields by eliminating hedge rows and ditches wherever possible.

2. Destroy crop residue such as cotton stalks as soon as possible. Cut them fine enough to prevent interference during planting and cultivation.

3. Good seedbed preparation is especially important, as it influences all succeeding machinery operations. A good seedbed is essential in obtaining and maintaining a good stand, which, in turn results in more uniform plants. Complete turning of any crop residue well in advance of planting, elimination of clods, and firming of the soil are all necessary. Smooth fields result in more efficient planting, cultivating, and harvesting operations. A light disking before planting will aid in destroying early weeds.

4. High rates of nitrogen usually produce large plants undesirable for mechanical harvesting. The amount of nitrogen to use for high yields without excessive plant growth must be decided by each farmer, based on his knowledge of the productivity of his soil.

5. The main objectives in planting for mechanical harvesting are uniformity and control of plant size. Close spacing in the drill tends to produce small, uniform plants with short limbs. A spacing of 3 to 4 inches or a plant population of 40,000 to 50,000 per acre at harvest time is desirable. This thicker spacing will not affect the yields. Although row spacing may vary from 38 to 42 inches, the center spacing of 40 inches is most desirable.

6. Clean cultivation is important because weeds and grass in the row are collected along with the cotton and are difficult to remove in ginning, thus resulting in a lower grade. The rotary hoe has proved very beneficial in controlling weeds and grass in early stages of growth, and aids greatly in obtaining a stand after hard rains. Each operation with the rotary hoe may reduce the stand about 5 to 7 per cent. Therefore, thick planting is required to obtain the desired spacing if this machine is used. At lay-by time, the middles are left 2 to 3 inches lower than the row, causing the defoliated leaves to collect in them.

Protect Your Clothes

The garments which are dry cleaned should not be pressed until they are removed from storage. Clothing which is inclined to stretch or sag should be stored folded instead of on hangers. This saves space as well as preserves the shape of the garment.

In order to further prevent moth damage, clothes closets should be treated. For in some closets the temperature stays high enough that moths can breed even through winter months. To de-moth the closet Miss Thompson says it should be thoroughly cleaned and sprayed with moth crystals. Many vacuum cleaners have mothproofing attachments which may be used according to instructions.

Some plastic bags are constructed well enough that they prevent moth invasion. Woolens can be safely stored in them.

EXCELS IN MANY PROJECTS—It would be hard to tell just what project Sybil Estes of the Heflin Sr. 4-H Club likes best. She has done plenty of hard work with many. Last summer she did the family's ironing, worked on a clothing project and painted her bedroom. During her six years as a 4-H member she has completed projects in personal grooming, ironing, sewing, room improvement, cooking, handicrafts, yard improvement, and canning. Here the Heflin Rt. 3 4-H'er adds the final stitches to another garment for her wardrobe of self-made clothes.

A Good Recipe For March

NOW that eggs are plentiful and the price is reasonable you can well afford to use plenty of them during cooking. They are high in food value and will add variety to your meals.

Don't get in the habit of thinking eggs are only a breakfast food. They make a good dish for any meal and company as well as the family will enjoy them.

According to Mary Hulsey, API Extension food specialist, there are more than one thousand ways to cook and serve eggs. They may be served as the main dish, with vegetables, as a salad, in sandwiches, in salad dressing or in desserts.

- 4 hard cooked eggs, sliced
- 2 cups shredded cabbage
- 1½ cups diced tomatoes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped pickle
- ¼ cup salad dressing
- 2 tablespoons chopped, green pepper

1. Put into a mixing bowl each thing as listed. Toss together lightly with two forks. (Eggs may be placed on top after the salad is mixed, if preferred.)

2. Chill and serve on lettuce or other salad greens.

Research Results

in brief from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

POTASH AND ZINC FOR OVERLIMED SOILS. Results obtained from testing a number of different materials on a limited number of badly "overlimed" spots on farms in southeastern Alabama indicate that such areas can be brought back to normal production of corn and peanuts. For such areas, it is recommended that in addition to normal fertilizer applications of 100 pounds of muriate of potash and 15 pounds of zinc sulfate per acre be broadcast before planting.

CORN ROOTWORM. Frequently called "budworm," the corn rootworm has been effectively controlled in experiments by the use of insecticides in the fertilizer at planting time. Best results have been obtained by using 1 pound of either aldrin or dieldrin per acre. Forty pounds of 2.5 per cent aldrin dust mixed with the fertilizer to be applied on 1 acre are recommended.

SOYBEAN VARIETIES FOR OIL. Roanoke and Ogden have performed satisfactorily in variety tests. Ogden will generally mature in early October. Roanoke averages 14 to 18 days later in maturity, 8 to 10 inches taller, 1 per cent higher in oil content, and will hold its seed from 2 to 4 weeks longer after maturity than Ogden. The height and seed holding qualities are advantages for efficient harvesting under most Alabama conditions.

COTTON ON SANDY SOILS REQUIRES EXTRA POTASH. On soils where cotton has shown signs of rust, both yield and quality of cotton usually will be improved by increasing the application of potash. Research has shown that on these soils a 1 to 1 ratio of P_2O_5 to K_2O is needed. Rust occurs most frequently on light-colored soils. A new fertilizer grade, 4-12-12 has been approved for sale in Alabama and is recommended for cotton on sandy soils at a rate of 400 to 500 pounds per acre with 30 to 40 pounds of N per acre applied as a side-dressing.

MINOR ELEMENTS ARE RECOMMENDED for alfalfa, crimson clover, and corn. Recommendations are: for alfalfa, 800 to 1,000 pounds of 0-12-20 per acre containing 50 pounds of borax per ton; for crimson clover seed production, 300 to 400 pounds of 0-16-8 per acre containing 50 pounds of borax per ton; and for corn on light sandy soils in zinc deficient areas of southern Alabama, 250 to 300 pounds of 4-12-12 or 4-10-7 per acre containing 50 to 75 pounds of zinc sulfate per ton with additional nitrogen side-dress as needed. Field experiments have shown that these minor element fertilizers pay off in Alabama.

GOOD WEED CONTROL IN COTTON has been obtained by applying both pre- and post-emergence chemical sprays. The dinitro compounds or CIPC applied as a pre-emergence treatment at the rate of 1 to 1½ pounds per acre to a 12-inch band over the row on sandy soil, and 2 to 2½ pounds per acre on heavy soil are recommended. A non-fortified herbicidal oil applied at the rate of 5 gallons per acre to the band as a post-emergence spray, not to exceed three applications, is also recommended. WARNING: before attempting chemical weed control, see your county agent for details.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

A FOREST FABLE

The animals of the forest decided many years ago that it was time they made peace among themselves. There was too much contention, and most of them wanted peace. So they organized a United Animals Council, which they called the UC.

The owl was made chairman, and all went well—they voted unanimously to make peace. The fox would quit molesting the rabbit; the hawk would let the field mouse rest in peace; there would be harmony in the forest. And no animal could belng who would violate the rules.

Then the woodchuck moved that the animals build a large place where they might hold their meetings for comradeship. The motion carried with cheers. Then the question arose where and how to build the place.

The beaver arose and said, "We should build it of twigs and bark and rushes, in the middle of a stream. That's the way I've built my home for years. That's the best way."

The squirrel shook his head. "That won't do—I can't swim. Why don't we build it out of twigs and twine, in the top of a tree. I've found that is the best way."

The groundhog didn't like that. "How do you expect me to climb a tree? Let us build a tunnel in the ground. I've always done it that way, and it's the safest and best."

Instead of meeting in the forest and letting each animal adapt his own ideas to his living the animals fell to arguing. The chipmunk wanted the meeting place in a hollow log; the wolf wanted it in a cave. No two could agree. None would admit that perhaps his was not the best for the group as a whole.

The meeting broke up in a riot. The weasel chased the chipmunk to exhaustion; the bees swarmed ferociously at the bear; the fox drove the rabbits wildly to a shelter. And there was tumult and strife, and many animals were killed.

And the animals of the forest have been warring ever since—just like humans.—Adapted from Caterpillar Folks.

City Planning To Extend Water Mains

Mayor C. Fenn Jones stated Thursday morning that the matter of extending 6-inch water mains to the Candler Terrace section of Clanton was under discussion by the City Council and unless unforeseen circumstances arose the work would be started this summer.

To carry out the plans discussed it would take 5,500 feet of six-inch pipe to put the proper mains through the sub-division. Five fire hydrants would also be placed at intervals through the section giving the residents a much better protection against fire.

Plans have not been completed the Mayor stated, but if the City is financially able this improvement will be undertaken.

Preaching Series Of Sermons On Baptist Doctrine

Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clanton, is preaching a series of sermons in the Sunday evening services on Baptist doctrines. Dr. Hutchinson is presenting this series because of many requests which have come to him regarding our beliefs. These messages will be based on New Testament doctrines and the church as established in the New Testament.

It is important in this day when there is so much unbelief in the world and so many who take the position that doctrines are not important that we restate our doctrinal position and proclaim our beliefs as they are set forth in the New Testament. Our doctrinal position is this. We believe and accept the New Testament as our only rule of faith and order. If it is taught in the New Testament, we believe it. If it is not taught in the New Testament, we do not believe it. We practice the doctrines of the New Testament without adding to them or taking away from them.

We extend a cordial invitation to every one to hear these sermons

March 8 — God's Limitations.
March 15 — The Freeness of Salvation.
March 22 — Why We Are Baptists.
March 29 — Revival, Dr. J. N. Barnette.

TAFT FOR BLOCKADE

Senator Robert A. Taft says that the United States is now in a full-scale war with China and that a blockade of the Chinese coast is therefore in order. The Ohio Senator says such a restriction should be ordered if it can be worked out successfully with our allies. Manchurian bases would be justified by the same reasoning although the present administration isn't reported to be considering such a step. The blockade is reported to have been a major topic of discussion at the White House recently.

Sale Of 1953 Easter Seals Is Now Under Way Here

The American public today has undergone an almost complete reversal of attitude toward crippled children and adults as a result of the work of voluntary agencies offering dare and treatment to the handicapped.

That is the statement of Mr. L. S. Levine, chairman of the local chapter of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, today in pointing out the changes that have come with widespread public support of the cause of the crippled. The Society sponsors each year the Easter Seal campaign to raise funds for work with the crippled.

"Thirty years ago a crippled child or a handicapped adult was an unusual sight," Mr. Levine pointed out, "Not because there weren't any, but because ignorance, poverty, shame and indifference surrounded the handicapped with barriers which neither they nor their families could penetrate. They were literally hidden away from the public."

"Today that is all changed, and the crippled are a useful part of our world, making their contribution to the professions, to business and industry. We have discovered that they are a tremendous national resource, waiting only for the magic touch to scientific rehabilitation and human understanding to make them productive human beings."

Thanks to the efforts of voluntary organizations, among them the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the crippled and handicapped are being given a chance to share a full life with their fellow men.

"The adult handicapped are filling vital posts for which they are especially selected and trained and in filling them are making a very real contribution to our country."

The Easter Seal campaign opens March 5 and continues through Easter Sunday, April 5th. A quota of $2,000.00 has been set for Chilton County. Contributions should be mailed to Mrs. L. E. Diefenderfer, Clanton, Ala., or to Crippled Children in care of this paper.

Please mail your contribution today—you will feel better to know that you helped in this wonderful cause.

Bell Hardware Purchases Evans Supply Company

Jimmy Bell, popular owner of the Bell Hardware Company and President of the Alabama Retail Hardware Dealers Association, announced this week that he had bought out the Evans Supply Company.

The two etores being adjoined will be remodelled into one big store and give the present Bell Hardware plenty of badly needed floor space.

The Bell Hardware Company has been serving Chilton County for the past 18 years and has enjoyed a steady growth in keeping with the county and city.

Mr. Bell stated Thursday, "I have unbounded faith in the future of Chilton County and firmly believe that through the united efforts of us all, we can grow to be the biggest little city in the South."

Eastern Star Pie-Cake Sale

All members of Clanton Chapter No. 271, O.E.S. are asked to send a cake, pie or cash donation to the Masonic Hall Saturday morning, March 7th, at 9 o'clock.

We ask the general public to assist us by buying these home-baked cakes and pies.

REV. L. DEWEY HUGHES

Rev. Luther Dewey Hughes, age 53, died at the home at South Clanton Tuesday morning about 7 o'clock. Services were held from Chestnut Creek, Coopers, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Revs. Hymon Atcheson, G. G. Williams and J. W. Jones. Martin Funeral Home in charge.

Ministers of the county serves as pallbearers, both active and honorary. The Masonic fraternity had charge at the grave.

Surviving are the wife, Mrs. Pearlie Robinson Hughes; two sons, Melton of Columbus, Ga., and Orvid of Birmingham; father, Rev. J. D. Hughes; one sister, Mrs. Ophelia Taylor, of Coopers.

Dewey Hughes was a native of Coosa County, his father's family having come to this county some 43 years ago. He was ordained and licensed as a Baptist minister some ten years ago and was presently full-time pastor at Maple Springs. He had pastored several churches in this vicinity, and was highly respected as an upright Christian gentleman.

PAPERS FACE RISING COSTS

William Dwight, director of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, says newspapers face steadily eising production costs and suggests that more research be done on the problem of economical productions. Dwight notes the bright side of the picture is a steadily growing volume of advertising which promises to rise further.

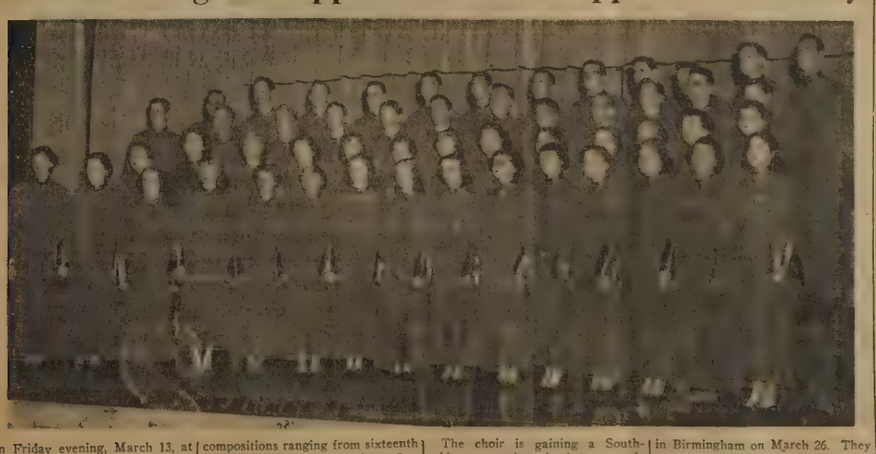
Howard College A Cappella Choir To Appear At Thorsby



On Friday evening, March 13, at 8:00 p.m. the Howard College A Cappella Choir, under direction of George W. Koski will sing a concert at Thorsby Institute, under sponsorship of Senior Class. The proceeds of the concert will go toward buying the Senior class gift for the institution.

The choir will sing a fourteen number program from memory with compositions ranging from sixteenth century to contepoary writers. One of the unusual numbers on the program is one that the choir world-premiered on its recent tour through Alabama and Georgia—the new arrangement of "Amazing Grace," by Dr. Charles Bryan, eminent authority on American folk music, who is now on the staff of Indian Springs School, Birmingham.

The choir is gaining a South-wide reputation having recently been invited to sing on the program of the Southern Music Educators Conference in Chattanooga, Tenn., on April 13. This is to be a meeting of all music teachers from eleven southern states. The choir will also give a thirty minute concert at the opening general session of Alabama Education Association in Birmingham on March 26. They have also been invited to sing at the National Southern Baptist Convention in May.

Tickets will be available at Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co., Alfred-Wright Drug Co., Chilton County High School (Miss Marguerite Perry), Wyatt Drug Co., (Thorsby), or any Senior student of Thorsby Institute.

CHILTON COUNTY NEEDS PROGRESS

Much is being said pro and con about new industries, new county buildings and a new hospital for Chilton County.

Within the past several years Chilton County has probably lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in payrolls because of the backward attitude we have towards new business and industry. The "Committee of 100" worked hard for a long time trying to bring new industries into Birmingham and had little success until the people themselves decided to take a little pride in their city and constructed a City Hall in keeping with a city of the size and wealth of Birmingham. Then new industry began to come to Birmingham.

It may not have been the new City Hall that started the ball rolling, but the big money that was looking around for a place to open an office or a plant wasn't going to invest their money in a county or city without civic pride.

Clanton and Chilton County has a lot of room for new industry and new payrolls, and only by showing our willingness to grow and improve ourselves can we encourage others to invest money here.

-Letter To The Editor-

THE VIEWS OF JUST ONE MORE VOTER

Just a few comments about the badly needed new courthouse and jail from a Man on the Corner:

In the January 8th, 1953, issue of The Union-Banner the Editor stated, quote: "Chilton County is facing a "must" when it comes to doing something about our courthouse, and whether we build a new one or sufficiently repair the old one is going to run into money. This is a matter which the taxpayers would like to pass up, but we can't do it much longer. The falling of one-fourth of the plaster in the courtroom last week may be a solemn warning to us that there is danger of something bad ahead if we don't act. Just surmise a little and see just what could happen, or what could have happened. We had better take the warning."

And in the January 22, 1953, issue of The Union-Banner the Editor wrote "the most fitting need for a new courthouse and jail in the county. This is one costly proposition which the taxpayers of the county cannot much longer put off. The project will probably run to near half a million dollars, but it is something to which the people of the county are entitled, and is only fairly in line with the general progress of our thriving county."

I am proud of the Board of Revenue for acting upon the new courthouse and jail proposition and taking the warning. The proposition is costly, but the Board of Revenue could not much longer put it off, the people of this thriving county are entitled to a new courthouse and jail.

County warrants, tax exempt to the individuals who purchase them, sell at the same interest rate as bonds and in many such cases, as the warrants for a new courthouse and jail, they sell at a much lower interest rate than bonds. There will be no additional taxes levied upon the people of Chilton County as reflected in the 1953 tax levy, which was referred to in the February 26, 1953, issue of The Union-Banner. The money will not be taken from our schools, the seven mills school taxes still go to our schools as always, as voted by our taxpayers in 1939.

In checking the records of Chilton County, it is found that the county does not owe for any bonds or warrants and is completely out of debt and does not have to discount payments for labor and the like for the county as high as fifty per cent as the county did years ago under a REPUBLICAN administration.

I thoroughly agree and congratulate the Editor of The Union-Banner on the following statement, quote: Our present road arrangement is working out fine, and we want to keep the program operating." That is why DEMOCRATIC officials were elected in Chilton County in the last general election.

The DEMOCRATIC Board of Revenue, Representative, County Engineer, and all other County Officials are to be congratulated for their fine present road system and the financial condition of Chilton County. — The Views of Just One More Voter.

'It's Worth Pushing Along'

Hill Calls For Halt In Cutting Farm Prices

Senator Hill has again called on Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson to make full use of his powers under farm price support laws to halt the fall in farm prices.

Hill declared that the farm price decline has already cost the nation's farmers 2 billion dollars in income. He said the Bureau of Agricultural Economics has predicted a further drop of five per cent this year.

"While farm prices have fallen production costs have gone up," Hill said. "So have marketing, transportation and processing costs. Interest rates are also up and farm credit has grown tighter. The farmer is getting the smallest share of the consumers food dollar in twelve years. And the consumer is paying more for what he buys. Of course consumers include the farmer and his family." Hill continued:

"The situation causes great concern—not only among agricultural leaders in Congress, but also among our colleagues from non-farm states. They realize all too well that a reduction in farm income means a corresponding reduction in the purchasing power of our 23 million farmers. It means that farmers buy less of the products of our mines, mills and factories and the whole economy suffers." He added:

"The loss of farm purchasing power is shown by the current drop in rural sales of the things that farmers buy—tractors, trucks, and farm equipment of all kinds. Unless the farmers' purchasing power is restored, we may soon see factory production curtailed and workers laid off. No one can forget that the farm depression of the 20's was the beginning of the depression of the 30's."

Hill said in a statement, that farmers are writing their Congressmen asking: "What will the new administration do about price supports when the present law expires. Secretary Benson may have his own reasons for keeping silent but the fact remains that a full use by him of the present law, and a pledge to support its continuation would do more than any other one thing to halt the price decline and give the farmer the assurance that he sorely needs."

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From W. E. la Plante, Lemon Grove, California: My memory does not go back as far as that of H. J. Scott of Manchester, Ohio. That is, I do not remember the old time hack. In my boyhood days, in Fargus Falls, Minnesota, I remember when the streets were so full of chuck holes that I could not ride my bicycle in the streets. But I do remember when we put logs into the fireplace and let the ends burn off, and pushed the logs into the fireplace from time to time. And I remember that when we got nice new brass beds, we took the side boards of the old wooden beds and stuck them into the fireplace, same as we did the logs. But we nearly burned the house down. There were three or four coats of paint and varnish on the old sideboards and the heat of the burning ends softened up all this paint and varnish and the flames worked right back into the room. We had a heck of a time getting them out of the fireplace and carrying them outdoors.

From Mrs. E. Maria McNair 1403 N. St. Clair Street, Pittsburgh 6, Pa.: I remember, 65 years ago my father had a set of zinc shelves held together by a rope and raised and lowered from the pump bee into the well, but not touching the water. In it we kept our food. One time the rope broke dropping a roast, eggs, butter and milk into the water. He had to clean out the well to avoid contaminating the water, a tremendous undertaking

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

I. D. WHELAN, 2003 Handley, Saginaw, Michigan, worked for a company at a time when they were faced with quite a severe manpower shortage, and the manager assigned to him an area so large that it had him worried. He just couldn't conceive how he could handle such a situation. However, he realized that the people with whom he had to deal were good customers and it was up to him to do the best he could.

For some time he worked between twelve and fifteen hours a day trying to keep abreast of the situation. About 80 per cent of his time was spent on expediting work trying to get a maximum of critical material into the factory so that a satisfactory production rate could be maintained on the much needed electric refrigerators that they were manufacturing. He realized that he could not continue to go at his terrific pace and finally decided that he could concentrate on the most important things and let the others follow. He continued to be very busy, but after this simple decision he found that he could handle the situation considerably better; and it was not necessary for him to spend the long hours in trying to accomplish it. His worries subsided amazingly.

CARNEGIE

The extra effort that he expended was returned to him recently when he received a new appointment which meant an important promotion which surely would not have come if he had not simplified his work by doing the most important things first.

Millions Needed By Mental Institutions

Montgomery, Ala. — Plans to raise the per patiently weekly allowance at Alabama mental institutions would take an additional annual appropriation of at least $2,319,226, Gov. Gordon Persons said recently.

That does not include money for additional buildings or other improvements at Bryce, Searcy and Partlow State School for Mental Deficients, he added.

"There is no question but what more money must be provided for these institutions," the governor declared in a letter to members of the legislature.

The governor said he understands Dr. J. S. Tarwater, superintendent of Bryce Hospital at Tuscaloosa, will seek an additional $5.50 a week per patient for the 7,888 inmates in state mental hospitals.

That would bring the appropriation to $16.50 a week per patient.

The hospitals have long waiting lists and are handicapped by inadequate facilities for handling the patients already on hand.

Legislators who have investigated conditions at the institutions agreed they are already badly overcrowded and have substandard facilities for treating patients.

Per patient allowances at Bryce and Searcy are now $11 a week, and $10 a week at Partlow. Thus it would take an additional $5.50 per week at Bryce and Searcy, and another $6.50 per week at Partlow to reach the desired goal.

With 6,626 patients at Bryce and Searcy, the addition of $5.50 per week patient will require an increased appropriation of $36,443 a week, or an additional $1,895,036 for the year. To raise the weekly amount at Partlow for the 1,255 patients would require an additional $8,157.50 a week, or $424,190 a year, the governor's letter said.

During the fiscal year 1951-52, payments to Bryce and Searcy from the Alabama general fund totaled $3,889,752.36 including emergency payments, while Partlow School received $727,662.80.

The 1951-52 figure for Bryce and Searcy compared with $3,296,824.22 for 1950-51, and $1,227,202.03 for 1944-45.

MAPLESVILLE NEWS

Mrs. Kathryn Goff, Phone 2571

Mr. C. C. Cobern died in a Selma hospital last Thursday afternoon, February 26th, following a period of failing health. Funeral services were held from Maplesville Baptist Church at 11:00 a.m. Saturday, February 28th. Mr. Cobern is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Cobern; three sons, Mr. Kermit C. Cobern of Maplesville, Dr. Fred Cobern and Mr. Paul Cobern of Birmingham; two granddaughters, Miss Jean Cobern of Dallas, Texas, (an Airline Hostess) and Miss Joy Cobern of Birmingham; one brother, Mr. Clyde Cobern of Birmingham.

Rev. W. F. Rasberry, pastor of Maplesville Baptist Church, and Rev. Britton of Lighter Memorial Methodist Church, Birmingham, conducted the service.

Pallbearers for the services were: Masons, Mr. Moody Chambers, Mr. Billy Dennis, Mr. Theron Watson, Mr. John Goff, Mr. Hershel Shanks and Mr. E. P. Jones. Honorary pallbearers were deacons of the Baptist Church. Mr. Cobern was a deacon for a number of years and was faithful to his church even though he has been unable to attend for a year or more.

Miss Ruth Hicks, Mrs. John O'Neal, Mrs. William Ruddick, Mrs. Hershel Shanks, Mrs. Bill Hampton, Mrs. Theron Watson and Miss Jane Shanks had charge of the flowers. Mr. Jack House of Birmingham News made photographs. Music by the choir.

We extend our sympathy to the loved ones and a host of friends. Mr. Cobern was a good husband, father and friend.

The family would like to thank each and every person for the consideration and sympathy shown during the recent illness and death of their husband and father, Mr. Clint C. Cobern. They want to say, Thank You, for the sympathetic cards, floral offerings and the wonderful dishes of food and each other gesture of sympathy that was rendered by anyone.

Maplesville 4-H Club Met—

Maplesville 4-H Club met February 24th, from 9:00 'til 10:00 a.m. The song leaders led the following songs: "This Little 4-H Light of Mine" and "Here Comes Peter Cottontail." After the songs Miss Wright took charge of the meeting. The interesting program was on, Making Biscuits." Plans were made to enter the biscuit contest and skirt contest of the 4-H Clubs to be held in Clanton City Hall in the Summer.

Poplar Springs Church

Our attendance for Sunday School and Training Union is still low of what it should be. Let's all make a special effort to be present for these services each Sunday. Remember next Sunday and Sunday night are our regular preaching date so be sure to come and enjoy the great messages brought by our pastor.

We are expecting everyone to be much in prayer for our revival which will begin at the 11 o'clock hour the fifth Sunday in March, with Bro. Bill Cox doing the preaching.

Prayer service each Wednesday night and Bro. Cook will be teaching the last chapter of Phillipians this Wednesday night.

Our W.M.S. ladies received a warm welcome in the home of Mrs. Asberry Driver last Wednesday afternoon. We really had a good meeting and I'm sure each lady felt in her heart that it was good to be there. There were nine members and one visitor, Mrs. Lillie Duke of the First Baptist Church, Clanton, were present.

Our regular W.M.S. meeting will be at the church Wednesday afternoon, March 11th. Everyone be sure to come.

Please continue to pray for our pastor's mother and all others who are sick.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Traywick and children visited Mr. William Nelson in Wetumpka Hospital Saturday afternoon.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this way of expressing our "Thanks" to the many friends for their kindness and sympathy, and many beautiful flowers during our past sorrow. May God bless each one of you.

Mrs. Ruby Franklin and the Franklin family.

Mulberry Church—

Here are some figures we are proud of from Mulberry. There were 103 present at Sunday School Sunday morning. Most all of them our own members. There has been twelve people that have been present for at least one service every Sunday this year. There has been three people who have not missed a service this year on Sunday. How many are going to try to make 100 per cent attendance this month? Come on let us back up our Superintendent, R. C. Veasey, and pastor, Rev. J. W. Jones, with our presence and interest for a better church attendance. Everyone who is hearing Bro. Jones delivering his messages agrees that he is bringing some wonderful ones. Let us all make an effort to attend every service possible. You are missed when you are absent.

Just one month until the spring revival. Keep it in your prayers daily. Rev. L. E. Daniels will be the evangelist.

The church granted Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryant's letters to them Sunday morning. They have united with a church in Birmingham. Good luck to them in their Christian service there.

All the members of W.M.U. will meet at the church Friday night to complete the Home Mission program for the week. A special offering will be taken.

If you haven't read, "In His Steps" and the three books about the "Three, Jolly J's," check them out from the library and read them. They are good for all high school students and adults to read.

Remember you are missed on Wednesday night if you are not at prayer service. Meet us there at 7:00 p.m. every Wednesday night.

Getting Around with Mac Brown

I've been talking about "expert" drivers and now I've been asked how you can tell one when you see him. Really it's easy. A good driver, like a good boxer, never loses his temper. He refuses to be hurried, confused, or angered by traffic conditions. Expert drivers never are "bundles of nerves." They keep a level head to insure straight thought, accurate estimates and unhampered coordination. They take things "easy."

A poor driver can be spotted by his quick starting and stopping. He is ignorant of the excessive strain he puts on his clutch, transmission, brakes, springs, etc. While he apparently gets some weird satisfaction out of mis-treating his vehicle, he doesn't realize his own body is suffering, too. A "hot-rod" driver exerts ten times more energy and effort than the expert driver who knows the limitations of his vehicle and operates it the "easy" way.

I wish every driver on the road could drive a truck for a living for just three months. The things they would see and learn, sitting up in a truck cab all day every day, would make the highways safer when they went back to their cars.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Jim Brasseit has even surpassed Jim Basseit in offering special prizes at the Goodyear Service Store. Now he's giving away chrome dinette suites—in five colors too—with the purchase of home appliances. Jim is offering other worthwhile prizes through the month of March so don't pass up any chances to "cash in" on his special offer. Don't forget that old saying: "The early bird has to get his own breakfast," or something like that.

Folks are talking about the outstanding talent presented in our current series of Community Concerts. The artists out outstanding, and we feel the officers of this organization are due a vote of thanks and appreciation for their contribution to the cultural life of our community.

We think this story very appropriate according to sights we see on our streets day in and day out. A minister was awarding the prizes at a local dog show and was scandalized at the costumes worn by some members of the younger fair sex. "Look at that youngster," he said; "the one with short hair, smoking the cigarette and wearing breeches. Is it a boy or a girl?" "A girl," said his companion. "She's my daughter." "My dear sir," the minister was flustered. "Do forgive me. I would never have been so out spoken had I known you were her father. 'I'm not," said the other "I'm her mother."

What do you know about that Oliver Esco, Jr., making Captain in the United States Army at 25. He and the wife and child are stationed in Alaska. He graduated at Phillips High School at Birmingham when he was 17 and joined the army the following month. In the past eight years he has gone from private to captain—no mean feat for any young man. Our heartiest congratulations.

Mr. Johnson had hired Sambo to paint his shed at the stipulated price of two dollars and fifty cents. Reappearing on the scene some time later, he found Sambo lying in the shade of a tree enjoying himself while another Negro was busy painting.

"How is this, Sambo?" asked Mr. Johnson. "I thought I hired you for that job?"

"Yes, suh, Mr. Johnson, Ah knows you did, but Ah sublet the contract for three dollars."

"You sublet the contract for three dollars?" remonstrated Mr. Johnson. "But I paid you only two dollars and fifty cents. You are losing money on this job."

"Yes, suh; yes, suh," Sambo replied, "Ah knows Ah is, but it's worth somethin' to be boss!"

MR. IRIE L. SMITH

Mr. Irie L. Smith, age 67, of Clanton Route 3, died suddenly at the residence Sunday, March 8th, at 10:00 a.m. Funeral services were held from Highland Church at 11:00 a.m., Tuesday, March 10th, conducted by Rev. Homer Carroll and Rev. E. I. Deason. Interment in Highland cemetery.

"HIGH GRADING" TIMBER

Clanton Kiwanis To Observe 25th Year

The Clanton Kiwanis Club is 25 years old. This fact is the theme of a special anniversary program in its regular weekly meeting next Thursday night at the Chilton County High School lunchroom.

All past presidents are invited guests of the Club for this affair. Arrangements have been made for a very special program outlining the highlights of the work done during these 25 years. Of the 27 presidents that have served during the 25 years, four are deceased. Indications are that 21 of the remaining 23 past presidents will be in attendance. Following is a list of past presidents in the order in which they served:

Cohen E. Stapp, W. Mack Wyatt, John L. Hollis, Dr. V. J. Gragg (D), Luther E. Little, J. Mell Martin (D), Erle Thomas, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, John W. Pant (D), Patterson Hicks, John C. Pake, O. M. Webb, T. Horton Walker and Burton Mullins, Dr. J. E. Edgar, Hollis Jackson, Pat Smith and John DeRamus, Delos P. Culp, Roy Roper, Henry Adair (D), Carlisle Miller, Leo Thompson, R. C. Williams, H. W. Yeager and H. C. Arnold.

JOHN KNIGHT, PIANIST, WELL RECEIVED HERE

The Chilton County Community Concert Association presented John Knight, brilliant young Canadian pianist, at its second concert of the season on Thursday night, March 5th, at the auditorium of the First Baptist Church.

The agile, sensitive fingers of John Knight, his intent bearing, his eloquent keyboard technique, gave commanding character, to this unsurpassed performance. The young Canadian Artist held his deeply appreciative audience in breathless silence. They listened intently to his magic touch, and responded resoundingly with applause that would have reflected credit to a much larger, but not more appreciative audience, and the brilliant young pianist gratified this appreciation by gracious response to repeated curtain calls. This in addition to an already well rounded programme, with wide inclusion of variations.

Among Columbia Artists Management, Mr. Knight is rated as a pianist of brilliant achievement and rich promise.

It is a proud moment in the lives of the members of the Chilton County Community Concert Association, who make possible the cultural and worthwhile as a Community project, giving breathless anticipation, as a public stimulus to the freshness and charm of our youth, by sponsoring this splendid series of concert artists.

To Receive Awards In Essay Contest

Betty Scott of Jemison and Shirley Peterson of Thorsby won the County honors in the American Legion Essay Contest recently.

The two young ladies will receive their awards at a meeting to be held at the Jemison High School, at 10 o'clock a.m., Friday morning, March 13th. They will now go on to compete in the District Contest.

CURRENT POPULATION SURVEY TO BE TAKEN WEEK OF MARCH 15

The Current Population Survey will be conducted in this area during the week of March 15, according to Mary G. Auburtin, District Supervisor of the U. S. Census Bureau Office in Clanton.

The Current Population Survey, taken monthly here and in 67 other areas throughout the country, provides up-to-date national figures on employment and unemployment. This information is used by business and government in the study of current labor force problems.

Mrs. Auburtin pointed out that information furnished to the Census Bureau concerning individual persons is accorded confidential treatment under the law and only statistical totals are published.

More Flu Cases This Week

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Health Department says that 6,017 cases of influenza were reported last week, compared to 4,911 cases for the preceding week. The peak of influenza reporting was reached during the week ending January 3, when 18,168 cases were counted.

Marshall County had 2,225 cases in last week's total. Baldwin reported 649; Limestone 506; Jefferson 473; Covington 265; Sumter 205; DeKalb 167; Lowndes 136; Calhoun 123; and Pike 101.

DRAFT CALL UP

The Army issued a draft call for 53,000 men in April, the same number called for March. These drafts represents larger manpower requirements, though the Army is the only one of the three services still using the draft as a manpower source.

Verbena Has Chapter National Beta Club

A local chapter of the National Beta Club, a service-leadership organization for high-school students of America, was established on Tuesday, March 3, at Verbena High School, according to H. G. Daniel, Principal.

The National Beta Club, with over 1925 local chapters and approximately 49,000 members in high schools of 16 states, is now in its twentieth year, and has been in continuous operation since 1933.

Objectives of this non-secret, leadership-service organization are: To encourage effort, to promote character, to stimulate achievement among its members, and to encourage and assist students to continue their education after high-school graduation.

The local organization is composed of the following students who have fulfilled the requirements necessary for membership in the National Beta Club:

Comer To Head Safety Conference

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has named Hugh Comer, Alabama Industrialist, to head the state safety conference here April 30-May 1.

Persons and J. O. Speed, president of the Alabama Safety Council, made a joint announcement of the appointment.

Comer said a united and concerted street and highway safety effort by citizens of Alabama is "probably our greatest single need in Alabama."

Governor Persons called for the meeting last month in a proclamation which said Alabama's traffic record is "one of the poorest in the nation." He asked "public officials and private citizens of our state who desire to attack this serious problem" to meet at the safety conference, April 30-May 1.

The conference will be organized by the Alabama Safety Commission, an administrative safety set up last year and headed by State Conservation Director Earl McGowin. McGowin said that Alabama's 1952 traffic casualty record included 775 dead, 27,000 injured, and an economic loss of about $74,000,000.

DAVIS - HEADLEY

Tax Collections Ahead Of 1952

Montgomery, Ala. — State Revenue Collectr Joe Edwards says Alabama tax collections are still running ahead of last year's, but seem to be leveling off.

Edwards says February receipts totaled $10,163,556, compared with $9,994,577 in the corresponding month in 1952. That is an increase of only 1.69 per cent.

For the first five months of the fiscal year, which began last October 1, however, the margin is wider. Collections from October, 1952, through February, 1953, amounted to $56,611,330, a 9.08 per cent gain over the $51,897,519 taken in during the first five months of the previous fiscal year.

The sales tax led all others in revenue intake last month, bringing $4,365,400 into the treasury compared with $4,111,904 in the previous February. It's companion use tax accounted for $437,953, a $140,091 increase.

Among the other major revenue producers, the franchise tax brought in $106,913 last month, compared to $112,873 a year ago; gasoline tax, $3,302,386 in February, compared to $3,130,789, a year ago; Income tax, $864,862 last month, compared to $893,146, and tobacco tax, $605,395, compared to $600,821 a year ago.

1,750 Chilton County Youths Celebrating 4-H Club Week

A group of 4-H Council members met at the County Agent's office Saturday morning at 9:00 a.m. to offieially begin celebrating National 4-H Club Week. John D. Sellers, Assistant County Agent in charge of 4-H Club Work, discussed with the group means by which the celebration would begin and continue throughout the following week. It was decided that the members would divide into small groups and spread out over town to distribute posters and 4-H Club pins. The posters will remain on display until March 14th. The several hundred 4-H pins given to merchants, bankers and friends of 4-H Club members were tokens of appreciation.

At this time, in behalf of the 1,750 4-H Club members and the Chilton County Extension personnel, I wish to thank the many friends of 4-H Club members for their support and encouragement throughout the past year.

Millions are doing it!

Yes, millions of 4-H Club boys and girls—2,005,000 to be exact—in 87,000 local clubs all over the U.S. are doing what it takes to fit themselves as better farmers, homemakers, and citizens

And they are taking time out March 7-15 — National 4-H Club Week — to pledge again their Heads, Hearts, Hands, and Health in unity for greater service to home, club, community, and country.

Alabama's 27,294 4-H members in 2876 local clubs — far the biggest rural youth organization in this state will take part in the national celebration. With their county extension workers who direct the 4-H program and their local adult leaders, the farm boys and girls will renew their pledge to "Make the Best Better."

The nation's 4-H boys and girls are doing millions of things these days in their local organizations. Included in their activities are demonstrations of scientific methods in crop and livestock production, preparing the family food supply, improving the home, and scores of other projects. They hold rallies to inform parents and other young people about 4-H and help their clubs do useful things in the community.

During the week of celebration 4-H members everywhere will have "open house" meetings, prepare exhibits and displays, speak at schools, service clubs, and churches, and study their own home and community needs. While they are making ready for another productive year, the nation will honor their achievements of 1952.

National 4-H Club Week will help the organization explain to the public how its members—the leaders of tomorrow—learn youngsters enrolled in nearly 3000 clubs. Each one carries at least one project in achievement, baking, canning, citizenship, clothing, dairying, dairy foods, electricity, safety, field crops, food preparation, forestry, frozen foods, gardening, health, home improvement, leadership, meat animal, poultry, recreation and rural arts, soil and water conserpation, tractor maintenance, or entomology.

The 4-H Club project is the hub of the wheel. The wheel has grown from a group with 352 members its first year to a tremendous organization full of outstanding youngsters. In 1952 over 3000 boys and girls received medals for doing outstanding project work and 57 top state winners won out-of-state trips.

The 4-H Club boys and girls enjoy showing their projects. Last year 1,311 4-H'ers exhibited their dairy animals in the dairy shows, 978 entered the beef cattle shows, 2,720 entered poultry shows, and 211 entered the hog shows.

In addition to 4-H Club project work, 4-H members participated in many other activities. Sixty-six counties held rallies at which a total of 57,777 members and others were present. Sixty-eight county 4-H camps were held, with 5,045 members attending. A total of 14,572 4-H'ers attended 602 picnics. Twenty-five hundred and eighty-nine neighboring meetings were held, 1205 clubs observed Rural Life Sunday, 232 county 4-H Club council meetings were held with 19,862 officers attending, and 1,232 clubs held special safety programs.

Twenty-five counties held special training meetings for adult volunteer 4-H Club leaders. Six hundred forty-two pig chain members placed a pig that they had raised with a new 4-H Club member. One hundred nineteen 4-H tractor maintenance clinics were held with 3,305 4-H'ers attending. The 4-H'ers planted a total of 1,111,808 pine seedlings in 1952.

Dr. Edgar Announces Wildlife Week, March 15th

The Chilton County Wildlife Conservation Club will join the Alabama Wildlife Federation and organized conservationists throughout the country in observing National Wildlife Week from March 15 through 21, according to Dr. J. E. Edgar, president.

National Wildlife Week has been sponsored each year since 1938 by the National Wildlife Federation, Washington, D.C., a non-profit organization, in conjunction with its affiliates in 45 states. The Federation and affiliates represent more than 4,000,000 sportsmen and conservationists.

Purpose of the Week is to draw attention nationally to the need for united action in conserving and restoring America's dwindling natural resources, Dr. Edgar said.

The Alabama Wildlife Federation is a statewide league of local conservation chapters or sportsmen's clubs. The Chilton County Club is the local affiliate.

Each year the Federation chooses a threatened bird or mammal as the symbol of wasted resources, Dr. Edgar said. This year's symbol is the Prairie Chicken, or Pinnated Grouse, once numerous from the Appalachians to the Rockies but now reduced to scattered remnants in about 15 Midwestern and Southwestern states.

In an effort to protect the colorful bird from disappearance, the Federation has named a committee of experts to the National Committee on the Prairie Chicken, headed by R. A. Brown, Jr., attorney of St. Joseph, Mo., and former chairman of the Missouri Conservation Commission.

In pointing to the need for united action in facing the nation's conservation problems, Dr. Edgar said that organization has accomplished many worthwhile things in the last 15 years.

"For example, legislative milestones like the Pittman-Robertson federal-aid game law of 1936 and the similar Dingell-Johnson fisheries act of 1950 were passed by Congress only because there was national organized support behind them.

"In addition to cooperating in conservation matters of statewide and national interest, local clubs carry on many projects to improve wildlife conditions, to better hunting and fishing, to encourage soil conservation and good farming. Many clubs do special work with 4-H clubs and other youth groups in a program of conservation activities."

The National Wildlife Federation is financed through the sale of sheets of wildlife stamps in color, issued annually. The state organization, like the local club, is financed by membership dues.

National chairman for the Week is Ed Dodd, popular wildlife artist and conservation leader. Author of the outdoors adventure strip, "Mark Trail," Mr. Dodd also is a lecturer and radio personality.

JOBS HIT PEAK

Employment in the United States reached its highest level in the history of the country, for a January, last month. Figures show 60,524,000 employed persons. The number of unemployed during the month was set at 1,892,000.

COW HAS QUINTS

Fairview, Mont. — Veterinarian D. C. Baker recently reported that a short-horn cow gave birth to five calves—a fee at which he described as "one in a million." Three of the calves were heifers and two were bulls. One of the calves died.

O. N. Esco Jr., Is Promoted To Capt.

O. N. Esco, Jr., son of O. N. Esco, Sr., of Clanton, has been promoted to the rank of Captain. He is stationed in Alaska.

Capt. Esco, who is only 25 years old, joined the army when he finished high school at Birmingham. He served at Camp Shelby, Fort McClellan, Fort Benning, on Guam, and at Fort Bliss, before going to Alaska.

He has his wife and small son with him.

Bids To Be Opened On Gadsden Bridge

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Highway Department has announced that bids for initial work on a multi-million dollar bridge and approaches at Gadsden will be opened at the city jail there on March 27.

The bids will be opened at the Gadsden City Hall, at 10:00 a.m., on March 27.

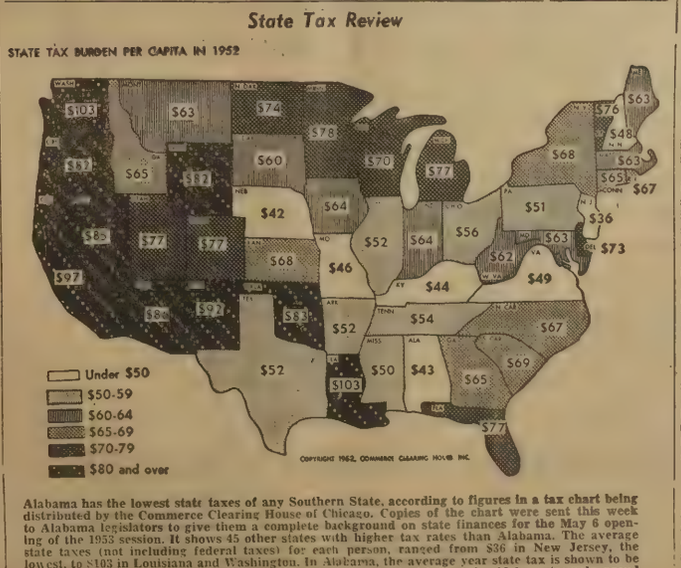
Notice by the Highway Department called for bids on .378 mile bridge over the Coosa River and Lake Street and grading approaches. Officials said this project would give a usable bridge but not a complete job. Other work will be completed at a later date, it was said. The Highway Department's bid notice calls for the present project to be completed in 300 working days.

U. S. GETS REFUND

The L. B. Smith, Inc., industrial firm has refunded $1,500,000 to the Federal Government. A spokesman says the money was saved by reducing the cost of repairing 1,500 trucks and savings made in parts. The refund was entirely voluntary on the part of the private company.

State Tax Review

STATE TAX BURDEN PER CAPITA IN 1952



Alabama has the lowest state taxes of any Southern State, according to figures in a tax chart being distributed by the Commerce Clearing House of Chicago. Copies of the chart were sent this week to Alabama legislators to give them a complete background on state finances for the May 6 opening of the 1953 session. It shows 45 other states with higher tax rates than Alabama. The average state taxes (not including federal taxes) for each person, ranged from $36 in New Jersey, the lowest, to $103 in Louisiana and Washington. In Alabama, the average year state tax is shown to be $43 for each person. Governor Persons said he fel. that the legislature should be extremely proud of these figures. 4-H Club Started Out As Corn Clubs In 1908

Forward with 4-H

In the fall of 1908 Alabama farm boys had their first taste of what later was to become the 4-H Club program. That year the Corn Clubs were born.

A representative of the U. S. Department of Agriculture came from Washington and began work with superintendents of education in Calhoun and Tuscaloosa counties. The following year the School of Agriculture was established at API to take the lead in cooperative demonstration work.

The main objective of the original Corn Clubs was to organize boys under 21 into clubs, increase the production of corn, improve seed corn, aid in better methods of cultivation and more intelligent use of fertilizers, increase interest of farm boys in agriculture, and encourage them to study agriculture and remain on the farm.

Almost as soon as the Corn Clubs were in existence, the contests began. Prizes offered in 1910 were $100 and five lesser amounts in gold, a brand new buggy, bicycle, two horse plow, gun, suit of clothes, corn planter, pair of registered pigs, pair of chickens and a banquet for all members.

Girls Organized—

By 1911 girls on the farm were asking that clubs be organized for them. To satisfy this demand, the first Canning Club was organized. One of the first members canned 2,046 pounds of tomatoes besides many jars of preserves, pickles and other products.

After three more years of separate activity, the two organizations were combined into the 4-H Club. Today Alabama has 127,294 youngsters enrolled in nearly 3,000 clubs. Chilton County has enrolled at this time 1,750.

4-H'ers Taking Role In Dairy Program

Producing and selling milk is another way to supplement the farm income. 4-H Club members are playing a big role in making the dairy program a success here in Chilton County. They also have a slight advantage over the adult farmers. The Carnation Milk Company will supply milk cans free of charge for one year to any boy or girl desiring to become a junior Dairyman. The milk is handled separately, strained into the cans supplied for the Junior Dairymen and shipped to the Carnation Plant in Dadeville, Ala. In return a check is mailed directly to the 4-H member. This is one of the many projects being carried on with great enthusiasm.

If you are between the ages of ten and twenty-one, and desire to become a Junior Dairyman see your adult leader or the assistant county agent in charge of club work.

Soldier Fly Larva On Bluegill's Menu

Auburn, Ala. — One of the newer baits that has proved effective in catching bluegills is the soldier fly larva.

Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, says that while all attempts at raising this grub have not been successful, it would be worth while for anglers to give it a try.

First, put a four or five-inch layer of laying mash in a five-gallon lard can. Add enough water to make a thick soup. Cover the can with an old window screen and keep it outdoors in shade well away from the house.

"Within a week or two the fermented mash will probably attract female soldier flies, which usually lay masses of eggs on the window screen," reveals the specialist. "The eggs will fall into the mash and develop into maggots about three-fourths of an inch in length. At this time, add a few more handfuls of mash. It should be kept damp but not wet because this would speed the development of larvae into pupae, which are not suitable for fishing purposes."

Kennamer urges fisherman to hook two of the larvae through the lower end of a hook and see how well bluegills like 'em

NATIONAL 4-H CLUB THEME

"Working together for world understanding," is the theme for National 4-H Club Week, March 7-15.

WHAT CATTLE GRUBS DO

Cattle grubs steal 12,000,000 pounds of meat and spoil about $3,000,000 worth of hides in the U.S. each year.

Get Full Benefit From Fertilizers

The 1,340,000 tons of commercial fertilizers farmers bought in 1952 represent a great item in the cost of producing crops and pastures.

"However," declares S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist, "no other investment gives better returns than fertilizer when it is properly used. Therefore, farmers should make every effort to correct any unfavorable soil conditions in order to get full benefit from fertilizers."

To accmplish this goal, Doughty urges farmers to use a good system of terraces with proper outlets, contour cultivation, and crop rotations that include full use of sod crops to protect and improve the soil.

A Check Up May Mean Honor Roll For Pupil

Auburn, Ala. — To be "smart" in their studies, school children need to see and hear well.

Elta Majors, API Extension child care specialist, points out that a child who has poor teeth, faulty vision, or poor hearing is handicapped greatly. Most often the child will not reveal these handicaps except to the family doctor who is trained to recognize them.

Miss Majors stresses the fact that a physical check-up for the young scholar will help him go to school with enthusiasm and make better grades.

NATIONAL 4-H CLUB WEEK MARCH 7 thru 15

Wherever you see a 4-H Gate Sign denoting the home of a 4-H Club Member, there you will find a conscientious citizen — one who has dedicated Head, Heart, Hands, and Health to Club, Community, and Country. During 4-H Club Week, March 7-15, we salute these boys and girls, men and women, who are working together for the betterment of America.

4-H Club members know the pride of ownership. . . which in turn develops a growing sense of adult responsibility. To a youth organization of such outstanding worth, our sincere compliments — during 4-H Club Week, March 7-15, and throughout the year.

DURING 4-H CLUB WEEK, MARCH 7-15, WE'RE HAPPY TO EXTEND HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR LOCAL 4-H CLUB MEMBERS AND THEIR LEADERS.

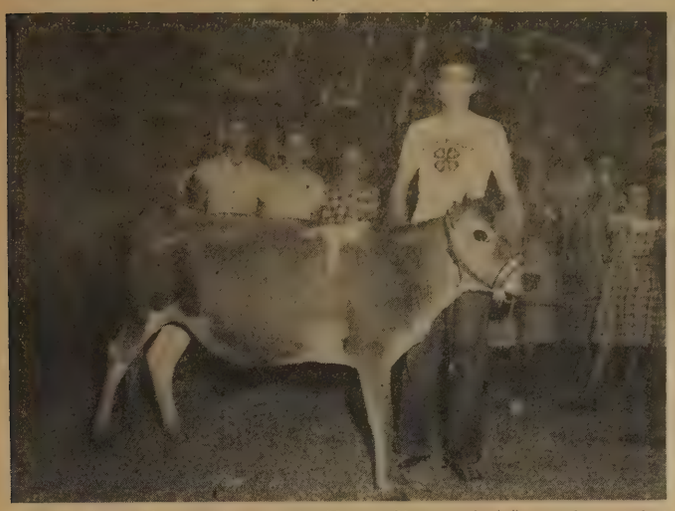
Chilton's Junior Dairymen Raise Prize Cattle



REUBEN HAYES, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vasteen Hayes, of Thorsby, Ala., Rt. 1, was the proud winner of the heifer he holds. Reuben won the heifer as the results of the outstanding job he did of fitting and showing his own heifer at the last County Dairy Show.

A similar award was made to Jimmy Kincaid of Thorsby in the 1951 County Dairy Show; and in 1950 to Eddie Higginbotham of Maplesville, Ala. All three of the boys are listed as Junior Dairymen and will probably look to dairy products as a means to improve living conditions at manhood.

Other Junior Dairymen in the county are: Curtis Baker, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Baker; Ellis Burgess, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt B. Burgess; Billie Sue Burgess, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt B. Burgess; Jimy Kincaid, Thorsby, Ala., Rt. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Kincaid; James A. McGee, Billingsley, Ala., Rt. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McGee; Billy Mims, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Mims; J. A. Lansford, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Lansford; Wesley Smith, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer W. Smith; Clyde Edwards, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 2, son of Mrs. Marzelle Edwards; Tommy Edwards, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 2, son of Mrs. Marzelle Edwards; Claud Carrol, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carroll; Dale Carroll, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Carroll; James C. Blalock, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Blalock; Henry Moore, Verbena, Ala., Rt. 1, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Moore.

This is what one young 4-H'er wrote on "What Citizenship Means to Me":

I'm learning the meaning of citizenship by adventure. . .an adventure with a Holstein calf, which my father gave me for a 4-H Project. I'm trying to do a good job of raising her, so I can make money without being a nuisance in my home or neighborhood.

I have been told how important it is to keep her from getting loose on the neighbors' fields or the public road. My parents call that "civic responsibility."

I try to learn new ways of tying her for grazing. This is "initiative." Giving her plenty of feed, bedding, and exercise develops "industry and dependability." Caring for my sisters' calves is "cooperation" or "helpfulness."

Grooming my calf regularly and training her to pose for Show Day is what my 4-H leader calls "noticing details." And finishing my calf chores in time for school is "promptness."

With the adventure I have caring for my calf, "citizenship" doesn't look like such a forbidding word after all!

During 4-H Club Week, March 7-15, we're happy to extend hearty congratulations to our local 4-H Club members and their leaders.

If you cover door hinges, locks, etc., with vaseline before painting the wodwork, the paint can be wiped off easily if it gets on these fixtures.

What To Do Before Underpinning Home

Auburn, Ala. — There are several trouble-preventing jobs to be done before underpinning a home.

Bill Cox, API Extension specialist in farm buildings, says all piers should be checked and the floors leveled. Also, all wooden props should be removed, and there should be no wooden supports connecting the house with the ground. This will help prevent termites from working their way up into sills and girders.

Cox states that slate is the recommended material for shims on piers when leveling floors, but heart pine shingles will serve the purpose.

Freezing A Whole, Ready-To-Cook Bird

Properly packaged poultry can be frozen either whole or cut up, says Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist.

She states that roasting birds are usually frozen whole. Younger chickens or turkeys take up less space and are more convenient to use if split in half for broiling or disjointed for frying and then compactly packaged.

'Most families prefer to freeze poultry in ready-to-cook form," finds the specialist. "In other words they want birds to be fully drawn, thoroughly cleaned inside and out, with pinfeathers and oil sac removed."

To package a whole ready-to-cook bird for freezing, Miss Curtis says to tie legs and wings close to the body, then place bird in a film bag or wrap in a sturdy sheet of moisture-vapor-resistant film or metal foil. Giblets should be packaged separately, for freezing and held only a limited time, not longer than three months.

More Beef At Better Market Prices On The Market

Food buyers are finding larger supplies of beef on meat counters at prices well below those of a year earlier, according to A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist.

Those who work with 4-H boys and girls look to America's future with confidence. For they know that here are more than two million young people whose daily lives uphold the highest ideals of character and good citizenship. During 4-H Club Week, March 7-15th, we congratulate all 4-H Club members for their adherence to the principles that have made our country strong.

MAN FROM MARS? . . . Developed by the U. S. navy for high-flying rocket or jet aircraft pilots, this new pressure suit protects pilot at 100,000 feet and despite its bulk is very flexible.

In 1950 Chilton County Bankers Association sponsored a mail box and home improvement program. Under this program, each 4-H Club member was awarded an attractive 4-H metal sign with the inscription "A 4-H Club Member Lives Here," when he had repaired, painted and printed the name and initials of the head of the family on the mailbox and cleaned up the yards around the house. Approximately 600 signs were awarded throughout the county as a result of the Banks interest and cooperation in 4-H activities.

Mr. Grady Heflin, President of the Peoples Savings Bank, saw a need for extending the mail box improvement program in 1952. He voluntarily, without any form of soliciting, presented the $50.00 to the 4-H County Council in behalf of the Peoples Savings Bank, to extend the mail box improvement program.

Again in 1952, the County Bankers Association, J. Archie Ogburn, chairman, purchased "County-Line 4-H Club Welcome Signs" to be placed on the County Line of all black-top roads entering Chilton County. This is a very worthwhile deed for recognizing the many 4-H Club members leaders and friends of the County.

A glance backward would reveal a large number of special projects sponsored by the County Bankers' Association.

Noted Choir To Sing At Thorsby Institute Friday

On Friday evening, March 13, at 8:00 p.m. the Howard College A Cappella Choir, under direction of George W. Koski will sing a concert at Thorsby Institute, under sponsorship of Senior Class. The proceeds of the concert will go toward buying the Senior class gift for the institution.

The choir will sing a fourteen number program from memory with compositions ranging from sixteenth century to conteporary writers. One of the unusual numbers on the program is one that the choir world-premiered on its recent tour through Alabama and Georgia—the new arrangement of "Amazing Grace," by Dr. Charles Bryan, eminent authority on American folk music, who is now on the staff of Indian Springs School, Birmingham.

The choir is gaining a South-wide reputation having recently been invited to sing on the program of the Southern Music Educators Conference in Chattanooga, Tenn., on April 13. This is to be a meeting of all music teachers from eleven southern states. The choir will also give a thirty minute concert at the opening general session of Alabama Education Association in Birmingham on March 26. They have also been invited to sing at the National Southern Baptist Convention in May.

Tickets will be available at Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co., Alred-Wright Drug Co., Chilton County High School (Miss Marguerite Perry), Wyatt Drug Co., (Thorsby), or any Senior student of Thorsby Institute.

Dr. Blanche Dow To Speak March 13-14

BLANCHE H. DOW

Anniston, Ala. — Dr. Blanche H. west Central Region of the American Association of University Women, will be principal Speaker at the 1953 Alabama AAUW convention in Anniston March 13 and 14.

Dr. Dow, who is president of Cottey College at Nevada, Mo., will give the opening address at the Friday night banquet. She will also participate in a breakfast roundtable discussion Saturday, and will sum up the convention reports Saturday noon.

Dr. Dow is author of the idea of coordinating the programs of the six AAUW committees toward one main emphasis. The Alabama Division is the first in the nation to select education for the coordinated emphasis of the education, fellowship, international relations, legislative, social studies and status of women commitees.

The theme of the convention will be the progress Alabama branches have made in coordinating their programs.

Dr. Dow was chairman of the department of foreign languages at Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at Maryville before her appointment as Cottey College president in 1949. She has served as Missouri Division president of AAUW, and has been a member of the national committee on standards and recognition of coleges and universities.

She is the author of "The Varying Attitude Toward Women in French Literature of the Fifteenth Century." Dr. Dow is a graduate of Smith College, and holds a Ph.D. degree from Columbia University. She has also studied at the University of Paris, France, and has done special work for UNESCO in Europe.

Mrs. Franklin C. Sewell is president of the Anniston branch, and Miss Mary Elizabeth 'Lloyd is general convention chairman.

Mrs. R. E. Tidwell, state president from Tuscaloosa, will conduct executive committee and board of directors meetings Friday afternoon before the convention opens.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bosworth and Johnny spent Sunday in McKenzie, Ala., where they visited with her sister and family.

Quite a number of Thorsby people enjoyed the Community Concert program at Clanton last Thursday night when they heard John Knight, a pianist. He presented a wonderful program which thrilled his audience.

Don't you simply thrill at the sight of our peach and plum orchards just now? It is certainly a beautiful sight. When seen from the hilltops such as the old Berlin place and the Pete Franklin place, it presents a view one could never ture of seeing. We don't believe that a lovelier scene could be found anywhere.

No antidote is necessary. Chilean Nitrate is non-acid forming.

Rich in sodium and minor elements. Chilean Nitrate is rich in beneficial sodium that makes a stronger, deeper root system — improves crop health, vigor and nutritive value. It also contains small quantities of essential minor elements.

Noted for all-round efficiency. Quick-acting 100% nitrate nitrogen makes rapid, sturdy growth. Its 26% sodium content acts like potash when necessary and helps to increase the supply of available phosphate in the soil.

Helps maintain productivity of your land. When used consistently in a sound farming program, Chilean Nitrate builds up fertility, increases efficiency.

4-H Member Wins Heifer

JOAN SMITHERMAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Smitherman of Maplesville is being presented a Registered Jersey heifer by Russell Shelton, owner and operator of the Shelton Truck and Tractor Company in Clanton. Based on project records, Joan was selected as the most outstanding 4-H Club member in the County for the school year of 1951 and 1952.

Mr. Shelton has also made plans to give another Registered Jersey heifer of equal value for the most outstanding 4-H Club member for 1952 and 1953.

These heifers are being presented with the understanding that the first heifer calf would be turned back to the 4-H County Council for other awards in connection with 4-H Club work.

Mr. Shelton is to be commended for his interest in 4-H Club members and their progress in farming and improved living conditions.

Dixie Division Being Reorganized

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama units of the famed 31st Dixie Division of National Guard are being reorganized, with the first groups set up in Geneva, Samson, Troy, Elba, and Enterprise.

Service Battery of the 933rd Field Artillery Battalion, Samson, and Battery B of the 933rd, Geneva, were the first to be given federal recognition, following recent discharges from federal service after two years.

Mayors of the two cities were present at the post drill to greet the returning units. Under the reorganization program the 31st National Guard Division NOW will be made up of companies units to the regular 31st, which is still on federal duty.

Alabama and Mississippi troops of the renamed infantry organization also served in World War II and World War I. Some components of the Dixie Division were born before the War Between the States, and have seen action in every conflict since that.

SCREWDRIVER OUTS FIRE

Los Angeles — Six fire companies roared to the Los Angeles County Hall of Records and firemen climbed up to the eleventh floor. There they found the cause of a smoking flourescent lamp. One screwdriver was all that was needed to dismantle the fixture and put out the 'fire.'

Dr. J. G. Hutchinson Preaching Sermons On Baptist Doctrine

Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Clanton, is preaching a series of sermons in the Sunday evening services on Baptist doctrines. Dr. Hutchinson is presenting this series because of many requests which have come to him regarding our beliefs. These messages will be based on New Testament doctrines and the church as established in the New Testament.

It is important in this day when there is so much unbelief in the world and so many who take the position that doctrines are not important that we restate our doctrinal position and proclaim our beliefs as they are set forth in the New Testament. Our doctrinal position is this. We believe and accept the New Testament as our only rule of faith and order. If it is taught in the New Testament, we believe it. If it is not taught in the New Testament, we do not believe it. We practice the doctrines of the New Testament without adding to them or taking away from them.

spoke. They were the dinners during the preliminary. There were five winners. They were: Annie Belle Bethel, first place ($10.00); Charles Shelton, second place ($7.00); Eugene Singleterry, third place ($5.00); Yvonne Wilson, fourth place ($3.00) and Mary Louise Gunn, fifth place ($2.00).

The judges were Rev. and Mrs. M. C. Cleveland and Rev. Devaughan. Rev. Cleveland is an instructor in the theological department at Selma University. Rev. DeVaughan is an instructor of Sociology at Selma University.

The honorable mentions for the entire contest were: Nina Faye Wilson, William Pickens, Naomi Polk, Nathaniel Pasley, Virginia Singleterry, Henry Shelton, Mattie Gardner, Gladys Bolding, Earnestine Golson.

The award that all the seniors received was a tea, which was enjoyed by all.

The seniors wish to thank all of the churches and organizations that had a part in contributing funds for the support of the Oratorical Contest.

More than 69,000 Rural Telephones

Last year we added more than 69,000 rural telephones. There are now over a half million telephones in rural Dixie served by Southern Bell. This year approximately 73,000 more will be added.

These new telephones are bringing increased efficiency of operation for Southern farmers, and closer contacts and better living for farm families.

Expanding and improving rural service is a big and costly job. But we're working hard at it because we know how important the telephone is to the South's overall prosperity.

The happiest life is to be found around a contented fireside where a family lives at peace with itself, its fellowmen, and God.

Those who sleep in foxholes in Korea find it hard to understand some of their fellow Americans back home.

No amount of ridicule, boasting or bluff changes the facts. Get them, and you will understand the news of the day, and gain a clear picture of events.

Pretty soon the young things will be dazzling you with new, airy spring clothes—and a young man's fancy will get around to the basic facts of life.

President Eisenhower, it should be remembered, is a beginner in civilian administration, and enjoys only a paper margin in the Senate. He is not in position to push anything controversial through Congress.

ON WONDER CURES

From time to time, the average citizen is confronted with reports that some herb doctor, or wizzard of the arts, has cured cancer, polio or some serious heart diseases with a new or simple method. It is surprising how many Americans fall for these reports and seek out the so-called wizzard and pay large sums of money for miracle treatments.

The worst part of this susceptibility is that it sometimes prevents those taken in from being cured at all. Hope for some mysterious, simple cure has often led to postponement in seeking a specialist, who could have cured the disease if he had caught it in time. Not caught in time, the disease often proves fatal.

Those seriously sick should seek a thoroughly accredited doctor, or a specialist in the field concerned. There are no miracle cures, and no miracle-makers. The ignorant patient who lets himself believe in such is ruining his health or his pocketbook, or both.

A REAL JUMP BAND

One of the lighter problems of the day was revealed recently when Chief Warrant Officer John R. Charlesworth, of the 82nd Airborne Division, detailed the troubles of the 82nd Airborne Division's band. Most members of the band have already jumped as paratroopers, since the division is a paratroop division.

One might, therefore, call the outfit a real jump band, although the band does not figure in jumping plans, nor has it ever tested a mass jump, playing as its members descended. Nevertheless, the band has its problems these days, and Charlesworth says that in winter time, the brass instruments freeze up.

It would seem to us that a real jump band would keep the instruments hot enough to prevent freezing, but then we really wouldn't know. Anyhow, Mr. Charlesworth has mixed up an anti-freeze compound to make the instruments work. Tests have shown that the band can play for ten minutes at a time, using this concoction, at temperatures near zero.

We suggest that ten minutes is long enough for any band to play in zero weather, even if it is a real jump band.

Mr. Ben Tucker
Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Ben:

I want to congratulate you on seeing fit to give us two issues of the Chilton County News weekly instead of one, as in the past. For any Chilton Countian away from home, it let's them hear more often from home.

Mobile is one "big flower garden" this month during the azalea season. I believe they are more plentiful, and beautiful than ever before in their history. It is a wonderful feeling to open your front door and thousands of beautiful fuschia colored blooms nodding at you, and looking up the street every yard is a solid bloom.

We noticed in your February 27, issue one of our Mobile Association pastors will be in Clanton on March 15, conducting a revival at the West End Baptist Church.

I would like to insist that all of my Chilton County friends hear Dr. Bob Barker while he is there. He is one of the best men of God that I have ever heard, and can really preach the gospel.

We have had Dr. Barker at our church, the Calvary Baptist, conducting revival meetings, and have had him in our home to dine and fellowship, therefore, we have learned to love him dearly.

His fifteen minute program over radio station WALA is worth any one's time each morning at 6:15 which is, "Coffee With The Parson." He is indeed an inspiration to our family.

Yours truly,

MRS. GERTIE F. TOWNS.

Mr. R. M. Tucker, Editor
The Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. Tucker:

I have been requested by the mail clerk of APO 710 to inform you of my present address, which is:

2D Lt. John L. Hayman, Jr., AO 2235898, Detachment 29, 30th Weather Squadron, APO 970, in care Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

I've been a reader of the Chilton County News since I first learned to read at Jemison school some 16 years ago, but I'm afraid I never really learned to appreciate it until the last couple of months. I've been getting the paper regularly, and in Chunchon, Korea, it's about the best looking thing this Chilton County boy has seen.

I'll be looking forward to the future issues of the "News."

Sincerely,

JOHN HAYMAN.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Four-year-old boys are mighty big and brave most of the time, but even the bravest ones are sometimes a bit fearful of the dark.

The other night the four-year-old was playing in the living room when he decided he wanted a toy he had left in his bedroom. The bedroom was dark, very dark.

Knowing from past experience that I would admonish him not to be afraid and would remind him that God was with him, he approach me with:

"Mother, you go back there with me this time, and I'll let God go with me the next time."

I went.

This March wind howling around our house has been making our windows sound like the drum section of a high school band. I tried silencing the banking by forcing wads of old newspapers around the windows, but my plan didn't work. The paper trimming didn't look very attractive either.

The next door neighbor came over, took one look at my rattling windows and quieted them in a minute. She just got some golf tees and wedged them between the window and the frames. Now let the winds blow.

Our neighbor down the street had been wanting to paint his back steps, but he never could find a convenient time to get the painting done: Somebody was always going up or down the steps, and naturally, he couldn't afford to have folks tracking up his freshly painted steps.

Then he had a real inspiration. He painted every other step. When his first steps had dried, he painted the others. In this way, the steps could still be used without ruining the paint.

This same neighbor got his steps painted all right, but he spilled some of the paint on his concrete sidewalk while he was doing the job. Naturally his wife complained.

He got back into her good graces by removing the paint spots with a strong solution of lye water. He warns that the walk should be rinsed well with clear water after the unwanted paint has been removed.

The six-year-old, who hasn't even learned to read yet, says she is writing a book. She prints an assortment of letters on big sheets of paper and brings her manuscript to me to translate. At this point we're both a bit confused as to what her book is about. I've suggested (hopefully) that she draw illustrations for her story.

Something I never knew before: Ink stains on cotton material can be removed by rubbing them with a cut raw potato. After the stain has been well rubbed with potato, sponge it with water. I'll try to remember this the next time the four-year-old or the six-year-old "borrows" my fountain pen.

Speaking of potatoes, how long since you've prepared old-time scalloped potatoes? Our good cook neighbor says to put a layer of thinly sliced potatoes in a greased casserole, cover with a layer of sliced onion, sprinkle with salt and flour, dot with butter and repeat until casserole is filled. Pour about a cup of scalded milk over all, cover and bake at 375 degrees about an hour.

Sunday's Sermon

Accountable to God
Golden Text: Matthew 25: 40

In the lesson we find a picture of the supreme court of the universe in its last session. We hear pronounced the irrevocable sentence from which there is no appeal, or the blessed invitation to eternal beatitude.

Note the differences between this supreme court and our earthly courts. The infallible Judge sits on the throne, while the most distinguished judges of earth are mortal and limited. Infinite in wisdom and goodness and in all the qualities that should be found in a righteous Judge, God is above all judges the world has known.

No jury is impaneled, no witnesses summoned, and no sheriff awaits the outcome. For God can look into every heart and make up the verdict from what he sees written there. There is a striking difference between the supreme court and the earthly courts in the verdict and sentence imposed. "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these," the King shall say unto those on his left hand, "ye did it not to me."

Doers of all kinds of sinful deeds will be included on the left of the King, but their prime offense and the beginning of their downward career will be found in the fact that they had left undone the good things they ought to have done. So let us consider that leaving undone the good is the very essence of sin and the thing for which we must give account to God.

From the Newark Courier-Gazette, Newark, N. Y.:

Few realize how deeply the roots of agriculture are embedded in our life. George Washington was acclaimed the "first farmer of the land." Thomas Jefferson devoted much of his time to agricultural experiments, studying seeds, soils, fertilization and crop rotation, and was among the first to use contour plowing. That great early American statesman Daniel Webster operated a model farm at Marshfield, Massachusetts. Andrew Jackson, seventh president of the U. S. was a plantation owner and took great pride in the fact that the reaping machine was invented during his administration. And Lincoln, as every child knows experienced in full measure hard work on the land. He signed the Homestead Law in 1862, that gave thousands of American families the chance to settle on public domain land.

With this background and our great industrial development it is small wonder that with only seven per cent of the world's people and six per cent of its land, America is able to produce much more food per capita than other parts of the world. American industrial development has meant high production per farm worker through the use of modern farm equipment. In fact the history of farm mechanization is the history of America's brilliant victory over famine. If farmers everywhere could be blessed with the knowledge, the freedom and the machines so typical of America, the hunger and famine which have stalked mankind since time began would be only a hazy memory.

A much discussed phenomena of recent times has been the trend toward rural and suburban living.

As the Census Bureau breakdowns show, there has been a steady migration out of the great, congested centers of population and into the country.

All kinds of factors have played their part in this—rapid transportation, which makes commuting swift and easy, first class schools, the desire of people to spend their leisure hours in natural surroundings, and so on. One factor which hasn't been given as much notice as it may deserve is present-day rural and suburban retailing.

The small-community shopping center of today is a far cry from that of the past. It contains all kinds of stores — chains, independents, often branches of big-city department stores. Standards of display, sanitation and service are usually of the best. A wide and attractive selection of goods is offered. Competition, which is just as potent in the country as in the metropolis, sees to it that prices are held to their proper level.

This doesn't mean that our cities are withering away. Quite obviously they are a permanent part of the landscape, and many will keep right on growing. What it does mean is that representative progressive small-town and suburban areas are growing even faster, and that the face of the little community is undergoing a continuing and salutary change. The rural dweller gets the same kind of goods and service as his city cousin.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

EARACHE IN CHILDREN

Severe infections of the ear are not as common as they were before the advent of the sulpha drugs and the antibiotics. While the severity and frequency of these infections have been reduced, earache or pain in the ears still occurs.

Most earaches occur during childhood and even in the first few months of life. Infants and small children have shorter passages for infection to reach the ear. When they have colds, they do not blow the nose or clear the throat as adults do; and this may result in an accumulation of mucus in the nose and throat which may start an infection in the ear.

An infection of the ear begins when bacteria reach the middle ear. When this occurs the earache or pain is the warning signal. If the infection is not severe, there may be no abscess and the bacteria may be overcome before reaching the middle ear. The earache may not be severe and often subsides within twenty-four hours.

Earache in children may stem from causes other than infection. Nasal blocking due to the congestion brought on by a cold or large adenoids may be responsible. Blocking of the eustachian tube prevents air from reaching the middle ear during swallowing or yawning.

Because pain is a symptom and usually the forerunner or accompaniment to disease, earaches should not be ignored. Any earache may result in a hearing loss which, if not treated, may become permanent.

The sense of hearing is one of the most prized possessions, and every effort should be made to care for the organs making up the hearing mechanics. Don't ignore an earache, and don't probe into the ear to relieve distress or the sense of pressure. Let your physician decide the cause and method of alleviation.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said contract be spread on the minutes of this meeting.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

THE STANDARD FORM OF AGREEMENT BETWEEN OWNER AND ARCHITECT

THIS AGREEMENT, made the twelfth day of February in the year Nineteen Hundred and fifty-three by and between The Chilton County Board of Revenue & Control, Clanton, Alabama, hereinafter called the Owner, and Pearson, Tittle and Narrows, Architects, Montgomery, Alabama, hereinafter called the Architect.

WITNESSETH, that whereas the Owner intends to erect a Court House and Jail Building hereinafter called the Work.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Owner and the Architect, for the considerations hereinafter named, agree as follows: The Architect agrees to perform, for the above-named Work, professional services as hereinafter set forth. The Owner agrees to pay the Architect for such services a fee of five (5) percent of the cost of the Work, with other payments and reimbursements as hereinafter provided, the said percentage being hereinafter called the Basic Rate.

The parties hereto further agree to the following conditions:

1. The Architect's Services. The Architect's professional services consist of the necessary conferences, the preparation of preliminary studies, working drawings, specifications, large scale and full size detail drawings, for architectural, structual, plumbing, heating, electrical, and other mechanical work; assistance in the drafting of forms of proposals and contracts; the issuance of certificates of payment; the keeping of accounts, the general administration of the business and supervision of the Work.

2. Separate Contracts. The Basic Rate applies to work let under a single contract. For any portions of the Work let under separate contracts, on account of extra service thereby required, the rate shall be four per cent greater, and if substantially all the Work is so let the higher rate shall apply to the entire Work; but there shall be no such increase on the plumbing, heating, electrical and other mechanical work or on any contracts in connection with which the Owner reimburses special consultants' fees to the Architect, or for articles not designed by the Architect but purchased under his direction.

3. Extra Services and Special Cases. If the Architect is caused extra drafting or other expense due to changes by the Owner, or due to the delinquency or insolvency of the Owner or Contractor, or as a result damage by fire, he shall be equitably paid for such extra expense and the service involved. Work let on any cost-plus basis shall be the subject of a special charge in accord with the special service required. If any work designed or specified by the Architect is abandoned or suspended, in whole or in part, the Architect is to be paid for the service rendered on account of it.

4. Payments. Payments to the Architect on account of his fee shall be made as follows, subject to the provisions of Article 3: Upon completion of the preliminary studies, a sum equal to 25% of the basic rate computed upon a reasonable estimated cost. During the period of preparation of specifications and general working drawings monthly payments aggregating at the completion thereof a sum sufficient to increase payments to 75% of the rate or rates of commission arising from this agreement, computed upon a reasonable cost estimated on such completed specifications and drawings, or if bids have been received, then computed upon the lowest bona fide bid or bids. From time to time during the execution of work and in proportion to the amount of service rendered by the Architect, payments shall be made until the aggregate of all payments made on account of the fee under this Article, but not including any covered by the provisions of Article 3, shall be a sum equal to the rate or rates of commission arising from this agreement, computed upon the final cost of the Work. Payments to the Architect, other than those on his fee fall due from time to time as his work is done or as costs are incurred. No deductions shall be made from the Architect's fee on account of penalty, liquidated damages, or other sums withheld from payments to contractors.

5. Surveys, Etc. The Owner shall, so far as the work under this agreement may require, furnish the Architect with the following information: A complete and accurate legal description of the building site, giving the lines of streets, pavements, and adjoining properties; the rights, restrictions, easements, boundaries, and full information as to sewer, water, gas and electrical service.

6. Supervision of the Work. The Architect will endeavor by general supervision to guard the Owner against defects and deficiencies in the work of contractors, but he does not guarantee the performance of their contracts. The Architect, or his representative, will furnish supervision each day during construction when types of work are going which are to be concealed, and at such times as he determines necessary for the satisfactory completion of project.

7. Preliminary Estimates. When requested to do so, the Architect will furnish preliminary estimates on the cost of the Work, but he does not guarantee such estimates.

8. Definition of the Cost of the Work. The cost of the Work, as herein referred to, means the cost to the Owner, but such cost shall not include any Architect's or Engineer's or Special Consultants' fees or reimbursements, or the cost of a clerk-of-the-works. When labor or material is furnished by the Owner below its market cost the cost of the work shall be computed upon such market cost.

9. Ownership of Documents. Drawings and specifications as instruments of service are the property of the Architect whether the work for which they are made be executed or not, and are not to be used on other work except by agreement with the Architect.

10. Successors and Assignments. The Owner and the Architect, each binds himself, his partners, successors, legal representatives, and assigns to the other party to this agreement, and to the partners, successors, legal representatives and assigns of such other party in respect of all covenants of this agreement. Except as above, neither the owner nor the Architect shall assign, sublet or transfer his interest in this agreement without the written consent of the other.

11. Arbitration. All questions in dispute under this agreement shall be submitted to arbitration at the choice of either party, in accordance with the provisions, then obtaining, of the Standard Form of Arbitration Procedure of the American Institute of Architects.

The Owner and the Architect hereby agree to the full performance of the covenants contained herein.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF they have executed this agreement, the day and year first above written.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

Now that the House and Senate are beginning to debate and vote on several bills, some of you are probably wondering why Congress has been so slow in taking action on proposed legislation.

For this reason, it is important that we realize the significance of the committee system in the legislative process and how it necessarily slows the passage of legislation in the House and Senate. The long procedure followed in enactment of a bill into law is a most interesting one. In a future column I plan to describe this process in detail.

Several thousand bills have already been introduced since January 3 of this year and each of these bills has been referred to a committee for study. With only 15 standing committees in the Senate and 19 in the House, it is understandable that a bill is often kept in a particular committee for several months before it is ready to be voted on by Congress.

Although the committee system is slow, it serves as another check and balance in the passage of federal laws. Members of the various committees soon become specialists in the field of law which concerns their particular committee and are able to devote considerable study to proposed legislation. It would be impossible for any Congressman to be thoroughly acquainted with all arguments for and against a bill. He must rely heavily upon the committee reports for information about bills brought to the floor of the House.

In addition to the information a member of Congress receives from his own studies, from committee reports, and for debates on the floor of the House or Senate, he is always anxious to have the opinions of the people he represents before he votes on an issue.

I want to encourage all of you in the Sixth District to give me the benefit of your views on any proposed legislation in which you may have an interest.

I realize many bills acted on by Congress are not always publicized long enough in advance for the people to have all the facts. However, on major issues it is certainly helpful for a member of Congress to have his constituents' opinions and the reasons for their opinions. The Hawaii Statehood Bill, frequently mentioned in newspapers lately, will probably be up for a vote by the time this column is printed. At this date I have received but a few letters concerning such important legislation.

I cannot vote to please everyone who writes me since some arguments will support an issue and others will oppose it. But you can be sure that the views of all the people I represent are important to me. I am anxious to have those views before I cast my vote.

Should File Claims—

The deadline for filing prisoner of war claims is April 9.

Under provisions of a law passed last year, all American prisoners of war during World War II are entitled to file for a maximum compensation of $1.50 a day for the time they received inhumane treatment. If the prisoners are deceased, their dependents may file for the compensation.

I have been asked by the War Claims Commission to mention this deadline to the readers so that all eligible people will file their claims by midnight, April 9th. All World War II prisoners who were mistreated are eligible to apply for compensation regardless of whether they filed under provisions of a previous law passed several years ago. This is a new and increased compensation. The Commission will decide which applicants are eligible for payment.

The term "prisoners of war" includes all American members of military or naval forces of the United States who were imprisoned by the enemy during the second World War. It does not include civilian employees of any of the armed forces or any other civilians who were interned by the enemy.

These claims are financed from debts paid the United States by enemy countries rather than by tax funds from the treasury. This is in accordance with a provision of the Geneva Convention of 1929 which states that prisoners of war should be not be treated inhumanely.

Requests for compensation must be filed on special forms and mailed directly to the War Claims Commission, Washington 25, D. C. The forms can be obtained from my office, veterans organizations, Red Cross offices, or from the War Claims Commission. If the former prisoner or his survivors do not remember their previous war claims number, the space will be filled in by the Commission.

The War Claims Commission, a temprary agency, estimates that it will have settled a total of about 600,000 claims by the time it expires.

A large stirring spoon can be prevented from slipping into a pan if an ordinary clothespin is slipped over the handle. A strip of adhesive tape wound tightly around the pin will hold it on the handle. In use, the clothespin rests against the side of the pan to keep the spoon from slipping.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Take it easy now. Don't get excited and we'll let you in on a little secret. Sheriff J. Luther Kendrick is going west next week to bring back a prisoner. So just wanted you to know before things got around that something was amiss at the courthouse.

Somebody is dickering with somebody for a store here in Clanton. Hope the deal jells in a hurry so we can pass the details on along to you. Think everyone will be happier if it goes through and we know that one of the people dickering would leave us which would make us sad, but they promised to come back often—and maybe stay. Hope so.

Have you visited The Tiffin Shop at Homewood? Mary Lou Foshee opened a pre-teen shop there recently and invites her Chilton County friends to visit her. Now we would be the last to advise anyone to trade outside of our own home community, but if you can't find what you want here, then visit The Tiffin Shop at Homewood next. Cause, after all, Mary Lou is home folks.

This story is a little out of season, but we'll have to tell you about it anyway. The farmer caught a fellow in his watermelon patch and wanted to know why he was there. "Well, you see, I found one of your watermelons had come unhitched and I was trying to get it rehitched," was his answer.

Many a fellow has been started in the right direction by a kick in the right place.

Looks like Bobby Lane has let the cat out of the bag. At first Bobby was hard to find though. But here's the way it happened, according to Leo Thompson: Bobby was weighing laundry bags this week at Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company when one of the bags began to move. Bobby looked around at the bag a second time and it moved again. Then Bobby began to move. When things quited down and upon close inspection the laundry bag was found to contain somebody's cat that evidently had gone to sleep there and had been tied up and carted off to the laundry. Shortly everyone was quiet again and under control, if somewhat jittery whenever they reached for another bag to weigh.

The motorist had knocked down the helpless pedestrain. He stopped and stuck his head out the front window and shouted: "Look here, young man, you had better be more careful next time." "Good heavens," shouted the pedestrain, "don't tell me you're coming back."

Look what Maplesville has done gone and did. In the recent Red Cross Drive she went away over her quota which was $500.00. We think all and sundry should give a standing vote of appreciation to Maplesville and the fine workers who made this record possible. Mrs. R. W. Stremming was chairman.

Maplesville Soldier Is Killed In Korea

Word has reached relatives here that Corp. Jerry H. Ratliff was killed in action in Korea on February 23rd. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Ratliff of Maplesville.

He has been in Korea since last June and was a member of Co. F of the Ninth Infantry Division.

Surviving besides his parents is a sister, Mrs. John H. Nichols, in Germany and Ora Fay and Brenda Ratliff, of Maplesville; two brothers, Buck and Carl, of Maplesville; grandmother, Mrs. U. L. Ratliff, and several uncles and aunts of Birmingham.

Baptist Women To Meet In Montgomery

The First Baptist Church, Montgomery, will be host to the fifty-eighth annual meeting of Woman's Missionary Union, auxiliary to Alabama Baptist Convention on March 17-19. The president, Mrs. Fred W. Kilgore, Birmingham, will open the meeting at 1:25 p.m., using Dr. Henry Allen Parker, host pastor for the devotional message. The purpose of the convention is for the transaction of business and presentation of missions on home and foreign fields. Miss Addie Cox of China and Formosa will be a featured speaker on Tuesday afternoon.

Girl's Auxiliary members, under the direction of Miss Marjorie Stith, will present on Tuesday evening a pageant featuring their fortieth anniversary. Miss Margaret Bruce, convention-wide young people's secretary, will bring the missionary message.

Wednesday will present such speakers as Miss Emily Lansdell, president of the W.M.U. Training School, Louisville; Mr. Paul Rogosin, missionary to Russians in California; Miss Blanche White, Richmond, Virginia; Mrs. Clyde Dotson, Southern Rhodesia; Dr. Joe W. Burton, Nashville; and Dr. Oscar Davis, president of Alabama Baptist Convention.

Miss Irene Chambers, field representative of the Home Mission Board, and Dr. A. L. Gillespie of Japan will speak Wednesday evening.

Goals for the year, the election and installation of officers, and messages by Mrs. John L. Isaacs, Mrs. Allegra LaPrairie of New Orleans, Mrs. W. P. Reeves, and Miss Blanche White will conclude the session on Thursday morning.

Miss Chambers and Miss Cox will be speakers at the YWA banquet at the church on Tuesday evening at 5:00 p.m. The Judson friends will meet at the Whitley for luncheon on Wednesday. The Training School alumnae will dine together at the church Wednesday noon.

Mrs. R. S. Marshall, executive secretary, reports that general plans for entertaining the 1,500 delegates are in the hands of Mrs. Rufus Ray and her committee.—Mrs. L. M. Ward, Birmingham, Publicity Chairman.

Home Demonstration Leadership School

Thursday, March 5th, Miss Mary Hulsey, Foods and Nutritional Specialist, from Auburn, was in Clanton for a Leadership School on preparing a quick meal.

Food leaders or another representative of the Home Demonstration Clubs of the County were invited to this Leadership School at the Suburban Gas Company. Miss Hulsey prepared the following meal: Stuffed pork chops, English peas, baked sweet potatoes and peach up-side-down cake. She also explained how other oven meals could be prepared easily and quickly. This is the demonstration that each of the Clubs will have in April.

Leaders who were at the Leadership Shool will be responsible for the demonstration in their Club.

Clubs represented and ladies present at the Leadership School were: Mrs. Oliver Duke, Mrs. H. M. Kelly, and Mrs. Raymond Cox, Thomas Jr.; Mrs. Charlie Moore, Cooper; Mrs. Ben Wells, Mrs. W. C. Moore, Mrs. Flora Wilson, Mrs. Esther Childers, and Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Poplar Springs; Mrs. J. W. Wood, Mrs. T. L. Williams, and Mrs. A. H. Ingram, Cane Creek; Mrs. Walter Maston, and Mrs. J. E. Williams, Sr., Cedar Grove; Mrs. C. J. Turner and Mrs. Grover Bice, Thorsby; Mrs. Ben Sims and Mrs. Harry Sims, Friendship; Mrs. C. J. Williams, and Mrs. J. C. Durbin, Mrs. C. J. McCarty, Macedonia; Mrs. Leonard Traywick, Baker; Mrs. Raymond Giles and Ruby Hilyer, Mineral Springs; Mrs. R. O. Williams, and Mrs. Hoyt Burgess, Collins Chapel; and Mrs. S. A. Jones, Alabama Mills.

4-H County Council Meeting

The 4-H County Council will meet Saturday, March 15th, at 9:00 at the City Hall. All officers of the Clubs are urged to attend this meeting. Plans for the 4-H Rally will be made. The 4-H Council will meet as a climax to National 4-H Week.

Maplesville First In Red Cross Drive

The people of Maplesville are the first to reach their goal in the Red Cross Drive of 1953. Mrs. Maye P. Esco, Executive Secretary, reports that Maplesville met its quota and passed it by $82.20. The amount set as Maplesville's quota was $500. Under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Ray Stremming, local fund chairman, the community collected $582.20.

Donations for the Red Cross Drive are slowly coming in from other Chilton County communities, but as yet the collections have been small. With the exception of Maplesville, the employees of the Chilco Quick Freeze are the only ones who have reached their goal. The fund chairman at the Quick Freeze, Mrs. Evelyn Vinson, reports that her workers have contributed $40 to the Red Cross.

All communities are reminded that the Red Cross Drive this year is more important than ever before. The money will not only be used to provide relief for disaster victims, but it will also assist American boys overseas. A third project for the Red Cross is the securing of Gamma Globulin to prevent paralysis from Polio. Every resident in Chilton County is urged to give generously to support one of America's most important organizations — the Red Cross.

HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUB TOURED TO TROY

The Chilton County High School Glee Club toured to Troy Friday, March 6th, to take part in a district festival held at the State Teachers College. Eight members of the glee club were sent Thursday to help make up a 200-voice clinic chorus. Members came from various cities over the state. They rehearsed all day Thursday and presented a program Friday at noon.

Our local glee club performed Friday at 11:15 a.m. They sang "Oklahoma" and "Ava Maria." It is with hope and expectation that the glee club is recommended to the State Choral Festival April 15th, 16th and 17th.

STUNT NIGHT

Each class of Maplesville High School and clubs have been asked to give a ten minute stunt. There will be two prizes, one for the Grammar grades and one for High Schol. There will be fun for all, so come and bring the family.

Time — March 13th. (tonight) at 7:30 p.m. Place — Maplesville High School.

Admission: School children 10c and adults 25c. This will be sponsored by the F.H.A. and F.F.A.

Coosa Being Dragged In Search For Sam Littleton

Members of the Sheriff's office and others were searching the Coosa River here today for Sam Littleton. It is reported he left his home Wednesday morning and has not returned.

The boat and motor, which Littleton used was found floating right-side-up in the river early Thursday morning.

As the News went to press the Sheriff reported that Littleton was seen last at Raymond Wyatt's Camp Wednesday and reported that he had found two of his boats for which he had been searching the river. He left to return to his camp but never reached there. One of the two motors which were on the boat he was using is also missing and it is theorized that Littleton must have been working on the big motor when he and the motor fell into the river.

Thursday afternoon late several parties were still dragging the river in search of his body.

SPRING MERCHANDISE IS MAKING APPEARANCE

Spring merchandise is making an appearance in all the stores. Just visit town and make a visit to all the stores and you will see the most attractive spring merchandise.

You may not find everything you want, but you will be surprised at the beautiful selection being carried by our stores.

Before you plan your Easter outfit make it a point to see all the lovely things in our Clanton stores. You will save money and a lot of valuable time and worry.

WILLIAM PLUMMER ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

William Plummer, Jr., age 25, of Selma, Ala., suffered the loss of an arm about mid-afternoon last Monday when a shotgun that he was cleaning fired accidently. Mr. Plummer is an employee of the Reynolds Service Station. A physician at the Selma Baptist Hospital said he had to remove the left arm of Mr. Plummer at a point about three inches below the elbow. The Plummer family lived near Plantersville on the Frank Reynolds' place for quite some time. It is with regret that we learned of this accident.

JC's Celebrate Charter Night

Last Monday evening the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Clanton celebrated charter night with a banquet at the Chilton County High School Cafeteria. Among the many guests attending were representatives of several Junior Chambers of Commerce of other cities, including members of the Birmingham Chamber who sponsored the Clanton Chapter. Guests from the Birmingham Chapter were Mr. and Mrs. Ike Allums, President of the Birmingham J.C.'s, Tom Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Stewart, Mr and Mrs. Chuck Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Newman, Mack Ed Nolen, Ralph James and Jack McAllister.

From Anniston Junior Chamber were President, Frank Peas, Joe Bagly, Bill Spence and Alfred Killebrew.

From the Enterprise Chapter were Dalton Gentry, Thomas Dean and Bob Hall. Also Jerry Hulsey, Mayor of Easttoboga.

Ben Hobson of the Birmingham Chapter introduced the guests and acted as master of ceremonies.

The program began with the invocation by Bob Ledyard of Clanton, followed by the delicious meal served by members of the Chilton County High School Beta Club. Immediately following the meal, Mayor Jones of Clanton spoke briefly on the progress of Clanton in the last 50 years. Following Mayor Jones was Virgil Rice who introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Bill Irby, of Sylacauga, an outstanding J.C. in the State Organization.

After the talk by Bill Irby, Mr. J. Willard Lemon State Vice-President of the Junior Chamber, introduced the State President, Mr. Dwight McEnnis who spoke briefly of importance of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He then presented the charter to Jerry Bodden, President of the Clanton Junior Chamber. Officers of Clanton Junior Chamber were also installed at the banquet. They include: President, Jerry Bodden; 1st Vice-President, Bill Eiland; 2nd Vice-President, Clint Carlisle; Secretary, Harold Smyer; Treasurer, Francis Speaks. Directors: Guy McKee, Lewis Headley, Dyer Shackleford, John Foshee.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be held Monday night, March 23rd, at 7:30 p.m., at the City Grill in Clanton.

A.A.U.W. SUBMIT RESOLUTIONS

The Chilton County Branch of the American Association of University Women wish to submit to Chilton County Commissioner's Court the following resolutions:

Whereas, We consider the recreational and educational needs of our county can be greatly benefitted by a broader field of reading materials.

Whereas, There is evidence of local public opinion, as shown by various civic clubs, which supports a project of this nature.

Whereas, A library has been started by the above named organization without adequate space to house and give proper circulation.

Whereas, A committee of this organization appeared before the county commissioner's court, two years ago before the referendum amendment was presented to the people concerning the proposal then and were promised library facilities in the event the referendum amendment should pass

Be it resolved, That the commissioner's court require the inclusion of adequate space (a reading room and a stack room) for a County Library in the architects plans for the proposed county court house.

CEMETERY WORKING AT PROVIDENCE SATURDAY

There will be a working next Saturday morning at 7 o'clock at Providence Baptist Church. Several trees near graves are damaged and need to be removed. Those of you who have loved ones buried near these trees and interested people are invited and urged to come help in this project.

COMMUNITY RELIGIOUS CENSUS HELD

There will be a Community Religious Census held on Sunday afternoon, March 15th, starting at 2:30 p.m.

The W.S.C.S. is continuing their mission study on Africa Monday, March 16th, at 7:30 p.m. Pauline Campbell is in charge of the program and she will be assisted by the Junior Department of the Methodist Church School and Mrs. Ben Tucker and Mrs. L. C. Warr. Everyone is invited to be present.

The M.Y.F. will start a new series of programs which will be most interesting. Come and bring your friends.

CHILTON BAPTIST EVANGELISTIC RALLY

There will be an Evangelistic Rally for the Chilton Baptist Association Sunday afternoon, March 15th, from 2:00 until 3:30 in the afternoon at Liberty Hill Baptist Church. The entire program will be broadcast over Station WKLF, Clanton. An outstanding feature of this program will be the inspirational speaker, Dr. Henry L. Lion, from the Highland Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery. Dr. Lion is well known as an outstanding preacher and evangelist. Rev. L. E. Daniel, Chairman of Evangelism for the Chilton Association, extends an invitation to the Unity Association to attend this rally. It is hoped that all the churches will be represented. The purpose of the rally is to promote the cause of evangelism in our churches and associations.

Newly Designed "Travel Happy Route" Passes Through Chilton

Birmingham, Ala. — Cities on U. S. Highway 31 and 231 from Dothan, Ala., to Nashville, Tenn., are on the road to success—in tourist traffic.

This was the prediction here today of Ervin Jackson, chairman of the Highway 31 Association, recently organized to promote tourist travel along the route. It has been dubbed the "Travel Happy Route."

First dividends on the highway promotional endeavor should come immediately, Mr. Jackson believes.

He pointed out that Florida vatationists returning to the North and Midwest are being enticed along the "Travel Happy Route" by newspaper ads currently running in leading Florida dailies.

Also, 250,000 colorful and picturesque strip maps pointing out attractions along the route are now being distributed throughout the nation. These efforts are being further backed up by highway signs at both ends of the "Travel Happy Route." Additional signs are being erected along the route.

"With the Winter tourists ready to return North," Mr. Jackson said, "the first dividends from our efforts should be forthcoming immediately."

Plugging the route, Chairman Jackson said: "The Travel Happy Route is all that its name implies. In addition to being the route of 'total courtesy' and a most scenic route, it's also the best and most direct route between mid-Western and Southern points."

Mr. Jackson said public officials along the way are pledged to cooperate by extending real "southern hospitality" to all motorists.

The Travel Happy Route is formerly the "Bee Line Highway," one of the most heavily traveled automobile courses in the state.

The Travel Happy Route passes through, Nashville, Franklin, Spring Hill, Columbia, Pulaski, Athens, Decatur, Cullman, Birmingham, Clanton, Prattmont, Montgomery, Troy, Ozark and Dothan. It connects with highways leading directly to all Florida points.

At its Northern terminus, U. S. 31 connects with highways leading to Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Cincinnati, Louisville and other ponits.

One of the favorite routes North is the newly-designed "Travel Happy Route," extending from Dothan, Ala. to Nashville, Tenn. This route, U. S. 231 and U. S. 31, features many scenic and historic attractions, including: colorful Spring flowers, cattle lands, the "Cradle of the Confederacy," industrial sights, Vulcan (the mythical god of the forge), giant hydro-electric dams, ante-bellum ahrines and homes, plus many other tourist features.

Some of the citizens who are interested in boosting our town and county are writing their name in on the margin of the paper below the article we wrote last week about being a "booster, or knocker," and mailing it back to us. We have received quite a large number of these articles marked "booster."

Money—the man-made idol—means to different people, different things.

The 'smart-aleck' is always too smart to be told anything.

Progress is not achieved by following the crowd, but by taking the lead.

Graciousness is a virtue that many people mistake for weakness.

Few friends come through when the majority is on the other side.

There are too many people who want a living without working.

That secret urge to tell the other fellow what you think of him can get you in trouble.

PRIDE IN OUR TOWN

Can a small town grow if the merchants and citizens do not try to make it grow? This is a question of concern to many.

The citizens are the town; and unless they strive for a bigger and better community it will not grow by itself.

There are very few people who do not have a little public pride and interest. And when people put their minds and backs to it they can make others proud of what they are building.

It doesn't take much. . . .but you do have to give it a fair chance if you expect it to thrive. Think of new ideas that will get new people into our town. A wide awake and growing town tends to draw the interest of others whether they be great or small. It brings new businesses into our town and above all increases in population which aids in the establishment of better government and better education for our children.

You might say, "Our town doesn't need to grow any more, it's big enough as it is." If everyone thought that way we wouldn't have much progress in government or any other field.

Your town is what you, the common citizen, make it. Why not make yours a better place for your children to grow up in so that instead of wanting to leave it when they grow up they will be proud to live here and take part in the progress of their town and community.

Dr. Edgar Announces Wildlife Week, March 15th

The Chilton County Wildlife Conservation Club will join the Alabama Wildlife Federation and organized conservationists throughout the country in observing National Wildlife Week from March 15 through 21, according to Dr. J. E. Edgar, president.

National Wildlife Week has been sponsored each year since 1938 by the National Wildlife Federation, Washington, D.C., a non-profit organization, in conjunction with its affiliates in 45 states. The Federation and affiliates represent more than 4,000,000 sportsmen and conservationists.

Purpose of the Week is to draw attention nationally to the need for united action in conserving and restoring America's dwindling natural resources, Dr. Edgar said.

The Alabama Wildlife Federation is a statewide league of local conservation chapters or sportsmen's clubs. The Chilton County Club is the local affiliate.

Each year the Federation chooses a threatened bird or mammal as the symbol of wasted resources, Dr. Edgar said. This year's symbol is the Prairie Chicken, or Pinnated Grouse, once numerous from the Appalachians to the Rockies but now reduced to scattered remnants in about 15 Midwestern and Southwestern states.

In an effort to protect the colorful bird from disappearance, the Federation has named a committee of experts to the National Committee on the Prairie Chicken, headed by R. A. Brown, Jr., attorney of St. Joseph, Mo., and former chairman of the Missouri Conservation Commission.

In pointing to the need for united action in facing the nation's conservation problems, Dr. Edgar said that organization has accomplished many worthwhile things in the last 15 years.

"For example, legislative milestones like the Pittman-Robertson federal-aid game law of 1936 and the similar Dingell-Johnson fisheries act of 1950 were passed by Congress only because there was national organized support behind them.

"In addition to cooperating in conservation matters of statewide and national interest, local clubs carry on many projects to improve wildlife conditions, to better hunting and fishing, to encourage soil conservation and good farming. Many clubs do special work with 4-H clubs and other youth groups in a program of conservation activities."

The National Wildlife Federation is financed through the sale of sheets of wildlife stamps in color, issued annually. The state organization, like the local club, is financed by membership dues.

National chairman for the Week is Ed Dodd, popular wildlife artist and conservation leader. Author of the outdoors adventure strip, "Mark Trail," Mr. Dodd also is a lecturer and radio personality.

The Current Population Survey will be conducted in this area during the week of March 15, according to Mary G. Auburtin, District Supervisor of the U. S. Census Bureau Office in Clanton.

The Current Population Survey, taken monthly here and in 67 other areas throughout the country, provides up-to-date national figures on employment and unemployment. This information is used by business and government in the study of current labor force problems.

Mrs. Auburtin pointed out that information furnished to the Census Bureau concerning individual persons is accorded confidential treatment under the law and only statistical totals are published.

Letters To The Editor

Writes To Board Of Revenue

Rt. 1, Clanton, Ala.,
March 11, 1953.

To the Board of Revenue:

I noticed this piece in the Chilton County News about boosting Chilton County. Yes, I want to boost Chilton County. I want to see Chilton County grow bigger, prosper, better schools, and our roads black topped.

I have talked to our Board of Revenue and also Probate Judge about it. Looks like nothing is being done.

I understand the Old Birmingham and Montgomery Highway is the next one to be black topped; black topping at Thorsby and south of Clanton. Farmers are up this way, too, and lots of traffic on this road.

I own 80 acres of land and I pay a good deal of taxes. I work for Alabama Mills, wading these mud holes day and night. I am waiting patiently. I am not going to give it up. This is a school bus route.

I am a Democrat.

Yours very truly,

MATTHEW BERKLEY,
Clanton, Ala., Route 1.

February 4-H Meetings

During February each 4-H Club in the County held regular meetings for both boys and girls.

The boys' meetings were devoted to Club work and projects for 1953. Two subjects—cooking and sewing—were discussed in the girls' meetings. The demonstration "Steps in Biscuit Making," was given in each Club by several of the members and one of the Home Agents. Girls were encouraged to enter the Baking Contest which will be held soon.

Skirt and Dress Reviews will be held in each Club during March so points of importance in sewing were discussed by the Home Agents and questions asked by the girls were answered.

All girls with a sewing project were encouraged to enter the Contest. Junior Club members will make a skirt and Senior Club members will enter the Dress Review.

Contest will be held in each Club at the March meeting. The schedule for March is: Collins Chapel and Thorsby, Monday, March 9th; Clanton Elementary and Pinedale, Tuesday, March 10th; Baker and Mt. Pleasant, Wednesday, March 11th; Verbena Jr., and Sr., and Cooper, Thursday, March 12th; Concord, Friday, March 13th; Jemison Jr. and Sr., Monday, March 16th; Isabella Jr. and Sr., and Cane Creek, Tuesday, March 17th; Thomas Jr. and Enterprise, Thursday, March 19th; Maplesville Jr. and Sr., Tuesday, March 24th, and Stanton, Vermont and Mineral Springs, Wednesday, March 25th.

Writes On High School

Editor Chilton County News

Dear Sir:

It has been brought to my attention that there is a certain degree of neglect on the part of our Board of Education or either our city.

I am speaking about the condition of the sewage system at the Chilton County High School.

It seems that a short distance from the lunch room where our boys and girls eat their meals there is a drainage pipe that is in sad need of repair.

This, I presume, is very annoying to be around and especially around a public building where food is served. It is not only annoying, but also could prove unsanitary and even unhealthy.

It is not to my knowledge whether this situation is being looked into or not, but if it isn't I feel that it should be attended to at once.

Because this situation has been neglected for so long I feel it only my duty to tell those who are not aware of it that such is the case; mainly the mothers and fathers and the one's whose duty it is to see that the bad pipe is fixed right away.

I'm sure the schools and the city are doing all they can to make our town a better one in which to live, but, this, I believe, is one case that should not be put off or neglected.

Yours truly,
A. I. C.

4-H Radio Program

In order to bring about more interest to 4-H girls in entering the Skirt and Dress Revues, a recent Saturday morning 4-H program was devoted to last year's County Dress Revue winner, Gloria Robinson.

Gloria, a student at Chilton County High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Robinson of Providence community. Gloria was a member of the Concord 4-H Club for five years. She spoke about her projects and work as an officer. She mentioned points she had learned about sewing when she made the dresses for the contest. She described the three dresses she made last year—one for her School Contest, one for the County Contest and one for the State Contest.

Gloria enjoyed participating in the contests as well as learned much from the experience she had in sewing. She urged 4-H girls to enter the Dress and Skirt Revues because it's lots of fun to enter contests.

PROCLAMATION

To All To Whom These Presents May Come, Greeting:

WHEREAS, the fact cannot be stressed too much or too often that all life is dependent on soil and water; and

WHEREAS, wasteful practices and clovenly habits are robbing this nation of productivity of our soils and water at an exceedingly rapid rate; and similar practices are depleting certain species of native American wildlife disastrously; and

WHEREAS, there is greater need for more intelligent planning of developments to secure the greatest possible values from all resources, and

WHEREAS, protection of the wildlife species, such as the native American prairie chicken, or pinnated grouse, which is rapidly becoming extinct, should be one of our fundamental responsibilities, and

WHEREAS, the National Wildlife Federation, Washington, in sponsoring National Wildlife Week, is doing much to teach the basic tenets on which the future of America's soils, water and wildlife depends; and whereas, the continued growth of human population forces us to give increasing attention to conservation until every American is aware of his vital dependence upon natural resources and acts intelligently to manage them;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, M. D. Tingle, probate judge, County of Chilton, do hereby proclaim and designate the week of March 15, through 21, 1953, as National Wildlife Week in Chilton County, and do earnestly appeal to all of our citizens to recognize the importance of the problems of conservation of these assets in wildlife and to work with one accord for their proper protection and preservation, and to reflect upon America's riches of natural resources and the importance to our future well-being of perpetuating them.

IN TESTIMONY, WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the Great Seal of Chilton County this 9th day of March, 1953.

M. D. TINGLE,
Judge of Probate of Chilton County.

a peek at THE STARS

By LYNN CONNELLY

CBS-TV is moving 13 shows from New York to Hollywood this spring, according to inside reports . . . One of these is likely to be the "Red Buttons" show . . . The move would be to take full advantage of the facilities of the web's new Television City in the movie capital . . . The "All-Star Revue" may be among the missing come April unless a fourth segment finds sponsorship by that time . . . When Red Skelton resumes work on his Sunday night shows next month he is planning to drop filming and do them "live" or with edited kinescopes . . . His format also is due for an overhaul and it can't come too soon for his many fans.

Ted Dale, long music director for the now-defunct "Contented Hour," is one of Hollywood's "unexplainables," a man with terrific talent and amazingly unemployed . . . It all points up the fact that Flickerville's radio music business never has been at lower ebb nor in more serious state . . . Country Washburne has had his latest tune, "You Don't Know What Lonesome Is", waxed by Bing Crosby . . . His biggest hit to date was "Give Me One Dozen Roses."

PLATTER CHATTER

CAPITOL:—For children, one of the finest records we've heard in many a moon is the story of Moses as narrated by Movie Actor Claude Rains . . . It's essentially for the small fry but their parents will enjoy it just as much . . . An excellent waxing by all concerned . . . Going from the sublime to the ridiculous, Ella Mae Morse has a potential hit in the cute novelty, "The Guy Who Invented Kissin'" . . . It's backed by a ditty with the short and sweet title of "Good."

Continuing on Capitol. Merle Travis does a fine job with "Knee Deep in Trouble" with "Bajou Baby" on the reverse . . Boots Faye and Idaho Call do a Capitol rendition of their own tune, "Cryin' My Heart Out". Flip has "Shifting Sands". A real novelty is "Hillbilly Hula" as done by Jenks Carman "I'm a Poor, Lonesome Fellow" backs it.

Meeting of Training Union Council—

The March meeting of the Training Union Council met at the home of Miss Louise Lenoir, Training Union General Secretary.

Miss Miriam Harvey, director of the Union, was the presiding officer. She read John 15:6-11, and Miss Mary Clements led the opening prayer.

Plans for Youth Week in April were begun. A committee of adults as counselors were appointed: Miss Mary Clements, Mrs. Homer Carroll, Mrs. B. C. Lenoir, and Mr. Stephens. This committee will serve with a committee of young people, with Mrs. Robert Hall as chairman. Miss Louise Lenoir and others are to be appointed.

The study course will be held the week of the 8th to 13th. The refreshment committee for the last night of this course are Mrs. George Naish, Mrs. Homer Carroll and Miss Ola Rogers.

Home-baked cake and Cokes were enjoyed by the group.

W.M.U. Meetings—

The West Is Big—this statement was brought to the members of the W.M.U. in a very striking manner. They met on Monday afternoon to observe the season of prayer for Home Missions. Mrs. Marvin Dawson, program leader for Monday and Miss Miriam Harvey displayed pictures of the West, of waves of grain in Kansas, scenes of the great river falls, Indian pueblos, of the great mountain peaks.

The theme for Monday, "Purple Mountain Majesties," and for Tuesday, "Thine Alabaster Cities Gleam." The symbol for Monday was the United States Flag and on Tuesday the members looked at one dollar bills for mottos. Mrs. J. A. Petersen gave the part, "For Amber Waves of Grain," and "A Missionary Opportunity in Utah."

The meditation, Malachi 3:8-12; Matt. 22:21. Mrs. Andy Beaman told of the Good Will cluters. Closing Scripture, Malachi 2:10.

W.M.U. Met Wednesday—

Members of the W.M.U. met at the church on Wednesday afternoon in a season of prayer. Mrs. B. C. Lenoir, was in charge of the program. The theme for Wednesday, "Above the Fruited Plains." Symbol for Wednesday was the Liberty Bell. Replicas of the bell were on display.

"America" was sung as the opening song. The first verse of "America, the Beautiful" was sung. Mrs. Lenoir discussed "Missions to the Indians." Mrs. Emma Cofer told of "The Water of Life" to the Italians in Tampa. Members joined in singing, "Make Me A Channel of Blessings." Miss Mary Clements told of the need of the Water of Life in Mexico.

Meditation, Hebrews 13:20-21. Meeting closed by a chain of sentence prayers.

Season of Prayer on Thursday—

The W.M.U. met at the church on Thursday to conclude the season of prayer for Home Missions. The topic for study, Heroes Proved," the third verse of "America the Beautiful" was sung. The symbol for the program was the statute of Liberty. It was represented by Mrs. William Vines, who was dressed in a white robe, holding a light in her right hand, a scroll in her left arm. She wore a pointed helmet. A short quiz was given by Miss Harvey, regarding the mission work.

Miss Ola Rogers told of the Mission Work in Redwood Empire, California. Mrs. Nell Jones gave some accounts of work by missionaries to the migrants. Prayer for mission work in the West, by Mrs. George Naish. One verse of "Loyalty to Christ," was sung. Mrs. Naish and Miss Harvey gave some testimonies of summer student workers. Closing Scripture, I Timothy 2:1-2 and II Chronicals 7:14. Mrs. Naish read as a closing prayer the one used in the United States Senate.

Recent Bride Honored—

One of the loveliest events of the season was a tea shower, honoring Mrs. Herman Bradford, Jr., nee Kathryn Carroll, at the home of Mrs. Flora Mae Reynolds on February 25th.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. Sam Woodley, who presented them to Mrs. Bradford, Mrs. G. H. Carroll, mother of the bride, and Mrs. Herman Bradford, Sr., mother of the groom.

Miss Betty Willis registered the guests in the bride's book.

The receiving rooms were made more attractive with arrangements of spring flowers.

The tea table, lace covered, held a lovely bowl of white narcissus, fern and baby breath spirea. Misses Willodean Edwards and Louise presided at the table, serving hot coffee, individual decorated cakes, mints and toasted nuts.

About fifty guests called during the afternoon.

Mrs. Lester Pate Hostess To Club—

The March meeting of the Home Demonstration Club was held at the home of Mrs. Lester Pate Tuesday afternoon, March 3rd, at 3 'clock.

Mrs. Edna McNeill, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. W. J. Preston read the story of the hymn, "Love Divine" and she led the group in singing the song. Mrs. Lester Pate gave the devotional and led in prayer. Mrs. Tom Cost gave the Farm Bureau report; Miss Wright, agent, gave a report on Citizenship and Defense activities; Mrs. Lester Pate made a report on community activities.

The group discussed a spend-the-day for the April meeting, but a decision was not reached. Miss Wright gave a demonstration on shopping for groceries.

Mrs. Martin was a visitor to the club.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our most profound thanks and appreciation to our neighbors and many friends for their great help and kindness to us during the illness and death of our husband and father, Wiley M. Bean. We are indeed grateful to everyone who gave the beautiful flowers. Our hearts go out in Thanksgiving to everyone who spoke words of consolement and encouragement. May God's choice blessings be with you. — Mrs. Wiley M. Bean and children.

Jemison 4-H Club

Members of the Senior Girls' 4-H Club at Jemison are interested in making things and entering contests. At the February meeting lamps, dolls and dresses were exhibited.

Since the December demonstration, "Toys for Tots," much interest has been shown in making toys out of work socks. Many toys have been made by members of the Jemison Club although only one member brought hers to a meeting. Two very attractive dolls—a boy and a girl—were displayed by one member at the February meeting.

Peggy Ann Blackmon displayed the lamp she had made from an old wagon hub. Peggy Ann's sister, Willie Lee, a member of the Jemison Junior Club, has also made a lamp out of a pitcher.

Interest in the Dress Revue has started in a big way at Jemison. Th revue will be held at the March meeting, but two members had completed their dresses so they wore these to the February meeting.

PLENTIFUL EGGS

A. A. U. W. Holds Monthly Meeting

SIDNEY L. GRIFFIN SPEAKS ON A.E.A. LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Mr. Sidney L. Griffin spoke to the American Association of University Women on March 5th at the Chilton County High School library. His topic was, "The Proposed Legislative Program of the Alabama Educational Association." Some points which he emphasized in his talk were:

1. More financial aid to the education program, including more attractive salaries for teachers.

2. The need for more and better public school buildings and better transportation for school children (especially does this hold true for Chilton County).

3. A program for better trained teachers.

4. A new method for teacher tenure.

5. Opposition of the use to tax receipts for non-public schools.

6. Recommendation of a different method of selection of the State Superintendent of Education.

Mr. Griffin is a member of the Jemison High School faculty. He also is chairman of "Legislation" in the Chilton County Teachers Association.

Preceding the program the A.A.U.W. held a short business meeting. Mrs. Joe S. Campbell, president, presiding. It was reported that the Chilton County branch had contributed to the Fellowship Program. This is an international study-grant program which gives aid to American women scholars and to University women of other countries. The A.A.U.W. international students gain professional training here that is put to use in rebuilding their homelands. The bonds of friendship and understanding thus created are practical contributions toward world cooperation and peace. For the fiscal year 1952-53 there are 54 women from 20 different countries receiving college training in this country.

Plans were discussed for attending the state convention being held this week end in Anniston.

Mrs. L. D. Eastrling, Jr., was appointed chairman of the party which the A.A.U.W. gives each year for the senior girls of the Chilton County High Schools.

Mrs. Joe Mullins served as chairman of the program on legislation. Serving with her was Mrs. Reid Mullins.

The Association was glad to have as visitors Mrs. P. F. Williams, Mrs. W. C. Golden and Mrs. R. C. Williams.

Administer some first aid to ailing children's toys and you'll find there still plenty of playing hours in many of them. Here's how:

Doll faces which are seriously cracked or peeling can be smoothed with fine sandpaper. Touch up with flesh-colored non-lead paint.

Children's furniture which may be coming apart can usually be strengthened by adding wooden braces under seats of chairs, or using a furniture glue to tighten other parts. Add extra screws or nails for security on items which have been glued.

Mouthpieces of horns and whistles can be glued with clear cement. Handles can be replaced by sewing or gluing on such instruments as accordions.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Crisp Raisin Cookies
(Makes 36)

¾ cup seedless raisins
½ cup shortening
¾ cup brown sugar (packed)
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups corn soya cereal

Rinse raisins, drain and chop. Cream together shortening and sugar. Blend in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into first mixture. Blend in raisins. Add cereal and mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate (350°) oven 12 to 15 minutes. Remove to wire rack to cool.

Sharp edges of wheel caps on metal wagons or tricycles can be coated heavily with paint or patched with adhesive tape. Keep tricycle axles and wheels well oiled.

Cloth picture books can have the metal staples removed. Sew the pages together with durable thread. Paper books which are coming loose at the binding can be taped with cellophane or adhesive tape to hold them together longer.

MRS. MARTHA L. WELDON

Mrs. Martha Louise Weldon, age 56, of Verbena, Ala., died Tuesday, March 10th, at 8:30 p.m., at a Prattville hospital.

Funeral services were held at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, March 12th, from the Verbena Methodist Church conducted by Rev. Rual Morris. Interment in Verbena cemetery.

Miss Fannie, our nosey neighbor, was over to see me again yesterday. She hasn't been around much since the time she claimed I beat my wife.

I had a slight throat infection and temperature. The doctor came, gave me a couple of injections, and departed. Then, Miss Fannie arrived. She carried a steaming pot of chicken broth and an even 'steamier' poultice which she insisted on slapping on my hairless chest.

"Now, prop yourself up and I'll feed you your broth," says she.

"Madam," says I sternly, "I am perfectly capable of feeding myself if I liked chicken broth, which I don't."

"But you must keep up your strength. You look like you have one foot in the grave. And you with a nice little wife and two fine boys. Eat it, I say!"

"No!"

"You will, too," says she. She grabbed my nose and held on. "Now open your mouth."

I had to open my mouth to get some air. She shoved a spoonful of that broth down my throat, I swallowed and moaned. My wife snickered.

I controlled myself and murmured to the wife. "Has the doctor put up the quarantine sign yet?"

"No he hasn't," says the wife.

"Quarantine! What quarantine?" Miss Fannie stammered.

"Didn't you know," says I, innocent like. "I've got chicken-pox."

"Good heavens," screams Miss Fannie, "and I've never had it."

She fled, leaving the chicken broth and one of her best soup plates.

The wife fluffed up the pillows, tucked me in, and drew the blinds. "Have a good sleep," says she and pats my cheek. "My but you're getting to be an awful liar in your old age."

"Just little white ones," says I. "I think He will understand."

THE PRIZE BOOB

By Ona F. Lathrop

Bill Bayliss was the prize boob of all the neighbors in "The Court." If anybody as much as started a paint job on one of the little white houses that dotted the street like a string of china beads, Bill would come sauntering across, paintbrush in hand, with that look in his eye.

"Hi there, fella. See you got yourself a nice piece of work cut out. Want a little help?" And he'd set to and paint as long as the job held out.

If there was a lawn to grade or a fence to build, Bill would turn up with the proper tools, grinning in his good-natured way, and help until the job was done.

When Janet West wanted to entertain her bridge club in her newly pine-panelled living-room last spring before their sidewalks were in and their front yard a mudhole, here came Bill trundling a wheelbarrow of his own stepping stones that he'd taken up and brought over for Janet's 'girls' to walk in on. You couldn't hate a guy like that, and yet he made the rest of us feel like pikers!

Polly, his wife, complained a little. They had built their own house, moving in before the partitions were in to save rent and they were still 'finishing'—only there didn't seem to be any hurry about it—for Bill.

"If only Bill took as much interest in our own place as he does in the rest of yours," Polly would wail. "I've been trying to get him to put up shelves for my canned fruit for two years, and the children's room still isn't painted but he says that makes it nice—they can mark on the walls all they want to and then we'll do it over when they know better!"

The other wives sympathized with Polly, but they all welcomed his help and plied him with coffee and cokes, and you always heard them, bragging what a wonderful fellow Bill was, and how possessive Polly was.

But when calamity struck, we opened our eyes. Polly and the children had been gone weeks caring for her sick mother when Bill went home dog-tired from helping Jim Curtis with his porch, and fell asleep with a cigarette in his hand. The next thing The Court knew, the fire department was tearing down the street trying to save the little white house that wasn't finished yet.

Bill didn't even let Polly know, and the next day he started all over again. But this time he wasn't alone. Every one of us had a debt to pay Bill Bayliss in one way or another and we were there too. That house got repaired in nothing flat, and we all turned in and painted it inside and out. The girls washed up the curtains and fixed the inside. We put up the shelves for the canned fruit and painted the kids' room in circus colors. We graded up the lawn that Bill had never got around to doing, and each of us contributed some planting or perennials where the firemen had trampled theirs out. Bob West even took up the stepping stones and came trundling them back to set in place the night before Polly came home.

When Polly walked in and saw things shining and heard what had happened, she broke down and wept on Bill's shoulder. We all stood around grinning proudly as if we'd originated the 'help one another' theory, until Polly said, "I know I don't rate all this, but I realize you did it for Bill, and he certainly deserves it. If ever a man was a big-hearted boob, it's Bill, and I'll never complain again when he goes off to help the rest of you."

We murmured silly things sheepishly about neighbors always standing ready to help, and that's what friends were for. But the look on Bill's face was enough to repay us a hundred times over for the little we had done. Now there's a guy that The Court is proud to have living in it, even if he is one prize boob!

PROVIDENCE BAPTIST CHURCH NEWS

Attendance in the services at Providence is rapidly improving since the weather has cleared up and the people getting over the flu epidemic. For the last two Sundays Sunday School and worship service have gone quite a bit above the average.

Next Sunday is the regular third Sunday service and we are looking forward to having a big crowd of folks there, and may there be a great spiritual awakening received from attending.

Bro. W. E. Robinson will bring the message at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday morning and Sunday night at 7 o'clock. Sunday School will begin promptly at 10 o'clock.

Isabella And Mulberry News

Send or give your news to the reporter as soon as possible. She appreciates every item of news given her. Although it may not seem important to you it will be interesting news to the many readers of this paper.

There was a large congregation at Mulberry for both services Sunday and Bro. Jones' messages were very good.

We all were happy to see Mr. Tommie Nix at service Sunday morning. He has been absent for some time due to a cut foot.

Mrs. Grace Reid, daughter of Rev. R. W. Stuckey, and sons of Montgomery, were visitors at the Sunday morning service. We always welcome visitors.

There were more than forty men, women and young people at Mulberry Wednesday night for family night. Our attendance for family night is growing for which we are very happy.

Mrs. Lee Lawrence of Clanton will teach a mission book at the church on Thursday evening at 6:30 p.m., March 12th. Our women are invited to attend this class.

The church voted to have Homecoming Day at Mulberry the third Sunday in May. There will be a guest speaker for the eleven o'clock message. There will be special singing during the day.

There were 20 women who enjoyed the day at Mulberry last Thursday. They had a good program, plenty eats and a good time quilting. The quilt is ready now for sale. Proceeds to go to the baptistry.

The other meetings of the week were well attended with a mission program given at each.

There is still a balance due on this fund. If you haven't contributed then do so now. It will be greatly appreciated.

P.-T.A. met last Monday night with a large number present. The program was very enjoyable as the program chairman, Mrs. Earl O'Neal, asked that the parents and teachers ask each other questions concerning their children so that the teacher as well as the parent might more thoroughly understand the problems confronting each of them.

The history of Ebenezer Baptist Church, located at Stanton, Ala., is being compiled. I'm sure that some of our readers—especially some of the older people—have many interesting facts they might like to pass on to help compile this history. We would like information concerning the formation of this church—names of some of the first ones ordained, Battle of Ebenezer, and just any information that would make history. Will you please contact Mrs. William Ruddick 4944 or Miss Ruth Hicks 4614 and give them this information so it can be included in the history. It would be greatly appreciated.

Miss Guinivere Royster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Royster of Stanton, Ala., and Earnest Watson Terry, with the U. S. Air Force, stationed at Orlando, Fla., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dol Terry of Lawley, Alabama, were united in marriage Wednesday, March 4th, 1953, at 2:00 p.m. in Selma. The ceremony was performed at the courthouse with Judge of Probate, G. Claiborne Blanton officiating. Miss Royster was very attractively dressed in a light blue suit with navy accessories. Witnessing the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Royster, parents of the bride; Miss Dorothy Smith, Miss Artie Hathcock and Miss Willie Dell Abbott.

After a brief honeymoon in Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Terry returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Royster where they will be at home until March 16th when Mr. Terry returns to his base in Florida. Mrs. Terry plans to join her husband at an early date.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Smith have moved into this community in a house owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Burnett and will operate the store on the highway where Mr. and Mrs. Burnett have had a store for many years.

Mrs. Henry Houston entertained at a birthday party at her home in Plantersville, Ala., Friday, February 27th, 1953, at 3:00 p.m. honoring her daughter, Sara Joyce, on her 6th birthday. This party was held on the lawn which was decorated with pink, green, yellow and white streamers. Games were played. Contest prizes went to Christine Davis and Bobbie Martin. Gaily decorated boxes were hid and guests hunted for these and finding horns, suckers and ice cream cone candy.

Refreshments of individual ice cream cups, birthday cake and pink lemonade were served to the seated guests from a table on the lawn. The table, decorated with a colorful table cloth with contrasting napkins, cups and plates. The centerpiece being the birthday cake covered with white icing with green, yellow and pink decorations and bearing the words, Happy Birthday, Sara Joyce. Each guest had at their place green, yellow, pink and blue cups filled with candy and gum as favors. The honoree received a large assortment of gifts which were received in a decorated box. Pictures were taken throughout the afternoon.

While refreshments were being fixed all children were invited into the den to see Benny Carle on television, Station WAFM. Every day he reads out names of children having birthdays and the children in the studio sing, Happy Birthday. Mr. Carle called out Sara Joyce's name and everyone joined in and sang it too, to Sara Joyce. Around 40 children enjoyed this party and everyone had a lovely time.

Assisting Mrs. Houston were: Mrs. Parmer Levins, Mrs. Marion Seymour, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. N. W. Harrison.

The Maplesville M.Y.F. was host to the Aldersgate Sub-District for the month of February. In spite of the bad weather about a hundred were present representing five Methodist churches — West Highland, Orrville, Memorial, Alabama Avenue and Maplesville.

The banner was won by Orrville as they had finished more projects than any other church.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. George Gillespie, Mrs. V. B. McCain, Mrs. Cal Foshee, Mrs. Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. Maude Clements, Mrs. Evie Cochran and Mrs. J. P. Thomas.

Four members of the Maplesville W.S.C.S. attended their district meeting at Safford March 10th. They were Mrs. Maude Clements, Mrs. E. H. Fuqua, Mrs. V. B. McCain and Mrs. C. F. Baugh.

Plans are under way to paint the Baptist Church inside — which it really needs. Don't you think?

Red Cross Drive—

Mrs. R. W. Stremming was chairman of the Red Cross Drive for Maplesville. Her workers were: Mrs. John Durham, Mrs. Ethel Royster, Rev. Wm. F. Rasberry, Mr. Ed Clapp and Miss Frances Reynolds. With each worker she claims a job well done.

Each person had a part to play in lighting up the cross that stands in front of the City Hall.

Mayor McCain and Mr. Walker were very cooperative and she wants to thank them, also each giver and worker in helping to go over the top with our goal which was $500.00. We reached $582.20.

There is always those people that say, "It Can't Be Done," but Mrs. Stremming and her workers for the Red Cross Drive, have proved again that it can be done if enough time and effort is put forth.

Case of the Missing Manholes

Remember what a washboard Maple Avenue was and how last fall our Street Department did such a good job in resurfacing it?

Well, yesterday, Maple Avenue again saw a lot of activity. The whole town turned out to see the boys go up and down the street with a mine detector they borrowed from the National Guard.

Why a mine detector? Very simple. The Street Dept. had resurfaced Maple Avenue so smoothly, so thoroughly, that they covered up 4 of the manholes! (Only two still missing as of this a.m.)

From where I sit, sometimes you can overdo a good thing. I say "sometimes" because I know the retailers of beer in this state don't believe that, and rightly so. They bend every effort in working with the Brewing Industry and their Self-Regulation program — to keep their places spic 'n' span and orderly. They want a "smooth road" with the public and they're quick to "detect" hidden trouble spots beforehand.

Local Leaders And Teachers Encourage 4-H Talent

Principals, teachers and other adult leaders of many clubs in the county are encouraging the 4-H Club members to develop their talent by participating on local 4-H programs. The adult leaders are assisting the girls and boys with these programs in any possible way. Adults realize that overcoming stage-fright and developing poise as youth will be of value to the boys and girls throughout life. Appearing before their own group is one of the best ways to do this. They may have an opportunity to appear before other groups at other times.

Boys and girls take part on 4-H programs by giving devotionals, reading or reciting poems or stories, and individual or group singing. They also participate in giving demonstrations to their club. During the past month 4-H'ers presented good programs at these schools: Pinedale, Thomas Jr., Isabella Jr., Jemison Sr. and Concord.

Collins Chapel Home Demonstration Club

A new Home Demonstration Club has been organized in the Collins Chapel Community. Two meetings have been held, but because of sickness and bad weather the attendance has been low.

Ladies present at the meeting on Friday, February 20th, were: Mrs. R. O. Williams, Mrs. Hoyt Burgess, Mrs. Birtie Collins, Mrs. F. E. Barrette, Mrs. Ethel Littleton, and Mrs. Jesse McKinnon.

The procedure of a Home Demonstration Club meeting was discussed and the demonstration "Buying An All-Purpose Dress," was given by the Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Johnnie Martin. Officers were not elected because the ladies felt that more ladies would be present at the next meeting.

All ladies of the Collins Chapel community are invited and urged to attend the next Home Demonstration Club meeting which will be held at the school on Friday, March 27th, at 1:30 p.m.

Noted Choir To Sing At Thorsby Institute Friday

On Friday evening, March 13, at 8:00 p.m. the Howard College A appella Choir, under direction of George W. Koski will sing a concert at Thorsby Institute, under sponsorship of Senior Class. The proceeds of the concert will go toward buying the Senior class gift to the institution

The choir will sing a fourteen number program from memory with compositions ranging from sixteenth century to conteporary writers. One of the unusual numbers on the program is one that the choir world-premiered on its recent tour through Alabama and Georgia—the new arrangement of "Amazing Grace," by Dr. Charles Bryan, eminent authority on American folk music, who is now on the staff of Indian Springs School, Birmingham.

The choir is gaining a South-wide reputation having recently been invited to sing on the program of the Southern Music Educators Conference in Chattanooga, Tenn., on April 13. This is to be a meeting of all music teachers from eleven southern states. The choir will also give a thirty minute concert at the opening general session of Alabama Education Association in Birmingham on March 26. They have also been invited to sing at the National Southern Baptist Convention in May.

Tickets will be available at Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co., Alred-Wright Drug Co., Chilton County High School (Miss Marguerite Perry), Wyatt Drug Co., (Thorsby), or any Senior student of Thorsby Institute.

University Highway Church Of God

Well, since we haven't written to the paper in some time, we decided we would let you all know we are still over here having a good time serving the Good Lord with these good people, shouting and praising the Lord from time to time. Visitors are always welcome to our church.

Some might say I don't know what makes them Holiness people have so much meeting all the time. It is to thank the Good Lord for His keeping power and many other reasons. But please read I Cor. 10:1-12 and you will see we don't want to fall. Some of you don't believe in backsliding: thank God for that; I don't either, although people are doing it. Also I want you to consider and read Ezekiel 18:19-32. People, let's all study the Word of God and live true to Him so we can fulfill Matt. 24:13.

Well, I am beginning to feel like preaching, but I don't have room here, so I ask you to come to our church. We are having good services. We had several visitors Sunday night, which we were proud of.

This is a special invitation to you to come to our church for our all day service the fifth Sunday, March 29th. We have several already promised to be with us and they are God's children. I can't name all that have promised to be with us, although I will tell you of one family that is to be with us. Bro. David Collier and family of Wetumpka, the singing family. If it could be possible I would like for every church in reach of my church to send a representative of your church over to hear this family sing, and then they will have a chance to come to your church. They will bless your hearts.

We are also starting a revival the fifth Sunday night. Rev. J. S. Hawkins, Oak Grove pastor, will be our evangelist. — Rev. Jesse Mitchell, pastor. 2t

Scanning the News

● President Eisenhower's top aides told congress they see little chance of drastic cutbacks in defense and foreign-aid spending now and that it is questionable whether the budget can be balanced in the coming fiscal year. This bears out previous predictions of spokesmen in the administration.

● The nation's production of goods and services last year was the highest in history. It rose to $346 billion, a 5 per cent gain over dollar volume in 1951. Price increases, however, accounted for about half of this rise, so that the actual expansion in physical volume was around 2.5 per cent. Defense purchases in 1952 took about 14 per cent of total output.

● Secretary of State Dulles and his department, which is having its troubles with Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, has announced that the department does need a shake-up and that he is just the man to do it. At the same time he denied that department policies are being "dictated" by Senator McCarthy or other congressional investigators.

● Farmers welcomed the Eisenhower administration's announcement that it would continue to support butter and other dairy prices at 90 per cent of parity for another year. The announcement was made in the middle of a roaring debate over declining farm prices on the senate floor. Even as the debate raged, the Agriculture Department reported that the general level of farm prices dropped 1.48 per cent between mid-January and mid-February. It was the sixth consecutive monthly decline and it sent prices about 17 per cent below the record high of February, 1951.

● Some fairly sharp price rises occurred when the government jerked price ceilings from another 12 billion dollars' worth of goods, including cigarettes, nearly all groceries and two basic defense metals — copper and aluminum. Copper increased in price by 3 cents per pound and some cigarette makers raised their prices. The Office of Price Stabilization predicts that prices may continue to increase on some items for a short time.

● President Eisenhower said in his recent news conference he would be willing to meet Premier Stalin face to face and attempt to thresh out differences between the East and West. There was a condition to the offer, however, that makes such a meeting highly unlikely. That condition: any agreement made would have to be self-enforcing—that is, if there were safeguards against violation. The Russians have consistently rejected such agreements.

● Hawaii is having a spectacular boom. With the question of statehood under discussion in Washington, visitors are flocking to the islands. Some 60,000 visitors lolled on Hawaiian sands last year. That record rush compared with a tourist trade of 51,500 in 1951. Overflow reservation requests for the current season suggest a still bigger influx during 1953. Tourist money is the fastest growing source of income for Hawaii—even though it is still running well behind sugar, pineapple and armed services spending in size.

A ditty from one of our subscribers inspired by the coming baseball season, no doubt, was found in our morning mail. We'll pass it along to you. Get ready and hold on to seats:

Rebecca went to the well with the pitcher,
While Ruth in the field won fame.
The Prodigal Son made a home run
Then Noah gave a check for rain.

An old-fashioned baptism was under way at the shallow part of the river and Pa'son Jones was immersing a comely member of his congregation.

"Does yo' believe, Sistuh?" shouted the preacher as the girl came out of the water. Her sputtered "yes" was inaudible so down she went again.

"Now does yo' believes!" she was asked.

"Yes, ah believes!" she screamed.

"What does yo' believe, Sistuh?"

"Ah believes yoah trying to drown me, yo' ol' reprobate!"

A piece of concrete fell off the top of the courthouse last Saturday and hit a gentleman who was standing in front of the building on top of the head. Mildred Dilling, Harpist, To Play For Community Concert Patrons

JUNIOR PLAY—CRASHING SOCIETY

The Junior Class of Jemison High School will present "Crashing Society," a comedy in three acts by James C. Parker. The play has been scheduled for Friday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m., in the school auditorium.

Adam Dunnigan, an old fashioned country gentleman, inherits a million dollars. Elsie, his wife, is determined to "crash society," and Adam is forced to purchase an expensive home in New York City.

You will sympathize with Adam when Elsie prevails upon him to mingle with aristocrats, absorb culture, and endure the annoying observations of an English butler.

Follow the Dunnigan family through three weeks of New York social life and come prepared for two hours of wholesome hilarity when you see "Crashing Society."

The admission for children is 25c and for adults 50c.

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENT

March 14, 1953, Reverend R. E. Wilkins will preach in a series of revival services March 22-27, at the New Cedron Baptist Church, located ten miles south of Alabama Highway 22 on the Clanton-Billingsley Highway (Farm Road 13). The pastor, Rev. Eddie Ruddick, will bring the messages on the first day and then assist in the song services as Bro. Wilkins proclaims God's Word in the following services. Week day services will be at night at 7:30.

HOME MAKERS S. S. CLASS TO MEET THURSDAY

The Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church, Clanton, will have a spend-the-day on next Thursday of this week, March 19th, at the home of Mrs. Flem Higgins.

Each member is asked to come early and bring a covered dish and come prepared to sew for the needy.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon a business meeting will be called by the class President. This will take place at the regular monthly meeting.

Another great concert treat awaits the Chilton County Community Concert patrons, when on Thursday, March 19, Mildred Dilling will be the concert artist at the First Baptist Church auditorium. The concert will begin promptly at 8 o'clock. Miss Dilling has received world recognition as one of the outstanding harpists of our time. Born in America, she began her early musical studies in this country; later she continued them in Europe under Henriette Renie, the great French harpist. Her debut took place at the Salle Erard in Paris. Such was the success of this initial appearance that she was immediately engaged for gala concerts at the Trocadero and the Salle Gaveau, the largest concert halls in Paris, followed by concerts throughout the continent and the British Isles. While in Europe, the American artist had the distinction to be the first solo harpist to broadcast over the radio in Ireland, the land of the harp. She was also the first harp recitalist to appear before the television cameras of the British Broadcasting Company.

Returning to America, Miss Dilling immediately duplicated her continental triumphs. Today her annual recital tours of North America comprise upwards of 70 performances. She has appeared in recital in all 48 of the United States and in Canada, Mexico, Cuba, and the Caribbean area, Central and South America and Hawaii. She has appeared as soloist with many of the nation's leading orchestras. Her New York recitals are brilliant events in the music calendar of the metropolis. She has appeared as guest artist on many of the musical shows of the American radio and television networks. She has also had the honor to give seven invitation concerts at the White House.

No Trace Found Of Sam Littleton

Although extensive dragging operations have continued since the disappearance of Sam Littleton in the Coosa River last Wednesday no trace of his whereabouts is known.

Littleton left his river camp to search for some boats that had got loose and drifted down the river Wednesday morning and later in the day was reported seen at another river camp further down the river. However, although he left that camp to return home, he never reached there. He has not been heard from since.

Search for him continues.

Home-Town Veterans Service Forums Dated

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's three largest veterans groups today announced joint sponsorship, along with the State Department of Veterans' Affairs, of a series of home-town veterans service forums in eight Alabama towns. The series is slated to begin early in April, and will be designed especially to bring information on veterans benefits to the more than 50,000 Korean veterans who have returned to their homes in Alabama.

Cooperating in the state-wide effort is The American Legion and State Commander John Drinkard, of Cullman; the Disabled American Veterans and State Commander E. A. Fulmer, of Clanton; and the Veterans of Foreign Wars and State Commander David U. Patton, of Athens. Planned primarily for the information of county Veterans Service Officers and the volunteer service workers of local posts and chapters, all interested veterans will be welcomed and programs will be presented along informally along work-clinic lines. Most of the sessions will be devoted to question and answer periods covering all types of veterans benefits.

First of the meetings will be held at Monroeville on Thursday, April 9th, and will cover eight adjacent counties. The complete schedule of the forums is as follows:

Monroeville — Thursday, April 9.
Ozark — Friday, April 10.
Eutaw — Wednesday, April 15.
Clanton — Thursday, April 16.
Alex City — Friday, April 17.
Jasper — Wednesday, April 22.
Decatur — Thursday, April 23.
Gadsden — Friday, April 24.

Technical and professional staff for conducting the forums will be provided by the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs and the Veterans Administration. Representatives of the latter will include personnel from the Veterans Hospitals as well as from the Regional Office at Montgomery. Among subjects listed for discussion at all of the meetings will be such items as Widow's Pensions, Compansation, Hospitalization, Insurance, Education and Training, Loans, Outpatient treatment, and other matters of interest to veterans and their families.

In commenting upon the plans, C. C. Horton, Director of Veterans Affairs for Alabama, said that the meetings would be comparable to a similar series promoted under the auspices of the University of Alabama in 1945, which were highly successful. "Since that time," he continued, "the veteran population has increased by leaps and bounds, and that have been many changes in laws affecting them." He pointed out that 51,267 Alabamians had been discharged from Korean service by the end of January, and that thousands more would be discharged in succeeding months. "More than 3,100 casualties have already been suffered by Alabama troops serving in Korea," he stated, "and the very least the State and its veterans groups can do is to take information concerning rights and benefits which have accrued to them and their dependents as near to their homes as possible." He added that no county in Alabama had escaped Korean casualties.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The House of Representatives has voted to admit the Territory of Hawaii as our 49th state. It appears now that the proposal may be favored by the Senate, and, if so, President Eisenhower will approve the statehood bill because it was included in his campaign platform.

I voted against permitting Hawaii to become a state. As pointed out before, I received very little comment from people in the Sixth District about this critical issue. However, after an extensive study of the arguments for and against the proposal, I decided it would be for the best interest of the nation and Alabama to vote against the statehood bill.

After listening carefully to the House debate on this issue, it was my opinion that the arguments against statehood far outnumbered the arguments favoring it. I feel the issue is of such far-reaching importance that it will be permissible to devote this entire column to a discussion of my objections to statehood for Hawaii. I voted against the bill for a number of reasons, including these: The Territory of Hawaii is not contiguous to the United States; the population includes a large percentage of aliens; many of the people definitely lean toward Communism; admitting the Territory would cause disproportionate representation in Congress, with our own state of Alabama possibly losing a representative in the House as a result.

Not Adjacent to United States—

The Territory of Hawaii consists of a mass of about 20 islands with only eight or nine of them being inhabited. These islands stretch out over 1591 nautical miles in the Pacific Ocean, but the total land area is only 6400 miles. This area is just slightly larger than that of the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island combined. Many of the islands are separated from each other by the sea. Besides not bordering on any part of the United States, the long string of islands is almost out of the Western Hemisphere. Hawaii is about 2100 miles over sea or by air to the nearest point in the United States.

Statehood for Hawaii would establish a precedent of admitting territories far-removed from our present states—a precedent which could prove to be very dangerous. It would open the door to statehood for Puerto Rico, Guam, Alaska, Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Canal Zone.

History has proved that nations which keep reaching out far more and more power finally destroy themselves. The fact that ambitious politicians could not control their desires to take in and allow representation to great numbers of people with different ideals and customs contributed to the fall of the once-great Roman Empire. On the other hand, England has been wiser. Although the British government controls and protects its possessions, you will note that there are no members of arliament from Canada, Malta, Australia, New Zealand, or from other lands in the British Commonwealth which are far-removed from the British Isles.

Aliens Predominate—

If we admit Hawaii, it will be the first time we ever annexed a state where the Caucasion or white race was in the minority. The population of Hawaii includes approximately 79,000 of the white race and over 400,000 Asiatics, with about one-third of the total population being Japanese. Should the approximately 186,000 Japanese vote in a bloc, it would be possible for them to elect three members of the Congress and control the government of the Islands.

The entire alien population of the United States is only about 3%, but the alien population of Hawaii is approximately 13%.

Communism Is Danger—

Communism is an important factor that must be considered in any discussion of Hawaiian statehood. It is thought by any that the [illegible] labor [illegible] the Territ[illegible] is controlled by Communists. [illegible] and social organizations [illegible] have Communist members on their rolls.

The present method of appointment of Hawaiian government officials by the President of the United States is one sure way of preventing another race or another ideology from taking over the government of the Islands. It is not likely that the Governor of Hawaii or the Federal judges there will be Communists as long as they are appointed by the President of the United States. If Hawaii becomes a state, [illegible] guarantee will no longer exist, as it is conceivable that a group of persons of doubtful loyalty to our country could gain control of the Hawaiian government through local elections.

Let me make it clear that I am not questioning the loyalty of many fine American citizens living in Hawaii, but I do want to emphasize that Communism has been an active force in the Hawaiian Islands.

Unfair Representation—

If Hawaii is admitted as a state, the number of Representatives in Congress will be increased from the present 435 to 436. But when it comes time for reapportionment in 1950, this number will again be set at 435, and, as a result, some state will lose one of its representatives.

Alabama is one of several states recently losing population to the point that the decrease might well result in loss of representation. With Hawaii as a state, the danger of Alabama's losing a Representative in the House will be much greater.

It should also be noted that each Hawaiian would enjoy about six times the voting power of the average person in the United States in the choice of Senators. This would result because Hawaii's population is smaller than a majority of our states, and yet the Territory would elect two Senators just like all the other states.

Territory's Benefits—

I do not feel we will be doing an injustice to the people of Hawaii by leaving their islands as a Territory. The people of Hawaii now have nearly all the benefits they would have as a state. They enjoy local self-government. They have their own legislature which they elect themselves and which makes their own laws. They have a delegate to Congress who can express their views.

They participate in our Federal health program, our educational program, our road-building program, and all the other programs of assistance which are maintained by the United States government. They possess full control and management of all property they own. They have had and will continue to have our protection. In addition to all these advantages, citizens of Hawaii are also citizens of the United States.

Realizing the advantages now enjoyed by Hawaii as a Territory, and at the same time being aware of the possible dangers that their admission as a state might entail, I cast my vote in opposition to the bill.

To have voted for it would have been a vote to establish a precedent I think unwise. It would have been a vote against our long established policy, and, in my opinion, against our best interests.

Anyone who wishes the Chilton County Fruit & Truck Growers Association to find a market for his beans, okra or sweet potatoes, is urged to attend a meeting Tuesday night, March 17, at the old hardware store in Thorsby.

Unanimity of opinion is the enemy of democracy, and when encountered should be treated with suspicion.

There is something to the argument that people should not get rich on wars. The problem is how to prevent it.

People living in key metropolitan cities might look into the cost of bomb shelters, if they have nothing else to do.

If adults did not try to make children accept all the ideas of their ancestors the world might discover the truth a little faster.

One of these days we are going to solve the parking problem in our larger towns and cities, but we don't expect to live to see it.

One trouble with this country is the number of armchair strategists.

The difficulty in teaching is that those who need to know most refuse to seek knowledge.

It takes intelligence to admit that another is smarter than you are, in most respects.

The ads of some tobacco companies these days come close to misrepresentation.

Intellectuals are sometimes unhappy if they find a simple answer to the question of the day—and refuse to accept the obvious.

Many people don't consider anything important unless it is said or written by someone with a much-publicized name. They are the sheep.

It is easy to understand the failure of mankind to agree upon the fundamental truth when one reads the accounts of a controversial meeting by differing writers, with different political allegiances.

If the new administration ends the war, balances the budget, and cuts expenses appreciably, it will convince many doubters that 1952 was the time for a change.

COMMUNIST SCHOOL TEACHERS

In Washington, a sub-committee has been looking into the country's schools and has found that a total of 34 out of 41 New York teachers have refused to give a yes or no answer to the question whether they had been, or were, members of the Communist Party.

The teachers who have refused to answer have accused the committee of debasing the Senate, of invading the rights of academic freedom and of doing damage to the teaching profession and also harming pupils. Some of the teachers concerned are college-level teachers and others teach in elementary or high schools.

Perhaps the main contention of many of the teachers has been that their qualifications are a matter for the schools employing them to determine and pass upon and not a Senate investigating sub-committee. However, in view of the fact that the Communists profess a desire to overthrow this government, the jurisdiction of the sub-committee, which has questioned these teachers—an Internal Security sub-committee—is certainly involved.

Congress is naturally interested in what young people of this country are being taught, especially if there is a chance that teachers and propaganda are being planted in colleges and the schools in an effort to gain converts for the Communist Party. In this connection, we see no objection to the sub-committee, or to the school involved, quarying teachers on past or present Communist affiliation. And when any teacher fails to answer this question, the school concerned should take proper steps to satisfy all possible doubts or relieve him of his duties.

SPRING HOUSE CLEANING

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Today's crop of children seems to be growing up with an entirely new vocabulary. Words like supersonic, atomic, radar, jet-propelled and space men are part of their normal conversation, and those words were practically unknown to their parents. I suppose the same thing happens to every generation.

Recently, I've noticed the four-year-old, the six-year-old and their friends describe pain in new terms they all understand. All pain in that group is compared with penicillin shots.

'When the dentist filled my tooth, it hurt worse than a penicillin shot," the six-year-old said. And on other occasions the children have talked to a fall from a bike "not hurting as bad as a penicillin shot" or an earache "hurting almost as bad as a penicillin shot."

Anybody, young or old, who has had experience with those miracle shots will admit such comparisons of pain are appropriate.

The other morning when I dropped in to see the next door neighbor, I found her wringing out a cloth in very hot water and putting it on her husband's shoe. His foot was in the shoe.

At first I thought this was some new form of torture, maybe a refined version of the hot foot, but they both assured me it wasn't. Seems the shoe pinched the husband's toes, and the hot cloth treatment was meant to get rid of the pinch. After two or three applications, the shoe felt comfortable.

The next door neighbor taught me another shoe trick, too. When the leather lining inside her shoes becmes worn, she covers the hole with adhesive tape. This simple precaution keeps the rough places from wearing holes in hose.

Speaking of shoes, what I'd really like to learn is a way to keep an active youngster, aged four, from wearing out even the sturdiest footwear in less than six weeks.

* * *

The mother down the street, the one with the big family, has a wooden box near the front door to hold wet, muddy galoshes. Since she installed this handy receptacle, extra cleaning during wet weather has been almost eliminated.

One rainy day the children had a fine time painting the box and decorating it.

Just in case you've forgotten, Spring begins officially this week. The cold weather isn't over yet though, not if the old signs hold true. Remember that thunder back in January? Old timers say the thunder means frost in April, and according to the notes on my calendar the frost should come during the second week in April. We will see. Anyhow, I'm not going to store the blankets or the winter coats until after April 15.

* * *

Here's a suggestion for a Spring salad: Chop green onions into cottage cheese and mix well. Roll the mixture in lettuce leaves, fasten with colored tooth picks and serve with crisp carrot and celery sticks.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

PRENATAL CARE

Every parent wants a sound, healthy baby; but to achieve this goal, many overlook the need for good prenatal care. Wise is the young woman who has a thorough physical examination even before motherhood is anticipated, so that any abnormalities, if any, can be corected before begins.

As soon as pregnancy is suspected, a woman should consult her physician. This is the first prerequisite of good prenatal care. In most women, the physician is able to make the diagnosis of pregnancy early, that is within the first four to eight weeks of the baby's development.

Emotional upsets are often a part of the pattern of pregnancy and it is the physician who stands by to help the mother into an understanding of herself. Many expectant mothers have fears, many of which are based on "old-wives" tales and which have been handed down through the years. The most common fear of this type is of causing birthmarks on the newborn. One of the more frequent fears is that of congenital deformities. Actually, the incidence of major congenital deformities is so small that the fear is unwarranted.

The more occupied an expectant mother is, the happier she will be. Her activities may be regulated by her physician if necessary, but under normal conditions she can be kept busy preparing for the future event by continuing daily routines, by knitting or sewing, by shopping by walks, by reading, or engaging in other activities that she enjoys.

The role of "expectant father" is important in the period of prenatal care, and wise is the man who accompanies his wife to the physician, understands his instructions and helps cary them out. Harmony in the home and an understanding of one another's mutual needs all contribute to the good health of the parents and the new baby.

No Food And Clothing Without Water Supply

It takes 5000 gallons of water to produce a bushel of corn, 100 gallons to produce one pound of cotton, and 1300 gallons to produce a pound of beef.

"And the best way to conserve water for these purposes is to fit crops and farming practices to the land on the farm," states S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist.

He adds that on most farms a combination of the following practices is required on most cropland: Terraces and sodded outlets, contour cultivation, sod crops and crop rotations that add organic matter to the soil, and applications of mineral fertilizers.

STATE SUPERINTENDENT

Governor Persons called a statewide conference in Montgomery at the State Capitol on Thursday and Friday, February 26-27, to consider the possibilities and significance of educational television as additional means of providing educational opportunities for the youth and adults of Alabama.

The Federal Communications Commission on April 15, 1952, reserved 242 television channels for non-commercial educational use in the country. Five of these channels were allocated to Alabama: Namely, Auburn, Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery and Tuscaloosa. A State Educational Television Committee consisting of leaders in education throughout the state has studied this problem for several months and has employed an engineer to make a survey to determine how many channels are needed to provide state-wide coverage. The survey reveals that a minimum of seven stations is needed.

The group called together by the Governor represented education, business, legislators, industry and a cross section of the public. Outstanding consultants in the field of television from different parts of the country participated in the discussion. Particular attention was paid to the development and televising of programs, the organization and administration of a statewide network and methods of constructing and operating stations.

The conference suggested that steps be taken for the utilization of the five educational TV channels which have already been allocated to Alabama and that additional channels be sought through the Federal Communications Commission. The conference recommended the creation of an educational television commission to draw up detailed plans relative to the development of a state-wide system of stations in Alabama.

Senior Three Class Of Chilton High To Present Play

The Senior III Class of Chilton County High School will present, "The Beauty and the Beef," March 17th, at 12:30 and 7:30. The play has an unusual plot and the cast is also unusual, for there are 19 main characters plus eight extras. This gives 27 members of the class a chance to enjoy participating in the three-act comedy which will keep the audience thoroughly satisfied.

Ginny Allen and her family move from Chicago to Canterberry, a small town, to live down Ginny's reputation of being on the Junior Quiz Program for three consecutive years. Here Beef, the football captain, believing Ginny to be dumb offers to help her with history. He is capable of doing this for he has a condition in the subject. An amazing tragedy of errors occurs and Beef is suspended from the great game with a rival school. Ginny and Franny, her best friend, devise a method by which Beef will play. This not only succeeds in sending all of the team to the hospital but also sends Ginny to jail. Her family is disgraced and Beef hates her. Molly Woods, a friend of Ginny's brother, Lester, helps to redeem Ginny and as the curtain closes all is well.

The Seniors have worked hard and would like to see many Chilton County people at their two performances.

Remember March 17th is the day. The City Hall is the way; "Not too much money" is all you pay, so come on friends, why not say; "I'll come to see The Beauty and the Beef."

The characters are:

Ginny, Judith Williams; George, Louie Reynolds; Laura, Ann Fiquette; Lester, Rusty Shelton; Professor Barton, Jimmy Lowery; Franny, Sally McDowell; Beef, Glennis Askins; Molly, Bobbie Jean Sullivan; Foggy, William Earl Reid; Miss Bigby, Marjorie Chancellor; Barbara, Barbara Davidson; Scaffold, Wayne Giles; Steve, Eddie Baker; Bubbles, Frank Watts; Betty, Mary Patterson; Dot, Willodean Davis; Mitzie, Jean Synder; Dr. Spencer, Margaret Martin; Wallace Woods, Joel Thornton.

Extras — Bill Smith, Bill Stroud, Barbara Campbell, Lillie Mae Jones, Ralph Jones, Wayne Caton, Joe Ellison and Corky Oaks.

FARM PROFITS

Efficient farming means producing at low cost per bushel, ton, or other unit, so that the greatest net profit can be secured.

COINS TESTED

In accordance with a practice which was begun in the days of Alexander Hamilton, dimes, quarters and half dollars went "on trial" before a thirteen-man commission recently to see if they met the legal requirements of weight, measurement and metallic content. They all passed the test.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. E. E. Brown, Hannibal, N. Y.: I remember when Middlesborough, Kentucky, did not have houses enough for its residents and I lived with my parents in a tent furnished by the State of Kentucky. We lived on what was then known as Queensbury Heights. My parents were employed by "The Middlesboro News" the town's first newspaper.

From Nancy Ingle, Iendrick, Idaho: I remember when women horseback riders rode only "side saddles" with the right leg thrown over the saddle horn, and only the left in the stirrup, with the dress always covering the shoe top. Never must she ride astride—that was for men and boys only.

From Mrs. G. M. Houck, Hastings, Pa.: I remember when mother scrubbed the bare wooden floor of our kitchen, using homemade lye soap, and the floor was as white as a polished bone.

From Lewis B. Avery, Clinton, Michigan: I remember in the 1870's when some of us boys wore red top boots, and that we were always outgrowing them, so that before they were worn out, we had a whale of a time putting them on and off; and when my grandmother made tallow candles, 12 at a time with candle molds; when my mother was always afraid of kerosene lamps, because of the reputation they had for exploding as a result of the oil not being sufficiently free of gasoline; when matches were scarce, and my grandfather one time borrowed a shovel full of coals to start a fire in our kitchen stove; and when sleigh bells were frequently used on horses in the winter time. I also remember my father's old musket and his light green overcoat with cape to cover the shoulders, which he used during the Civil War.

MUSIC AT MIDNIGHT

"And Paul and Silas prayed and sang praises unto God; and the prisoners heard them."—Acts 16:25.

Did anybody ever hear of an event parallel to that? Think of it! Of course a company of dissipated wretches, when imprisoned as disturbers of the peace, might make the night hideous with ribald songs. But Paul and Silas had been seized without warrant, guilty of no transgression of either the civil or moral law, victims of malignant hate and had been committed to the inner cell of a loathsome jail. With no advocate at court, no character witness in their behalf, their outlook was hopeless indeed. And yet they cheered their fellow-prisoners with melodies of praise to their God! We challenge the records of any other penal institution to produce an incident similar to that.

The question upon every lip is "Why?" Why should any sane person under such circumstances break the stillness of the night with tuneful praise to God, who to all appearances had withdrawn his favor from him? Echo answers. "Why?"

Here is the key to the enigma. Those men were possessors of hidden spiritual resources that no calamity could destroy, an ardor that no deluge of discouragement could dampen. Of each it could be said:

"Thou hast no sorrow in thy song,
No winter in thy year."

They had been subjected to the torture begotten by venemous malice; and yet by the alchemy of divine revealment, they could hear the echoes of an ancient shepherd song, "Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies. . . Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

The doctrine of divinely inspired assurance occupies a place in the topmost bracket of Christian experience. Untoward circumstances are merely incidental to those who rest on the bracing promises of our covenant keeping God. He never deserts, nor does he ever forget his own.

Until his old age William E. Gladstone was still carrying on his heart and mind the burdens of the British Empire. A newspaper reporter once made the trip from London to Hawarden Castle to discover if possible the secret of the old man's serenity, amid the harrowing vexations incident to his position as chief adviser of his government in time of storm. Ushered into the Prime Minister's sitting room, the first thing that the visitor noticed was this sentence in letters of gold, in rainbow shape above the mantel, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." That was sufficient. The reporter returned to Downing Street with the statement that he had found the answer even before Mr. Gladstone had spoken.

Did you ever hear an old Gospel song that carries the refrain, "God will take care of you?" That was the way Paul and Silas felt about it. Therefore from the depths of a dungeon there came the sound of praises from trustful hearts.

Selden Introduces Tax Reduction Bill

Washington, D.C. — Rep. Armistead I. Selden, Jr., introduced a bill in Congress today which provides that all medical and dental expenses can be deducted for income tax purposes if they are not more than the present maximum deductions.

Under the law now in force, a taxpayer cannot begin to subtract medical and dental bills until they amount to more than 5% of his total income. Selden's bill would amend the Internal Revenue Code and remove this limitation.

"I am introducing this bill," Congressman Selden said, "in an effort to bring a measure of relief to all taxpayers, and particularly those with small incomes who have illness in their families."

"Many citizens with modest incomes," he continued, "spend $100 or $200 each year for medical expenses, but they are not allowed to deduct that amount in computing the tax they pay. The bill I propose will permit the taxpayer to subtract this first 5% (if the expenses are not covered by insurance), as well as any over that percentage."

Rep. Selden's bill will not change the maximum limit for medical and dental expenses. This means that not more than $1250 can be deducted for medical expenses of any one dependent and not more than $5,000 for any one family per year. Nor would the bill affect those taxpayers who prefer to take the so-called standard deductions on their income tax returns.

"I am certainly in favor of stabilizing our dollar by balancing the budget as soon as possible," Selden emphasized. "However, I do not believe passage of this bill would seriously hinder efforts of Congress to balance the budget. It is my opinion that the total loss of revenue from this bill would not be great, considering the billions of dollars included in each year's budget."

Selden's tax bill was referred to the Ways and Means Committee for study.

Third Annual API Beef Cattle Field Day Is Scheduled

Auburn, Ala. — The third Annual API Beef Cattle Field Day is scheduled for May 6 at the North Auburn Beef Cattle Research Unit of the Animal Husbandry and Nutrition Department.

The morning program will feature a tour of the pastures and observation of the cattle on the breeding project. In the afternoon research results of performance testing will be revealed, and 30 to 35 of the performance tested bulls from both the Aberdeen - Angus and Hereford breeds will be sold at auction. The bulls have been on rate of gain test at the Experiment Station in cooperation with purebred breeders of Alabama.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

In January, 1831, the Lower Creek Indians sent a Commission to Washington protesting the laws of Alabama over them and the settling of white people on their lands. Lewis Cass, Secretary of War, advised that the President of the United States could not prevent the operation of the Alabama laws over them, and urged them to consent to removal west of the Mississippi.

On March 24, 1832, the Creek Nation ceded to the U. S. all their land east of the Mississippi River except individual selections which they were allowed to occupy for five years unless sooner sold by them. Ninety principal Chiefs were to have a section of land, each and every head of a family to have a half section, for which each would have a deed at the end of five years. These selections were to be made so as to include the improvements of the Indians.

The agreement between the Creek Indian Nation and the U. S. government by which the Indians were moved from the present state of Alabama resulted in much unhappiness for the Indians. Much of the land which was to have been reserved for the Creeks was fraudulently certified to land speculators and the Indians got little benefit therefrom. Reserved under this scheme were 2,187,200 acres for the Indians, out of a total whole credited to the Creeks of 5,200,000 acres.

A census completed on May 1, 1833, in connection with movement of the Creek Indian Nation from the area that now is Alabama disclosed that there were 14,142 members of the Creek Tribe in the Upper Nation, and 8,552 Creeks in the Lower Nation.

Open hostilities between the Creek Indians and white settlers in Alabama broke out in 1833 following the negotiations by which the Creeks were to have moved out of the territory that is now Alabama. The War Department maintained a heavily garrisoned post at Fort Mitchell in Russell County, Alabama, in the heart of the Lower Creek Nation, but the presence of these troops only had a minimum effect. By 1835, clashes between white settlers and the Indians broke out. Conflicts in the Lower Nation resulted in the so-called Creek Indian War of 1836.

On October 31, 1833, President Andrew Jackson sent Francis Scott Key, author of the 'Star-Spangled Banner' to Alabama to adjust the differences between the State of Alabama, and the General government. After some weeks in Alabama, most of which time was spent in Tuscalocsa, in the home of Gov. John Gayle, in the attempt to reconcile these differences, Key returned to Washington and made his report.

In 1835, federal troops were removed from Fort Mitchell in Russell County, Ala., and hostilities continued between the whites and Indians, becoming so serious that Gov. C. C. Clay of Alabama called out State troops and a number of companies volunteered. Several clashes between the troops and the Indians took place. The troop headquarters were at Fort Mitchell as operations extended as far south as Eufaula, and as far west as Okfuski Creek, now known as Line Creek, from the fact that this stream had been designated under the 1814 Fort Jackson Treaty as the National boundary line.

Two Universities Launch New Journalism Courses

Two Eastern universities—Syracuse and the Hartford Seminary Foundation—have announced a joint program to train men and women to write simple leaflets and articles for the millions of adults who are learning to read in underdeveloped countries around the world.

The announcement was made by Dr. Wesley C. Clark, dean of the Syracuse University School of Journalism, and Dr. J. Maurice Hohlfeld, acting dean of the Kennedy School of Missions of the Hartford Seminary Foundation, "a university of religion" at Hartford, Conn.

The need for workers trained in "literacy journalism" or "simply journalism" has been pointed up recently, because technical programs to develop the so-called backward countries rely on the printed word for long-term success, Deans Clark and Hohlfeld said. The step is also a reaction to the expansion of Communism.

"The Communists have worked diligently to spread their cheap propaganda materials among the masses of Asia as they learn to read," the announcement added. "By contrast, our side has been pretty slow in getting out newspapers and magazines for the new readers in their own languages."

"But now we're going to do it. Both thoughtful leaders in the West and officials of national governments in the East are coming to see that we have to produce simple, helpful literature to educate and inspire new literates. This agreement is one of the first big steps to that goal."

The plan provides that qualified college graduates shall spend a year at the Foundation in Hartford to study such courses as adult literacy education, linguistics and anthropology. Then each student will spend a year at Syracuse in writing, editing and graphic arts classes. Upon completion of the program, he will receive a master of science degree from Syracuse University. Robert Laubach, who has been on literacy teams in Africa and Southeast Asia, Professor Root, acting director of religious journalism, and Dr. George Bird, chairman of the Graduate Division will cooperate in the program at the Syracuse School of Journalism.

"Because of the need for this kind of journalism, we believe graduates will find opportunities to go abroad and enter his new writing and editing field," Dean Clark said. "The United States government, the various governments of Asia, and private organizations, such as church mission boards, have expressed a desire for qualified persons who can put out attractive publications for the masses of Africa, the Near East and Asia."

MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE AND CONTROL OF CHILTON COUNTY, ALABAMA, OF MARCH 9, 1953.

Board Meeting
March 9, 1953

The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, met in regular session at the county courthouse at Clanton, Alabama, on March 9, 1953, at 9:00 o'clock, a.m. The following were present: M. D. Tingle, Judge of Probate and Chairman of said Board, and the following Associate Members of said Board: V. O. Lenoir, A. H. Smith, Sherman Motley and J. M. Dunlap; absent: none. Judge Tingle presided as Chairman of the meeting and, a quorum being present, declared the meeting open for the transaction of business.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board read the minutes of the meeting of the Board held on February 23, 1953, whereupon the Chairman of the Board asked for corrections or additions to said minutes, there being no corrections or additions to said minutes and the same being correct, Mr. Lenoir made a motion that said minutes stand adopted as read, whereupon Mr. Dunlap seconded said motion, which motion was unanimously carried, and all the members of said Board affixed their signatures to said minutes in the presence of the Board and the Clerk.

Whereupon, the County Engineer, J. D. Bullington, informed the Board that he had employed, subject to the approval of the Board, the following: Cary Bone, Day Laborer, effective January 5, 1953; and Preston A. Ousley, Engineer Assistant I, effective February 9, 1953, and requested the Board to approve such employment. Whereupon, Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control does hereby approve the employment of the following: Cary Bone, Day Laborer, effective January 5, 1953, and does hereby fix his rate of pay at $5.50 per day; and Preston A. Ousley, Engineer Assistant I, effective February 9, 1953, and does hereby fix his salary at $140.00 per month, payable monthly.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

Whereupon, the County Engineer, J. D. Bullington, requested the Board to reclassify E. M. Hayes from a Foreman to a Highway Superintendant for State Aid County Project No. 3104-A&B.

Whereupon, Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Dunlap:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Board of Revenue and Control does hereby reclassify E. M. Hayes as Highway Superintendant for State Aid County Project No. 3104-A&B and that he serve as such is hereby fixed at $215.00 per month, payable monthly.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

WHEREUPON, the Clerk of the Board presented to the Board a list of claims and accounts that were filed with the Board, whereupon the Board proceeded to audit and allow said claims, and it appearing to the Board that each of the following claims are entitled to be allowed, and should be allowed, in the amounts hereinafter set out, and that the claims, supplies and materials covered by the following claims were purchased, delivered or performed for the use and benefit of Chilton County, Alabama, and that the same are just, due, correct and unpaid claims against said County, whereupon Mr. Motley introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption, which motion was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir and unanimously adopted by the vote of the Chairman and all the members of the Board:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That said claims are hereby audited, allowed, passed and approved by the Board. And be it further ordered by the Board that each of the claims, payable to the respective parties, as hereinafter set out, and in the materials or services as hereinafter set out, and in the amounts as hereinafter set out, be allowed, AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That the Chairman of the Board is hereby directed and authorized to draw a proper county warrant on the county treasury for the correct amount in the payment of each of said claims, to the proper party, person, firm or corporation to whom it is due, from the funds listed:

Mr. Dunlap offered the following preamble and resolution for adoption; which were duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

WHEREAS Chilton County has plans for the construction of a permanent type of paved road in Chilton County, Alabama, generally known as the Clanton-Kincheon Road, which said road has been designated as Project Number SACP-3124-A and

WHEREAS, a map of said project is duly recorded in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, in map book number three, page number twenty-three, and

WHEREAS, of said map there is designated the property owners across whose property said rights-of-way pass, and

WHEREAS, all said designated property owners have executed conveyances to Chilton County of said rights-of-way and easements, except across the properties described as: W. B. Eiland, Mrs. Bulah Henley, Mrs. Carlese Rollan, Ben Looney Estate, E. F. Baker and Lula Mae Gordon.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Chilton County proceed immediately to institute and prosecute condemnation proceedings to acquire the necessary rights-of-way and easements upon, over and across the lands designated on said map as the lands of W. B. Eiland, Mrs. Bulah Henley, Mrs. Carlese Rollan, Ben Looney Estate, E. F. Baker and Lula Mae Gordon. All of said lands lying and being within the boundaries of said map. And

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That Joe Mullins, an Attorney at Law, be and he is hereby employed and authorized to file and prosecute said condemnation suit on behalf of Chilton County and to do any or all acts necessary for the acquisition of said rights-of-way and easements as shown by said map and specifications approved by the State Highway Department. And

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED AND ORDERED: That compensation for services rendered by said Attorney shall be fixed at a reasonable amount upon entering final decree in the Probate Court in said matter.

The above stated preamble and resolution were adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

Mr. Smith offered the following resolution for adoption which was duly seconded by Mr. Motley:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: that the purchasing agent is hereby directed to secure bids and purchase fifty steel folding chairs to be used in the main court room.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

Mr. Dunlap offered the following resolution for adoption; which was duly seconded by Mr. Lenoir:

BE IT RESOLVED AND ORDERED: There being no further business to come before the meeting, that said Board adjourn.

The above stated resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of all the members present.

I, Harold H. Smyer, Clerk of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, hereby certify that the foregoing minutes of the proceedings of said Board meeting held on March 9th, 1953, were entered and recorded in this minute book, reproduced and a sufficient number of copies of same were filed in the office of the Probate Judge, a copy of same furnisher to the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in Chilton County, for publication, and a copy of the same was posted in a conspicuous place in the courthouse on the 14th day of March, 1953.

ideas from other editors

From The Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas: A man serving overseas in the war area of Korea was asked what could be done for the fighting men in the way of gifts. He replied in no uncertain terms that "the finest thing to be done is the maintenance of a politically and economically sound home front." He said further that, "With a reasonable degree of integrity on the part of most people that will be brought about."

To do the things necessary to assure men on the war fronts that there will be such an America to return to is not too much demand of every American on the home front.

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, New York: The weekly newspaper is more important than ever. Because the world is moving so swiftly there is need of the intimate, grass-roots touch which the weekly can and must give. Since there are so many demands on everyone's time, readers demand the happenings of the week wrapped up in a neat condensed and newsy package.

From the Ocean Grove Times, Ocean Grove, New Jersey: A sure sign that inflation is over will be when auto makers start mentioning the price of their cars in their advertising. Benjamin J. Fairless, president of the United States Steel Corporation, has even a better idea. He would not only reveal the price of the car; he would reveal all the hidden taxes buried in that price. The tax on a $2,000 automobile, for instance, is $625, but the buyer does not know this.

From the Mount Airy Community Reporter, Mount Airy, Maryland: Here in the United States . . . our bullets are ballots and the only heads that roll are those which figuratively topple as the people demand a change peacefully—and get it. It's a good system. Here's hoping we can continue to keep it. Revolutions like these are good ones. They keep a country strong, healthy and sound.

From the Free Press, South Charleston, West Virginia: The commentators and columnists have been speculating on what Mr. Eisenhower's government fiscal policy will be. The consensus, based on his statements and those of his close advisors, run about as follows:

Spending will be cut in every possible direction. Waste and non-essentials will be curbed. Every effort will be made to balance the budget immediately. Once that is done, taxes will be reduced both for businesses and individuals. There is a possibility that the so-called excess-profits tax will be abandoned entirely when the current law expires next June. This tax, most economists agree, is an unfair and dangerous burden on business—and most especially on the smaller business, which is deprived of funds needed for growth purposes.

That, so far as one can see now, will be the Eisenhower program. It is the only kind of program that can be trusted to save this country from bankruptcy. No nation—and no system of government can forever survive official corruption and deficits in the national treasury.

POP record hits, according to some music business theoreticians, frequently come from left field, but never from any place as remote as Japan . . . Latest surprise, however, is a Japanese product, written and recorded in that country with an American GI vocalist . . . Title is "Gomen-Nasai" (translation—"Please Forgive Me"), and it's now a hit on both sides of the Pacific.

Several weeks ago a sailor from the U.S.S. Bon Homme Richard mailed a Nippon-Columbia recording, which he had purchased in Tokyo, to a Los Angeles disc jockey . . . It was played but once and a storm of excitement broke . . . The station was swamped with phone calls and west coast music business was in a turmoil as the search for writer and recording artist began . . . After a week's search by Columbia Records' Paul Weston, the U.S. Army Public Relations Office and the Walt Disney Music Publishing Firm, the song hit team was identified . . . Composer was Tokyo bandleader Raymond Hattori . . . Lyricist, ex-Sergeant Benedict Meyers, was located in Chicago where he is now teaching at Roosevelt College, and the vocalist, ex-Corporal Richard Bowers, was found working in a New Jersey factory while awaiting a Civil Service appointment.

Bowers had sung for his own enjoyment for many years and occasionally did camp shows and radio broadcasts in addition to his clerical duties for the army in Tokyo . . . He was recruited to do the English vocal for a recording of "Gomen-Nasai" . . . The tune became a hit in Japan . . . Discharged from the army, Bowers returned to New Jersey where he suddenly got word that he had become the sought-after vocalist on a hit record . . . He now has an American Columbia recording contract, personal manager, and a movie contract—all as a result of his Japanese recording session for which he was paid $50 at the time.

If you haven't caught up with this lovely ballad yet, by all means do so as it is indeed beautiful Reverse side has "Tokyo Boogie Woogie," American jive sung in Japanese by an Oriental hepster named Shizuko Kasagi.

The purpose of the convention is for the transaction of business and presentation of missions on home and foreign fields. Miss Addie Cox of China and Formosa will be a featured speaker on Tuesday afternoon.

Girl's Auxiliary members, under the direction of Miss Marjorie Stith, will present on Tuesday evening a pageant featuring their fortieth anniversary. Miss Margaret Bruce, convention-wide young people's secretary, will bring the missionary message.

Wednesday will present such speakers as Miss Emily Lansdell, president of the W.M.U. Training School, Louisville; Mr. Paul Rogosin, missionary to Russians in California; Miss Blanche White, Richmond, Virginia; Mrs. Clyde Dotson, Southern Rhodesia; Dr. Joe W. Burton, Nashville; and Dr. Oscar Davis, president of Alabama Baptist Convention.

Miss Irene Chambers, field representative of the Home Mission Board, and Dr. A. L. Gillespie of Japan will speak Wednesday evening.

Goals for the year, the election and installation of officers, and messages by Mrs. John L. Isaacs, Mrs. Allegra LaPrairie of New Orleans, Mrs. W. F. Reeves, and Miss Blanche White will conclude the session on Thursday morning.

Miss Chambers and Miss Cox will be speakers at the YWA banquet at the church on Tuesday evening at 5:00 p.m. The Judson friends will meet at the Whitley for luncheon on Wednesday. The Training School alumnae will dine together at the church Wednesday noon.

Legends of EASTER

By Eve Arden

School marm "Connie Brooks"

A MORE permanent calendar date for Easter has been sought for centuries but never, to this day, agreed upon. The anniversary of the Ressurection may fall upon any date from March 22 to April 25th.

Eve Arden . . . the sun dances

Easter is on the Sunday after the first full moon following the spring equinox (March 21) —a compromise of many ancient church feuds — and this date may vary technically in certain longitudes.

The name Easter comes from the Teutonic goddess Eostre whose festival was celebrated in the spring, season symbolic of the renewal of life. Eostre loved children and delighted in gaining their friendship; it was she, legend declares, who transformed a beautiful bird "into Mr. Hippety Hop"—our fun-loving Easter Bunny.

It is believed Easter eggs originally were dyed red to represent the blood of the Savior. Other bright colors were added probably to imitate the colors of spring foliage and flowers. The egg was the original Easter card, inscribed and exchanged with good wishes, until 1850 when the people of Germany thought up the less costly printed medium.

The Easter Parade?—well, that goes back over 1600 years. In the 5th century Roman Emperor Constantine decreeded that his entire court wear their best robes to honor the Feast of the Resurrection; people have been tuckering up in their finest ever since.

And old belief is that the sun dances on Easter morning and that those who rise on time can see it —the tradition behind Easter morning sunrise services. . . . A happy spring season to you and yours—"Connie Brooks," television's "Our Miss Brooks," Friday nights, CBS-TV.

BIG BUSINESS

Sixty-four of the 100 largest industrial corporations in this country in 1909, ranked according to size of assets, lost their top position by 1948 to newcomers in the industrial field. Only thirty-one maintained their top position consistently, according to a survey by the Brookings Institution, of Washington.

DULLES' REPORT

In a radio and television report to the nation, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles declared that Europe has "already done much" but that more speed on a "constructive program of unity" is needed to justify continued U. S. help." Dulles advised a "sober and restrained national policy for this country, warning that "any false step could mean disaster."

SUNDAY'S SERMON

. . . essay for March 22: Matthew 26: 6-13; 26-30

Golden Text: John 10: 17-18

The anointing with precious ointment brought sharp contrasts between the disciples and the woman who came with the alabaster box of ointment very costly. The disciples even reached the point of indignation that the woman had anointed the Master instead of turning the ointment into cash. One gospel tells us that it was Judas who voiced this indignation because he was a thief and held the bag. He did not want to see money wasted, as he deemed it, by pouring the ointment upon the Master's head.

We may well believe that, long before the day of savings banks and high-pressure advertisements to induce people to invest in one and use it, the woman had learned how to save. It is likely that she saved with her act of adoration in view—saved until the great hour when she could anoint her Master's head.

The night before the crucifixion, as Jesus and his disciples were preparing to leave the upper room in Jerusalem, the Lord instituted the Sacrament of His Supper that, henceforth, men might have a ceremonial designed to help them remember him. It also brings an opportunity to men to declare their faith and show their discipleship to the world.

Let gratitude grow in the heart for the blessed hours that closely preceded the crucifixion. And let us all resolve that in all we do and say we shall be remembering Jesus in the way we live.

Instead of ironing tea towels, fold them neatly and run them through a wringer.

LITTLE THINGS about the Stars

TELEVISION - RADIO - HOLLYWOOD

By GEORGE LILLEY

NEW YORK, N. Y.—"The Railroad Hour," five years old, Monday nights, NBC, continues one of radio's most listenable musical programs ("Champion of Champions," according to a recent nation-wide poll of newspaper editors and critics). Young Gordon MacRae, who started as an NBC page, has been star of the show since it began in 1948. He sings and acts the leading man role in a world-famous operetta each week. Coming on the schedule:

Victor Herbert's "Princess Pat," March 30, with Elaine Malbin. It's the story of an Italian prince and Irish princess who help a friend escape from an unwanted marriage. April 6: Jerome Kern's "Sally"—a dish-washing waif and a waiter dressed in fine clothes who find adventure and romance crashing fine parties—co-starring MacRae and Lucille Norman. April 13: "Fortune Teller," also by Victor Herbert," story of an impoverished nobleman who tries to obtain the fortune of a young ballet singer who does not know she has inherited wealth. Co-stars: MacRae and Dorothy Warenskjold.

MEN BEHIND THE SCENE

You can pretty well believe everything you see on television's "Cavalcade of America" (alternate Wednesday nights, NBC-TV). Few programs go to such pains-taking detail to authenticate effects and costumes viewed on the show. Dr. Francis Ronalds, advisor for national park sights and monuments of the U. S. Dept. of Interior, checks scripts and visual details, often visiting the actual locale of a story. On the West Coast, Professor Wayne Miller, dept. of History, Univ. of Southern Calif., is an authority on "Cavalcade" scenes. The research staff of Western Costumes, supply house of costumes to the movies, also is called upon.

REJUVENATED RADIO

The radio networks, rather than lying down to television, are accelerating many of their activities. The important field of Public Affairs, for instance, a field in which CBS Radio has excelled, has been regenerated at that network, now operates as a full-fledged department with its own director, Stuart Novins, rather than as a subsidiary of News. Regular programs include "Invitation to Learning," "Church of the Air," "Washington, USA," "Adventures in Science" and "Capitol Cloakroom," while full hours documentary broadcasts, such as the recently heralded "Bomb Target — USA," are to be heard more frequently.

State Welfare Payments Increase $6.34

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons disclosed today that the average state welfare payment for January, 1953, was up $6.34, or nearly 30 per cent, over January, 1951.

Continuing his series of letters to Alabama legislators giving them information on the state financial situation, Governor Persons said that total receipts for the State Welfare Department for the fiscal year 1952 were $34,647,786.52. Approximately three-fourths of this, or $25,645,328.36 came from the federal government.

He said that the Relative Responsibility Law which the 1951 legislature passed had allowed investigations showing "There were literally thousands of people obtaining assistance which was found to be unjustified. Therefore, these people were dropped from the welfare rolls and the result was that those whose needs really justified it were able to get an average of about 30 per cent increase over 1951 payments."

Since October, 1951, the Relative Responsibility Law has caused 7,087 cases to be closed, 993 applications to be rejected, and 1,857 payments to be reduced.

Governor Persons pointed out that the investigations in every case were made "by local people in the different county offices. We all know," he said, "that local people know local conditions because they are right on the ground to investigate each individual situation."

In January, 1953, some 99,037 cases received an average of $29.13. This compares to January, 1951, when 110,168 persons received checks averaging $22.79 each.

Last January, 69,680 aged received monthly checks of $26.75. The January, 1951, figure was 81.530, at $20.48 each. The average increase per check was $6.27.

In January, 1951, a total of 52,-131 children in 18,817 families received average payments of $33.34 per family, or $12.04 per child. Last January's figure was 51,511 children in 18,215 families receiving average payments of $39.08 per family, or $13.82 a child. The average payment for each child jumped $1.78.

In the 12 Southern States, Alabama ranks seventh in number of old people per thousand receiving assistance, and sixth in number of children under 18 receiving aid. Alabama ranks below all states but Arkansas and Mississippi in per capita income.

With the federal government furnishing $25,645,328.36 of the total of $34,647,786.52, the state-furnished remaining $9,002,458.16 came from these sources: State General Fund, $4,893,400.80; ABC System, $1,319,-066.90; Unused portion of Confederate veteran fund, $1,467,990.46; sales tax, $1,322,000.

Washing Rice Is Not Recommended

Vitamins may be washed off brown and partially polished rice, according to Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist.

Tests show that brown rice loses about 10 per cent of its original vitamin B1 when washed through five changes of water, even though the washing is rapid. As for partially polished rice, tests show that it loses about 20 per cent of its thiamine through washing and cooking. Washing off the powdery rice polish which clings to the grains probably accounts for much of this loss.

"White rice, which has little or no vitamin B1, is eaten by many people," admits Miss Hulsey. "But it is much better to serve brown unpolished rice or, at least, the partially polished rice, which contains about 70 per cent as much vitamin B1 as the brown rice."

Decline In Non-Agricultural Employment

Montgomery, Ala. — State Industrial Relations Director Joe L. Coleman reports a slight decline in Alabama non-agricultural employment during January.

Coleman says it resulted from a temporary seasonal layoff of employees at post offices and in trade establishments. He says that now about 677,900 persons are employed in non-agriculture occupations in Alabama, Coleman said. He says this is an increase of 17,000 over last January's report. But at the same time it is less than the total for December, 1952.

Factories accounted for employment of 236,100 during January, about 9,000 over last January's total. New industry was credited with employment increases in transportation, machinery, ordinance and fabricated metals industries. Employment in those industries increased 5,400 above last year in spite of a loss of 4,000 shipyard workers.

Textile mills employment dropped about 1,600 from a year ago with 700 workers laid off in December alone. The apparel employment increased 3,000 workers to continue a steady upward trend which began in 1947.

State and local government was up to an estimated 72,500 workers compared to 68,600 last year. Federal employment dropped back to 51,600, about what it was before Christmas.

Steps For Success With Soybean Crop

Auburn, Ala. — Soybeans have become an important source of oil in recent years, and it is a big cash crop in many states.

J. C. Lowery, API Extension agronomist, points out that soybeans are a mechanized crop. For example, a tractor and combine must be on hand when beans are ready to harvest.

This crop requires good soil. Creek and river bottoms are often well suited to soybeans, especially those that hold moisture well but are not too wet.

"Farmers on the Gulf Coast can plant soybeans any time up to July 1," says the specialist. "They may be planted in the rest of the state from cotton planting time until about June 1."

Lowery adds that a light colored variety should be planted. The Ogden is an outstanding oil variety and the most popular one in Alabama.

See the local county agent for fertilizer recommendations and other information on growing soybeans.

Alabama Farmers Can Supply Local Markets

Auburn, Ala. — Farmers wh need more cash should investigat the possibilities of selling produc to food retailers in nearby town

"In some of the larger town wholesale markets may also offe opportunities to increase farm i come," says Austin Ezzell, API E tension distributor marketing sp cialist.

He believes that since many pe ple have left the farm and moved t town, better markets than ever b fore should be available.

"In fact, retailers are looking f fresh, home-grown produce that h been graded and packaged," sa Ezzell. "Why not make arrang mants to do business with the food dealers?"

HONEY EXPORT

As of February 13, the U. had certified for export 23,621,4 pounds of honey.

WISE LAND USE

Land that is wisely used and co served will yield a large amount products over a long period.

It's Time To Rest If Hogs Are Comfortable

No owner of livestock can sleep soundly at night when his animals have gone to bed hungry or uncomfortable.

However, during late winter when sharp weather changes occur, some Alabama hogs can be found in muddy lots without shelter and comfortable bedding.

"Hogs never earned the name of 'mortgage lifters' under such circumstances," declares G. B. Phillips, API Extension specialist in animal industry.

Yes, Spring Fever Is Old-Fashioned

Auburn, Ala. — Instead of sulphur and molasses, an array of fresh vegetables will provide a spring tonic in the form of nutritious and colorful meals.

Dorothy Overbey, API Extension specialist in consumer education says that turnip greens, mustard, spinach, kale, carrots, and cabbage are on the plentiful list.

Other good buys include oranges and grapefruit. "And as far as meat is concerned, try some of the cuts of beef that are in less demand," advises the specialist. "There is good eating and real economy in this venture."

GI DIVIDENDS

The VA will be mailing out, in the next few days, 1953 dividend checks to National Service Life Insurance policy holders in all but three states—Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, whose payments will begin in the next 30 to 60 days. The annual dividend will be paid to about 5,000,000 veterans, with the vast majority getting a flat $60.

COASTAL BERMUDA GRASS

One of the comparatively new grasses farmers are using in the southern half of Alabama to control erosion and help hold water on the farm is coastal bermuda grass.

SALE OF ARMOR

Learning that a company in this country was planning to sell to civilians an armored vest "similar to, but not identical" with the one used by front-line Marines and soldiers, the Government is considering legal moves to block, at least temporarily, such sales of plastic body armor. The company announced its armor was designed for use by hunters, bank guards and policemen. Government officials point out, however, that the armor could be used by bank robbers and other law breakers, as well.

Lower Cost Cotton Production Seen in New Seed "Coating"

A recent development in the field of seed treatments has been hailed as a major contribution to agriculture, with unusual benefits particularly to farmers planting cotton.

Present outlook on the future cotton market and mounting costs of cotton production are of increasing concern to planters. More economical methods of cultivation are imperative, agricultural authorities agree.

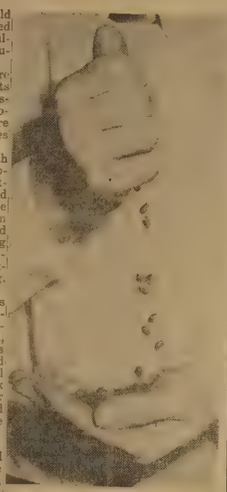
Leading growers of the South have already shown that the so-called "controlled" planting of cotton is the practical approach toward solving problems created by the high cost and scarcity of farm labor. The planting of acid-delinted cottonseed with controlled spacing is being widely practiced, thus eliminating the waste of seed and making costly chopping, or thinning, unnecessary.

Under good planting conditions such a procedure works well. Unfortunately, ideal weather conditions exist only rarely. When cool, dampish weather sets in there is always a big chance that seed might not come up to a stand. Soil borne diseases are likely to attack the unprotected seed or tender plants while their sprouting and growing is retarded by the adverse weather.

Protection Afforded

To protect acid delinted cottonseed during this critical period, to make those seed live and grow better, agronomists and soil chemists have worked together to find successful seed treatments. The latest development is a combination protective "coating" containing seed disinfectant, plant food, vitamins and growth hormones. This particularly successful coating is visibly characterized by a purple-like color of the coating directly on the delinted cottonseed.

To a marked degree the various approved seed treatments assure certainty of a good stand. The new coating process has demonstrated that better germination, healthy young plant growth and stronger, sturdier cotton plants can be achieved. "Controlled" cotton cultivation and this modern method's great economies are now, it appears, a practical reality.



"PURPLE" COTTONSEED

New development to promote germination and better stand is a special protective coating for acid delinted cottonseed. Coating has a purplish color.

Alabama Board Host To Council

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors will be the host to the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners at Birmingham, March 13-14.

Executive Secretary C. C. Cobb said that this would be the first time there has been a meeting of the National Council held in Alabama. Representatives from 11 Southern States and Puerto Rico will participate.

Headquarters will be at the Tutwiler Hotel, with tourist to outstanding Birmingham industrial and scenic attractions. Included will be visits to the TCI Fairfield plant, Southern Research Institute, Vestavia, Vulcan, The Club, and other Jefferson County points of interest.

Among speakers on the program will be: R. E. Strickland, Jr.; Birmingham; Belton Y. Cooper, Birmingham; N. W. Dougherty, University of Tennessee, Knoxville; James R. Garber, Birmingham; H. Hobart Grooms, Birmingham; Lt. Col. A. B. Schwarzkopf, Birmingham; Wyllys G. Stanton, University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, and R. G. Sturm, API, Auburn.

CANNED AIRCRAFT

The Air Force and Air Material Command are canning aircraft engines and clothing for overseas use. The world's largest cans are made of 11x12-guage low carbon, hot-rolled steel plates, and are opened with wrenches, not can openers. Humidity, the big bugaboo in engine shipment, is overcome by use of dessiccants placed inside the cans before closing. After the two halves are bolted together, dehydrated air is pumped through a special valve.

FOREST PRODUCTS ASSOCIATION TO MEET

Montgomery, Ala. — The fourth annual convention of the Alabama Forest Products Association, an organization of more than 1,000 lumbermen, landowners, and wood processors, will be held in Montgomery Monday and Tuesday, March 23 and 24.

A. B. Carroll, Hurtsboro lumberman, is president of the association.

Ten speakers are scheduled to appear in the business sessions of the convention. At the closing banquet Tuesday night George Andrews, Congressman from the Third District, will be the principal speaker.

Election of a new president and board of directors of the association will also be held at the convention.

Topics to be discussed by the lumbermen range from proper cutting practices to better wood utilization, meeting outside competition, marketing of lumber, bankers' relationship to the industry and fire protection and research.

Speakers include Gerald Bradford, former state representative from Grove Hill; Dr. D. B. Richards, Department of Forestry, A.P.I.; Clyde Pearson, Montgomery architect; C. D. Dosker, president of Gamble Brothers Lumber Company, Louisville, Ky.; Sam Morgan, chairman of the Alabama Bankers Forestry Committee; P. R. Wheeler, Chief of the Division of Forest Economics, U. S. Forest Service; W. W. Fussell, vice-president, Federal Land Bank, New Orleans, La.; and R. Vance Miles, Jr., Tuscaloosa, Manager of the Division of Forestry, Gulf States Paper Corporation.

The association will also hear reports on the Keep Alabama Green campaign, a project which it sponsors in Alabama.

Current officers and directors of the association are Carroll, president; Earl McGowin, secretary-treasure; and directors, Ben C. Stimpson, Mobile; W. T. Neal, Jr., Brewton; W. F. Gamble, Ozark; S. C. Cursey, Selma; J. H. Pirkle, Heflin; Sebron Colson, Eutaw; Richard Arthur, Fayette; Joe J. Gamble, Sheffield; Claude Grayson, Birmingham; Bryce C. DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

KEITH WALKER, Route 4, St. Joseph, Missouri, says he has a pair of shoes that might easily fit the average family man. After finishing dinner one evening he settled down in an easy chair with the newspaper. He was tired and this was going to be one evening that he was just going to relax. He had hardly settled in the chair, when his three-year-old daughter came to him with a book and asked him to read her a story. Almost at the very same time his sixteen months old son tugged at his arm, wanting his daddy to play with him.

CARNEGIE

Without thinking, he said, "You children go away and play with your toys; I'm tired and this is the first chance I have had this week to sit down and read my paper." About this time his wife called from the kitchen, "Don't bother Daddy; get away and let him read his paper."

Suddenly he caught the disappointment in the expression of his little girl. And he as suddenly realized that in a few short years these children would neither need nor want him to share their pleasures. He folded up the paper, took the book his little girl was holding and sat down on the floor with the children to read them the story. He did not stop at one story, but read to two very pleased children four or five stories. About this time his wife finished her kitchen chores and came into the living room, surveyed the situation and stretched out on the divan. After the children grew tired of reading we spent the next half hour wrestling in the way only a father and his children can enjoy.

When bedtime came he helped put two tired and happy little youngsters to bed. That evening turned out to be a very happy one, but it would not have been had he let the children worry him into being cross and disagreeable. Needless to say, he felt much better after considering the feeling of the children, for they were just as hungry for the companionship of their father as he was tired from the extra work. In addition, his wife had a chance for some early evening relaxation that to mothers is a real luxury.

Here's the February Winner:

Dear Joan:

I met my husband under the seat in a motion picture theater.

It was a suspense film and during a particularly exciting moment, I nervously tugged at my pearls. The string broke and the beads went all over the place. I got down on my hands and knees in an effort to retrieve as many as possible.

The young man sitting behind me noticed my predicament and decided to help. I poked my head under my seat the same time he did, and we bumped noggins. While helping me pick up the beads, he mistook a hunk of gum for a large bead and handed me that as well.

After all the beads were collected, I provided a great finish by getting stuck under the seat, being about 50 pounds over my normal 135 at the time.

Nevertheless, he met me outside the theater and we had a banana split. A short time later, we were married. That was 36 years ago.

Chilton County will be presented in the cavalcade of counties now appearing in The Birmingham News next Sunday. Probate Judge M. D. (Dave) Tingle wants to take this method of extending his thanks to all who helped so much in gathering the facts to present to Mr. Jack House on his visit last Wednesday. Without the cooperation that he received Judge Tingle says he couldn't have presented the facts so thoroughly. Anyway, he asked us to say many thanks.

What's this about Dyer Shackleford getting into a dog fight? We mean literally. Word we received was that "Shack's" dogs got into a fight and he tried to separate them. In the excitement Dyer got badly mauled and scratched. A smaller man would have been really hurt seriously. We believe "Shack's" dogs are Great Danes and Bull dogs.

Wednesday morning while we were at the courthouse discussing the merits of Chilton County with Jack House, State News Editor of The Birmingham News, the subject was brought up about the oldest inhabitant of the county. Of course much publicity has been given Mr. Riley Robinson in the past because of his 102 birthdays. The subject reminded one of those present, Gene Wyatt, we believe, about a funny story. Seems that a stranger walked up to a son of Mr. Robinson's, Willie, by name, who was fishing along the banks of a creek, and asked him if he wasn't afraid to be down there at his age fishing alone. Willie is 82. He told the stranger: "No, I'm not afraid. My Daddy is just around the bend there."

The little boy turned to his silent friend and said, "Show him your pen, Albert."

A.E.A. HOLIDAYS TO BEGIN WEDNESDAY

Chilton County Schools will dismiss on next Tuesday afternoon for a three-day vacation for A.E.A. The extra day has been granted this year by the Board of Education to enable principals and other administrative personnel to attend Wednesday meetings.

Announcement comes from the office of the Superintendent that the Education office will be closed for these three days also to enable office personnel to attend the meetings. The office will be open again Saturday morning. The bus garage will observe the same schedule.

PASSION SUNDAY MASS

On Sunday morning at 8:30 at the Chapel of the Resurrection, the Mass of the Passion of our Lord will be celebrated by the Rev. Walter Mikosz, C.R., of Montgomery. On Passion Sunday Eve, the crucifixes and all images in the Chapel will be covered with a purple cloth, as a sign of mourning and penance, for the fast approaching time when the church is to commemorate the sufferings of our Lord; for at this time the Savior no longer showed Himself to the people, according to the words of St. John, which end the Gospel for Passion Sunday: "Jesus hid Himself and went out from the Temple."

On Tuesday The Rosary of the Passion; the Five Sorrowful Mysteries, will be recited at the Chapel at 7:00 p.m.

On Friday evening after the Stations of the Cross Devotions, Father Kikosz will preach on the Passion of Jesus Christ.

FLU RATE LOWEST IN TWO MONTHS

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama influenza rate has fallen to the lowest level of more than two months.

Only 1,882 cases were reported to the State Health Department compared with 6,017 the week before. Last week's total was the lowest since January 10th.

Only three counties had 100 or more cases last week. St. Clair reported 542, Marion 363 and Jefferson 218.

SPEAKER NAMED FOR A.B.W.A.

Montgomery, Ala. — Dr. James L. Brakefield, Birmingham, will be the principal speaker in the 28th annual convention of the Alabama Bonded Warehousemen's Assn., Inc., here, March 23.

Brakefield is with the Liberty National Life Insurance Company.

Association State President Fred S. Hunter, Decatur, said that John H. Todd, Washington representative of the National Cotton Company and Cotton Warehouse Assn., would make a report.

JESSE TEELS ARE GRANDPARENTS TWICE

Some over a year ago two daughters-in-law were added to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Teel within a week's time. Now, within two weeks time there have been added two grandchildren. A son, Woodie Lamar, was born to Capt. and Mrs. Lamar Teel in Japan on March 2nd. Then last Sunday night a daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Teel in Montgomery. Congratulations to the parents and grandparents.

TRAFFIC DEATHS MAY BE REDUCED IN 1953

Montgomery, Ala. — Figures for the first two months of 1953 indicates that the traffic death toll in Alabama may be substantially reduced for the second consecutive year.

Alabama Public Safety Director L. B. Sullivan says traffic accidents investigated by the highway patrol during January and February resulted in 73 deaths. During the same period of 1952, a total of 82 persons already had died in state traffic mishaps.

State traffic deaths dropped from 826 in 1951 to 763 last year.

Liberty Hill Church To Be Dedicated Sunday

Sunday, March 22, will be a great day when the members of the Liberty Hill Baptist Church meet and dedicate, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, a $40,000 church and educational unit.

After many month's of praying, giving and hard work, the people will meet in an all-day service to thank God for many blessings and to rededicate their all unto Him and His Kingdom's work.

The dedication service will begin at 10:00 in the morning and will last until 3:30 in the afternoon. Lunch will be served during the noon hour.

Every one is invited to attend the dedication service.

The entire service will be broadcast over W.K.L.F.

Methodist Notes

Monday, March 23, 1953, at 7:30 p.m. will be the final session of the study on Africa. This meeting will be held in The Wesley Fellowship Class Room. Mrs. Jack Hunter will have the devotional and Rev. Vickers will show a filmstrip, "Africa Is Waiting." After this program, the group will meet in the basement for "Africa Fun and Dinner Festival." The hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Campbell White, Mrs. Norman Roberts, Mrs. M. K. Vickers, Mrs. Joe Mullins, Mrs. B. L. Venable, and Mrs. Florence Wilbanks.

The Methodist Men's Fellowship Club will meet Tuesday, March 24, at 7:00 p.m. There will be a period of refreshment and social gathering preceding the 7:00 p.m. dinner hour. Dinner will be served at $1.00 per plate. The program will be announced later.

ONE TEACHER SCHOOLS

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Department of Education says Alabama still has 649 one teacher schools.

The same survey showed that 392 are Negro schools where average daily attendance is one to 25 pupils. About 85 one-teacher schools for white children were listed.

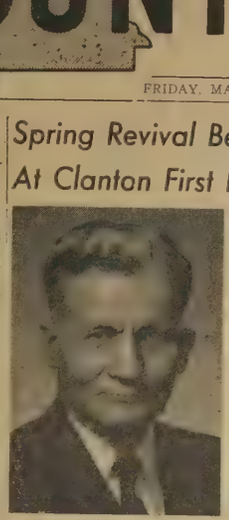
Spring Revival Begins Sunday At Clanton First Baptist Church



DR. JASPER N. BARNETTE

DR. W. HINES SIMS

The Spring Revival will open Sunday morning, March 29th, and continue through Sunday evening, April 5th. There will be morning and evening services, the morning service at 7:00 o'clock and the evening service at 7:30.

Dr. W. Hines Sims will be the song leader and Dr. Jasper N. Barnette the evangelist. Both these men are recognized leaders in the Southern Baptist Convention work.

Dr. J. Gilbert Hutchinson stated Thursday: "We are most fortunate to have them for our revival. There are many ways in which we can promote our revival. Let us begin now by praying daily for a great outpouring of God's Spirit on our church and community and for a great season of soul-winning. We appeal to all the members of the church to help us in the promoting of the revival. You can do your part by following these simple steps: Make a prayer list of your friends, loved ones and acquaintances who are unsaved, pray for them daily and invite them to the revival meeting; attend all the cottage prayer meetings which will be held the week preceding the revival take part in the visitation the Sunday the revival opens; pray daily for the unsaved; help in the Sunday School visitation program; if you are a teacher, make a list of the unsaved in your Sunday School class; pray for them daily and resolve that you will do everything possible to win the lost to Christ during the revival meeting; pray for our evangelist and for the song leader and for all of the workers in the church, that God may pour out His spirit upon our work and that this revival may surpass all others ever held in the church

Poplar Springs

We thank God for the beautiful Sunday and for the number that was out for Sunday School. We are praying that you will also be at Sunday School next Sunday at ten o'clock and worship service to follow.

We had a few more out for Training Union than the Sunday night before, and we are looking forward to a good time at the social Thursday night at the E. W. Hill home. If you haven't been attending, that will be a good time to start.

We had a good service last Wednesday night and Bro. Cook began teaching the Book of James.

Be sure to pray that we will really have a revival. Bro. Bill Cox will join us at the eleven o'clock service the fifth Sunday. Everyone be sure to attend.

We are expecting a great service and singing Easter Sunday. We invite all singers and lovers of music to come.

The G.A.'s and Sunbeams met with Mrs. Jerrell Miller for their March meeting. The program for each group was good. Mrs. Miller and the Sunbeam leader served refreshments.

Sunbeams will meet Saturday, April 18th, at one o'clock with Mrs. T. J. Stewart. G.A.'s will meet in the home of Mrs. Harris Gilliland on April 18th at one o'clock. Mothers, help your children to remember to come.

Mrs. Ida Grant recently celebrated her 84th birthday at her home. Those present for the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Osmond Grant, Mrs. Carrie Foshee, Mrs. Albert Gramatas and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Grant, and Miss Liller Grant. The afternoon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Sides, Mr. and Mrs. James Sides, Mr. and Mrs. Ottis Jones and children. We wish for Mrs. Grant many more happy birthdays.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Smith and children spent the week end with Mrs. John Cox and Lee. Mrs. Eula Smith of Clanton also visited them Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Childers and Donald of Troy and George Low, Jr., of Connecticut spent the week end with Mrs. Esther Childers and children.

Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Rushing of Fairfield visited Rev. and Mrs. N. E. Cook over the week end. Mrs. Cook's father has also been visiting them for several days. He is Mr. Stephen Pate.

We are happy to report Mrs. N. E. Cook is home from the Central Alabama Hospital and improving, but sorry Mrs. Nora Cook remains very ill in the hospital. Be much in prayer for them and all others who are sick.

FORESTRY DISPLAY HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Starting at 1 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon and lasting through Wednesday there will be a forestry diorama on Second Avenue that will be free to the public. There will be no contributions taken.

The display will be in four panels first showing the "Destructive Cutting Practices." No. 2 Panel will be "Damage to Wood — Erosion Takes Over"; No. 3, "How Wood is Made Into Pulp," and No. 4, "Sunset Comes To The Woodyard," a scene at a pulpwood mill.

The display is sponsored by the Southeastern Forestry Association with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., and will be brought to Clanton on a large trailer truck.

Mrs. Alvin Ray of Calera, Alabama Route, was badly burned Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 when kerosene oil exploded while she was pouring it on hot colds in the stove.

She was rushed to Central Alabama Hospital where her condition is described as "not good" at present. Spigener Funeral Home ambulance answered the call.

Marcus Minor Injured When Car Overturned

Marcus Minor's automobile was completely demolished and Marcus received a broken collarbone and other bruises Wednesday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock when his car went out of control on the Enterprise Road.

The car overturned two or three times and it was reported a complete loss. Minor is at Central Alabama Hospital and is resting very well. His condition is not considered serious.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

In the Posey's Cross Roads community J. E. Weeks was digging kudzu crowns and planting in a natural draw which will be used as a outlet for terrace water. Just across the fence C. R. Childress has plowed down his terraces in establishing kudzu and was applying fertilizer to the kudzu. Charlie will use the kudzu as a hay crop. Further on up the road S. D. Posey had prepared his Coastal Bermuda land and applied the fertilizer and will plant this week.

Some of the methods used in this county to plant Coastal Bermuda are:

1. Broadcast 15-20 bushels stolens per acre and disc in with a single section of a disc. Follow this operation with a cultipacker.
2. Dropping stolens on the seed bed and pressing the stolens into the soil with a punch stick.
3. Dropping stolens into the furrow and using the feet to place soil over the plant.
4. Same as No. 3 except using a farm tool to cover the plant and packing by running tractor tire up and down the rows.

Deferred Draftees Can Expect Inevitable 'Greetings' Soon

(By Maj.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey)

There are two questions Selective Service must always be prepared to answer. Why was Registrant A inducted? Why is Registrant B deferred?

The answer to question number one is found initially in the necessities of our armed forces to insure survival. It is found in the need for men in the armed forces. The existence of the Universal Military Training and Service Act is evidence of a recognition by Congress that it was necessary to induct Registrant A, in fact, well over a million of Registrant A's. To many individual registrants the reason for the induction of many is evident, the reason for their individual induction is not. This leads to the answer to the second question, for it is the deferment of one registrant that creates questions in the minds of those who are inducted.

There are two fundamental reasons why registrants are deferred. First, because all who are liable cannot be inducted in the same month or the same year. Practically all of the registrants inducted during the past two and a half years have been liable during the entire period. We are steadily approaching the period when registrants will be reached for induction almost immediately after they become liable, at the age of eighteen and a half years.

The second reason for deferment is the fact that the registrant is doing something in the national health, safety, or interest which places his induction at a later date than the time he is normally due for entrance into the service. In this connection, two things must always be remembered. This is not an exemption but a deferment and, secondly, it is possible only because registrants are available who are liable to meet the present call of the armed forces.

The deferred registrant should have no misunderstanding of his status. He has not been relieved from his obligation to serve in the armed forces. There is no implication that what he is doing is in the nature of a substitution for service. He certainly must not take his deferment as an encouragement to make future plans which ignore the obligation for service. The registrant is again reminded of his unpaid obligation when he receives deferment.

There are many who are now asking, "Why is Registrant B deferred?" Among those who ask this question are the registrants who were not deferred, many of whom are now returning from the payment of their obligation of service. Also asking are the families and well wishers of the registrants called. Some of those now inducted were called earlier because others were deferred, some have voluntarily entered the services. These groups are entitled to understand that deferment means the deferred registrants will serve, and not that they will be exampt from service.

The most difficult fact to understand in the present deferment situation is time. The parents of the registrant who has been inducted or has enlisted, the citizen-conscious of fair and just treatment for all, and the serviceman, himself, all of these find difficulty in understanding why registrants are deferred, while other registrants are being inducted. It is many times forgotten that inductions did not begin in this present operation until September 1950. Since that time the armed forces have been increased by about two and a half times. This fiscal year for the first time large numbers are completing their term of service and must be replaced. This will be a continuous process each year so long as present world conditions continue.

The age at which registrants are being inducted started at twenty-six, it is now at nineteen. Some registrants have been deferred as inductions moved ever toward the younger, they have been deferred today; tomorrow they can expect to be inducted, for the title of the law is Universal Military Training and Service Act. The Congress has extended liability for those deferred for additional nine years to permit flexibility in national interest. The word "universal," and the nine years extension of liability, serve both to reassure the registrants who have been inducted and to remind those who have been deferred of the nature of the obligation which the law reposes upon each of those liable for service.

Those who operate Selective Service and those who come within its field of operation must view in the long perspective what it seeks to accomplish in carrying out the Congressional mandate of fairness and justice. Not every one who is liable has gone at his normal time of service. There were reasons for his deferment. Regulations which made it possible were issued in the national health, safety, or interest. In this republic the citizen has a right to disagree with his government so long as he obeys its laws.

It is to be expected that those who earlier carried the heavier duties of citizenship, incident to service in the armed forces, find it difficult in understanding why others are for the time being deferred from these responsibilities. It is to those citizens to whom we owe continuing explanation of the fact that the time of service of those deferred may be undetermined but the fact of their service is certain.

When all of our citizens know that each of those upon whom Congress has placed liability will certainly serve, then concern about those now defered will be immeasurably less. — Selective Service Magazine.

CLANTON'S TRAFFIC

Every possible effort is being made by our city to keep the heavy traffic of Highway 31 moving through Clanton without hampering the citizenry or the passing travelers. One of the best steps toward relieving our congested traffic was made in allowing motorists to make right turns on red lights at certain corners.

However, a few people are taking the attitude that if they are making a right turn on red, they have the right-of-way. It is a dangerous move to go into any intersection on which through traffic is traveling.

Also it will be noted that this is lawful only at certain intersections here. On corners which it is permitted a sign on the bottom of the signal light will say it is.

A few seconds spent in observing these laws may save your life. It's worth it.

Speaking of peach blossoms—heard a farmer say they weren't peach blossoms, they were pink dollar marks.

Chilton has many things to be proud of, but these don't include it's courthouse, jail, health and county agent's building, hospital, and it's lack of an auditorium.

TRUTHS TO LIVE BY:

We Believe:

That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life; that the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations; that economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise; that government should be of laws rather than of men: that earth's great treasure lies in human personality; and that service to humanity is the best works of life.

IF YOU WORK FOR A MAN

"If you work for a man, in heaven's name, work for him. If he pays wages that supply you your bread and butter, work for him, speak well of him, think well of him and stand by him and the institution he represents.

"So long as you are a part of an institution, do not condemn it, when you disparage the concern which you are a part of, you disparage yourself."

These words by Elbert Hubbard bring us to the conclusion that the best way to build a business is through it's employes. The employer must be ambitious and honest in all of his dealings, but if his employes work to better the concern they work for, the business will grow.

The employer not only benefits from this, but the employee benefits himself with better working conditions and better pay.

You will find that if you, as an employee, show an interest in the business firm with which you are a part, then your employer will take a greater interest in building a better business for his employes. An employee can be a great influence on his "boss."

If your employer respects your ability enough to give you employment, then you should respect him enough to do your best to build a better business that will benefit all concerned.

A happy and contented worker who is proud of his job and respects his employer can do more towards the building of a business than any other single factor.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

THOMAS C. DYKE, 2305 Bell Street, Columbus, Georgia, believes that uncontrollable fear was developed in him when he had to quit school at the age of thirteen and go to work in the coal mines to help his dad make a living.

He always wanted to be a mining or civil engineer and the only way to get the education was by Correspondence Courses. He was laughed at for wasting his time studying correspondence courses rather than being out having a good time with the rest of the boys who said, "Whoever heard of a coal miner being anything but a coal miner." He was even called a 2x4 Correspondence School Engineer by a famous lawyer before the Court of Claims. All this had a bad effect. However, he thinks the one thing that had the greatest effect in bringing on chronic fear, a fear of people, was a lack of association with his fellow men.

CARNEGIE

After all, to get a technical education by correspondence requires a tremendous amount of time, and the exclusion of practically everything else. He put his heart and soul into his work and into research and study to become an Engineer. He would work in the mines all day and study at night. Many times he stayed up all night studying.

But by persistent diligent effort he reached his goal and established himself as an Engineer. The next problem to conquer was fear. He read Dr. Emerson Fosdick's book on "Being a Real Person" and "Personal Achievement," by Roberts, as well as all other available data. Still he was afraid—of people! Then he decided on a night course in public speaking, where he had to stand on his feet night after night facing those fearsome people. The first time, he didn't do so well, nor the second nor the third. Then he began comparing notes on himself at each gathering. Why even the third time he did a little better than the first—and those people didn't seem so fearsome after all. Suddenly he realized they were not so different from himself. He was one of this world of people. And once that idea filtered through his brain, he was no longer afraid of people. Certainly not—he was one of them!

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From C. W. McFrederick, Creston, Ohio: I remember seeing thousands of wild pigeons in the spring of the year flying from one feeding ground to another so near the ground you could throw a stone up into their midst.

From Grace Schmidt, Cambridge, Nebraska: I remember the good, old butchering time when beef liver sold for one cent per pound, pork livers were thrown away, and a 10 lb. turkey sold for $1.00. Arbuckle coffee was 10 cents a pound with a stick of candy thrown in.

From Mrs. Gladys Markle, Underhill, Vermont: I remember at the so called Lee River place, my grandmother had a barrel of soft soap making in the rear of the wood house. A cat jumped on the cover of the barrel. It tipped and dumped the cat into the barrel. What a time grandmother had with that poor cat. Although grandmother washed the cat and did all she could, every bit of hair came off the animal. But the cat lived out the rest of its nine lives in spite of the lye bath.

From Mrs. Hallie Colson, Canby, Ky.: I remember when we didn't have a stove and sat by the open fire in the winter, burning our shins and freezing our backs. We cooked over the fire and the best biscuits I ever ate were cooked in a skillet with legs. Coals from the fire were pulled under the skillet and on the iron top. Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Director of the Selective Service Board, announces that it might be necessary to draft fathers in eight to fourteen months to maintain the armed forces strength of 3,600,000 men. He also declared that there was a possibility of drafting women if the nation became faced with a fight for survival.

Scanning the News

"THE tyrant is dead! Long live the tyrant!"

With these words one newspaper described the death of Premier Joseph Stalin of Russia and the announcement that Georgi M. Malenkov would replace him. That was probably the most correct description of the events in Russia, which still has the western world speculating and guessing, of any given.

Because Joseph Stalin was a tyrant. He was a bank robber, an agitator, oppressor and murderer of millions—the total number of people killed by his direct orders will never be known. As for his successor, authorities on Russian government and personalities describe him as a cunning, plotting, cruel, ruthless paper pusher. And it is feared he lacks Stalin's patience and may plunge the world in a blood-bath that will be its destruction.

The free world waits with fear and uncertainty for a glimpse at the new regime's policies and future plans. There has been no shedding of tears over Stalin. But neither has there been jubilation. The future is too uncertain.

There is not likely to be any early indication of future policy for this regime which consists of Malenkov as Prime Minister, Marshal Klementi Voroshilov as Soviet Presidium, and L. P. Beria, V. M. Molotov, Nikolai Bulganin and Lazar M. Dagonovich as deputy chairmen of the Council of Ministers.

It does appear, however, that Malenkov will spend considerable time consolidating his position and absolute authority. After that it is anyone's guess.

Too much has already been written about the man Stalin and the trail of death and misery he left behind him. It is the future that concerns the free world, and particularly, the future of Russia.

At present this seems to be the situation in Moscow:

1. The men in the Kremlin were concerned, and still are, about the reaction of the Russian people over Stalin's death and the appointment of Malenkov. That becomes evident as they have continuously broadcast an appeal to the people to stand by the Communist Party.

2. With every day it becomes more evident that anyone who thinks a revolution will break out is engaging in wishful thinking. All indications are that Beria has the nation firmly under the control of his secret police and Malenkov control over the government becomes stronger with each passing day.

The most ironic thing about the whole situation, from the time Stalin's illness was announced until his death, was the actions of the Russian people themselves. They flocked to church—those that are officially allowed—to pray for a man who neither believed in God or the Church and who did everything in his power to discourage worship in Russia.

It becomes evident, then, that the Communist masters of Russia have been unable to remove from [illegible] spark and need for spiritual guidance for which they have been noted in the past. As long as it persists, perhaps there is after all some hope for Russia and the Russian people.

SHOULTS NEWS

The members of Pleasant Grove Baptist Church W.M.U. met at the church last Thursday to observe the Week of Prayer for Home Missions. Despite the downpour of rain, there were 12 members present. They were: Mrs. Joe Davis, Mrs. Charlie Smith, Mrs. Robert McAfee, Mrs. Juanita Smith, Mrs. Fannie Lawley, Mrs. Albert Garner, Mrs. John Foshee, Mrs. Geo. Shoults, Mrs. Messer Smith, Mrs. Sam Shoults and Mrs. Willie Hathcock.

The President, Mrs. Robert McAfee, had arranged a very interesting and inspiring program. Every one had some part on the program. Mrs. Juanita McAfee Smith was pianist for the day.

At the noon hour a bountiful and delicious luncheon was served. An hour of fellowship was very much enjoyed. After which prayers were offered for our geat land of America, and for our missionaries, especially our Home Missions. An offering was given at the closing of the day's program for our Home Missions. This was indeed a day well spent for our Lord.

Sunday School Class rooms for Pleasant Grove Church will soon be a reality, as work will begin soon. Mr. Bill Ruddick of Stanton will be the building contractor. With this efficient and able contractor the rooms will soon be ready for use. After the work starts the Building Committee and pastor, Rev. Joe Davis, assures us that the work will soon be finished. Anyone who wishes to donate a gift to this much needed addition to the church send gifts to Mrs. Bessie Garner, church treasurer, Lawley, Ala. God will richly bless you.

Pastor, Rev. Joe Davis, and wife, are faithful workers for the betterment of our church and community. They need full cooperation of every one. Some may not be willing to go along with the majority. But it is not Christian to fall back and shirk our duty to our church and community and to our Lord.

CHESTNUT CREEK

The people of Chestnut Creek Church really prayed and worked for a great revival and certainly God has granted it. We are so thankful for the blessings he poured out upon us in our two-weeks revival. There were 28 additions to our church, 23 coming for baptism and five by letter. Many of our older church members say this was as good a revival as had ever been held in the history of the church. Let us pray that the reviving spirit will live on in each of our hearts.

At this time the program was turned over to Mrs. L. F. Gerald, who introduced Mrs. Louie Smith who brought the devotional and Mrs. Cleo Cox, who gave "Choose Well."

Mrs. Dave Tingle dismissed the formal meeting hour and the class enjoyed a short social period, with delicious refeshments being served to the following members: Mesdames Harold Foshee, Herman LeCroy, Earl Parrish, Winifred LeCroy, C. O. Cox, James Dennis, Luther Mims, V. L. Bulger, K. A. Hardy, Harry Sims, Raymond Cox, M. E. Lord, Buddy Hill, Cleo Cox, Clay Moates, Louie Smith, L. F. Gerald, L. Z. Nance, and Mrs. Dave Tingle.

CANNED foods as well as their juices offer easy short-cuts to menus as well as being kind to your food budget.

You can have a quick supper or lunch from chili con carne by heating it and serving over toasted, split buns. Have a few relishes and the main dish is complete.

Here's another quickie from a can: slices of corned beef hash, topped with processed American cheese slices broiled alongside some sliced tomatoes which have been topped with mayonnaise.

Canned peaches for dessert can be glamorous if you mix together some coconut with honey or pancake syrup and serve as a topping for the drained peaches.

Keep canned asparagus tips or cuts chilling in the refrigerator and you'll be able to have them for a salad at any time. Top with

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Polka Dot Salad
(Serves 8)

1 package cherry-flavored gelatin
10 canned Royal Anne cherries
10 pitted ripe olives
1 3-ounce package cream cheese
¼ cup milk
Salad greens

Prepare gelatin according to package directions. Chill until slightly thickened. Remove pits from cherries. Soften cream cheese with milk. Fill cavities of cherries and olives with cheese mixture. Cut cherries and olives in half crosswise and arrange cut side down in oiled mold. Pour gelatin over top of fruit and chill until firm. Unmold on salad greens and garnish.

French dressing to which some crumble blue cheese or hard-cooked eggs have been added.

Drain canned fruit juices into a jar as you use the fruits. Tint pale green or red with food coloring and serve as an appetizer full of valuable vitamins and minerals.

Canned pimientoes chopped and mixed with softened butter or a substitute makes an excellent spread for crackers or potato chips for snack time.

Heat a can of ripe olives and serve as a garnish and accompaniment for such dishes as creamed chicken, sweetbreads or tuna fish.

AUTO IDENTIFICATION

Next year's automobiles may be equipped with permanent identification tags, which will be solidly welded into the frames, as a means of thwarting car thieves, if the proper legal adjustments can be completed with the various states.

IF PHILIP APPROVES

By DOROTHY BOYS KILIAN

In the flickering firelight John could see the grave expression on Katherine's face; he knew what she was thinking about. He leaned forward and said earnestly, "My dear, I'm afraid of what tomorrow may do to you. And I think it's time to put up a real fight for our happiness—yours and mine."

Katherine turned to him. "Darling, you know I've come to love you. I can't tell you what knowing you this last year has meant to me."

"But that isn't enough, Kathie. That's only the beginning — or should be. I want to marry you, you know, or haven't you heard?"

"I have heard, John." Katherine smiled and patted his arm. "And I don't mind telling you I loved hearing it; but—well, you know what is worrying me." She glanced instinctively up toward the second floor.

"Yes, I know. It's Philip. But Kathie, your son is twelve years old, old enough to realize how lonesome you've both been these seven years since his dad died. And you know I'd do my darndest to be a good father to him."

"Of course you would, John. And he doesn't dislike you. But somehow, oh it's hard to explain, you just haven't gotten next to him."

John stirred uneasily. "Yes, I think I understand. And that's what worries me so about tomorrow. When you and Phil go to that dedication ceremony, and he sees the new airport being named for his own father—well, it may make you both slip back into the past where I can never find you; unless we've come to a definite decision about us beforehand."

Katherine was still for a moment. Then she said, "I'm afraid you're right. Why don't you go upstairs and talk to him now?"

"I'd like to, but what on earth can I say to him at such a time as this?"

"Just try it, John."

John stood up slowly. "Here's hoping," he said.

Philip's bedroom door was half open. John stopped just outside and looked in. Phil, standing at his dresser, gave no sign that he knew anyone had come up.

"Phil, may I come in?" John asked.

"What?" Phil turned around. "Oh sure, sure, come in."

He moved away from the dresser and John realized that the boy had been looking at his dad's photograph.

A wave of frustration swept over John as he looked from the picture of the father to the living son. He knew what Katherine meant. She could not hurt this image of her first love. All the things he had thought of saying sounded hopelessly inadequate. Philip waited silently.

Yes, it was impossible to say anything now. As John turned reluctantly to go out, he put his hand on Phil's shoulder. "Take care of your mother, tomorrow, Philip. It may be hard for her," he said, and started out the door.

"Wait!" Philip's voice was trembling. "What made you say that?"

"Why—" John hesitated. "I guess because I love your mother so much," he answered gently.

Warmth was creeping into Phil's eyes as he looked up into John's face. "I have to tell you—" the words rushed out—"it gave me the funniest feeling when you said that. It's exactly what Dad said to me. The day he left that last time, he stopped me in the hall just before we all went out to the car."

The room was very quiet for a moment. John fairly held his breath.

Then Philip came closer and laid a hand almost timidly on his arm. "You know what?" he said. "I think Dad would have liked you. I think he'd like you to help me take care of Mom."

"It's all right then, about your mom and me?" John wanted to be very sure.

"Yes, it's O.K. by me." Phil smiled.

"Come on," John said. "Let's go down and tell her."

Mr. H. A. (Addie) Belcher, age 78, passed away at the Selma Baptist Hospital on Friday morning at 4:45, March 6th, 1953. He suffered a heart attack at his home in Centreville, about two weeks ago and was rushed to the hospital. Funeral services were held from the Centreville Baptist Church Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m., March 7th. Rev. Bennie Hubbard of Eoline, Ala., an old friend, assisted by the Rev. Forrest Hicks, pastor of the church, was in charge of the services.

Pallbearers were grandsons: Elliott Belcher, Jr., Jeff Suttle, Steve Martin, Albert Belcher, Jr., E. W. Holcombe, Jr., and Jim Suttle.

Mr. Belcher, a native of Bibb County, Ala., had lived in Four Points 37 years. He was the twin brother of Mr. W. E. Belcher who preceded him in death seven years. Several years ago he retired from his lumber business. He, with his successful sons who are lumbermen, have contributed much to Bibb County and other adjoining counties, furnishing work to many people.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Margaret Belcher, five children: two daughters, Mrs. Lillie Holcombe of Four Points, Mrs. Lola Suttle of Centreville; three sons, Mr. Shelby Belcher of Centreville, Mr. Albert Belcher of Birmingham, and Mr. Olon Belcher of Brent, Ala.; 23 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

The Belcher families have many friends and acquaintances in this and adjoining communities who join with me in offering our sympathy in their great loss.

I am wondering how many of my readers read, "What Religion Means To Me," in the Birmingham News each day? Some of these men from all walks of life really give us good constructive deep thinking, and certainly a deeper appreciation of religion.

Our attendance was fair for Sunday School and B.T.U. Sunday. Bro. Paul Oden will be preaching for us next Sunday, so let's keep this in mind and everyone come and join us.

May I ask every Christian to pray for our church as never before that God will lead and guide. We have lost a shepherd that we feel no one can take his place, but with God's leading we know that great things can be accomplished.

There are still lots of sick ones in our community, so let's pray for them, and also our boys in service of our country, several of which are overseas. Let's pray for God's protecting care over them.

Don't forget our revival which begins the second Sunday in April. Bro. Hyman Atcheson will be doing the preaching. Let's be much in prayer for it will not be too easy for Bro. Atcheson to come to a church that has lost its pastor and carry on.

We welcome all visitors at all times to our church and especially our members. — Reporter.

One of the first attempts in the United States to protect children at work was a Massachusetts law in 1842, which limited the working day to 10 hours for children under 12 years of age.

Training Union—

The Training Union is a church ministry for all the church members just as the worship service, prayer service and Sunday School. The Training Union trains all to work, to share, to give; and discovers and develops those who can lead.

The Training Union gives doctrinal instruction; missionary instruction, develops faithful giving; develops Bible reading. It is a school of Christian living where we learn by doing and live richly through it.—By J. E. Lambdiro.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to express our most profound thanks and appreciation to our neighbors and friends for their great help and kindness to us during the illness and death of our husband and father, Clint C. Cobern. We are indeed grateful to everyone who gave the beautiful flowers; some of the flowers did not have cards, so we cannot send a personal card to those. We want this to be a personal thanks to you.

Our hearts go out in Thanksgiving to every one who spoke words of consolement and encouragement. May God's choice blessings be with you.—The Cobern Family.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Miss "Coffee Break" said the other morning—Saturday, to be exact—"You can go to Birmingham today and find a parking place anywhere you want one because everybody from Birmingham is down here on the river today." She had been serving breakfast and coffee and doughnuts since 4:00 a.m., and it was ten o'clock then, and she was still going strong. Well, we wouldn't say she was still going strong, but she was still going.

That Jimmy Bell certainly has an honest employe. The other afternoon Jimmy was walking through the store and he kept bumping into this employe. Finally he turned to him and asked: "What in the world are you waiting for?" Quick as a flash the young man answered: "Five o'clock."

To a tramp, who wanted to earn a bite to eat, the farmer's wife said: "If I thought you were honest I would let you go into the chicken house and gather the eggs." "Lady," he answered, with offended dignity, "I was manager of a bath house for fifteen years and I never took a bath."

Mother: "Just think, my little darling is almost grown up."

Father: "I hope he makes a fullback."

Older Sister: "That means I've got to walk to school with him."

Teacher: "I hope he's smarter than he looks."

Neighbors: "Thank heaven! Now we can have peace around here."

His Dog: "Yo-o-ow-!-!"

The plan suggested by the Chilton County High School Parent-Teachers Association to get new books for the library seem a good one. Their plan is that every parent having a son or daughter graduate from the school to give a good book and dedicate it to the child graduating. Of course this doesn't mean that the giver is confined to the children graduating this year or in the years to come, but is good for old Grads as well. It is a wonderful idea to enlarge our school library and give each and every parent a chance to have a part in the project. We all have a little "ham" in us too, and it will be a good outlet for that "dedication" you think you can write so well, but just haven't got around to writing.

D. C. Littleton Case Refused Review

The case of D. C. Littlefield, who was convicted and sentenced to a term of three years, in the so-called "missing funds" case was refused a review for the second time by the Alabama Supreme Court last week. The Alabama Court of Appeals had upheld Littlefield's conviction.

Littlefield is given fifteen days by law, from the date of the Court's decision, to report to the local Sheriff to start serving a three-year term in the State Prison.

Mullis Commuted To Life Imprisonment

Montgomery, Ala. — Gov. Gordon Persons has commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Harris Mullis, Jr., youthful convicted killer.

Mullis, convicted of slaying Luther Hardison, a Coral Gables, Fla., constable, was only 14 when he was first sent to a Florida prison 10 years ago.

Under a law passed in 1951, Mullis will not be eligible for parole for 15 years. The Florida lawman was fatally shot with his own gun as he was returning Mullis to Florida to face an auto theft charge. Hardison's body, bullet pierced five times, was found near Mobile, Ala., in February, 1951.

In a prepared statement, Governor Persons said that he did not condone the killing of the officer, but that "I do feel, in view of the circumstances that justice would be better served by commuting his sentence to life imprisonment rather than let him die in the electric chair.

According to records, Mullis had been given a 10-year Florida prison sentence when he was only 14, in connection with the theft of $33 and a wrist watch.

"It is my judgment," Persons said, "that a person of this age (14) should not be sentenced to the penitentiary where he will be thrown with and associated with hardened criminals much older than himself.

Easter Seal Sale Continues Thru April 5th

The Easter Seal campaign, sponsored by the local chapter of the Alabama Society frr Crippled Children and Adults will continue until Easter Sunday, April 5.

Plans have been made to provide all citizens the opportunity of contributing to the cause of Crippled Children. Mr. Levine declared that the local society hoped to reach even more families than in previous years and to enlist support from a still greater number of persons so that Easter Seal services to crippled children may not only be maintained at their pesent levels but expanded in order to care for the increasing number of children needing help.

"It ils our hope this year that the Easter Seal message may be caried to more homes than ever before, thus arousing support from a greater number of our local citizens," said Mr. Levine.

"There are more crippled children every year and the services to help them overcome their handicaps are more expensive every year, just as everything is more expensive. We hope to have larger funds to maintain present services and expand services to help more children."

Mr. Levine stated that the goal for Chilton County has been set at $2,000 for 1953. This amount is urgently needed to continue the present program of services.

A.E.A. HOLIDAYS TO BEGIN WEDNESDAY

Chilton County Schools will dismiss on next Tuesday afternoon for a three-day vacation for A.E.A. The extra day has been granted this year by the Board of Education to enable principals and other administrative personnel to attend Wednesday meetings.

Announcement comes from the office of the Superintendent that the Education office will be closed for these three days also to enable office personnel to attend the meetings. The office will be open again Saturday morning. The bus garage will observe the same schedule.

STATE-OWNED TEXTBOOKS

The State Legislature appropriates $450,000 each year to be used for the purchase of textbooks for [illegible] of the [illegible] public schools of Alabama. At the present time this amounts to $1.15 per child per year.

The textbooks purchased from this fund are selected by a committee composed of classroom teachers and administrators from the public schools of Alabama. The law provides that "All members of the State Textbook Committee at the time of their appointments and at all times while serving as members of said comittee shall be engaged in some phase of instructional work in the State, tax-supported public education in Alabama. Not less than twelve members of the committee shall be employed as classroom teachers at least six of who shall be employed as classroom teachers in the elementary grades and six members of the committee shall be employed as teachers in high school grades; and the other two members of the committee shall be selected without regard to classification in the school system."

State-owned textbooks are purchased by the State Board of Education and distributed to the county and city boards of education on instructions from the State Superintendent of Education. The allotment of funds for State-owned textbooks made to each county and city system is based on net registration. The textbooks are handled by the State Textbook Depository which is located in Birmingham and are distributed to the various school systems from that office.

A law passed by the 1951 Legislature states that, "the authority charged with the duty of purchasing such books shall purchase enough books with the available funds to supply the first grades with books, and if any funds remain after books for the first grades have been purchased then the same authority shall purchase enough books for the second grades of the public schools, and in like manner shall purchase books for the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth grades insofar as the funds allotted to the county will permit." The present appropriation of $450,000 is enough to buy an adequate supply of textbooks for an average of 3½ grades for the entire State.

Pots and pans that have been burned may be cleaned by filling them with a solution of baking soda, 1 teaspoonful, in 1 qt. of hot water; leave the solution in the pans until it has cooled.

Here are the facts-

A report of August 1, 1952, from the office of I. B. Rutledge, Chief of the Bureau of County Aid, State Highway Department, the following counties surrounding Chilton County have the following miles of Farm-To-Market paved roads:

Autauga County	32.9 miles
Bibb County	16.2 miles
Coosa County	65.0 miles
Dallas County	47.3 miles
Elmore County	60.3 miles
Perry County	32.7 miles
Shelby County	65.8 miles

Chilton County, according to the same report, now has 62.0 miles of Farm-to-Market paved roads and 10.0 miles of paved roads under construction. There are also 23.0 miles of paved roads being programmed.

A report from the office of Ralph P. Eagerton, Chief Examiner of Public Accounts, as of Sept. 30, 1951, the following counties surrounding Chilton County owed the following indebtedness as of that date:

Autauga County	$150,872.15
Bibb County	68,422.54
Coosa County	639,558.99
Dallas County	505,364.92
Elmore County	102,626.37
Perry County	423,996.74
Shelby County	460,180.37

Chilton County is completely out of debt, and has an unencumbered cash balance of approximately $225,000.00.

Life is hard on those who make it hard.

Childhood was not as pleasant as we remember it to have been.

Prosperity will not abound if the farmer loses his profits.

Now is the time to catch up with your work before Spring fever catches up with you.

Winter will soon be getting in its last licks—and they are usually good ones around this time of year.

Advertising must be a good thing. There are so many businesses that have succeeded by using it.

Labor is organized while the farmer is not. That is why the farmers find themselves with so little political power.

THE EFFECTS OF DECONTROL

The first days of business without price controls have varied little, generally speaking, from the days of control. President Eisenhower removed price controls early in February and there were differing predictions on the outcome of the step.

There have been cases of almost immediate price hikes. Standard Oil of California announced, in mid-February, that it was raising the retail cost of gasoline 2.1 cents a gallon at Standard service stations in five Pacific Coast states, Hawaii and Alaska. Standard had requested permission to invoke such an increase as far back as last August, when the Office of Price Stabilization was operative.

Other companies have moved to increase prices since the death of price controls. However, on the whole, the general price level has not begun any steep rise as a result of the decontrol move. Many prices, on the other hand, have continued to go down.

While it is too early to appraise the result of the decontrol move, it may be said at this stage that the immediate effects have not been severe, in either direction.

THE BEST SELLERS

We sometimes wonder what the average reader of best-seller novels expects to gain by reading the trash put out year after year. We would like to remind our readers that, to be balanced, one must read something other than the usual trash, and sex, which is currently being peddled at a record rate.

We have also noticed that, in addition to the vulgarity which characterizes so many best-sellers and which, no doubt, sells the books, many of them contain subtle propaganda. The average sensation-seeker, who appreciates a book in proportion to its vulgarity, seldom realizes that propaganda might be included in today's novels.

It is each citizen's duty to try to understand the motivation behind books he reads, movies, he sees, and behind other entertainment sources. For instance, movie stars can glamorize cocktails, smoking and other things by portraying them as glamorous, normal ways of life. While the average American is more individualistic than the citizen of any other country, he is, nevertheless, often duped by the mass effect of such propaganda. He is convinced that this or that is the thing to do and he conforms and follows the examples he has read of, or seen on the screen.

Man's intelligence can be pretty accurately measured by what he reads. Every individual should realize that when he becomes satisfied with his knowledge and stops educating himself, he is sure to go backward intellectually from that point on. It should also be kept in mind that only the intelligent are wise enough to continue to seek knowledge and education.

With this in mind, we suggest that those who gobble up all the spicy novels of the day make it a rule to read at least one factual, or mentally-stimulating book, for each three love novels. Anyone who will follow such a resolution will improve his mind, eventually learn to enjoy non-fiction and gain for himself at least a chance of being weaned away from trash.

Sparkman Seeks To Aid Private Enterprise

Senator John Sparkman of Alabama, former Chairman and now ranking Democrat on the Senate Small Business Committee, has called for a program "that would give small business the aid and opportunity it needs to contribute to and remain an effective part of our private enterprise system."

Sparkman's recommendations include:

1. A tax revision program that would be particularly helpful to small business.

He explained that this can be done by increasing the exemption on the excess profits tax from the present figure of $25,000; increasing the surtax exemption; eliminating corporate taxes on the first $10,000 (and up to $10,000 as revenue needs dictate) of dividends distributed to stockholders; giving business firms the choice of a more rapid tax write-off than presently allowed; and by giving tax credit, up to specific amounts, on funds plowed back into business.

"These are some of several ways," Sparkman said, "small businesses can be given essential tax relief that will enable them to save funds for opeartion and expansion needs and will give encouragement and make it possible for them to hold onto their businesses."

2. Creation of a permanent independent small business agency charged with the responsibility of assisting small businesses to secure government contracts, to obtain needed financing, and to furnish information helpful to them in their necessary relationship with the Federal government.

Pointing out that he was the original author in the Senate of the act creating the Small Defense Plants Administration which was established for these purposes, Sparkman said, "This agency should be strengthened and continued on a permanent basis."

3. Development of a new small business loan program whereby the government would insure loans made to small firms by private lending agencies.

In this regard Sparkman said he is studying a proposal made by the Federal Reserve Board three years ago to provide government insurance on such loans. He stated that this system would be similar to that used so successfully for many years in the housing program.

"The recent threats to abolish the RFC," Sparkman said, "has caused great concern as to whether or not small business would have a friendly source for financial aid when private funds could not be obtained. Last year I led the successful fight in the Senate to save the RFC because no provision had been made to take care of small business loans. There must continue to be a federal agency to assist small businesses unable to obtain needed financing on a sound basis from private lending agencies."

Senator Sparkman explained that there exists limited authority of a similar nature in present- govern ment lending agencies, but that the authority has not been specific enough and has not been extensively used. "My plan would spell out and strengthen this authority and provide for its use in another agency should the RFC or SDPA, or both, be discontinued," Sparkman said.

CORN PRICE SUPPORT

The national average level for price support for 1953-crop corn will be $1.58 per bushel.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician and a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure is among the most widespread of all conditions which cause disability among people in the United States.

During every twenty-four hours, the human heart pumps 8,000 gallons of blood through 12,000 miles of blood vessels; and every pound of fat adds more blood vessels for the heart to pump through. The blood pressure resulting, measured as to its highest point and as to its lowest point, is found to depend on age, sex, body weight and constitution. The constitution includes the condition of the blood vessels.

It is normal for one's blood pressure to vary from day to day, even from hour to hour. It is affected by all sorts of environmental factors such as cold or heat, by emotional states, such as anger or anxiety and by exertion. However, when the blood pressure remains at an abnormally high level, even during rest, special attention must be directed to it. One of the serious complications is rupture of the blood vessels in the brain or other organs, often due to the high pressure combined with loss of elasticity in blood vessel walls, known as arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

Persons with high blood pressure should avoid excitement and anger as well as exercises calling for heavy lifting or running or any type of activity that produces shortness of breath.

Since high blood pressure is not a disease but a condition that results from the processes of change in the body, the wise person will place himself under the care of a physician. With his mental and physical attitudes carefully controlled, there is no reason why most persons with high blood pressure cannot live a long and interesting life.

A primer coat should be used on galvanized steel before it is painted.

CHOOSING PRODUCTS FOR HOME FREEZING

Selection of good quality fruits and vegetables is an early and important step in home freezing of farm products, according to Lavada Curtis, AP1 Exetnsion food preservation specialist.

Freezing does not improve any product," she points out. "It only preserves that quality grown into the fruit or vegetable.

Therefore, it is important to choose for freezing only the best products."

She adds that once the product is selected, another important factor is the time used in preparing packaging, and freezing the food. After selection, comes sorting, washing, and removal of all non-edible parts. The balancing of vegetables rejuires little equipment, but this step is essential if foods are to retain their flavor.

"After boiling," says Mrs. Curtis, "plunge the vegetable into cold water. After it is thoroughly cooled, drain and pack it into moisture-vapor-proof packages. All air should be forced out of each package."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

After laundering a knitted wool or silk beret, stretch it over a dinner plate and lay it on a clean paper to dry. If the plate is of the proper size, the beret willhold its shape, and further stretching or pressing will be unnecessary. As the beret will shape itself to the exact size of the plae, one with a smooth edge should be used.

Maple Springs

Our attendance was fair Sunday and we had a wonderful lesson and sermon. You that missed the service missed a blessing. Bro. Paul Oden brought the messages for us on What It Takes To Make A Good Church. Do you love your church? If so, prove your love by being present next Sunday.

Bro. N. E. Cook will be bringing the message next Sunday morning. We will have B.T.U. at 6 o'clock Sunday night, so we can get through and attend the preaching services at Poplar Springs. Their revival begins then.

Let's keep our revival in mind beginning the second Sunday in April and be much in prayer that lost souls will be saved.

We still have several sick in the community. Will you not offer a special prayer for them?

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Comer and family and Miss Katherine Rich visited relatives in LaGrange, and Columbus, Ga., over the week end.

Don't forget prayer service each Wednesday night and let's see how many we can get to attend church next Sunday. Will you come and bring one with you?

We were so glad to see Mrs. Myrtle Bowles back at church Sunday. She has been out for some time, having had an operation. Mr. Devaughn is looking better but he still is not able to sing. May I ask that you breath a special prayer for him as we miss this talent of his so much.

Let's pray for our church as we need prayer now as never before.

NOTICE TO NON-RESIDENT

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.

In the Chilton County Law and Equity Court, in Equity. March 1953.

Irene McLeroy Miller, Complainant, vs. William J. Miller, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Irene McLeroy Miller that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that his place of residence and post office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years: It is therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Chilton County News, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said William J. Miller, to plead, answer, or demurr to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 24th day of April, 1953, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

FEEDING SOW AND SUCKLING LITTER

Auburn, Ala. —Since pigs make the cheapest gains during the nursing period, good feeding of the sow to stimulate milk flow is highly important.

"Therefore," says G. B. Phillips, API Extension specialist in animal industry, "when the sow has been brought to full feed 10 days after farrowing, begin self-feeding a mixture that contains 70 pounds of ground shelled corn, 20 pounds of ground wheat or oats, and 10 pounds of protein supplement."

If ear corn is fed in place of the corn meal, provide all the sow will eat and feed four to five pounds of the other ground feed daily.

The specialist adds that a simple mineral mixture and plenty of clean drinking water should be kept before sow at all times.

LEADERSHIP QUALITIES CAN BE LEARNED WELL

A glance at the achievements of Alabama 4-H Club boys and girls who have taken individual leadership projects seem to indicate that qualities of leadership can be learned—and learned well.

Perhaps youngsters who naturally tend to direct others to such ones who are attracted to such projects, says county Extension Service workers who direct 4-H Club programs. In this case, the Alabama organization is well supplied with natural talent, for more than 7,000 boys and girls competed in the state leadership competition last year.

WINTER GRAZING CHECK UP

Now is a good time for farmers to consider the value of effort and expense expended on establishing winter grazing crops last Fall.

CORN BORER DAMAGE

The European corn borer cost U. S. farmers an estimated $77 million in 1952.

Clothespins that have been boiled in salt brine will be toughened against splitting and will not freeze to the wet clothes on the line.

A regular sleeve board is made from several large magazines. They are rolled and tied at the center and ends, then padded with an old Turkish towel and slipped into a cover made of muslin.

THE SAME LAND MUST SERVE MORE PEOPLE

Each day brings a population increase of 70,000 persons in the United States. And by 1975, farmers will have to produce food and fiber for 190 million people.

Sam Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist, says this job will have to be done on abut the same amount of tillable land that is available today.

This is why he urges farmers to use and manage land in such a manner that it will continue to produce high yields for years to come.

GM&O Releases Annual Report Of 1952 To Stockholders

Mobile, Ala.—Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad had net income last year of $7,785,093 on a gross transportation business of $02,855,806 the Company's Annual Report just released to stockholders by Chairman I. B. Tigrett said.

The 1952 net earnings were slightly more than 1 1-4 millin dollars higher than the previous year, although operating expenses were up $1,373,646 for 1052 over 1951. Operating wages represented 60 percent of total Railway Operating Expenses of $65,050,685. The increased net was attributable to the May 2 rate increase. However, this amount is, in effect, overstated by $1,103,-889, for the reason that the Interstate Commerce Commission will not permit railroads to charge amortization of defense projects to operating expense.

The rate of return on the Company's investment was 5.04 per cent.

In an opening letter to shareholders Tigrett outlined that capital expenditures for road and equipment exceeded earnings last year, necessitating additional borrowing. He said that six major acquisitions and mergers responsible for the present 3,000 mile system had necessitated a conservative dividend policy as each of the roads added to the G M&O line was bankrupt and had to be almost completely rebuilt and re-equipped. "If the mergers had not been accomplished—if the properties which could not stand alone the cause of the respective investors had not been put together—certainly would have been hopeless," he said.

Last year GM&O paid $2.00 in common stock dividends and $5.00 in preferred dividends. Earnings per share of common stock were $6.94. The conservative policy with regard to dividend payments, he said "is overwhelmingly approved by those shareholders, constituting a large majority, who are long time owners or who own for investment purposes." He expresses the hope that the future might clear the way for distribution of a "larger part of net income in good years."

Passenger revenues were off a half million dollars due largely to a decreased military movement. Dining cars lost $145,921, the report said, and for each dollar of such revenue 64.8 cents was spent for wages and 42.3 cents for food, in addition to other dining car costs.

Eighty-six industries and warehouses were located on the line last year, sixty-eight of them involving the sale or lease of railroad land for such development.

Net income of the GM&O Land Company, a subsidiary dealing primarily with the Company's holdings of oil prducing lands, was $94,268. The report said "no new oil reservoirs were discovered on or close to the Company's holdings last year."

The Company's highway subsidiary, Gulf Transport Company, had net income of $65,892, slightly higher than las year. While highway freight revenues were off 14 per cent, passenger revenues were up 15 per cent—due to the establishment during the year of additional highway post-office buses. Gulf Transport pioneered this field and was the first private operator of post mobiles.

GM&O serves a seven-state territory between the midwest and the Gulf Coast.

ANNUAL HOUSE AND GARDEN PILGRIMAGE

The twenty-second Annual House and Garden Pilgrimage, sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church of the Advent, Birmingham, will be held April 11th and 12th.

Tickets for $1.50 may be purchased from members of the auxiliary, at the parish house, or at any of the homes on the pilgrimage.

Hours of the pilgrimage will be from 1:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Saturday, April 11th and from 2:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. Sunday, April 12th. The route will be plainly marked from the Parish House. Maps will be available there and at all of the houses. The Birmingham papers will also cary the map during the week of the Pilgrimage. Transportation for those desiring it will be furnished for a small additional cost on buses leaving the church at regular intervals on both days.

Any other information needed may be obtained by writing the Pilgrimage Committee, Church of the Advent, 2015 16th Ave. No., Birmingham, Ala.

Camden Rodeo To Have Queen This Year

Plans for a Rodeo Queen contest in connection with the Camden Rodea April 9th, 10th, and 11th are being made, Bob Liddell, Publicity Chairman, said today.

Between thirty and forty entrants are expected, Liddell said.

Among the other special events in the three-night show, Liddell described one he said would be of special interest to teen-age boys. A herd of calves will be turned in the arena. Two or three of these calves will have a five-dollar bill tied to their tails. The rest will carry only a one-dollar bill each. Teen-agers can have the money if they catch the calf and may catch as many calves as they are able to.

Besides the regular exciting rodeo events such as steer wrestling, bull riding, saddle and bareback bronc riding, and so on, a barrell race for lady entrants is to befeatured. A mule riding contest contest with a big cash prize for the winner will be open to Negro contestants. Street dances and a band contest are also in the works, Liddell said.

Rudolph Culbreth and Julian Weathers have worked out a number of Rodeo Booster Trips to neighboring towns and counties with the Camden School Band going along to play and publicize the rodeo. The trips will start March 30th and the Band and other Rodeo boosters will visit Selma, Greenville, Hayneville, Pine Hill, Beatrice, Monroeville, Fort Deposit, Pine Apple, Frisco City, Thomasville, Grove Hill, Jackson, Marion, Demopolis, Uniontown, Linden, Thomaston and others.

Showcards, posters and auto stickers publicizing the Rodeo in Camden were distributed this week. Members of the Camden Kiwanis Club, sponsoring the event, plan to wear cowboy outfits to work and on every possible occasion until the big show is over.

The most splendid parade ever presented in South Alabama will open festivities, and will include five bands, as well as the Queen entrants, clowns, cowboys, child riders, and many others.

Liddell said that persons interested in entering any of the events should write to Oscar Thomas. Camden, for their entry blanks now, or for any information desired about the rodeo.

Kendrick Appointed Chairman Of Chilton County Cancer Fund Drive

J. L. Kendrick, Chilton County sheriff, has been named Chilton County campaign chairman for the 1953 crusade of the American Cancer Society.

This announcement was made by Redus C. Collier of Decatur, state campaign chairman for this year.

The annual Cancer Crusade will be launched April 1, according to Mrs. Lillian G. Meade of Birmingham, state executive director of the American Cancer Society.

Kendrick will be responsible for raising Chilton County's quota in the 1953 crusade for funds to fight cancer. Funds donated in this effort are used for the support of five cancer research projects in Alabama, an educational program to acquaint the public with cancer's danger signals, and a program of assistance to those who are stricken by this dread disease.

The Chilton County chairman was employed by the Alabama Highway Patrol from 1941 until 1950, except for a period during World War II when he was stationed in Europe as a combat soldier. He left the department in 1950 to assume responsibilities as the sheriff.

In his campaign efforts, Kendrick will be associated with Mrs. Hugh Jones of Clanton, Chilton County commander for the American Cancer Society, who is in charge of the society's education program in Chilton County.

J. LUTHER KENDRICK

HUGH M. COMER, Sylacauga, prominent Alabama industrialist, will head the safety conference in Montgomery, April 30-May 1. Comer, long-time safety leader in the state, was named to head the conference by Gov. Gordon Persons and J. O. Speed, president of the Alabama Safety Commission. He is chairman of the board for Avondale Mills. A University of Alabama graduate, Comer is president and director of Comer-Avondale Mills, Inc., New York; and vice-chairman of the board and director of Southeastern Cottons, Inc., New York. Public officials and private citizens will take part in the safety conference, called by Persons and Earl McGowin, State Conservation Director, and director of the Alabama Safety Commission.

PERENNIAL GRAZING CROP

Farmers who do not have perennial crops for grazing or hay will find annual lespedeza a good crop to use, especially if soil is not too sandy, droughty, and heavily infested with nematodes.

TIPS ON ELECTRICAL WIRING MAINTENANCE

Auburn, Ala.—Normally, home owners don't think much about taking care of their electrical wiring system.

"However, it needs attention," warns William T. Cox, API Extension specialist in farm buildings. "In the home, all circuits wired with No. 14 wire should have no more than a 15- amp fuse, and a circuit wired with No. 12 wire should have no more than a 20-amp fuse."

He states that if the proper size fuze blows, a check should be made to find out why. If there is a short, it must be corrected before any fuse will stay in the circuit, and if it added to the wiring system.

"Never install a fuse longer than the size recommended for the type circuit and size wire it is to protect," advisese Cox, "and replace all broken switches and outlet boxes."

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

An old water mill erected on the Choccolocco Creek near the town of Oxford, was built in 1835, of yellow poplar and pine timber, hand hewn. The mill is 28 feet in diameter and still turns, getting its power from the spring in the Choccolocco Mountains. This old mill is known as Johnny Bamachono.

During the Spanish-American War, 1898, these was erected a camp in the present City of Anniston for training soldiers. It was called Camp Shipp.

Ten miles southeast of LaFayette at the village of Cusseta, was a block house erected in early Indian times, substantially built from logs. In 1916, it was being used as a store and Postoffice by T. T. Meadows. The village bears the name of the Indian town of Cusseta which gave the name to the Creek Treaty in 1832.

Chestnut Creek, in Chilton County, at a point near the village of Mountain Creek, comes dow ntne high hills and dashes itself against a great rock wall. Here it makes a clever turn itself and in known as "The Turn Around." It was at one time a popular summer resort for the people of Montgomery and vicinity, especially during the yellow fever epidemic of 1875. The fine old hotel has fallen into disuse. The locality is noted for its abundance of native mountain laurel and azaleas.

Fort Gullett, about four miles south of Jackson, in Clarke County, on the Tombigbee River, was a Confederate fortification built on the site of the old pioneer fort, by the Confederate Army in 1862, for protection of the salt well and works near by. The fort was erected to keep Federal gunboats from coming up the Tombigbee River. Fort Hawn is the same as Gullett's Bluff.

Four and one-half miles east of Gainesville on the Alabama River, is located an extensive aborignal cemetery adjoining an aborignal fortification. Five miles north of Wood's Bluff, one-half mile from the Tombigbee River, there is an aborignal burial ground which contains many burials.

Near Brooklyn, in Conecuh County, there is a cave which was a noted hide-out for highwaymen about 1820. From this cave outlaws went from time to time to route and kill traders from Pensacola and return here with their loot. It has chambers of some magnitude, with stellactites and stellagimies. Many bats roost in the cave.

"Conecuh" County is a word of Muscogee origin and is said by authority to mean "Land of Cane" and by another "Pole Cat's Head."

CAMDEN KIWANIS TO SPONSOR RODEO

What will be the biggest show ever held in Wilcox County will be presented here in Camden this spring, when the Camden Kiwanis Club sponsors a bigtime rodeo. The rodeo is to be given for three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights April 9th, 10th, and 11th, beginning at 8:00 p.m. It will be presented at Barnett Field, on the school football field.

The show is produced by Randolph and Chisum, who have given rodeos at Mobile, Montgomery, Huntsville, Columbus, Georgia and other cities of similar size in this section. Among the special events which will appear on the rodeo program are saddle bronc riding, bareback bronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling, Brahman bull riding, a calf scramble for boys, a barrel race contest for girls, and a pony show for children. Rodeo clowns will add to the fun.

Cash prizes are to be awarded for winners in the main events. In addition to the rodeo events proper, Camden Kiwanians are planning a number of special attractions. Some of these which may develop are a street dance, a band contest, special concession booths on the grounds, and others.

In anticipation of a large attendance from [illegible] the Camden Kiwanis Club is ordering [illegible] of additional bleacher seats to be erected temporarily at the football field.

The entire personnel of the Kiwanis Club of Camden, with the aid of many other people of Wilcox and surrounding counties are working hard toward making the Camden rodeo the best ever presented in South Alabama.

CLANTON ELEMENTARY 4-H CLUB MEETING

The 4-H Club of Clanton Elementary School met March 10 at the school.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Ophelia Wyatt. The minutes were read by the secretary, Bonnie Sue Burnett. After that the president asked about the old and new business, of which there wasn't any.

We then had the club skirt review. The winners were: 1st place, Mary Jo Sandlin; 2nd place, Pat Wood; 3rd place, Sherry Lynn Taylor; 4th place, Betty Ruth Puckett; 5th place, Bonnie Sue Burnette.

The meeting was then adjourned.

Mary Jo Sandlin, Reporter.

Wrong "Train" of Thought

Most of us knew the streamliner stopped about four miles from town last Thursday — but we didn't know why...

Seems the train was hurrying along, then came the screeching of brakes — some fellow had pulled the Emergency Stop cord.

When the conductor asked him why he did it, he said, "The train was just going too fast—I wanted to get you to slow down."

From where I sit, that streamliner has been going at that speed for the past seven years with a perfect safety record and the passengers have always been pleased. Now—along comes a fellow who wants the train to go at his speed. Some people are like that. Some still would begrudge another person's right to a temperate glass of beer even though that person wouldn't dream of flashing a "Stop" sign on their preference for, say, milk, coffee or tea. Respecting the rights of others is the only way we can keep "on the right track."

No other light trucks have all this

You'd like to have passenger-car pace and economy on the highway—and you'll get it from the 1953 GMC's.

For there are two great advances that step the new GMC's ahead of all previous truck performance:

One: Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive*—the fully automatic shift with 3 speeds for traffic, 4 for the open road—available on 19 models through the ½-, ¾- and 1-ton capacity range.

Two: a new line of engines of progressive design, with compression ratios of 7.5 to 1 and 8.0 to 1—the highest of any gasoline truck engine ever built. Here's pile-driver power behind every piston stroke—flashing response and better mileage are squeezed from regular fuel.

Many chassis advances, too, add to the extra-value features that make GMC's, point for point, the biggest dollar's worth in the light-truck field as well as in the heavier lines.

We confidently tell you—these great new GMC's will do your job better, easier, and at the lowest over-all cost. They have stamina beyond their size, because they're "built like the big ones"—the heavy-duty GMC's that lead the world in sales.

That's saying a lot. But just come in—and we'll prove it.

*Standard equipment on Package Delivery model, optional at moderate extra cost on the others.

Peach Prospect

A letter fom Americus, Ga., gives an insight to peach crop conditions of our nearest competitor. According to records released by Dr. John Weinberge, Fort Valley, Ga., the Ft. Valley area had accumulated dormant hours through February, in excess of 1050. Elberta peaches in Fort Valley were in full bloom the first week of March. An excellent prospect for a good crop is in view in the principal Georgia area.

This report parallels the Chilton County peach situation. All Chilton County producers should be aware of this situation and act accordingly. With a good possibility of normal heavy crops here and in competing areas, we face keen competition in 1953 peach markets.

The production of clean, highly colored, large fruit is probably going to be more important in 1953 than ever before.

Spray on schedule with an effective recommended spray mixture!

First County Agent

The Agricultural Extension Service now headed in all counties by the County Agent and the Home Demonstration Agent is celebrating its Golden anniversary. Yes, County Agents have been demonstrating better farming methods to American farmers for fifty years.

In the early years of the U. S. a farmer produced food, feed and fiber for his immediate family and helped to feed the village miller and maybe the village Smithy. Today only 16% of the people of U. S. are on farms and still the 16% produce vast quantities of farm commoditiies to supply the 84% of our non-farm population and additional surplus for export and storage.

The County Extension Agents have been important factors in enabling fewer farm people to produce the vital food and fiber needs for this great nation and for our allies. But, let's get back to our story. Who was the first County Agent?

The first demonstration on producing and using agricultural products in the U. S. probably occurred at Plymouth, Mass., and was conducted by the famous Indian-Squanto. Squanto taught, through demonstrations, how to produce and how to cook corn.

In advising the Pilgrims on time of planting corn, Squanto referred to the many signs recorded and proven by his father and his father's father. Thus Squanto had a basis for making a recommendation. It was inherant historical knowledge passed on from generation to generation.

Today's Extension workers also uses a basis for recommendations. The basis is the scientifically proven facts of our vast experimental laboratories and experimental farms.

As the trend in population continues it is evident that fewer farm people are going to be compelled to produce more food and fiber on fewer acres for more off-the-farm people. The proven know-how developed by the Experiment Stations and passed on to our farmers through County Agents and cooperating farm families will be a more important factor in keeping the U. S., the world leader, that we are today.

Annual value of production in the United States and western Europe is on the order of five times as great as that of all underdeveloped areas of the world combined.

Timely Farm Cotton Topics

Cotton planting time is just around the corner. The paramount question in most cotton farmers' minds is—What will cotton be worth during marketing season 1953?

No can can accurately answer the price question; but, assuming a normal crop is produced in 1953, and further assuming that no drastic changes occur in exportations of cotton we will probably encounter a heavy cotton surplus. A surplus will certainly mean that cotton prices will be near if not on the government support level.

Secretary of Agriculture, Eyra Taft Benson, has announced that the minimum price support level will be 90% of the parity figure at the beginning of the marketing year—August 1st. Today the party price on basic middling 7-8 inch American upland cotton is 34.22 cents per pound.

Cotton seed prices will also be supported at 90% of parity for the 1953 crop.

Truck Crop Marketing

The Jefferson County Truck Growers Association, who are operators of the Farmers Marketing Facility in Birmingham, have requested the Markets Division, Production Marketing Association, Washington, D.C., to make a complete survey of the Birmingham Market and Marketing Area.

This request by the Association is in preparation for possible expansion and improvement of this facility.

To discuss the various phases of the Birmingham area fruit and vegetable market problem, a meeting has been scheduled to be held in the courthouse in Birmingham, Thursday, March 26th, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

In view of the fact that a large number of Chilton County's truck crop operators are members and users of the Birmingham market, we want to encourage affected producers to attend the above-mentioned meeting.

Because 68 per cent of husbands now do some grocery shopping at least once a week, manufacturers are starting to design packages that will appeal equally to men and to women. The newest trend is toward colors not "too dainty" for a man's taste.

Railroads Set All-Time Safety Record In 1952

The best safety record in transportation history was chalked up by the American railroads in 1952.

During 1952 the railroads of the United States operated thousands of passenger trains daily and carried approximately 472,000,000 passengers for distances ranging from a few miles to thousands of miles in length, without a single passenger fatality resulting from a collision, derailment or other train accident.

This was first full calendar year in railway history without a passenger fatality due to these causes.

In the category of train-service accidents, such as boarding and alighting from trains, and jumping or falling from moving trains—only 14 fatalities were recorded last year, including two subsequent deaths.

When these trains-service fatalities are included in the calculation, the railroads' safety record last years is still the best ever made by any form of transportation anywhere. It figures one passenger fatality for every 33,760,000 passengers carried, or one passenger fatality for every 2,400,000,000 passenger-miles of service performed.

How safe is railway travel? Well—

Suppose the great explorer, Christopher Columbus, had been destined to die in a passenger train accident. Suppose he had left his ship upon his discovery of America, in 1492, and stepped aboard a train. Then after getting on the train. . .he would continue to ride. . .at a mile a minute. . .around the clock. . .from that day to this. . .never stopping. By riding for 461 years to the present day. . .he would have covered only ONE TENTH of the distance which he would have to travel before meeting with a fatal accident. If the law of averages applied, he could expect the accident to occur 4,110 years from now—in the year 6063! —(From Railway Digest—March, 1953).

In 1794, the same year that Eli Whitney gave the world the cotton gin, another American, Mrs. Samuel Slater, introduced spool cotton to the universe. While spinning Sea Island cotton, she noticed that it produced an even, beautiful yarn. That same year her husband began manufacturing cotton sewing thread.

At the present rate of consumption, the United States will need 50 billion tons of coal during the next 100 years.

Sparkman Sponsors Expansion Of Crop Insurance Program

Senator John Sparkman, Alabama, [illegible] introduced a bill to extend the crop insurance program [illegible]

Explaining that the crop insurance program is a non-profit [illegible] that premiums exceed losses paid, Sparkman said, [illegible] weather [illegible] it provides [illegible] seed, fertilizer, and labor, [illegible] often [illegible] credit. In fact, crop insurance helps to provide a sound economy for both the farmer and the business[illegible]

Senator Sparkman emphasized that the program should be expanded to include counties in which crop insurance is not now available and stated that the bill he will introduce would make this possible.

"Experience shows," he said, "that it would be practical to do so on a county-wide national basis [illegible] the five-year period 1948-1952 premiums have exceeded losses paid the farmers by about [illegible] 1952 was a particularly fruitful year for this program in Alabama. While the losses paid to Alabama farmers during last year amounted to only $77,000, premiums paid in came to about $255,000.

"In spite of a positive record in Alabama and throughout the nation as a whole, the limited program now in existence makes it possible for only a handful of counties to participate. In Alabama farmers in only the 16 counties of Blount, Cherokee, Chilton, Cullman, DeKalb, Etowah, Franklin, Houston, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, Marshall, Morgan, and Tuscaloosa, are eligible. It is anticipated that about 20,000 farmers in these counties will insure their crops for 1953.

"This is a good beginning," Sparkman said, "but I want every Alabama farmer in every county to have the right to insure his crops if he wants to do so."

Sparkman also pointed out that at present Alabama farmers can take out insurance only on cotton. He said that he was recommending that the program be extended to include insurance on peanuts and corn.

Peanut crops are important particularly in Southeast Alabama, and corn is grown throughout the entire state. It is my intention to introduce legislation that would provide insurance for any major commercial crop," he stated.

Sparkman urged, in the meantime, that Alabama farmers in those counties now eligible take advantage of the program. He pointed out that applications for crop insurance must be filed in the county Production and Marketing Administration Office by April 10.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

One of the hardest things parents have to do is to explain to their children things they don't know much about themselves. No parents like to admit ignorance, not to their children, so they get themselves terribly tangled in vague explanations.

There was one day when I decided to say, 'I don't know," when the children asked something I knew nothing about, but after I'd given them that answer nearly a dozen times before lunch, the six-year-old gave me a disgusted look and commented:

"Going to school didn't do you much good, did it?"

So I went back to the old method of trying to make uncertain answers sound authoritative. I couldn't satisfy the four-year-old though when he asked:

"What's the sky made out of, and what's on the other side of it?"

I gave my best efforts to that double question, stretched my slight knowledge as far as it would go, but I didn't satisfy his curiosity.

"Humph! Guess I'll have to find out for myself," he said. "I'll reach up and yank that old sky down and see what's up there."

I do hope he'll share his knowledge with me.

Our neighbor down the street, the one with the big family, got so tired of eating hard boiled eggs the week after Easter last year that he resolved to work out a different system this Easter.

Now when she prepares scrambled eggs for breakfast or when she uses an egg in cooking, she pricks a hole in each end of the shell, carefully blows out the insides and puts the empty shell away.

The collection of empty shells will be transformed into gay Easter eggs for her children. She plans to paint them with some left-over enamel she has on hand, but they can also be colored with regular egg dyes, with crayons or with water colors.

When painting time arrives, she'll run a strong thread through each egg shell and dangle them from the clothes line so that they can be painted easily and will dry without sticking or dripping. To make some of them extra pretty, she is going to decorate them with pieces of ribbon, lace and artificial flowers held in place with household cement.

If your youngsters are planning to have an Easter party, they might enjoy playing Yes or No egg hunt.

To play the game, each child is given ten candy eggs. At a given signal, the players begin talking to each other. Any player who says, "Yes," or "No," in his conversation must give an egg to the player he is talking to. The player with the most eggs when the game ends is the winner.

Candy eggs are used also in playing Into the Nest. To prepare for the game, place a tin pie plate inside a dishpan and arrange a small paper nest inside the pie plate. Players are given five eggs to try to throw into the nest. Eggs landing in the dishpan count five points, those in the pie plate count ten and those landing in the nest count twenty points.

* * *

For refreshments serve egg-shaped open faced sandwiches spread with cream cheese tinted with vegetable coloring. Decorate the sandwiches with colored cheese squeezed from a fancy pastry tube.

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT REPORT

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Department of Health announced today that 114 Alabamians were victims of homicides during July, August and September. This state total, it said, included none reported from Chilton.

The announcement was based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

ANSWER to Puzzle No. 229

World's Oldest Cargo Ship Found in Mediterranean Sea

The world's oldest cargo ship was discovered recently off the southern coast of France and is now being raised by a National Geographic Society expedition. It is a Greco-Roman vessel sunk in the third century before Christ.

Already divers have brought to the surface one of the rarest finds of archeological treasure in recent years. Almost 1,000 large amphoras—pottery vessels used to carry the liquid cargoes of the ancients—have been recovered. Some, still corked, contained wine more than 2,100 years old.

Among the treasures taken from the sunken ship has been 1,400 pieces of fine export dinnerware which experts say probably were made in the Greek province of Latium, now Campania, Italy.

Archeologists believe the ship, 110-foot and 600 ton, was sunk around 230 B. C. Code letters on the amphoras reveal that the ship and cargo was owned by Marcus Sestius.

Historians report much is already known of this merchant. Records survive to show that he was a Roman who was naturalized a Greek citizen in the year 240, and who made his headquarters on the Greek Island of Delos. Pitus Livus wrote of him as a "powerful politician" sent to prepare Greece for Roman conquest.

The ship will be cleared of cargo and mud by late spring of this year. "Then we will raise her," an expedition spokesman said. "We plan to duplicate her exactly and actually sail her on her last course —Delos to Latium to the scene of her foundering—using only replicas of her original fittings, rigging, and navigational instruments."

The expedition's discoveries are adding much to the world's knowledge of the ancients.

After the present work is completed, the group which is headed by Capt. Jacques-Yves Cousteau, will start on an extensive around-the-world oceanographic expedition. This expedition is also being sponsored by the National Geographic Society.

Spring Turkey Season Opens

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama's Spring turkey season opens March 20th in certain counties and areas of the state and will extend for 27 days through April 15th.

During that period, hunting of gobblers will be allowed in Baldwin, Bibb, Butler, Sumter, Chilton, Choctaw, Clarke, Conecuh, Coosa, Escambia, Houston, Marengo, Monroe, Perry, Russell, Washington, and Wilcox counties; all of Covington county except that part south and east of U. S. Highway 29; and by permit in the Oakmulgee Division of the Talladega National Forest and William B. Bankhead National Forest. Permission to hunt in the National Forests can be had by contacting: Amos Spiller, Route 3, Haleyville, Bankhead; Luther Snipes, Rt. 1, Moundville, Oakmulgee; Joe Morriss, Talladega, Choccolocco.

In another portion of the spring season, gobbler shooting will be allowed from March 25th through April 20th in Jefferson, Shelby, Tuscaloosa, and Walker counties; on all land east of U. S. Highway 241 and west of State Highway 9 in Talladega and Clay counties; and that part of the Talladega National Forest in Cleburne county lying south of State Highway No. 4 or U. S. Highway No. 78 except within the boundaries of Cheaha State Park.

Hunters are permitted by the State's turkey hunting regulations to kill one gobbler per day or a total of five within the 1952-53 seasons.

Reports from the 1952 fall portion of the season indicated that hunters legally killed 1,754 wild turkeys. This was slightly fewer than in the fall of 1951.

Tales About Insects

(By W. A. Ruffin, API Extension Entomologist)

Auburn, Ala. — Busy as a bee—very unoriginal, but very true.

Bees not only produce a delectable sweet, pollinate clovers, fruits, and vegetables, and often give arthritis sufferes relief, but they also put on a good show.

To many beekeepers the fascinating activity they carry on is their most important function. In their opinion, nothing can equal watching a strong colony of Italian bees at work on a beautiful Spring day.

Of all Spring months, March is the most critical one for bees in Alabama. It is important that every colony of bees be checked at once for three things—food supply, the queen's condition, and the amount of space available.

Often in the early Spring, before many flowers are in bloom, the food supply in a bee colony runs low. In this case, the bees can be fed with a solution of equal amount of sugar and water. The syrup can be poured into an empty frame of drawn comb from a cup held at least one foot above the empty cells. When the cells on one side of the frame have been filled, turn it over and fill those on the other side. Remove and fill as many frames as needed to give each colony or stand of bees one to two gallons of sweetened water. This amount will tide a strong colony over a period of 10 days. Feed the bees as often as needed until a honey flow starts.

Every beekeeper knows that the queen is the heart of a colony. A poor queen means a weak colony and one that will not store any surplus honey. For this reason, each colony must be checked to make sure the queen is laying well. A good queen will lay two or three thousand eggs every day, and a poor layer should be replaced by a young one at once. Some of the best queens in the world are grown by beekeepers in Alabama.

The third important point is to see that bees have plenty of room. If crowded in the hive, they are almost sure to swarm. A colony that has swarmed will not have enough bees left in it to store a good crop of honey.

To the naked eye, Venus is the most beautiful of all the planets. Periodically it appears as both the morning and evening star, so brilliant that it can be seen in daylight. Several reports of flying saucers have been traced to such appearances of Venus.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

A little boy we know was sent to the Sanitary Barber Shop for a hair cut. Now anyone who has been around Clanton for any time at all knows the Wagoners and the Headleys—all big, fine men. Well, when the little boy returned home his mother asked him which barber cut his hair. He answered: "The fat one."

We received in our mail this morning a circular and a letter with which we heartily agree and that is; abolishing the poll tax. We have felt that paying for the privilege of voting for the men who will conduct our local, state and national government, is undemocratic. The Alabama League of Women Voters have started a drive to abolish this undemocratic amendment to our constitution and are urging all who are in sympathy with them to contact their Representatives in the State Legislature and urge them to allow the people to do away this unpopular legislation.

Let's not wait until the horse is stolen before we wake up and put a lock on the barn door. That's a moth-eaten proverb but applies nicely to the subject we are about to take up. Within recent weeks 10 or 12 automobiles have slid off the road just east of our high school. There is a block long stretch along there that is as slick as glass when it is wet. The County should do something about this before someone is killed. As we said at the beginning the time to lock the door is before the horse is stolen.

Roy Mahan tells an interesting tale about the young engineer who built a large Florida Theatre building on quick sand. Others, it seems, had tried and tried to fill the hole to get a firm foundation for the building but to no avail. Then along comes this young engineer and says he can do the job. He gets a lot of coils and sets himself a refrigeration plant off beside the hole and freezes the quicksand as hard as concrete. Then he pours his foundation without a bit of trouble. Roy says an eight-story building stands on the site today and is the biggest theatre building in Florida.

Clanton To Organize Baseball Team Soon

There will be a double-header baseball game at the City Park on April 5th, and at that time a team will be organized.

It is reported that the Clanton Lions Club will sponsor the local team this year and players from all parts of the county have been invited to play in the game on Easter Day.

Players from Maplesville, Verbena, and Jemison have promised to come to play in the opening game and to help out. Those who are interested in playing baseball are especially invited to attend this game and contact the manager of the team or the officials of the Clanton Lions Club.

State Health Dept. X-Ray Truck Will Make Survey Here

It is the opinion of your Health Officer that Tuberculosis constitutes a threat to all the people of Chilton County; therefore he has joined forces with the U. S. Public Health Service and the local doctors to give you the advantage of a complete X-Ray survey. That is, make an X-ray of all persons of the County. Our State law makes it compulsory for all between the ages of 13-50 years to have this X-ray, but surely we want each child of school age to have it, and as many others as will. This is a great opportunity offered you and all with no cost to you.

This X-ray will not only disclose whether or not you have tuberculosis, but will also disclose such heart conditions as can be diagnosed for this X-ray; only remove jewelry and metallic objects from chest clothing.

We shall be happy to have Chilton County cooperate, as I am sure you will. Help us to help you with your health problems.

G. M. TAYLOR, M.D.,
County Health Officer.

WSCS To Play Host To Church Ladies Of County

The Ladies of Clanton Methodist Church will play host to the representatives of other churches on Monday, April 6th, at the church here, announced Mrs. Lloyd Popwell, president of the Clanton Methodist Church W.S.C.S., today.

Guest speaker for the occasion is Mrs. Kenneth W. Forbes, Bible Instructor at the Shades Valley Presbyterian Church at Birmingham. The meeting will convene at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Popwell has extended a cordial invitation to all the church ladies of the county to be their guests on this occasion and is anticipating a large crowd.

MAPLESVILLE JR. 4-H EXHIBIT

During National 4-H Club Week, March 7-15th, Maplesville Jr. 4-H members had an exhibit in the vacant store next to Thomas' Store. This year many of the boys and girls have made articles of various kinds, so these were in the exhibit. Of course more articles had been made that were not available for the contest.

Four-H'ers having articles in the exhibit were: Evie Jo Harrison, Mary Ruth Smith, Joan Smitherman, Beatrice Smitherman, Brenda Higginbotham, Jo Ann Perry, Nancy Daniel and Butch Higginbotham. Some of the articles that were on exhibit were dolls made out of socks, yarn or scraps, quilt blocks, crocheted and embroidered pieces, house shoes, skirts, aprons, pot holders and lamps.

Adult leaders who helped the 4-H'ers with the exhibit were: Mrs. Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. O. V. Harrison, and Mrs. H. L. Smith.

CHILTON COUNTY 4-H CLUB SKIRT AND DRESS CONTEST

The Annual County 4-H Club Skirt and Dress Contest will be Saturday, March 28th, at 9:00 a.m. at the City Hall in Clanton. This contest is one of the highlights of the year for 4-H Club girls because many of them have sewing or clothing as a project. At this time each girl has the opportunity to make a skirt or dress and compete with other girls in her Club and then in the County Contest. During this month contests have been held in all of the twenty-three clubs of the county. Winners of these contests will participate in the County Contest.

The garment is judged off of the girl for points in construction such as seams, hem, placket, fasteners, band, level skirt, sleeves, joining of skirt and waist, and sewing in general. The girl also models the dress or skirt so that her appearance in it may be judged. Neatness, grooming, style, and accessories are considered.

Girls who have won in the contest of the Clubs throughout the County are encouraged to enter the County Contest. First place winners of both the skirt and dress contest will receive a very attractive gold pin, the 4-H Dress Revue Pin. Any 4-H girl would be proud of this pin. The County Winner of the dress contest will be eligible to enter the State Dress Contest which will be held in Auburn during State 4-H Club Camp July 6-11th.

Easter Seal Sale Continues Thru April 5th

The Easter Seal Campaign, sponsored by the local chapter of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults will continue until Easter Sunday, April 5.

Plans have been made to provide all citizens the opportunity of contributing to the cause of Crippled Children. Mr. Levine declared that the local society hoped to reach even more families than in previous years and to enlist support from a still greater number of persons so that Easter Seal services to crippled children may not only be maintained at their present levels but expanded in order to care for the increasing number of children needing help.

"It is our hope this year that the Easter Seal message may be caried to more homes than ever before, thus arousing support from a greater number of our local citizens," said Mr. Levine.

"There are more crippled children every year and the services to help them overcome their handicaps are more expensive every year, just as everything is more expensive. We hope to have larger funds to maintain present services and expand services to help more children."

Mr. Levine stated that the goal for Chilton County has been set at $2,000 for 1953. This amount is urgently needed to continue the present program of services.

THE MILDRED DILLING CONCERT

The Mildred Dilling concert was a [illegible] December. [illegible] music lovers of [illegible] Counties. No artist previously [illegible] can equal this rare combination of artistry, intelligence, humor and beauty enjoyed last [illegible] evening. The audience listened to an entirely new repertory performed on a relatively unfamiliar instrument, the harp, but such was Miss Dilling's musicianship, such were her informal instructive comments and such were her personal charm and warmth that the audience was won to the less familiar medium and program material. Those who had sought to present Miss Dilling during the seven years of Chilton County Community Concerts joyfully pronounced, "better than our highest expectations." Others said, "Worth the entire year's membership."

Miss Dilling is noted for her books on the harp and for her fine collection of old harps. A part of her program was devoted to an exhibition of a part of this collection accompanied by a humorous explanatory lecture.

With the continued support and appreciation of the public the concert committee promise an equally good if not better 1953-54 series. Watch for details of next campaign to be held in the near future.

It is a truth. We cannot build our county by knocking it to others.

Thank God pessimism is not contagious. If it were there would be no churches, no schools, no government, no progress. Women would still be dragged by the head over the landscape and man would still be making his home in a cave and living by the law of survival of the most.

Beauty in a woman is not necessary — but it sure makes life easier for her.

It says food, rest, mental peace, and exercise are the three keys to a long life. Tell us where you are going to find any mental peace in this age of atom-bombs and high taxes.

EVEN A LITTLE CHILD

When the most universally hated man of all time died the other day, even little children took note of the incident it seems. In a letter dropped in the post office here in Clanton, evidently written by a small boy, was found the reaction of most of the civilized world other than behind the Iron Curtain. The letter read:

Dear Stallen:

I hope they fill your grave with rocks. I also hope they berry you 12 ft. deep instead of 6 ft.

Regards,

Guess Ho.

P.S. Call off the war.

That letter tells a story far greater than could be written with volumns and volumns.

WHERE LAY THE BLAME?

Last Sunday in a Texas jail three young men were shot to death while trying to make their escape. The youngest was 17 years old and the oldest was 20.

When three so young could die in a bloody gunfight with a police officer, or jailor, where lies the blame?

That the three men, or boys, were already desperate criminals cannot be denied since one of them had just remarked to his friends: "We're going for blood and death." And if they were not already past saving they were well on their way.

Such attitudes toward law and order is maintained by an ever increasing number of our "younger generation" it seems, and we firmly believe that the delinquent parents are as a rule to blame. We firmly believe were there no delinquent parents, there would be no delinquent children, and by delinquent parents, we don't mean especially law breakers. We mean breakers of the faith with their children in not knowing what they are doing and the friends with whom they are associating.

No, even though it is the child that does the wrong —it is not always the child who is to blame.

BRONCO BUSTER FROM ABILENE

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The majority of the Republican members of Congress did a complete about-face in voting last week for Reorganiaztion Plan No. 1 of 1953, submitted by President Eisenhower. This plan which would establish a Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Only three years earlier, virtually every Republican in the House had voted against a plan substantially the same but one that had been submitted to Congress by President Truman.

I voted against the plan and would have voted against it had I been a Member of Congress in 1950. If such a plan was undesirable under a Democratic president, the fact that we have a Republican Administration now does not necessarily cure its evils.

In my opinion this plan merely provides for an administrative superstructure for the Federal Security Administration, which will be replaced by this new department. According to the plan, the present FSA Administrator would become a cabinet member and receive an increased salary. The present FSA assistant administrator would be elevated to under-secretary and get a larger salary. The two FSA administrative assistants would be made assistant secretaries of the new department, with increases in their salaries. Under the plan, salaries alone would be increased at least $32,000 annually. The Director of the Budget is unable to estimate how much additional expense would be required to support this new department. Yet, not one single agency is abolished by the plan. Not one consolidation is provided for and not one single job is abolished. On the contrary, new positions are created.

The people last November, they called

As I interpreted the mandate of ther than more federal government ed on Congress to provide less. ra They voted to cut the cost of federal government, not to expand costs. Yet the creation of a new department is definitely a step away from economy. History has shown that every government department grows as fast as it can talk Congress out of more money for expansion.

I was told by numerous Members of Congress that they voted in opposition to a similar reorganiaztion plan in 1950 because "it would make left-winger Oscar Ewing a member of the cabinet." But, in voting for this legislation last week, these same Congressmen seemed to forget that they were dealing with permanent legislation. We have never abolished a department to date and there is certainly no reason to believe one will be abolished in the future. Therefore, it is entirely possible that a conservative administration will not stay in power indefinitely and that left-wing elements may in the future use this newly created department to encourage the adoption of socialized medicine and federal control of education.

Oil Lands Dispute

Debate on a 17-year-old controversy is scheduled to get underway again in Congress about March 30. The long-time argument concerns the question of whether individual states own submerged lands off their coasts or whether the areas belong in part or entirely to the federal government. These disputed underwater lands are rich with oil deposits to be worth $40 billion.

The bill which will come before the House about March 30 is designed to give states ownership of the submerged lands out to their historical water boundaries. Most of the coastal states' boundaries are set at three miles out from the shore, but a few states came into the Union with their limits further out in the sea. The bill would give federal control to the areas which lie between these states boundaries and the edge of the continental shelf.

It is expected that Congressmen from Louisiana and Texas, and possibly Florida, will object to this method of dividing the lands since many of the oil fields off the coasts of their states lie beyond the limits of their boundaries. Under this bill, the fields beyond the boundary limits would go to the federal government. These Congressmen will probably offer amendments to the bill to provide that the states have control of the underwater lands all the way to the edge of the continental shelf.

The bill will also receive opposition from Congressmen who are against giving the states title to any of the oil lands. The Supreme Court has ruled against state ownership in three cases. It handed down decisions which stated that the federal government has paramount rights to the submerged lands.

While he was President, Harry Truman twice refused to sign bills passed by Congress to give states full control of the underseas lands. President Eisenhower feels the states should have full control of the offshore lands within their historical boundaries.

I imagine this issue will consume a lot of time in the House and that a number of bills will be debated before the question is settled. Republican leaders are anxious to reach a decision on the dispute at an early date, but the Senate has indicated that it will not take full action for at least another month.

New Bridge To Be Built Across Alabama

Montgomery, Ala.—State Highway Director Guerry Pruett says a location has been chosen and plans are being drawn for a new bridge across the Alabama River on U. S. 31, just north of Montgomery.

Pruett warned however that the project isn't positively assured. Right-of-way rights must be obtained, and plans approved by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads before work can begin.

He said that it will be from six to eight months before the state can ask bids on the construction, and then another month before work could start.

Clean-Up Week Is Good Time To Eliminate Fire Hazards

Thousands of communities will conduct Clean-Up Week some time this spring in an effort to beautify the town and make it a healthier place in which to live. It is also a good time to improve fire safety in your community.

Firemen report that the basement is the most dangerous spot in the house as far as fires are concerned. If your home was inspected today the firemen would look for piles of waste papers, oily rags or discarded furniture.

They would examine your ash barrel—it should be metal. Then they would turn their attention to furnaces, stoves or smoke pipes close to combustible ceilings or partition. Charring of wood, blistering of paint, or wood that is hot when you hold your hand against it, are signs that the temperature in that area is dangerously high.

Your gas appliances would be inspected, to be sure there are no conditions which might cause gas leaks or explosion. Your chimneys would get a going over from the inside. Wooden beams extending into chimney walls have started many fires.

If you have work rooms in the basement, they would get their share of attention, to be sure there are no shavings on work benches, and that paints, varnishes, oils and turpentine are correctly stored.

Electrical distribution channels and fuses, which are usually installed in the basement, would be examined for proper fusing. In most cases, 15 ampere fuses would be used.

Winding up the inspection tour, they would check to see that the spaces at the bottom of wall studs are tightly fire-stopped to prevent a basement fire from spreading into the walls and up to other rooms.

During 1952 fire damaged or destroyed approximately $784,953,000 worth of property in the United States. Measured in dollars, the losses are at an all-time high for the second consecutive year.

Since 1935 when fire losses amounted to $235 million, they have increased 3.3 times.

These facts point up the need for continuous attention to fire prevention and to community participation in spring Clean-up activities.

On the farm front, the fire hazard is greater today than ever before. The modern farms have all the fire hazards of a machine shop, factory, gasoline station and paint shop.

Today's mechanized farm makes wide use of gasoline-operated machinery and electrical equipment, all of which have created many new fire hazards that must be safeguarded against by the farmer.

And it is important to note that farm fires frequently result in total loss because of inadequate water supplies.

COOK SWEETPOTATOES AND ROAST TOGETHER

Auburn, Ala.—For a delightful treat, place, peeled, raw sweetpotatoes around meat in a roasting pan during the last hour or hour and a half of cooking time.

Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutrionist, says that this is one of the best ways to serve sweetpotatoes.

"Naturally," agrees the specialist, "the actual time of cooking will depend on the size of the sweetpotatoes and whether they are covered with a lid. The potatoes should be turned and basted occasionally with meat drippings."

Scanning the News

THE ATTACKS by Russian planes on British and American aircraft in Europe are causing more concern in Washington than the general public realizes. The question is: What is the Communist objective?

A number of Western diplomats have indicated that it may be a deliberate get-tough pattern ordered by the Kremlin to feel out the West. Or it may be the means by which the Russian leaders hope to divert the attention of the Communist peoples from the recent death of Premier Stalin and their internal problems. In other words, a deliberate move to give the little Communists something else to think about.

Reaction in congress over the acts of violence have been of two rather extreme views. Senator Ferguson of Michigan represents one view and expresses it: "It behoves us and our allies to act with caution but firmness and to use wisdom and clear thinking rather than emotions. This does not mean that we must withdraw and appease, but it does call for an alert firmness."

The less cautious view is taken by Congressman Short of Missouri, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee: "When they come across the border in our territory we should shoot the hell out of them and if they fire on our planes from their own territory we should shoot back."

As a result the United States has ordered its fliers to shoot back when fired upon. Washington naturally is worried because a few more of these incidents, shooting by both sides, could set off another World War.

● Another big move to cut expenditures was the Eisenhower administration's order that the armed services reduce their civilian payrolls by 39,346 employees by the end of May.

According to the Defense Department the number of civilians employed by the armed forces at present is slightly more than 1,327,000.

Under the new program the Army's payroll will be cut from 536,917 to 521,000; the Navy's from 474,662 to 460,600; and the Air Force's from 315,967 to 306,600.

● Declining farm prices are now having the expected reaction in other fields, although many people are not aware of it at the moment. The farmers have taken a big tuck in their purse strings and are not buying tractors, feed, fencing, fertilizer and other agricultural necessities at the same rate as last summer. In fact, sales of most of these items have been off since last fall.

One of the nation's largest farm machinery makers reports that sales are off by about 10 per cent. Others in the field also report declines.

As this is being written, steers, choice grade are selling at $24.50 a hundred in Chicago against $37.25 a year ago. Grain prices have tumbled even with government price supports. This is the obvious reason for the penny-pinching now being practiced by the American farmer. And it is expected to continue for the time being.

Storage Room — Crowded and walls crumbling.

Men's Rest Room. The citizens of this county deserve better.

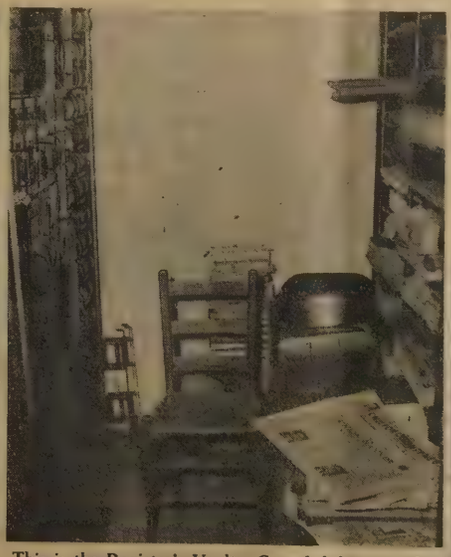
Our Modern Heating System?????. .Which is a fire hazard.

Tax Assessor's Vault. As you enter this vault a sign should read: "Standing Room Only." Six people must use this vault regularly.

Vault in Photostat Room. A fire hazard, but no other space available for storage.

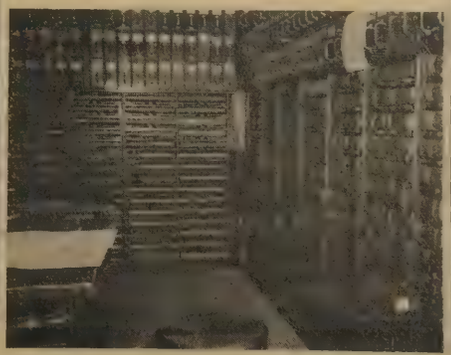
Negro Rest Room. This would be an eye-sore in a Trash Dump.

Vault in Circuit Clerk's Office. Crowded and using floor and windows for storage.



This is the Register's Vault. Crowded, but no other space available for use.

This should be a Jury Room, but is used to store records. With the same old answer, "No other space available."



Probate Vault — Crowded and where do we go from here? Don't you want your records kept accurately and adequately?

Chestnut Creek News

We had a wonderful service Sunday and Sunday night. We received [illegible] new members for baptism. We thank God for them. We are praying that God will continue to bless our church and community.

God called one of His faithful servants, Rev. Doss Hughes, Home to be with Him Saturday afternoon [illegible]. Bro. Hughes had been in poor health for some time. He had an outstanding record of 69 years in the ministry. Bro. Hughes retired only a few years ago, due to age and bad health. He pastored many churches in Chilton and adjoining counties. He was [illegible] to estimate the people he had baptized at 15 hundred and this was a great man of God. Had he lived until his birthday in June he would have been 92 years old. Bro. Hughes' funeral was held on the Chestnut Creek Baptist Church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock conducted by the pastor Rev. Hyman Atcheson, Rev. [illegible] W. Jones and Rev. Grady Wallace. The grandsons were pall bearers and the other ministers in the county were honorary pall bearers.

Rev. L. D. Hughes preceded his father in death by the short time of seven weeks and five days. We can only feel sympathy for the family, could of Bro. Hughes, [illegible] Taylor, and the [illegible] as well. Certainly he will be missed by us all.

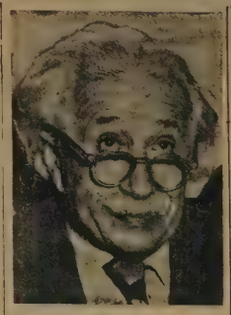
The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Visitors welcome.
Holy Communion will be administered a week from this coming Thursday evening, April 2, at 7:30. All members are urged to make a special effort to be present. This will replace the service ordinarily held on Palm Sunday.

This Sunday at the morning service James Roy Riggins and Danny Gletty will be received into the church through the rite of confirmation. The public is cordially invited to attend this special service.



TELLS NEW THEORY . . . Prof. Albert Einstein, 74, announces his life's greatest labor,—the "unified field theory, an attempt to link together the laws of gravity, electricity, magnetism and relativity in one concept."

Samaria News

Attendance at Samaria was fairly good Sunday, even though the church wasn't filled. Let's all try to come every Sunday and most of all let's be on time. Some people say the Baptists don't care whether they start on time or not, but we, the people of Samaria, are very much interested in starting on time. Let's all get up a little earlier next Sunday so we can start on time.

We have Sunday School each Sunday at ten with preaching following, brought by our pastor, Rev. E. C. Hand. We have Training Union each Sunday night at 6:30 with preaching following. If you are planning to stay at home next Sunday why not come and be with us at Samaria. Visitors are always welcome.

We would like to especially impress the thought on all the young people that they need to be in the House of the Lord every Sunday, as well as the older people. The church and God should be put before everything else.

We are glad to have Mr. E. C. Corbett and son with us Sunday from Columbus, Ga. We welcome them back at any time.

We were glad to have Miss Glenda Cobb back with us Sunday night. We all have been missing her very much.

Mrs. Lois Mims gave a very interesting devotion Sunday morning. We all enjoyed it.

We would like to announce that the district group meeting of the ladies W.M.U. will be held at Samaria Baptist Church on April 9th, 193. We would like for all the ladies to keep this in mind and to attend this meeting.

Rev. R. W. Stuckey will assist Rev. E. C. Hand in our summer revival which will be held the week following the fourth Sunday in July. Let's all keep this in mind.

We wish to thank the men who were in charge of the building of the toilet for the ladies. We all appreciate this very much.

Miss Betty Gleen visited in Birmingham over the week end with Miss Morris Popwell.

Mrs. E. C. Hand was also absent Sunday morning because she attended the services at Liberty Hill Church. We missed them very much. — Reporter.

The earliest known treatment of wood is described in the Bible, Genesis 6 to 14, wherein God charged Noah to build an ark and "pitch it within and without with pitch."

Isabella And Mulberry News

Mulberry Church—

There were fair congregations at both services Sunday. Bro. Jones delivered two very inspiring messages.

Just one more week until our Spring revival, which begins Easter Sunday, April 5th. Bro. L. E. Daniels of Thorsby will be the evangelist. Are you praying for a great revival here?

The choir director, Mr. O. F. Davenport, announced that there will be a choir practice at the church next Friday night, March 27th, at 7:00 p.m. Everyone who is interested in singing is urged to attend.

The singing and supper were enjoyed by a large crowd last Friday evening in the basement of the church. A large free will offering was given to the baptistry fund.

The Laurie Williams Circle met with Mrs. O. F. Davenport, Sr., last Thursday evening. A mission program was given from the Home Mission and Royal Service. No special plans were made.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Visitors at Mulberry Sunday were Mr. Doss White. Mr. Clifford Manning, S-Sgt. Hudson Calfee and Glenn Jones.

Miss Flora Nell Grooms Ogburn.

The church granted a letter to She has united with West End Baptist Church in Selma. We wish her much happiness in the Lord's work there.

We were happy to receive James Langston, Jr., into our church on Sunday, March 15th.

Next Wednesday, April 1st, will be family night at Mulberry. Keep the date in mind and meet us there at 7:00 p.m.

Another date to remember is the third Sunday in May. Homecoming Day at Mulberry.

If anyone would like to donate any books you have already read to our library, they will be appreciated. We need good books for our teen-agers. A free will offering to buy books is always appreciated. We thank every one who has given money or books to the library.

The Isabella Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. W. T. Tucker on Monday with 12 members present.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Bob Calfee and prayer by Mrs. Tucker. The demonstration was given on, "When You Go To The Grocery Store," by Miss Johnny Martin. She gave a good lesson on how to buy economically when buying groceries. Cokes and peaches and tea were served by the hostess.

Mrs. C. B. Williams returned to her home in Tallahassee, Fla., last Saturday after spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Ratliff and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. M. Bryant spent last week end with her sons and their families in Birmingham. Mr. Bryant and Robert went after her on Sunday. While there Mrs. Bryant had the thrill of seeing Hollywood On Ice at the City Auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tucker and Edna Earl spent a very enjoyable Sunday afternoon visiting the Fitzpatrick Gardens near Wetumpka.

There were a number of our people who attended the dedication service at Liberty Hill Sunday afternoon. We extend congratulations to that community for their new church building and the work they are doing there.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones and Glenn spent Sunday in Birmingham visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones and Mrs. Andrew Jones and their children.

Mrs. Molly Bell Smith was absent from her school room two days last week due to the illness of her father, Mr. Ousley. He was in the hospital in Selma.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Smith and Sonny, who are making their home temporarily in Andalusia, were here for the past week end.

S-Sgt. and Mrs. Hudson Calfee and little daughter of Tindle Field at Panama City, Fla., were the week end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Calfee.

Claude Conway and son, Ross, of Montgomery, and David of this community were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Conway and children.

Clifford Manning of Auburn was the Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells.

Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Davenport, Sr., spent the week end in Birmingham with their daughter, Mrs. Jack Mayfield, and family.

Mr. Doss White of Hanover and Mrs. J. L. Conway of Clanton visited relatives in this community last Sunday.

Mr. Homer Ratliff underwent an operation on his eye recently and spent five days in the St. Margaret's Hospital in Birmingham. Dr. Sam Upchurch performed the operation. Mrs. Ratliff spent the days at the hospital with her husband and the nights with her daughter, Mrs. Cleve McGee, in Columbiana.

They returned home last Friday and Mr. Ratliff is doing nicely. He wishes to take this opportunity to thank his many friends for their visits and kindnesses and a special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith.

Don't forget to remember our shut-ins with your visits, cards and love gifts. They are: Mr. and Mrs. Bill Veasey, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy, Mr. W. T. White and Mrs. Y. E. Smith. We want them to know they are missed in church services and other activities of the community.

Mr. Gordon Conway's agriculture class will sponsor a barbecue supper in the Agriculture Building next Tuesday evening, March 31, at 7:00 p.m. All members of the class and their families are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lecroy and Myrtice and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Veazey and boys visited relatives and friends in Rockford last Sunday afternoon.

Clifford Manning of Auburn was here Sunday in the interest of the B.S.U. Extension work of the First Baptist Church of Auburn. Mrs. J. H. Wells made a trip with him in New Convert Community Sunday afternoon in the interest of this work.

Honored On 13th Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dickinson entertained at their home on Lay Dam Road with a party for the younger set on Friday night, March 20th. This gala affair was in honor of their daughter, Caroline, celebrating her thirteenth birthday. She was lovely in her dress of blue with waist corsage of yellow flowers.

The party colors were carried out in the arrangements of Spring flowers of blue and yellow and the home was softly lighted with burning tapers.

In the dining room the refreshment table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a low bowl of flowers flanked by illumined tapers in the party colors. The two tiered white birthday cake was beautifully embossed in yellow and blue, with rosettes holding yellow candles. Punch and party dainties were served from the table.

Games of Bingo were diversion with prizes being awarded after each game.

As the honoree cut the birthday cake the group sung the Happy Birthday song. This was really a happy birthday for Caroline, who was recipient of many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. H. F. Spicer and Miss Ann Spicer.

Methodist Jr.'s Entertained

On Friday evening the Juniors of the First Methodist Church gathered on the church play ground, built a fire in the barbecue pit and had a grand time roasting weiners and marshmallows.

They played games and had races and everyone left full and happy.

Mrs. Joe Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Tucker sponsored this party.

"EASY DOES IT"

BY ..... HELEN HALE

MERINGUE PIES will cut more neatly if you use a knife dipped in cold water. The dry meringue will not then stick to the knife to give a ragged appearance.

Like a rich brown crust on sponge cakes? Sift a little bit of powdered sugar over the batter before baking.

If you like dark gingerbread and have only light molasses in the house, add a small amount of melted chocolate to the molasses before using.

Roll pastry as little as possible to get a short crust. If you use a pastry cloth and a stockinette covered rolling pin, this will cut down on the amount of flour necessary for rolling and give you a better crust.

Be careful not to use too much juice in fruit and berry pies as they will bubble over in the oven. For fresh fruit and berries, dust in flour before adding sugar to make the filling.

Boil pastry brushes often to keep them clean and prevent them from becoming rancid.

Remove the lumps from brown sugar by steaming in the top part of the double boiler. Store in the refrigerator to keep moist.

Freshen stale cake by dipping ever so briefly in cold milk and then heating in a moderate oven.

Stale loaves of bread can be freshened by wrapping in a damp cloth and then being heated in a slow oven for ¼ to ½ hour.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Seafoam Puddings

(Makes 6)

2 tablespoons butter
¾ cup sugar
2 tablespoons grated lime rind
3 eggs, separated
1 cup creamed cottage cheese
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup fresh lime juice

Cream softened butter, sugar and rind together. Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat yolks and cheese together with egg beater until curds are fine; add to butter mixture and blend well. Add flour, salt and lime juice; beat well with egg beater. Fold in egg whites. Spoon into buttered custard cups. Bake in a pan of hot water in a slow (325° F.) oven. Cool. Turn out of cups, if desired, to serve.

HOMEMAKERS CLASS HAVE SPEND-THE-DAY

The Homemakers Class of the First Baptist Church had a spend-the-day at the home of Mrs. Flem Higgins last Thursday. Arrangements for Spring flowers throughout the home made everyone feel cheerful and welcome.

During the morning the ladies sewed for the needy. At lunch time a Dutch Luncheon was served to 11 members and one visitor.

After lunch the ladies completed their sewing and at 3 o'clock the regular monthly meeting of the class was called to order by the class president, Mrs. Verna Bean. Mrs. Howard Boockholdt opened the meeting with prayer after which Mrs. Dewey Rockett, program chairman, presented Mrs. Grady Heflin who brought a most inspiring devotional, using as her Scripture reading John 15:11-14. Her topic was "Comparing Our Friendship Today With That of Jesus."

A short business session was held after which the hostesses for the afternoon: Mrs. Arthur Taylor, Mrs. Herbert Klinner and Mrs. Horsley White, served cake and Cokes to 17 class members.

Visits Charm Spots

Friday afternoon, Mrs. Moore's Fourth Grade class of Clanton Elementary School toured some of the charm spots of Clanton to see the beautiful flowers and lawns. We went to Mrs. Upchurch's, Mrs. Sam Johnson's, Ellis Tourist Court and Mrs. R. C. Williams.

Mrs. Upchurch had many beautiful camelias and azaleas of every color imaginable. She and her sister were very lovely to explain the grafting of camelias to us.

At Mrs. Sam Johnson's home, we saw the bell that was on the ship that sank at Pearl Harbor. Her flowers and back lawn was most attractive. We enjoyed it very much.

Ellis Tourist Court had many beautiful flowers. While there Mr. Ellis took our picture with his camera. After three or four minutes, he took the picture out and gave it to us.

Mrs. R. C. Williams patio was lovely with beautiful azaleas.

The class apreciates the kindness that we received while we were at these places. — John Hill Hyatt.

The Ladies Aiding Home Demonstration met in the regular meeting [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] home of Mrs. [illegible]. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. [illegible]. Our song leader, Mrs. E. [illegible] gave the story on the hymn of the month, "Love Divine." The invocational was given by the vice president, Mrs. J. B. Simmons.

The roll call by the secretary. Fourteen members were present.

The Chapman Baker cemetery improvement as their project. We urge all the members to be present at the cemetery Saturday morning, March 28th, to do some work.

The demonstration was on "Going To The Grocery Store" given by our home demonstration agent, Miss Mary Louise Wright.

All the members repeated the Collect and Mrs. J. W. Heflin, our recreational leader led us in a game. Refreshments of doughnuts, milk and coffee were served by the hostess. — Reporter, Mrs. O. B. Edwards.

Poplar Springs

Our attendance was fairly well for Sunday School and worship service Sunday. But we know many more should have been present to worship with us. We were happy to have our visitors and we welcome them back any time.

We were glad for each one who was present for Training Union and had a good program. Also Bro. Cook's message was very good and fit in well with our Training Union lesson. As his subject for Sunday night was "Who Should Not Attend Training Union."

We had good prayer service last Wednesday night, even though our crowd was off some. We are sorry Bro. Cook couldn't be there and continue teaching the Book of James. We hope he can finish teaching this great book before long.

Remember our revival will start this next Sunday at 11 o'clock. Be much in prayer that many lost people will except Jesus during the services. Bro. Bill Cox will be with us for the service Sunday morning and each night the following week.

We hope every one is making plans to attend the Easter singing at our church. Bro. O. L. Devaughn is chairman and we know it will be a great day of singing.

We are sorry Mrs Johnnie Bradberry has been worse this last week. We pray that she will soon be well.

We had a real good day and program in the home of Mrs. W. C. Moore last Wednesday. We were late observing the Week of Prayer, but we feel it was a day well spent. —Reporter.

Everybody's Buddy Poppy—

One day soon a stranger or a friend will walk up to you and say, "Won't you please buy a Buddy Poppy?" You are a good citizen. You drop your donation in the box held out to you and accept your Buddy Poppy in return. You stick the brave little flower in your coat lapel. Away you go about the duties, the incident forgotten. Later, that night in your home, you unpin the Buddy Poppy from your coat. And then you remember. Suddenly you are glad, glad that you bought that Buddy Poppy. You know that the money you gave will be used to help American soldiers standing guard on the ramparts of American freedom.

All over the United States each year the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, and members of their Ladies Auxiliary, sell Buddy Poppies. Every penny made on the Poppy Sale is used to aid wounded and hospitalized veterans and their dependents.

Every one of the millions of tiny Buddy Poppies is a symbol of the men who have fallen in battles. From 1898 to 1953, grandfathers, fathers and sons have fought in these and all other battles of four American wars.

The Buddy Poppy provides the opportunity for every citizen to share a little in the task to which this great organization is dedicated —The Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In buying your Buddy Poppy, you salute the veterans of our foreign wars. You help to care for the wounded and their families. Buy your Buddy Poppy with a prayer in your heart for those who have fought to keep our country free. Down through the years, our gallant fighting men have lived those wonderful inspiring words of our National Anthem:

"And this be our motto—'In God
Our Trust'
And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave."

When you buy your Poppy wear it, and wear it proudly, for your Buddy that gave his best. Honor the dead by helping the living.

THE FORGOTTEN YEARS

By James Harsh

GERALD was hesitant to start an argument with his wife; he hated to put a damper on her good spirits. Lately she had been purring and fussing like a gentle and affectionate kitten. Too affectionate for her middle aged plumpness and grey eyes which matched her hair. Gerald Mann thought, as he laid down the paper and watched her adjust his reading lamp.

Tonight he felt that he must talk to her about Kit. And he found it difficult to approach the subject with his wife in this contented mood.

"Kit's out again?"

"Yes, with Hank Flowers." Joyce smiled as if she approved of Hank.

"That's three nights in a row." Gerald stood up and moved toward the window, looking through the blackness as if he might see his daughter swinging happily up the walk holding Hank's hand.

"So it's young love, darling, but they're never very late."

"She's just seventeen," countered Gerald.

"I was eighteen when you married me," she said.

"You were different. You seemed much older."

She placed a hand on his shoulder, speaking softly, "In those days we wore old clothes and fixed our hair in an old style. And we did old things. Remember my folk's parlor and the times we took out the family album and sat for hours laughing at the old pictures. Sometimes we laughed so loudly that my father would shout down at us and tell you to go home so he could get some sleep."

"Kit's too young to get married."

"I don't like this Hank Flowers!" Gerald Mann spun around and fairly shouted at his wife. He was sorry as soon as the words were out and he slumped down into his chair.

"I'm sorry," he said at last.

He closed his eyes and the almost forgotten years engulfed him.

He pulled himself back to the present and noticed that Joyce had gone upstairs and he became aware of the unnatural silence in the usually merry room. His wife had gone to bed without saying good night.

It was still early when Kit and Hank returned from the library. They came into the room, flushed with youth, laughing until they saw Mr. Mann sitting under the bright reading lamp. He turned and looked at Hank; then he stood and taking his paper he walked slowly up the stairs. A thin thread of light crawled out from beneath their bedroom door.

"Why do you like Hank Flowers?" he asked his wife bluntly.

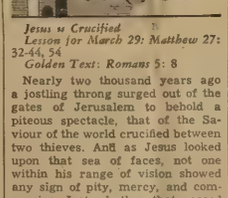
"Because he is so much like you when you came to ask me if we could be married when school was out." Her voice was brittle. "But you're not like that now. You have forgotten the boy you once were."

He felt her anger. He remained silent, which wasn't his usual behavior. He was fully capable of matching her word for word and generally coming out on the long end of a verbal duel. But he had gone too far into the past tonight, and he was remembering the girl she used to be and the boy she said he had forgotten. Music floated up the stairway, loud music, and the laughter of youth. For a moment he resented this interruption of his thoughts. He clenched his fist and stormed to the head of the stairs. He saw Kit and Hank sitting closely together on the couch. Their heads touching slightly in the dimly lit room.

"Kit!"

The girl snapped off the radio and stood looking up at her father. Gerald did not speak for a moment. His anger vanished and he spoke softly to his daughter. "Just remember to lock the door when Hank goes out. Good night you two night owls."

Back in the bedroom he could still hear the music and the laughter. He smiled at his wife. "They're looking at our family album now . . . Lucy're laughing at us now . . . still smiling as he snapped off the light.



Jesus is Crucified
Lesson for March 29: Matthew 27: 32-44, 54
Golden Text: Romans 5: 8

Nearly two thousand years ago a jostling throng surged out of the gates of Jerusalem to behold a piteous spectacle, that of the Saviour of the world crucified between two thieves. And as Jesus looked upon that sea of faces, not one within his range of vision showed any sign of pity, mercy, and compassion. Instead, they that passed by the cross reviled Jesus and mocked him, saying that he had saved others but could not save himself.

As we learn from another gospel, one of the thieves cursed and railed on Jesus, saying, "If thou be God, save thyself and us." And the other thief rebuked him, saying, "Dost thou not fear God, seeing thou art in the same condemnation? And we indeed justly; for we receive the due reward of our deeds; but this man hath done nothing amiss." And then he had prayed Jesus: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

What his enemies said of him in bitter taunting and unbelief was indeed true. They unwittingly affirmed what is the very essense of the gospel, that Jesus had saved others because he was unable to save himself. He was unable because of the moral obligation resting upon him.

In the language of an old hymn: "Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all." May we glory in the cross because we find that it is the way that leads home

Milk Prices To Drop April First

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama milk prices will drop one cent a quart on April 1 by order of the State Milk Control Board.

The board has refused to continue an emergency price increase ordered last fall to compensate producers for losses caused by severe droughts the previous summer.

Prices revert back to the old level — 25 cents a quart for Grade A pasteurized cream-lined milk in Birmingham, Mobile and Phenix City and 24 cents in other places, beginning next month.

Board members said they had found an abundant milk supply in the state, with a surplus in some areas, and that drought conditions no longer prevailed.

The board also ordered the present 10 zone milk shed control areas [illegible] They will be: Southwest Alabama Milk Shed, Baldwin, Mobile and Washington Counties. East Alabama Milk Shed—Chambers, Coosa, Lee, Randolph, Russell, Tallapoosa, less Tallassee, and including that portion of Talladega County south west of a line running parallel to and six miles northeast of Alabama State Highway 91 between Childersburg and Sylacauga and Alabama State Highway One, between Sylacauga and the Coosa County Line.

Industrial Milk Shed — Jefferson County and Walker Counties.

Central Alabama Milk Shed—Autauga, Bibb, Bullock, Butler, Chilton, Conecuh, Covington, Crenshaw, Dallas, Elmore, Hale, Lowndes, Macon, Montgomery, Perry, Sumter, Wilcox, that portion of Escambia County within an air mile radius of 20 mile radius of the Escambia County Courthouse, that portion of Tuscaloosa County within an air radius of 1 mile of Tuscaloosa County Courthouse, those portions of Coffee County within an air mile radius of 11 miles of the Coffee County Courthouse in Enterprise and within an air mile radius of three miles of the old Coffee County [illegible] in Elba.

North Alabama Mil[illegible] Calhoun, Cherokee, [illegible] Marshall, Morgan, Randolph, Talladega, Tallapoosa, Tuscaloosa, Walker, Winston, that portion of Talladega County south west of a line running parallel to and six miles northeast of Alabama State Highway 91 between Childersburg and Sylacauga and Alabama State Highway One between Sylacauga and the Coosa County Line.

A Peek at THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

WESTERN novels are as popular as birthday cakes . . . Western movies are consistent box office leaders . . . And the airwaves, too, are meriting and winning adult appreciation with a western radio series, "Gunsmoke" . . . The CBS radio program is a dramatic half-hour of suspense and excitement, with all the elements that comprise any first rate show, western or otherwise . . . And it's entertaining listening . . . "Gunsmoke" is a western in that its locale is the lawless West, but the customary sagebrush seasoning has been reduced to an atmospheric minimum . . . Personable Bill Conrad stars as a convincing U. S. Marshal Mark Dillon, and author Les Crutchfield can take a literary bow for having appropriately endowed his leading character with more horse sense than trigger reasoning.

The episodes themselves revolve about the human problems of the law enforcement officer on whom the western settlers rely for protection . . . The results are trenchant, grown-up western drama, with little relation to the head-'em-off-at-the-pass gun-gallopers who play primarily to kid audiences.

IDOL CHATTER

Pani Weston recently cut his 1,000th record . . . Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis will trek to Rome and Israel after their London Palladium engagement on June 15 . . . Johnny Ray's gyrations will be toned down for his movie debut in "All of Me" . . . Jack Benny will undertake the two-a-day theater package that Judy Garland, Danny Kaye and Betty Hutton found so successful . . . He will open at the Curan in San Francisco and go east from there.

Eddie Fisher expects to be mustered out of the army in early May and New York's Paramount Theatre is planning a date for Eddie to open there as soon as the big event takes place . . . Meanwhile, Eddie is still topping male vocalists in the hit record department.

FIGHTS FOR OIL . . . Sen. Spessard Holland (D.), of Florida, asked Congress to nullify Supreme Court ruling and return "tidelands" oil to coastal states. Holland is backed by 39 other senators.

The U. S. divorce rate is dropping. It was 18½ divorces for every 1,000 couples in 1946. Today it is about 10 per 1,000.

VOLUME XXXI. CLANTON, ALABAMA TUESDAY, MARCH 31, 1953 NUMBER 25

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Understand the rumor that a new automobile agency will open in the Minshew Building on North Seventh Street is just a rumor. On contacting Mrs. Minshew she stated that the subject had been discussed but no definite steps had been taken as yet. If, and when, we'll let you know.

Now we suppose it can be told. After last Saturday the long established Polk Brothers Motor Company is no more. Instead we will have the Troy Maddox Motors owned and operated by Troy Maddox. As you well know they are the Dodge-Plymouth Dealers. We wish Troy the best of luck in his new venture and for "Mr. W. M." the most possible happiness in his retirement from active business. May all of his fishes be big ones.

Mark Twain once asked a neighbor if he might read a set of his books. The neighbor replied ungraciously that he was welcome to read the books in his library, but he had a rule never to let a book leave the house. Some weeks the same neighbor sent over to ask for the loan of his lawn-mower. "I shall be very glad to lend you my lawn mower," said Mark Twain, "but since I made it a rule never to let it leave my lawn you will have to use it there."

A fellow was asking about a promising young man and his reference answered that he thought the young man would go far. "He has a certain something," he stated. "Ah," returned the first man, "wouldn't it be better if he had something certain."

JEMISON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PRESENTS OPERETTA

On Friday night, April 3rd, the Jemison Elementary School presents the clever little operetta, fresh off the press, "D. Boone Killed A Bear."

This new operetta affords one hour and forty minutes of genuine delight of early frontier life. See Daniel Boone outwit the savage Indians; witness the bravery of the pioneer women while Boonestown is under seige. Hear the weird Indian songs, enjoy their rollicking war dance; marvel at the courage of the tough frontiersmen; laugh at the antics of the Negro interpreter as he seeks a hidiing place during the Indian attack. This cherry little program is presented by the 1st, 5th and 6th grades. Eighty-three characters participate.

Remember the date — Friday, April 3rd. Place — Jemison High School Auditorium. Time — 7:30 p.m. If you like thrills, chills, humor, pathos and ecitement, then don't miss seeing this one.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NEWS

Our annual Holy Week services will be held on Thursday and Friday, April 2 and 3, at 7:30 p.m., at Thorsby. On Thursday we will have the Communion Service to which all Christians are welcome.

We are glad for any who know the Lord to join us at His table. On Friday we will have our Good Friday service in remembrance of the Crucifiion, and at this service also everyone is welcome.

Grassland Farming For More Livestock

Grazing crops provide the cheapest source of feed nutrients for cattle and some other types of livestock.

"And," says S. R. Doughty, API extension soil conservationist, "on most farms there are areas of open land that are of such slope that row crops cannot be continually grown without serious erosion damage. Such land may be devoted to feed crops that will supply grazing needed for profitable livestock production."

Ezra Taft Benson Speaks To 4-H'ers

Made At The National 4-H Club Breakfast On March 9th

Distinguished Winners, Members of Congress, Friends of 4-H Club Work:

You notice I have this lovely girl standing at my side. The performance of this panel of young people has been an inspiration to me. In fact, anything that I might say will be anticlimatic to what you have already heard but it called to my mind an incident back in Idaho 30 years ago when I had the pleasure —a great job—to serve as a humble county agent in one of the smaller counties in the State of Idaho. Among other things, it was a joy to have 500 boys and girls in that county in club work. I remember one time we were holding a community-meeting—a joint meeting of the boys and girls with their parents present. The girls had put on an exceptionally fine program that evening that was a real inspiration. A fine 4-H Club boy who had reached that very critical age when his hair must be well groomed and when he becomes interested in girls asked after the meeting, "Mr. Benson, is there anything lovlier than a beautiful, sweet, modest 4-H Club girl?" I said, "Yes." He was shocked! "What is it?" I said that same beautiful, sweet, modest girl as she holds her first-born baby in her arms—a mother and a homemaker. That is more beautiful. "I guess you are right, Mr. Benson," he agreed.

This lovely girl who stands beside me is one of more than a million in this country in 4-H Club work. Another million young men team up with them in this great program.

After all, this is a great Nation. We pride ourselves for our achievements. We build great cities, great industries. We have became a powerful Nation. But our greatest asset in this Nation certainly is not our accumulation of material things. Our greatest asset is our youth—our boys and girls—the future leaders of this great country. We have a good representation of that asset here this morning. Most of our men in business and industry as well as in agriculture are interested in the 4-H Club program—a program established to build character, to build citizenship, to build leadership.

I don't know of any programs more effective in building character, citizenship, and leadership than the 4-H Club program. With all my heart I endorse it. It is no longer on trial. It has proved its worth. This proven worth recalls the story told of an American businessman touring Europe. Characteristic of businessmen, he was in a hurry. One day he went through the Louvre Museum of Paris, glancing this way and that. As he was leaving, he commented, "There is nothing worthwhile here." The old man at the door looked up, 'My good man," he said, 'the paintings in this museum are no longer on trial. But the spectators are!"

Our 4-H Club work is no longer on trial. It has proved its worth—its value in the training of the head, the heart, the hands, and in the training for health. It is an inspiring program. I commend those who are in charge. I commend the young men and women who are members and who have achieved so much. I commend the parents who have encouraged their boys and girls to take advantage of this great program. I congratulate the communities in which 4-H Club work is being sponsored actively. I can see nothing better for any rural community than to have every boy and girl between the ages of 10 and 21 enrolled in 4-H Club work. It is likewise, a great blessing to cities. I am told we have hardly a city in American with a population of more than 10,000 that does not benefit from farmers of America. And so the cities do have a stake and an interest in 4-H. I am grateful that we have it in the Department of Agriculture. I hope it will continue to grow with fine leaders in charge. I assure you they will have my whole hearted support as long as I am Secretary of Agriculture.

May God bless the 4-H Club program of this great country that it may continue to train young men and women for the future, to take care of themselves, make their communities better, and build real homes—homes of character and spirituality. Character is the one thing you make in this world and take with you into the next, which is more important.

I am grateful for the 4-H program. May it continue to grow and increase until it touches the lives of every boy and girl in rural America. Thank you very much.

ALABAMA'S YOUTH GROUPS INVITED TO LITTLE WHITE HOUSE THIS SPRING

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—Special invitation to youth groups in Alabama to visit the Little White House, Georgia home of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, this spring, is extended by the manager, J. E. Smenner. Members of 4-H, Boy and Girl Scouts, Campfire, FFA, FHA, grammar and high schools and Sunday School classes — in fact, any groups — will find warm welcome. No Southern shrine inspires visitors more deeply or possesses greater charm, in the opinion of thousands who have visited it, than this simple cottage nestling here in the natural woods of Pine Mountain. Surrounded by wild azaleas among the pines, it is especially lovely in spring. Here may be seen how a great man lived close to nature and why he loved the South. Nearly everything is just as he left it, except that the original of the famous "Unfinished Portrait", by Mme. Elizabeth Shoumatoff, for which he was posing when stricken, stands on its easel in the living-dining room, and a Memento Room has been added in the basement for display of many gifts, personal belongings and memorials from all over the world. School and charter buses are common sights in the large free parking area at the entrance. Picnic tables and benches surround the area and a snack bar in the souvenir shop serves soft drinks. The regular admission fee is 75c, but to groups a special rate of 25c is made. The Little White House is state owned but is self supporting through gate receipts and souvenir sales. It is operated by the Franklin D. Roosevelt Warm Springs Memorial Commission, of which Chas. F. Palmer, of Atlanta, is chairman. Guides are always on hand. Open every day in the year, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Notice From City Of Clanton

Lest you forget, we remind you that we cannot furnish water to farmers, or anyone, for spraying purposes this summer, and any person, regardless of where living, who takes water from a fire hydrant, for any use, without permission from the Mayor, will be arrested and fined. We have ample water but our consumption is equal to or greater than our filtering capacity.

Respectfully,
C. FENN JONES, Mayor.

Keeping Quality Of Frozen Meat

All frozen meats may be thawed before they are cooked or during cooking

"However," says Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist, "meat that is thawed at ordinary room temperature should be cooked promptly because the warm, wet outer surface is an ideal place for spoilage to start."

She explains that if meat is thawed more slowly in the refrigerator, the surface remains cold and the thawed piece can often be held a day or longer without developing off-odors. Of course, the meat thawed in the refrigerator will have a better taste.

THE NEWSPAPERS AND U. S. SECURITY

The newsppers of the country are charged with the responsibility of protecting the national security and in living up to this responsibility they must sometimes resist the temptation o print sensational news, even when they know they have an exclusive.

In recent months the difficulties in discharging this responsibility with intelligence have been apparent and several newspapers have printed stories which sghould have been repressed.

Usually the publication of a story which should be repressed aids either foreign governments or gangster elements in the United States. In some of our larger cities the newspapers are so eager for a beat they print almost any development which can be ferreted out of the law enforcement agencies whether or not the news would best be withheld. The excuse often voiced is that if they do not print the news, a competitor will find out about the new development and print the story, thus beating them to the wire.

Recently a Justice Department official threatened suit against a national magazine if it published a certain article saying it revealed hitherto unknown facts about underworld activities, and knowledge possessed by the Justice Department on certain gangsters. The Justice Department official felt publication of the article would tip the law enforcement agency's hand and put underworld elements on their guard against prospective action, which should come without warning and as a surprise, to be most effective.

The same theme is involved in the dispute which arose on Capitol ill recently as to the Korean War. Naturally a Congressional investigation into the Korean War, or the ammunition shortage reported there, would bare many U. S. secrets to foreign powers. As yet few Congressional committees have been able to keep their lips sealed when officials of the armed services appeared before them and revealed military secrets. One committee member always seems to give in to the temptation to get his name spread over the headlines across the nation and tips off Americans, and the rest of the world in the process, of secrets which should be well kept among U. S. officials.

Interestingly, the reader of a small-town newspaper, who is not subjected to this misplay of news, often gets a better prospective, since he gets the world news in digest form, and in proper prospective. But both large and small newspapers must redouble their efforts to withhold stories which are contrary to the interests of the law enforcement agencies and the security of the country. In a free country, such as ours, with a free press, the responsibility of printing only what should be printed is a tremendous one, which can never be discharged with perfection. There is room for improvement in the discharge of this responsibility today and editors should make a sincere effort in this direction.

Every now and then when I listen to radio news commentators I find myself thinking that their learned analysis of the news leaves me even more confused about the issues of the day than I was before hearing their explanations. What these experts need, I decided, is a simple, direct approach completely uncluttered by high-sounding phrases.

They would do well to take some lessons in reporting from children.

The other afternoon, for instance, I eavesdropped on a "radio show" being put on by a bunch of neighborhood youngsters.

"This is Richard Harkness speaking from Washington," the six-year-old intoned into the Tinker Toy microphone. "President Eisenhower has just announced that the Russians are full of badness."

Nothing complicated or confusing about that news report.

As I've mentioned before, the next door neighbor is one of the thriftiest souls to be found anywhere.

She and her family are very fond of lemonade and of lemon pie, both made with fresh lemons, but she doesn't always like to pay the high price of lemons. So you know what she does? When lemons are plentiful and inexpensive she buys them in quantity and "cans" them.

The canning is done by placing the whole lemons in sterlized fruit jars, covering with cold water and sealing tightly. She says they stay fresh for months.

This same saving soul uses a new metal pot cleaner instead of a knife to peel new potatoes. The cleaner rubs off the outer skin without wasting one bit of the potato.

All baby books instruct mothers to place a fresh diaper over their shoulder when they burp the baby, and it sounds like a very practical suggestion.

The only trouble is that it doesn't serve its purpose. No matter how much territory that diaper covers, even the smallest baby will manage to spit on some unprotected area.

One of these days an enterprising dry cleaner is going to get hundreds of new customers by offering special cleaning rates for mothers with small children.

The mother down the street, the one with the big family, has just declared an overall-knee-patching holiday for herself from now until next October.

"Now when my children wear holes in the knees of their overalls, I just cut the overalls off above the knees and turn them into comfortable Spring play clothes," she says happily. She doesn't even bother to hem the shortened garments, just whacks them off with her pinking shears.

If you and your family like lemon sauce, try it one of these Spring days served over warm gingerbread or poured over homemade cup cakes.

Here's our favorite lemon sauce recipe: Stir 3 tablespoons cornstarch into 1 cup sugar. Add 2 teaspoonfs grated lemon rind and 2 cups cold water, mixing well. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until clear and slightly thick. Remove from heat. Add ½ cup lemon juice and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine.

REALISTIC DREAM

Clithroe, England—Eleven year old Sam Carlyon's dream of flying a jet was so real, that when dreaming the jet he was flying was out of control and he would have to bail out, did just that. He jumped, landed with a thud just outside his own front door and 13 feet down from his bedroom window. He was not even bruised. Guards have been put on the windows, now, however.

STATE SUPERINTENDENT

WORK OF A SUPERVISOR OF INSTRUCTION

Supervisors of instruction in the Division of Secondary Education help to carry on an important part of the work. One of the chief duties of a supervisor of instruction is to promote a program of in-service education. To an increasing degree, teacher education is being thought of as a continuous program. It begins when the teacher enters college to prepare himself for teaching and ends with the retirement from educatinal servite.

In order to be more effective, teacher training must be carried along with and supplemented by actual experience. Nearly all systems promote programs of in-service training today. The supervisor of instruction may help to plan such a program or he may act as an over-all consultant. Forty-five of 108 school systems in Alabama maintain local supervisors of instruction and eighty-six of 108 school systems have supervisors of school attendance. The State supervisor of instruction works with the former in an advisory capacity and with the latter in the yearly workshops.

The services of the State Supervisor of instruction ore available to the teacher training programs in the colleges of the State. He aids in the evaluation of colleges and secondary schools. The supervisor of instruction must spend a great deal of time writing and editing materials to be used by both teachers and students. He must answer questionnaires and plan and conduct workshops for county and city teachers. In addition, it is the particular duty of the supervisor of instruction in resource-use education to work with the school and community groups in the wise use oi human and natural resources.

Last and most important of all, the supervisor must find time to visit schools and make helpful suggestions in such a manner that the schools will offer improved opportunities for learning for the children.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

SUPERMARKETS are wonderful things. Every time I go into one I lose my head and my pocketbook. In fact, I did it again Saturday.

With the wife's carefully prepared list, well within our budget, I climbed into the flivver and set off on the great adventure. The electric-eye door at the market swung open like the mouth of a hungry lion. The whole place seemed to breathe, "Here comes another sucker!"

Boy, what displays: green cherries, red cherries, anchovies, imported shrimp, potted meats, tempting cheeses, enticing tidbits of all kinds—rows and rows of them. I couldn't resist.

Back home again with three sacks the wife begins to put the supplies away.

"Where's the soap powder?" says she.

"It wasn't on the list," says I.

"And the coffee, butter, bread, potatoes, hamburger, flour and sugar?" she yelped.

"You must be mistaken," says I, "I have everything on the list."

She shakes a quart of green cherries in my face. "What am I suppose to feed the boys this week," she shrieks. "Green cherries, anchovies, African shrimp?"

"Be calm," says I. "Surely there's enough there for a good manager to feed our little family."

"How much?" she asked.

"Oh, just a little over the average," says I.

"All right, Daddy," says she, "tell Mamma how much it cost."

"Just $42.58," I mumbles.

"WHAT!" For a moment I thought she was going to faint. "We're bankrupt," she moans.

Then a devilish gleam came into her eyes. "Go sit down, Daddy," says she. "You must be very tired."

I didn't like that tone of voice. It meant trouble. And now I know. Green cherries don't taste very good for breakfast. Bacon and eggs would be much better.

A SURPRISE TO HIM

Chicago, Ill.—Found wandering aimlessly in the streets, her clothing in tatters, Mrs. Emma Prestine, 72, was taken to the police station. Seeking to learn her identity, police found, in her purse, a bankbook showing deposits of $1,074 and in social security checks totaling $99. When they examined a battered bowling bag, they found she was carrying $5,570 in currency. Her husband, Herman Prestine, 75, a retired steam-fitter, when notified, told police he was unaware of the existence of the small fortune she carried. They had been married for seven-teen years.

GIRL, 11, SAVES 5

Madison, Wis.—Lonnie Malm, 11, proved herself a heroine recently, when six youngsters, searching for golf balls on a moonlight night, broke through ice covering a Monona course water trap. Lonnie helped her brother, Bonnie, 9, and four others to safety, while remaining in the icy water herself for 20 minutes. She was rescued by Harold Hafjord, who lives nearby.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

Normally, the arteries or canals by which the blood travels to the various parts of the body are flexible and supple. As we grow older, the flexibility and elasticity are lost, resulting in a condition known as arteriosclerosis. While the disease is associated with the aging process, it also develops in the younger age group.

The only function of the arteries is to convey blood to the cells which make up the various organs, muscles and bones of the body. So long as the amount of blood received or the rate at which the blood is received by a given organ is adequate for its nutrition, nothing happens. But if the arteries become obstructed or so narrow that the flow of blood is interfered with, the groups of cells within the organ die, impairing its function. Again the blood supply may be sufficient for the organ at rest but insufficient when the organ is working.

What causes the interference or obstruction in the arteries? In arteriosclerosis the hardening may be only an increase in the thickness of the wall of the artery with some loss of elasticity and narrowing or plaque-like deposits of fat in and just beneath the lining membrane of the artery. Gradually, calcium salts which are normally present in the body are deposited in these fatty patches, where they remain to become stony hard. As these deposits become more numerous and harder, the blood flow through the arteries is naturally impeded.

While the exact cause of arteriosclerosis is not known, heredity is considered a factor. Overweight is also a factor, since it is found twice as frequently in obese people. Infections, chronic overwork, long periods of inadequate rest, continuous nervous and emotional tension are other factors that enter into the picture of hardening of the arteries.

Give willingly to the Red Cross. It is needed. We don't have to repeat the many helpful things this organization has done. We just have to point out the many families whose fathers, sons and husbands were and are in military service. Almost every one has been helped in one way or another by Red Cross at no cost.

We would like to point out, too, the several local men whose wartime wounds were made less dangerous through Red Cross Blood Bank.

When you are asked to give, do so willingly and as much as you feel able to give. Then when the Bloodmobile comes back to our county, get in line to save a life.

Mr. Earnest Coppock, principal of the Stanton Jr. High School, is chairman of this section. Mr. Coppock is very busy and possibly won't have time to contact you. You contact him and give. Send your donation by the school children; they will be glad to do this for you or else mail or carry your donation to Mr. Coppock.

The Adult Class of Plantersville, Alabama, will sponsor an Easter Sunrise Service on Easter morning, April 5, 1953, beginning at 6 o'clock. The service will be held in the Methodist Church. The different churches in Plantersville will join together and make this a beautiful service. The public is invited.

Friends in this community were shocked to learn of the sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Minor Medders of Centreville, Ala., on Monday night of last week with a heart attack. Mr. Medders went to bed in his usual health around 7:00 p.m. and around 10:30 p.m. Mrs. Medders noticed that he had passed in his sleep. Funeral services were held at the Brent Wesleyan Church on Wednesday morning at 11:00 a.m. with the Reverend Fred Brazier in charge.

The history of Abenezer Baptist Church in Stanton is being compiled. We are gathering pictures and items that are needed by this committee. Won't you add any information that you or your relatives might have? Several have been most cooperative and we feel sure that some of your have information that would help. Contact Mrs. William Ruddick 4944 or Miss Ruth Hicks 4614.

Mrs. Merrill Walker and Linda spent the week end in Birmingham, Ala., with Mr. and Mrs. Gewin Eaves and son.

Mr. Eddie Carl Graham of California visited friends in this and adjoining communities over the week end.

Mrs. Buck Burnett is substituting in the Stanton school while Mrs. Earnest Coppock is ill. We wish for Mrs. Coppock a speedy recovery.

Miss Elizabeth Dennis of Maplesville, Ala., spent Sunday with Miss Mary Frances Burnett.

A wreck at the intersection of Highway 22 and 82 Monday involving a truck owned by Mr. Earl O'Neal, driven by Olon Capitini and an Oldsmobile 88, driven by a man from Oklahoma. Both vehicles being demolished. No one was seriously injured. Mr. and Mrs. Capitini are in the Selma Baptist Hospital undergoing treatment. The O'Neal truck had the right-of-way and it seems that the car from Oklahoma came onto Highway 22 without stopping causing the wreck.

The man from Oklahoma was pretty badly bruised and shaken up, however, not hospitalized. The daughter of the Capitini family wasn't scratched. Other occupants of the Oklahoma car wasn't hurt.

Mrs. Calvin Giles (Mary Dyer) underwent surgery at the Selma Baptist Hospital last Monday. We wish for her a speedy recovery.

Several of our folks motored to Birmingham and enjoyed "Holiday On Ice" at the City Auditorium.

Mrs. Ezra Lee Lawley and daughters of Birmingham are spending this week with Mrs. John R. McKinney.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gaddy and daughter of Wilton, Ala., were guests of Mrs. Hicks Harrison and other relatives in this and adjoining communities over the week end.

National honors have been awarded Kay Latham, Marion Junction, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Latham of Lawley, Ala., for an outstanding Jersey bull that he owns. The bull, You'll Do Titus Royal Design, has been named a Superior Sire by the American Jersey Cattle Club, which has its national headquarters in Columbus, Ohio. The Superior Sire rating indicated that a bull has passed on both high production and good breed type to his daughters. You'll Do Titus Royal Design, has 10 daughters tested for production. They averaged 10,306 pounds milk containing 53 pounds butterfat on a twice daily milking, 305 day mature equivalent basis. The bull also has 10 daughters classified for breed type with an average rating of 3.50 points. The breed's score card gives 100 points to a perfect animal.

You'll Do Titus Royal Design was bred by Mrs. Roy Moritz, Stamford, Texas, developed by Roy Moritz, also of Stamford, and now owned by Latham.

Additional contributions to the Stanton Cemetery Fund: Mrs. Sam Crott $2.00; Inez Arnold $2.50; Mrs. Ellen Smitherman $2.00; Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Bornett $5.00; Bolen Dubose $5.00; Ira Dunsmore $5.00; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cates $15.00; Odelle Harris $1.00.

Miss Sara Nell Johnson spent the week end with Miss Edwina Carter.

The Stanton girls basketball team won second place and the Stanton boys team won fourth place in the Basketball Tournament in Clanton recently.

On Wednesday afternoon, March 18, 1953, Mrs. Earl O'Neal entertained her son, Bobby, on his 7th birthday with a surprise party at the Stanton schoolhouse. Every child in Bobby's room was included in this affair. Over 30 were present. The room was beautifully decorated with all colors of balloons. Games were played during the afternoon. Refreshments of ice cream and cake. The birthday cake was decorated with seven candles. Party favors were presented each guest. Many nice gifts were presented the honoree and a very enjoyable afternoon for all present: Mrs. E. B. Huff and Mrs. Stella Gregg assisted Mrs. O'Neal during the afternoon.

Mrs. Hicks Harrison, Miss Ann Osburn and Mr. Horace Harrison visited Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hammett and family and Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Crowe and family in Sylacauga, Ala., Sunday.

We regret to report that Mrs. Prude Perry and Miss M. E. Hardy are confined to the Vaughan Memorial Hospital in Selma. Both ladies are improving and will soon be able to return to their homes.

Mrs. W. D. Holladay of Plantersville, Ala., attended the W.M.U. State Convention in Montgomery Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week at the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Holladay reports a wonderful convention—very instructive. Two thousand and fifty-one were registered at this meeting.

A very nice shower for Mrs. Watson Terry on March 14, 1953, at 2:00 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Limon Nichols. An afternoon of games, prizes being presented Mrs. Alma Huff, Miss Frances Chism and Mrs. Willie Rush. Refreshments of iced drinks and cookies. Many nice gifts were presented Mrs. Terry and many who could not attend sent lovely gifts. Present were: Mrs. Thelma Ramsey, Mrs. Alma Huff, Mrs. Doll Terry, Mrs. Willie Rush, Mrs. Elsie Carter, Mrs. Edd Spigener, Mrs. Annie Oron Chism, Miss Frances Chism, Mrs. Dan Royster, Miss Del Rhea Royster, Miss Magadeline Terry, Mrs. Ola Mae Royster, and daughter, Geraldine, Mrs. Ida Bell Lovelady, Mrs. Pauline Lovelady, Mrs. Marie Royster, Miss Shirley Nichols and Miss Sara Nichols. Everyone reported a lovely afternoon.

Give Farm Buildings A Protective Stain

Auburn, Ala. — Many Alabama farm buildings are constructed of rough lumber and are so weather-beaten that painting would not be worth the cost.

"However," says William T. Cox, API Extension specialist in farm buildings, "a very satisfactory stain for such buildings may be made by mixing iron oxide and used motor oil. Iron Oxide is a red powder which can be obtained in small quantities or in 100-pound lots."

To make the mixture, use two to four pounds of iron oxide in one gallon of oil, depending on the clearness of the oil. Clear oil requires much less iron oxide than dirty oil.

Cox states that the stain mayb be applied with a whitewash brush or a fruit tree sprayer. If it is to be applied with a sprayer, any dirt in the oil should be allowed enough time to settle out so the spray will not become clogged.

"The stain should not be applied to unseasoned lumber or substituted for a good quality paint on dressed weatherboarding," advises the specialist.

If you coat the inside of a catsup bottle cover with paraffin it will prevent objectionable discoloration

EASTER SEAL SOCIETY GIVES AID TO MANY WITH SPEECH TROUBLE

"Yes, we can point out cases in our Speech and Hearing Clinic that have been referred to us and are paid for through the Easter Seal Society," instructors at the University of Alabama's Speech and Hearing Clinic say.

Clients at the clinic, other than the University students themselves, have been sent there through special recommendation by such social welfare agencies as the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, in most cases.

They are sent there for speech correction, not cures. The training they receive, through application of therapy helps them to overcome barriers that have been imposed on their speech faculities by physiological or neurological symptoms.

The results of such barriers are varied. Some cases bear stuttering symptoms; some have palate and lip deformities; there are the after-effects of cerebral palsy and poor diction due to deafness.

Every applicant is given a questionnaire and an individual interview, from which recommendations are made by the instructors.

When the Society for Crippled Children makes provision for a child to enroll at a session of the Speech Clinic it not only provides tuition and board for the child, but for the mother as well. By living on the campus with the child and meeting with the instructors daily, the mother is able to help the child to overcome any emotional disturbances and home problems evolving from the speech problems.

There are known cases, the instructors point out, where a child has been snatched from the fire, figuratively speaking. These were cases where the child was considered a mental "borderline" case. In some instances, such a client might have been committed to an institution had not proper training been applied in time.

The instructors point out one case with special pride. The client, who could not speak understandably upon admittance to the clinic, has since overcome her speech difficulties and overcome her speech difficulty since overcome her speech difficulty degree in speech therapy!

There are at present clients at the clinic who are receiving aid through the Easter Seal Society. There have been many others and more will come. The clinic, with a limited school budget, depends in part upon a "cost basis" tuition for the maintenance and operation of its program.

Pecans And Cattle, A Good Combination

Auburn, Ala. — A properly fertilized winter legume and bermuda grass sod under pecan trees will supply grazing for cattle—and the trees will produce a profitable crop of nuts.

John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, says that reseeding crimson clover has proved to be the best legume for this purpose.

In the fall an application of 500 pounds of 0-14-14 or 0-16-8 per acre should be applied to the legume. In March use 500 to 600 pounds of 4-10-7 or 6-8-4 per acre. A top-dressing of 50 to 75 pounds of nitrogen in late June or early July will increase the bermuda grazing.

"Orchards that are clean cultivated or do not have a legume should receive an application of 1000 to 2000 pounds of 6-8-4 or 4-10-7 per acre," advises the specialist. "Apply half of this amount in March and the other half in May."

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

I enjoyed one of the rare privileges of a lifetime this past week when I had lunch with the President at the White House.

Since shortly after taking office, President Eisenhower has invited a group of Congressmen, both Democrats and Republicans, for lunch each week.

Arriving at the White House on this un-precedented occasion, we entered the grounds through the front gate. Inside the White House we were met by the President in the famous Blue Room where luncheon was served. The President sat at the center of the dining table. I was seated at one end, next to Gov. Sherman Adams, assistant to the President.

After lunch the President took us on a personally-conducted tour of the White House. It was a particular pleasure to view the second-floor rooms which are not usually open to visitors. Among these rooms is the historical Lincoln Room where the former President's custom-made bed still stands. It was in this room that Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. We also visited the President's second-floor office and were permitted to examine his numerous military decorations which are displayed there. During the tour we each had the opportunity to ask the President questions about various details of the White House and about his many gifts and decorations.

President Eisenhower was very gracious and cordial throughout our visit, and I am sure all the Congressmen enjoyed the event as thoroughly as I did.

Cherry Trees Bloom Early—

Washington may have a Cherry Blossom Festival this year without the cherry blossoms. The annual festival is scheduled for April 8, but at this writing most of the famous cherry trees have already burst into full bloom, and it looks as though they will have exhausted their beauty by festival time.

National Capital Parks officials are divided in their opinions as to whether or not the blossoms will last until the 8th. Some say most of the blooms will have disappeared by then. Others are more optimistic and maintain that the majority of the "double blossom" type trees will just be flowering when the festival begins, provided the not-too-warm weather of the past few days continues.

Anyway, park officials are doing their best to hold the beautiful blossoms for another week. The historical trees are receiving close attention from plant specialist, and are being sprayed with hormones which regulate growth.

A highlight of this year's Cherry Blossom Festival will be the crowning of a national queen by Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower. Most states have entered a princess to vie for the title. The queen will be selected by the spinning of a wheel marked with names of the various states and their princesses.

The first Cherry Blossom Festival was attempted in April, 1927, but organized festivals did not get underway until 1934 when the first Queen of Cherry Blossoms was crowned. She was Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, daughter of the then assistant secretary of the Navy, Henry L. Roosevelt. Due to the such hazards as spring floods and World War II, the festival was not held each year. However, it has been a regular event since 1949 when a special committee of the Washington Board of Trade took over as official sponsor of the festival.

Spring just wouldn't be spring in Washington without the blooming of the nearly 2,000 Japanese cherry trees. Surrounding the Tidal Basin, they are believed to be the largest collection of flowering cherry trees in the world, outside Japan.

This is my first time to see them, and I believe that in describing them I am justified in using the well-known phrase, "too beautiful for words." I feel sure the cherry blossoms are one of the most picturesque floral scenes in the world.

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the 27th President, was directly responsible for the cherry trees in Washington. While touring the Orient, she was impressed by the beauty of the blooming trees in Japan. Through the wife of the mayor of Tokyo she arranged to have some of the trees sent for transplanting in Washington. The Japanese government decided to present them to the United States as a gift from the city of Tokyo.

The first shipment of 2,000 cherry trees reached this country in December, 1909, but after inspection they were found to be infected with certain fungus diseases and had to be destroyed. Notified of the loss, Japan agreed to send another consignment of trees. This time the Japanese government took extra precautions to see that the trees were free of disease. A special group of twelve varieties was selected and planted on a particular plot of land rich in clayish loam soil. When they were sure the trees were healthy, the Japanese dug them up and shipped them to the United States.

Mrs. Taft planted the first tree on the banks of the Tidal Basin in West Potomac Park on March 27, 1912. The tree was an imperial variety from the Japanese Empero's garden. The second tree was planted by Viscountess Chinda, wife of the Japanese ambassador. Bronze tablets were placed in the park to mark the location of this ceremony. The remainder of the trees were planted around the Tidal Basin and along the Potomac River Drive.

Scarborough To Call Camden Rodeo

Danny Scarborough, nationally famous rodeo announcer of Texas, will be on hand at Camden's Rodeo April 9th, 10th and 11th, to call the various events. Scarborough has announced rodeos for the past 14 years over the entire United States, and is acclaimed as one of the best. He has been featured in moving pictures by Hollywood as a rodeo announcer, and Kiwanians promoting the show in Camden consider Camden is fortunate in obtaining his services.

The committee on entries in the various events reports that new entries are already coming in every day. Among those who are known over this section are the following entrants: Women's Barrel Race—Diane Walker, Hope Hull; Jewel Thomas, Camden; Martha Moon, Prattville; Daisy Mae Underwood, Camden. Veteran entrants include Phillip Woods, Selma; T. A. Simpson, Berry (all-state steer wrestling champion for 1951); Henderson Robinson, Atmore; Jimmie Taylor, Furman; and many others.

The Rodeo Queen Contest chairman has announced that contestants are not restricted to schools, but must be a native or one-year resident of the town she represents. All towns and cities within 80 miles of Camden are eligible to enter a contestant. Further details of the Queen contest are to be announced.

In the Negro Mule Riding Contest officials announced today that entries will be limited to twelve for each, Rodeo night. Considerable interest in competing for the big money in this contest has been expressed by many local potential entrants.

Band chairman Rudolph Culbreth and J. N. Weathers today released the Booster Trips schedule, as follows: March 30th, Thomaston 2:15 p.m.; Linden 3:20 p.m.; Thomasville, 5:20 p.m.; April 1st, Frisco City, 2:30 p.m.; Monroeville, 3:05 p.m.; Peterman, 4:20 p.m.; Beatrice, 5:40 p.m.; McWilliams, 6:30 p.m., April 3rd, Orrville, 2:15 p.m.; Selma, 3:45 p.m.; Furman 5:30 p.m.; April 4th, Demopolis; Uniontown, Grove Hill, Jackson, Camden, to be announced; April 6th, Greenville; 2:45 p.m.; Fort Deposit, 4:30 p.m.; Hayneville, 5:45 p.m.

All entry blanks must be in by noon of Thursday, April 9th, the entry committee stated.

Advance tickets are now on sale in Camden. They are also available to any organized club, band or Junior and Senior classes anywhere on a 20% commission basis. If any of the above are interested in obtaining tickets and making money for your treasury, please correspond with J. D. Handly, Jr., Chairman Ticket Committee, Camden, Alabama.

Self Employed Now Have S.S. Insurance

If you are one of the millions of self-employed people who have filed their second annual social security tax reports this year, you now have insurance protection under social security, M. C. Folmar, manager of the Birmingham social security office, announced today. These are people who made social security reports of their self-employment earnings for 1951 and 1952 and who have paid the taxes for both years to the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The Social Security Act provides that any person who has net income from self-employment of at least $400 in a taxable year may be credited with four calendar quarters of coverage. An individual who has eight such quarters of coverage is fully insured through June, 1955. This means, Mr. Folmar pointed out, that both the worker and his family may become entitled to benefits in case he reaches retirement during this period, or his survivors may become entitled in case of his death before July 1, 1955.

Each self-employed person who made a report of his income for 1951 and 1952 will be credited with eight quarters of coverage," he said.

Many persons now self-employed have previously worked for wages in employment covered by social security. This work is credited, of course, toward being insured, and the credits may be added to those earned in self-employment.

Mr. Folmar added that Mr. Jack Adamson, field representative, is at the Employment Office in Clanton each Thursday at 1:30 p.m. to assist self-employed persons who have questions about social security.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

We've all heard, of course, that cabbages is beautiful but not like we saw them Tuesday afternoon about twelve miles south of town. A big Murray Produce Truck had gone off the highway and turned over making the gosh-awfuliest looking tossed salad you ever saw. Oranges and cabbages were scattered all over the place and a few kids in the neighborhood were having the time of their lives. Imagine kids picking oranges in Chilton County in March.

Recently the L. & N. was talking about cutting two trains off the local line and now the G. M. & O. says they will seek authority to take one of their trains off between Artesia and Montgomery. We well remember a train ride between Scottsboro and Chattanooga, Tenn., many years ago was one of the high points in our childhood, but a train ride to a youngster just doesn't hold a thrill any more. It takes something like a jet propelled vehicle to create any interest any more.

What a glorious surprise Wednesday morning when we received the monthly statement from our milkman. He had the sweetest little note penned at the bottom. It said that beginning April 1st our milk would cost us one penny a quart less. Get that now! LESS. It's been a long time since we received a notice like that. But wait a minute—Wednesday, the first of April was April Fool's Day, wasn't it? Mr. Williams, how could you?

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Kenneth W. Forbes, Bible Instructor at the Shades Valley Presbyterian Church at Birmingham. The meeting will convene at 2:30 p.m. tea will follow the program.

Mrs. Popwell has extended a cordial invitation to all churches to send representatives to this meeting.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice For Easter Services And Keep Going Every Sunday

EASTER SERVICES AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Special Easter services will be conducted all day Sunday at the First Baptist Church. This will also be the closing day of our Spring revival. We have set a goal for 800 in Sunday School and 200 in Training Union.

A special feature this year will be two morning services. The first service will be conducted at 8:30, followed by the Sunday School at 9:45, then the regular preaching service at 11:00 o'clock. In past years it has not been possible to accommodate the people who desired to attend our Easter morning service. This extra service is being provided to make it possible for every one to worship on this great Easter Day in comfort. You will be assured of a seat at the first service. Come to it and remain for Sunday School.

To reach our goal of 800 in Sunday School, each department and class must make every effort possible to reach their entire enrollment.

On Easter Sunday we commemorate the resurrection of our Lord. Let us make this a great day by worshipping in one or more of the services in the morning. The revival will close with a great service Sunday night.

FAMILY NIGHT HELD AT METHODIST CHURCH

Methodist Church held it's Family Night Program Sunday, March 29, at 7:00 p.m. There was a covered dish supper followed by a religious film, "Journey Into Faith." After the service the fourth quarterly conference of the church year was held. The District Superintendent, Dr. Carlton Preer, presided at the meeting. Members from the Lime Springs and Mt. Nebo Churches attended the meeting. There was a good crowd at both the morning and evening services.

EASTER SERVICE

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated on Easter morning by the pastor, the Rev. Walter Mikosz at 8:30 at the Chapel of Resurrection.

Baptist W.M.U. To Meet Monday

The regular business meeting of the Clanton Baptist W.M.U. will be held on Monday, April 6, 1953, at the church.

A meeting of the Executive Board will be held at 2 o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Methodist Pupils And Teachers Called To Meet

All children and their teachers of the Clanton Methodist Church School are asked to meet at the church Friday afternoon, April 3rd, at 3:00 p.m.

This meeting concerns our Easter program and is very important. Mrs. R. M. Tucker, who is in charge, will be very grateful if you will be there.

Unity W.M.U. To Meet At Maplesville

There will be a meeting of the Baptist Unity W.M.U. Association at the Maplesville Baptist Church on Tuesday, April 7, 1953, at 10:00 a.m. This will be a spend-the-day and a large attendance is expected.

If you can't iron all of the clothes that have been springled in one day and you wish to keep the garments from drying out or, worse, mildewing, store them in your refrigerator overnight. The next day they will be just right for ironing.

SERMON THEMES FOR APRIL

Reverend M. K. Vickers of the First Methodist Church of Clanton will use the following sermon themes for April.

April 5 — A.M., The Cross; P.M., Living Love.—Rev. 1:5.

April 12 — A.M., First Love—Rev. 2:4; P.M., Thy Work—Rev. 2:19.

April 19 — A.M., An Earnest Warning.—Rev. 3:16; P.M., Open Door.—Rev. 4:1.

April 26 — A.M., Redeemed in Heaven.—Rev. 7:9; P.M., Sainted Dead.—Rev. 14:13.

May 3 — A.M., The New Jerusalem.—Rev. 21:10.

G. M. & O. TO PETITION PSC TO DISCONTINUE TRAIN AT MAPLESVILLE

Gulf Mobile and Ohio Railroad will soon seek authority to remove its local passenger train between Artesia and Montgomery from service.

A steady decrease in the number of passengers using the train and a 12-month out of pocket loss of $68,400.00 was given as the principal reason for asking discontinuance of the service.

Railroad authorities said that the train handled on an average of only 22 passengers a day in each direction between the two terminals of the line and that during last January there was an average per trip of less than a passenger a day to board the train at Maplesville going in both directions.

The present two-car local train replaced a first class train with sleeping and dining car service about a year ago. This step, railroad representatives said, was in an effort to reduce operation expenses. Today, they said, wages of the train crew are two and a half times the passenger revenue.

Beta Sigma Phi Installed New Chapter Here

International Sorority Beta Sigma Phi installed a new chapter Beta Gamma Wednesday night at 7:30 at the Dixie Cafe's civic room. A candle lighted formal ritual was conducted by Mrs. Olive Towne Murphy, representative from Bath, Me.

Beta Sigma Phi is a cultural social and civic organization with 100,000 members in all parts of the world—Germany, England, Scotland, Japan, Greece, Hawaiian Islands, Guam, Havana, Alaska and most cities and towns of Canada and the United States. Birmingham has eight chapters; Montgomery five; Mobile five; Tuscaloosa and the other towns of Alabama with one or more groups help to make up the total of 4,000 chapters.

Birmingham will hold the National Convention on April 10, 11, and 12th at the Tutwiler Hotel.

Mrs. Grady Heflin and Mrs. Erle Ellis are the sponsors of Beta Sigma Phi in Clanton. The membership includes Mary Hurd Gibson, Kellie McKee, Margie Messer, Ellen Brinker, Margaret Carlisle, Ruth Eiland, Grace Maddox, Doris Smyer, Marjorie Headley, Elizabeth Noris, Martha Easterling, Mrs. U. L. Headley, Julie Crowe, and Mary Minor, who is a transferee from Opelika, and Helen Blackmon, a former member in Birmingham.

The membership is by sponsored bid and the chapter fills it's membership, at their discretion, during rushing periods.

Mrs. Ellis sang the songs of the sorority. Flower appointments were by Mrs. Heflin, and election of officers followed the ritual, namely: President, Mary Gibson; vice-president, Mary Minor; recording secretary, Elizabeth Noris; corresponding secretary, Ellen Brinker; treasurer, Marjorie Headley; historian, Margie Messer; Word Study Chairman, Margaret Carlisle; Extension Officer, Mrs. U. L. Headley; social chairman, Julia Crowe, Ruth Eiland and Millicent Heflin; Ways and Means, Doris Smyer, Grace Maddox and Kelli McKee; Program Committee, Helen Blackmon, Ruth Eiland and Martha Easterling.

The meeting night was decided by the group for the first and third Tuesdays of each month. The first meeting will be April 7th at the home of Mrs. Erle Ellis, with Mrs. Heflin as co-hostess.

The Montgomery chapters representatives to help install this group including Mrs. Mamie Ham, Director of Alpha Iota and several members including Iva Wiggins, Pauline Skipper, Bernice Davis, Anna Mae Sorell, Mary McCormick and Ruby Adams.

Mrs. Agnes Baggett, Secretary of the State of Alabama, and Mrs. Roscoe Wilson, wife of General Wilson of Maxwell AFB, were appointed city sponsors of Montgomery at the recent initiation of two additional chapters on March 20th at the Jeff Davis Hotel.

Mrs. Murphy left for her home in Bath, Maine, Thursday and will return the first of next year to follow recommendations in Alabama and Georgia.

STATE VETERANS BOARD TO MEET

Montgomery, Ala. — The regular quarterly meeting of the State Board of Veterans' Affairs will be held on Monday, April 6th, it was announced today. The Board exercises supervision over the Alabama Department of Veterans' Affairs and is composed of representatives of five organizations with Governor Gordon Persons as Chairman. Meetings are held at 615 Monroe Street in Montgomery, and, by law, are open to the public.

Among groups represented are the American Legion, the Am-Vets, the Disabled American Veterans, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans. Presently comprising the Board are William S. Perry of Camden, Congressman Kenneth Roberts of Anniston, State Senators Elvin McCary and Robert Locke of Anniston and Butler, respectively, Hugh W. Overton, of Wadley, H. G. Allen and Ben Holmes of Cullman, Thomas B. Dean of Gadsden, A. J. Lankford of Montgomery, H. Grady Richards of Florence, and Vance J. Thornton of Huntsville. There is a current vacancy on the Board occasioned by the recent death of Gen. Louis A. Toombs, who represented the United Spanish War Veterans.

Clanton To Play Host To Veterans Forum

Montgomery, Ala. — Announcement was made today that a Veterans Service Forum would be held in Clanton on Thursday, April 16th. The meeting is to be one of eight scheduled to be held at widely separated points over Alabama under a four-way joint sponsorship of the State Department of Veterans' Affairs, The American Legion, The Disabled American Veterans, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The series will be designed primarily for the purpose of providing information and advice to County Veterans Service Officers and volunteer service workers in local posts and chapters of the veterans' groups. However, interested persons will be welcome as the sponsors advise.

Mayor C. Fenn Jones and Senator Tom Phillips will be the principal [illegible] for the occasion.

The Clanton meeting is intended to cover the nearby counties of Shelby, Montgomery, Bibb, Autauga and Dallas, according to Horton, Director of Veterans' Affairs for Alabama, who informed this [illegible] Other [illegible] were help[illegible] Marengo, Dallas, Autauga, Montgomery, City, Jasper, Decatur and Lowndes.

No similar series of meetings has been held in Alabama since 1945, Horton pointed out, when a comparable effort was made under the auspices of the University of Alabama, which was highly successful. More than 51,000 Alabama veterans have been discharged from Korean service since June of 1950, it was stated, at an averge of 1,602 per month. New and changed laws vitally affect them and their families. Among subjects listed for question and answer discussion at the Clanton meeting are widows' pensions, compensation, hospitalization, education and training, insurance, loans, [illegible] treatment, and other items of interest to veterans of all wars and their dependents. The technical and professional staff for each of the forums will be furnished by the Veterans Administration and the Veterans Department of Veterans Affairs. The veterans hospitals will also be represented. An attendance of some 100 is expected for the meeting which will be held at a site to be announced later.

REVIVAL IN PROGRESS

REV. EUGENE SMITH

A revival is now in progress at the Temple Assembley of God Church, with Rev. Eugene Smith of Cheyenne, Wyo., doing the preaching. If you enjoy inspirational singing and soul-stirring sermons, you will certainly want to hear this young man.

Rev. Smith has conducted revivals throughout the United States and Canada, and we feel Clanton is privileged to have such a man of God. So avail yourself of this opportunity by visiting the Temple Assembly of God Church. Services begin at 7:30 nightly, with the exception of Saturday.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF CLANTON

The First Baptist Church of Clanton is enjoying a wonderful [illegible] revival. Dr. W. Hines Sims and Dr. Jasper N. Barnette are doing outstanding work in the song service and preaching of the word. Every service is well attended.

The opportunity of this revival is quickly passing. We urge every one to take advantage of this time meet and attend the closing days. Services will continue each morning at 7 o'clock through Friday morning and each evening at 7:30 through Sunday evening, including Saturday.

We extend a cordial invitation to every one to worship with us on Easter Sunday and to enjoy our revival.

LOCAL GIRL TAPPED AT HUNTINGDON

Montgomery, Ala. — At the annual "Tapping Day" ceremonies in the Huntingdon College chapel this week Betty Robertson, of Clanton, was selected for membership in the Huntingdon International Relations Club.

The International Relations Club is composed of seniors and juniors who have high scholastic records and who are especially interested in international affairs and cooperation for world peace. It is one of more than 100 clubs in the United States sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Miss Robertson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Robertson, of Clanton, and a graduate of the Ramsay High School of Birmingham.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SERVICE WILL HOLD CLINIC

The State Crippled Children's Service will hold a clinic for the crippled children from Chilton and Bibb counties in Clanton at the First Methodist Church on Thursday, April 9th. This clinic is sponsored locally by the Chilton County Chapter of the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, of which Mr. I. S. Levine is chairman. Dr. Conwell will be the consultant in charge of the clinic, assisted by Miss Mary Ruth Crawford, District Social Worker of the State Crippled Children's Service.

Mr. W. A. Crunk, who works with the Vocational Rehabilitation Service, will assist at the clinic and interview handicapped adults. Vocational and Rehabilitation offers vocational counseling and other services needed by handicapped adults to make possible gainful employment. Representatives of the Chilton County Health, Welfare and Education Departments will also assist the Staff with the clinic.

There are over 342 crippled children in Chilton County. Thirty-six of these children were hospitalized during the past year. Many others were provided with braces, corrective shoes and other treatment services.

Funds collected from the Easter Seal Campaign, which is conducted in Chilton County by the Alabama Society for Crippled Children and Adults, help to provide treatment for these children.

If you know of a crippled child who is in need of treatment or who should be seen at the clinic, please refer him to the County Health, Welfare, or Education Department.

MOSQUITOES AND MEN

A discouraging note comes from Dr. Bailey B. Pepper, head of the Department of Entomology of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station. Dr. Pepper believes that the residential and industrial expansion of the country is also expanding the annual crop of mosquitoes.

Speaking in Atlantic City recently, Dr. Pepper pointed out that recent years have produced a transition in the mosquito problem which is definitely correlated to the rise in living standards. Urban areas and industrial developments have created environments for domestic mosquitoes in several ways. Such developments create breeding areas and supply adequate feeding grounds in the form of pollution of water.

Unfortunately, Dr. Pepper has no remedy to the situation, although he believes that people are eventually going to demand freedom from this nuisance—one way or the other. Meanwhile, the only solution seems to be to head for the hills.

THE ARRIVAL OF SPRING

The vernal equinox, which heralds the beginning of Spring occurred at 5:01 o'clock on the afternoon of March 20th this year. At that moment, the earth's axis is at a right angle to the direction of the sun. At the vernal equinox day and night are equal all over the world.

The other time during the year when this occurs is in September, at the autumnal equinox, which will occur on September 23rd, in 1953. In addition to the equinoxes, there is a Summer and Winter solstice, which ushers in Summer and Winter, respectively.

The Summer solstice begins in June, when the North Pole is tilted twenty-three degrees and twenty-seven minutes toward the sun and therefore in the Northern hemisphere the days are longer than the nights. At the same time, the days in the Southern hemisphere, where the South Pole is pointed away from the sun, are shorter than the nights.

This differenme, which is caused by the tilting of the earth's axis is often misunderstood by many who know only that the vernal equinox marks the beginning of Spring and that the "some kind of day" in June, September and December herald the other three seasons.

Another question which is often not clear in the minds of many is why the hottest days of Summer seem to come after the Summer solstice, on which day there is more sunshine than any other day in the year. The reason for this is that the earth continues to build up heat after the Summer solstice, while losing only a portion of it at night, and therefore it is July or August when the maximum temperature is reached—and when the heat loss at night begins to match the heat gain in the day.

Because of the tilted axis of the earth, when the Northern hemisphere is tilted toward the sun, experiencing long days and warmer weather, the Southern hemisphere is tilted away, experiencing short days and colder weather. Therefore the beginning of Spring in the Southern hemisphere is September 23rd, the Summer solstice is December 21st, etc.

MURDER IN THE BACK YARD

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Webster Times, Webster, Massachusetts: A good question for today is this: Just how much of a dollar have we got? For some time now, it has been well bandied about that a dollar is worth only 52 cents. Complainers are apparently comparing the purchase-ability of today's long green with that of about 20 years ago.

Maybe in the early '30's a dollar did buy nearly twice as much as it does today, but the old-timer's reflection is worth pondering. "I remember the time," he says, "when you could buy a ham sandwich for a nickel." Pause. "But nobody had a confounded nickel!"

Today's dollar seems to have stretched on the one end and shrunk on the other. The period at the end of the last sentence had hardly been put on the decontrol measure recently, when price increases were reported on cigarettes, gasoline and copper.

On the other hand, farm and cattle prices have been dropping regularly for the past six months; farm prices are about 17 per cent below the record high of February, 1951.

From The Herington Advertiser-Times, Herington, Kansas:

Quite naturally, farmers and farm organizations are greatly concerned with the declines that have recently occurred in the market prices of livestock and certain other agricultural commodities. The fear has been expressed that the declines might become so great as to bring on an agricultural depression.

Forecasting the future is an exceedingly risky business, and no one can say with certainty what will happen to farm commodity prices next month or next year. But it should be recorded that many students of agricultural trends feel that the present situation is not as serious as some have painted it.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson is one of these—he recently denied that the price declines had reached "the proportions of an emergency." And the Minneapolis Morning Tribune expressed a widely-held opinion when it said editorially that "the outlook may not be so alarming as it seems."

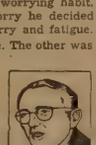
The Tribune found several rays of light on the price horizon. One is of a political character—the government's price support program, whatever one's opinion of its wisdom, will carry through the 1954 crop year in its present form. Others are economic. On the subject of livestock, for instance, the paper said, "Most spectacular decline of all has been the drop in meat cattle prices. But there is no mystery about this development. Many cattlemen saw it coming a year ago as cattle numbers were building up to the highest point in history. Existence of price ceilings no doubt accelerated herd buildups at a time when more animals should have been moving to feed lots or slaughtering stations . . . There may be some further declines in meat prices but they should level off soon.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

CHARLES C. LEGGETT, III, 821 E. Mulberry, Street, Evansville, Indiana, says he is making considerable progress in overcoming worry in his everyday work. He had always had the worrying habit, but after reading a common sense sort of book on worry he decided to try two suggestions he found in it for preventing worry and fatigue.

One was to do things in the order of their importance. The other was to collect the necessary facts and make immediate decisions.



CARNEGIE

To these two suggested habits he added an idea of his own. He bought a pocket size loose leaf notebook to keep notes of each transaction or call that he handled each day. In his work he has to keep up with many small details, fill orders, make estimates, and order parts. Previously he had always tried to remember all these details or else he would make notes on small pieces of paper and stuff them into a pocket, later having to go through three or four pockets to find the one he wanted.

Many times he came home from work tired, disgusted, and just about ready to give it up as a bad job. He has wakened in the middle of the night more than once and suddenly remembering something very important that he should have done but had completely forgotten. This worrying and trying to keep up with so many things had just about convinced him that he wasn't capable of doing his job. He repeatedly found himself confused and his time was wasted in trying to decide what to do next. Since about seventy per cent of his business is done over the phone it is very easy for him to put off decisions and estimates, by merely telling the caller that he will check and call him back.

But not any more does he follow this slipshod practice. He now makes a list each day of the things he wants to accomplish and the order of their importance. Then he concentrates on getting them done, and he finds that by writing everything down in his book he can often finish the transaction right then and get it off his mind.

By applying these habits he has gained confidence in himself because he has succeeded in increasing his efficiency and decreasing his worrying.

HIGHER POULTRY PROFIT

Since there are fewer hens on farms now than a year ago, poultrymen who get high production throughout the remainder of 1953 should make a good profit.

Leaving your estate to those you wish to get it may take a definite effort on your part. If a legal will exists, the property is divided as provided in the will.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

I LIKE to do my suffering in private. But I've found it impossible to do so when you're waiting your turn in a doctor's office.

I had a golfing date the other day with this doctor friend and he asked me to pick him up at his office. When I arrived he still had a patient to see, including a rather over-stuffed matron who looked as healthy as an ox.

I eased into a corner, as if a patient. The nurse grinned, winked, and said the doctor would be glad to see me in a few minutes.

"I'm first," the overstuff lady says.

"Yes, ma'am," the nurse says.

"My, you're thin," the matron says. "What is it, consumption?"

"Me!" I exclaimed. "Madam, I'll have you know I never felt better in my life."

"Well," she snorted. "You don't look it. If you're feeling so good what are you doing here?"

"That's rather a personal question," says I.

"Oh, a hypochondriac," says she.

"All right, madam," says I, 'If you must know, they think I have leprosy."

"You poor man," says she. For a while she is silent and then began to squirm and case side-long glances toward me.

"Did you say leprosy?" says she.

"Yes, ma'am," says I. "Ain't it awful."

She squirmed in her seat for a few moments and continued to lean away from me until she had a 45 degree list to port.

The nurse laughed. "I've always considered you a bad influence on the doctor," says she, but I think this has changed my mind.

"What about her?" says I.

"Nothing wrong with her," says the nurse. "Just the biggest hypochondriac in town."

"I don't think I can wait any longer," says she to the nurse. "I'd better come back tomorrow." She almost jumped from her chair after that statement and scrammed.

Pre-School Clinic Schedule For April

Dr. G. M. Taylor, County Health Officer, has announced the pre-school clinic schedule for the month of April.

Pinedale — April 3, 9:00.
Mineral Springs — April 3, 10:00.
Collins Chapel — April 3, 11:00.

SOME NERVE!

St. Louis, Mo.—An unidentified man, carrying his lunch in a paper bag, walked into a resturant, sat down at a table and ordered coffee. He complained that the coffee did not have enough cream in it. While eating his lunch, he spilled coffee and cottage cheese on the table cloth. Then, putting the uneaten part of his lunch back in the bag, he asked the proprietor to put it in the refrigerator and he would return the next day to finish it.

Chilton County 4-h Club To Have Baking Contest Sat.

Saturday, April 4th, the 4-H Club County Baking Contest will be held at 9:00 a.m. at the City Hall. Contests have not been held in each of the Clubs throughout the County but every 4-H girl in the County is eligible to enter the County contest.

The Baking Contest is sponsored by the Calumet Baking Powder Company. The County Award for the Senior winner is a set of baking equipment which is given by the Calumet Company. Winner of the Junior contest will receive a year's subscription to the National 4-H Club News.

For several months announcements have been made about the contest so the girls are familiar with it. It is hoped that many girls of the County will participate in the contest. The girl will make and bake her biscuit at home Saturday morning. She will bring her biscuit and 4-H record with her to the contest. The record of other foods she has cooked will be judged along with the biscuit. Some points the biscuit will be judged on are light and fluffy, fairly straight and even on the sides, level on top, even golden brown color, creamy white and fine grained, size as compared with size before baked, and flavor.

If the County winner of the Senior Baking Contest was fourteen years old before the first of January she will be eligible for entering the State Baking Contest which will be held during State 4-H Camp July 6th-11th.

Lutheran Church—

Rev. William R. Morgan, pastor.
Sunday School 10 o'clock.
Morning Worship 11 o'clock.
Thursday evening — Communion services 7:30 p.m.
Friday evening services 7:30 p.m.

All members are urged to attend Holy Communion services on Thursday evening. Visitors are welcome to attend. Also plan to attend Good Friday service.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to attend services Easter morning. For special music Naemi Turnquist will use for her organ prelude the "Hallelulia Chorus," also "Open the Gates to the Temple" and Miss Sue Bratton will sing for the Offertory, "The Holy City."

A most inspiring service was held on last Sunday, when a confirmation service was held. The two boys uniting with the church through confirmation were Danny Gletty, young son of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Gletty and James Roy Higgins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Higgins. The church was decorated with palms and Calla lilies. The lilies on the altar were arranged around a large white cross, with three tall white candles on either side. Miss Turnquist played as her prelude, an arrangement of Lenten hymns and closed with "The Palms." Miss Sue Bratton of Jemison sang, "Speak To My Heart," as an offertory solo.

At the close of the confirmation service the boys were presented with each a Bible, gifts of the church.

Rev. Morgan used as the topic of his sermon, "The Meaning of Confirmation."

The service was well attended by members and friends.

Miss Merelyn Gletty spent a few days in Nashville last week, while having a holiday from school.

E. R. Yeargan, 5th District Commander; and Amos Glass, both of Post No. 206, Thorsby, attended the American Legion birthday party at the American Legion Hall at Siluria Friday night, March 27th.

The ladies of the Auxiliary Unit of Siluria served cake, punch and coffee. Two of the young ladies of Siluria entertained the members and guests with piano music and songs.

Mr. Arthur Littleton and Mrs. E. F. Billingsley were called to Birmingham Sunday night due to the sudden death of a sister, Mrs. Susie Horsley.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Pate spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Gore. They were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

PRESS RIGHT BUTTON

Birmingham, Ala.—For several years, agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit have been trying to find liquor at the home of William E. Lynch with no success. Recently, however, they went to work on a push-button wall panel. Some buttons turned lights on and off and, finally, one opened a wall panel and behind it they found 325 gallons of illegal and nontax paid whisky.

NEW LOOK FOR CONSERVATION OFFICIALS. Enforcement officers of the State Conservation Department donned uniforms this week for the first time in the history of conservation in Alabama. The uniforms were distributed for use by game wardens, seafoods officers, park rangers and officials after they had completed an intensive three-week conservation training school at Montgomery. The picture above shows game warden Joe Crook of Clayton, Ala., wearing the new forest green winter uniform.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Ren Fast, Pioneer, Ohio: I remember as a child, in a family of eight children, my father used to buy crackers by the barrel. We used to dig deep into the barrel, to see which one of us could find the biggest double cracker. In other words, the largest number stuck together. We had a large orchard and always had plenty of apples and home-made cider in the fall, which we made on our own hand-powered cider mill. We also used to make apple butter in a large copper kettle. Can you think of anything better than good home-made bread and apple butter?

From J. M. Herlzoy, 913 Franklin Street, Reading, Pa.: I remember when canal boats loaded with coal used to pass through Reading at the southern end of town. They were drawn by two or three mules. On Water Street, near the trolly bridge, they used to dock for several days at a time.

* * *

From H. E. Collies, Ponelo, Indiana: I can remember when grain was cradled, raked with a wooden rake, and tied with a double-hand made from the straw of the grain. I can still make a double band.

* * *

From H. Rowe, Rush Springs, Oklahoma: I remember when I was a lad in Tennessee and my mother cooked in the chimney. She hung her brass kettle from pot racks in the fireplace and the skillet was used to bake the corn pone and biscuits. Saturday was her regular baking day.

From Mrs. Willia Bodgett, Marion, Va.: I remember my grandmother once raised 200 geese and ducks and 200 turkeys and sold them for $1.25 each, and 50 bushels of beans for $1.00 a bushel, to pay a due bill at the country store.

FORTUNE TO CHILDREN

St. Louis, Mo.—Louis Honig, a childless widower, who died in February, left more than $300,000 to charities-for children. Honig, forced by family circumstances to become a breadwinner at the age of 8, often said, "I don't want children to have it as hard as I did when I was young."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our many friends for the kindness, love and help given us during the recent sickness and loss of our wife and mother. — James Robert Connell and Family.

Isabella And Mulberry News

Rev. Paul Oden filled the pulpit at Mulberry Sunday morning. He delivered an inspiring message. His text was, "Great Churches." Rev. J. W. Jones, the pastor, preached a wonderful sermon Sunday night on "Taking Up Your Cross and Fllowing the Master."

Rev. L. E. Daniel, pastor of the Thorsby Baptist Church, will bring the first message of the revival at Mulberry next Sunday night. There will be service every night next week, but will not be day services.

There will be cottage prayer meetings in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy; Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lecroy next Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. Meet us in one of these homes and join us in prayer for the coming revival.

On Friday evening at 7:00 p.m. there will be choir practice at the church. All of this community who can sing are especially invited to come practice with us.

The Intermediate G.A.'s of Mulberry will meet with Ophelia Conway next Tuesday afternoon immediately after school.

We were happy to receive Lt. Clyde Hightower into the church at Mulberry Sunday.

Lt. and Mrs. Clyde Hightower of Ozark, Ala., were the week end guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Conway. Lt. Hightower is stationed at Camp Rucker Ala.

Alton Lecroy is at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Lecroy, on a 30-day leave. He will report back to Seattle, Wash., where his ship is docked.

Mrs. Emma Manning has returned home after visiting her daughters in Titus, Ala.; Winchester, Tenn., and Birmingham, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint McGee and daughter, Mrs. John D. Smith of Clanton were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis McGee.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Tucker and Edna Earl and Ramona spent Sunday afternoon on a sight-seeing tour to Moundville near Tuscaloosa and other places of interest.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter White Roper and little son, Randy, of Birmingham were week end guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Dessie Roper.

J. C. Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Congor Cummings, spent several days last week in Auburn with Lloyd Jones. While there he and Micky Manning enjoyed an airplane ride together.

Mr. Homer Ratliff, who recently underwent an operation on his eye, is able to be out again, although he still has a bandage over his left eye. Mrs. Ratliff is under the care of Dr. Allison in Selma. She has been ill for some time. We are wishing for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Mabel Bone and son, J. of Detroit, are visiting relatives here this week.

Dale Nabors is at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Nabors for a while. He arrived here on Monday. He has been overseas for some time.

Mrs. J. H. Wells visited her daughter, Mrs. Andrew Jones, and family and sisters, Mrs. Cecil Oliver and Mrs. R. E. Tucker, in Birmingham last week. She attended A.E.A. on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williams and Mrs. Effie Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bryant and sons spent Sunday at Jasmine Hill Gardens near Wetumpka. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lenoir and Sharon of Tallassee met them there and they all enjoyed the beautiful scenes of the gardens and a pilcnic dinner together just outside the gardens.

Mr. Luther Lecroy, who has been confined to his home most of the winter due to illness, was able to be out riding Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Cummings carried Mr. and Mrs. Lecroy for a ride up by Jemison, Thorsby and back through Isabella.

E. S. Jones is serving on the jury this week in Clanton.

MOTHER OF NINE, 32

Miami, Fla.—Although Mrs. Calvin Peters is only 32, she is the mother of nine children, four of whom came in sets of twins only ten months apart. Twins run in her family and she is a twin herself.

Samaria News

Sunday we had a very good attendance. We had a very interesting Sunday School lesson Sunday morning and an interesting lesson Sunday night. Our pastor, Rev. E. C. Hall, brought some very inspiring sermons Sunday and he gives each of you a welcome to come and be with us any time you can.

The District group circle meeting of the ladies W.M.U. will meet at Samaria April 9th. We would like to remind each of you ladies to keep this in mind and attend this good time.

We have Sunday School each Sunday morning at ten o'clock and Training Union each Sunday night at [illegible] with preaching following each all come and be on time.

Due to the absence of our Training Union leader Sunday night Mr. Red [illegible] was in charge of Training Union. We were glad to have Hershel Baker's mother with us Sunday and Mr. and Mrs. Tony Cantrell and son and Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Keeble. We welcome them to [illegible] at any time.

Parents, what are your boys and girls reading. There are some good reading books in the Mulberry library. It would be nice for someone from Mulberry to go to Schocco Springs next week for three days to attend meetings in interest of our library. Please help us get more books for the library.

Two Young Ladies Honored Here With Birthday Parties

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dickinson entertained at their home on Lay Dam Road with a party for the younger set on Friday night, March 20, from 7 to 9:30 o'clock. This gala affair was in honor of their daughter, Caroline, on her thirteenth birthday, who was lovely in a dress of blue with a waist corsage of yellow flowers.

The party colors of yellow and blue were further cardied out in the floral arrangement of spring garden flowers used for decorations of the home, which was softly lighted by burning candles.

In the dining room the refreshments table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a low [illegible] flowers. [illegible] day cake was [illegible] in yellow and blue, holding yellow candles. [illegible] party [illegible] table.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lawrence entertained a group of young people at their River cottage on Wednesday evening, honoring their daughter, Johnelle, on her fourteenth birthday.

Games and fun of roasting weiners and marshmallows were enjoyed outside, after which the guests were invited inside to cut the lovely birthday cake and sing, "Happy Birthday."

Those helping Johnelle celebrate this happy occasion were: Carolyn Tucker, Peggy Caroll, Betty Wyatt, Tom Robinison, Tery Jones, Douglas and Johnny Williams.

PLANT SPRAY KILLS CHILD

Redwood City, Cal.—Little Bobby Lommer, 4, his clothing drenched with a poisonous plant spray staggered into his home at Menlo Park and gasped, "The other kids threw it at me." His mother, Mrs. Guy Lommer rushed him to a hospital but Bobby was dead on arrival. Officers later found a broken bottle of plant spray in the backyard of a near-by vacant house. Its label stated that it was poison and warned that illness or death could result from either inhaling the fumes or spilling the spray on uncovered skin

GIVE YOUR LINENS the proper care during holiday time, and you'll glow with housewifely pride when you set the table. Some table linens require a little extra care, but they repay you in their beauty and increased service.

Most linens do not require special stain removal before laundering, especially if you can use a chlorine bleach on them. This is best placed in the suds, so it works on the linens while washing takes place.

Soil removal is more certain if you let table linens soak for 20 minutes in clear, cool or lukewarm water before laundering. Plan to wash linens separately from other items so they do not acquire fuzz from them.

Second launderings are advisable if the first one has not removed heavy grease stains. Always rinse three times in lukewarm water, or more often until the odor of the bleach disappears.

Light starch may be used to give gloss, but stiff finishes on linens are not desirable. Bluing, too, is unnecessary if laundering methods are proper. When used, bluing should be distributed thoroughly to prevent streaking.

Dry, hot air destroys the crispness of Irish linen. Dry in sunshine, but whenever possible, have temperatures as close to 70°F. as possible.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Sweet Potato Sausage Stuffing
(For fowl or roast pork)

4 medium sweet potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
½ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange
½ pound sausage meat
1 onion, minced
3 stalks celery, chopped
¾ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ cups bread crumbs

Scrub sweet potatoes; cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain, peel and mash thoroughly. Add butter, orange juice and rind. Beat until smooth. Cook sausage meat slowly for 10 minutes. Add onion, celery, poultry seasoning and salt to taste. Cook until meat is brown. Drain off fat. Add mashed sweet potatoes and bread crumbs, mixing thoroughly. This is a moist stuffing and should be packed into bird loosely.

WHEN YOU'RE COOKING any mixtures that contain a substantial amount of egg yolk, use a stainless steel or wooden spoon or fork, rather than silver, for stirring. Silver tarnishes readily, when used with egg yolks.

If you don't have popover pans, use heat-resistant glass cups for baking these delicious hot breads. Oil the cups well and set on a baking sheet in a hot (425°F.) oven to heat while you're mixing the batter. The cups have to be hot when they're filled.

Use a stiffly-bristled vegetable brush to whisk off crumbs from cheese, lemon or orange rind when they have stuck to your grater. This will make washing easier.

Unmolding of geletin salads is easy if you hold over the heat of your range burner for a few seconds. Shake gently to loosen. Put plate upside down on top of mold and invert. Lift off mold and garnish.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Chicken Rice Stew
(Serves 6)

5 - 6 pound fowl, cut in pieces
6 cups hot water
1 onion, sliced
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons powdered allspice
3 cups sliced celery
3 cups sliced celery
1 cup uncooked white rice
Finely minced giblets

Wash fowl. Heat water in heavy kettle. Add seasonings, onion and fowl. Cover and simmer for 2½ to 3 hours, until just tender. Add celery, rice, giblets and cover to cook for 20 minutes until rice is tender. Thicken with flour and water paste, if desired.

Put a toothpick through a garlic clove used for seasoning sauces, dressings or spaghetti dishes. Then you can lift out the clove readily when the mixture is seasoned to taste.

If baked rolls have a crisp crust and you want to soften it, brush with melted butter or oil immediately after they're baked.

If your wooden salad bowl is wiped immediately after using with a paper towel or napkin, it can be cleaned easily. If very oily, rub the bowl with a slice of bread. These bowls should not be washed.

Reflected Sunshine—

The thing that really matters
Is the "something else" you do
Besides the getting dollars
All your whole life through.
It's just the touch you're giving
To others day by day,
The sunshine that you scatter
All along the way.
The kindly deed you're doing,
When someone needs a friend,
The service that you render,
The helping hand you lend.
It brings a joy that's lasting,
Which many cannot do.
To know that someone's gladness
Is just because of you.

Mrs. W. E. Cobern, Elizabeth Ann and Mary Virginia Hayes visited relatives in Sewanee, Tenn., last week end.

N. W. Latham of Maplesville has used the cage system in egg production for less than a year, but he likes it so well that the present 1000 individual layer cakes will be doubled in number. The Chilton County man says egg production has reached 85% at times, and seldom has gone under 75%. When a caged hen drops off in laying a pullet from Latham's replacement flock takes her place. Card on the front of cages are used to record the hen's laying record.

In the annual County 4-H Club Skirt and Dress Contest first prize for the skirt was won by Joan Smitherman; second prize by Effie J. Harison. Ruby Jean Chambers, Brenda Higginbotham and Joan Pery won honorable mention. The contest was won last Saturday in Clanton at the City Hall. This contest was one of the highlights of the year for 4-H Club girls. They had the opportunity of competing with girls from all over the county. The garments were judged for seams, hems, pleats, fasteners, band, level skirt, sleeves, joining of skirt and waiste line, and the sewing in general. Both our girls received a very attractive 4-H Dress Revue gold pin. We are proud of our girls.

Mrs. Hary Higginbotham will entertain her little Sunday School class next Saturday afternoon with an Easter egg hunt at her home at 2:30. These little fellows are going to color their own eggs out there.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

The Alabama Power Company 1953 Fishing Contest is all lined up and ready to roll. Entries accepted at official weigh-in stations Wednesday, April 1st through November 30th. So join in the fun; fishing is good and the prizes are well worth the few minutes it takes to register your catch.

Prizes are in three categories and you are eligible to take home one of each: (1) Whopper - Catcher Certificates will be awarded to all contestants whose catch equals or exceeds the base weights of contest fish as follows: Largemouth Bass, 5 pounds; Smallmouth Bass, 3½ pounds; White Lake or Stripe Bass, 2 pounds; Crappie or White Perch, 1½ pounds; Shellcracker Bream, 10 ounces; Bluegill, 8 ounces.

(2) During the eight-month contest period a monthly $10.00 cash merchandise certificate, to be traded at your favorite sporting goods store, will be awarded for the best catch of the month.

(3) Final grand prizes consisting of attractively engraved trophies will be awarded to each of the three best entries of the six contest divisions.

Contest rules are about the same as last year except for one minor change as follows: Any Smallmouth Bass entry exceeding the Whopper-Catcher base weight of 3½ pounds shall be accompanied by a clear snap-shot or else the entry will be considered a Largemouth Bass.

This rule will simplifiy the judging and remove any doubt as to the corect identity of the fish.

All entries must be caught in the Coosa or Tallapoosa Lakes and registered at one of the convenient weigh-in stations located at most boat docks or nearby stores.

Last week's cold high winds were rough but many anglers found good fishing. From Lake Martin tributaries, Kowaliga, Parker, Elkahatchee, Sandy and Manoy Creeks came reports of nice strings of Stripes and Largemouth Bass. They were hitting flies, top water plugs, spoons and live minnows. Over on the Coosa the story was about the same on all Lakes, Stripes, Large and Smallmouth Bass and Crappie were taken by trolling, casting and drop fishing. Yellow jointed Lazy Ikes and Cisco Kids proved very effective trolling and casting. White flies, Coosa Nuggets and spoons took large numbers of Stripes from the head waters and shoals. Of course, live minnows accounted for the largest strings of Crappies.

Good locations on Lake Lay are, Waxahatchee, Paint and Little Tom Creeks. On Lake Mitchell: The head waters of Hatchett, Pennymotley and River sloughs. On Lake Jordan, Weoka, Sotkahatchee and Shoals Creeks.

CHIEF ALAPOCO SAYS: Form the habit of thinking safety when you are afloat and you will increase your peace of mind and relaxation, and double the fun of boating.—R. L. Scott, Recreational Supervisor.

DOUBLE-DUTY NOTICE

Bowmanville, Ont.—The following notice was inserted in this town's weekly newspaper recently: "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vanstone are happy to announce the birth of their daughter, Debora Charlene, born January 28 in Memorial Hospital, Bowmanville, also their grandson, Elroy John, born February 3, 1953, to Mr. and Mrs. John Trimble.

CLERKS 66 YEARS

Mt. Carmel, Ill.—Quitting school when he was 16, Charles Seitz took a job as clerk in his father's department store. Although the store changed hands three times, Seitz stayed on as clerk. Today, at 82, he winds up his 66th year at the same old counter.

SCORE LINOLEUM . . . The problem of cutting thick linoleum, even with a sharp knife, can be overcome by scoring it with the point of an ice pick or similar sharp tool. The material will cut readily and the knife will stay in the groove made by the pick.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Rev. Robert H. Harper

The Living Lord
Lesson for April 5: Matthew 28: 1-10, 16-20
Golden Text: John 11: 25

In tribute to the devotion of the weaker sex to Jesus, it has been remarked that women were last at the cross and first at the empty tomb. As Mary Magdalene and the other Mary hastened to the sepulchre in the early dawn of the third day, they were told by an angel that Christ had risen and that they should go quickly and tell the disciples. As they started running, to bring the disciples word Jesus himself met them and bade them tell the disciples to meet him in Galilee.

It is significant that when Jesus appeared unto the disciples on a mountain of Galilee, his last recorded utterance was the Great Commission, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations." A man must practise the glorious truth if he would truly realize it and be prepared to declare it. Let us labor in Christ's name with high courage, as knowing that we cannot fail when we are supported by the power that he promises to his disciples.

We may not ordinarily realize how much of our holy religion depends upon Easter. The glorious fact of the Living Lord, the radiant angels attending, the proof of the immortality of the soul, and the promise of the perfect life all spring from the revelation of life in the empty tomb. Let us rejoice today in the resurrection of our Lord and the sure hope it brings that we shall be with him one day amid the glories of ten thousand worlds

Easy Does It

NICE DISH to serve in place of a salad uses sliced cucumbers which are then salted and mixed with soured cream to which some cottage cheese has been added.

When you're serving leftover roast or fowl cold or for sandwiches, use this dressing: to one cup of mayonnaise add 1 chopped, hard-cooked egg, ¼ cup chili sauce and 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper.

An elegant luncheon for the ladies: broiled sweetbreads or sautéed eggplant covered with a thin slice of ham.

Gingerbread waffles make an excellent dessert, and you may serve them with ice cream or whipped cream and bananas when you want to get fancy about it. The waffles are quick and easy made from packaged mix.

If you have a roast, there's bound to be meat left for hash. But don't let it be served as hash all the time. Stuff peppers with it, or cabbage leaves, and don't forget it's delicious put right into pan boiled onions and then baked to heat through.

French dressing with lettuce makes an easy salad, and it's just different enough when you add chopped, hard-cooked egg to it, to be something special.

Celery usually isn't used much as a cooked vegetable, but you'll reconsider when you serve it fried. Dip the pieces into a light batter and plunge them into deep fat until crisp and golden. Drain

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Banquet Frankfurters
(Serves 6)

12 frankfurters
¼ cup prepared mustard
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
¾ cup chopped parsley

Slit frankfurters lengthwise and spread with mustard. Combine all remaining ingredients and spread on cut surface of 6 frankfurters. Place remaining frankfurters on top, cut side down. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 20 minutes.

Mike's Getaway

By Jay Blaine

Sheriff Fred Handy left the jail with a bunch of papers in his hand and went out alongside the building. A beaten up old car stood in the space between the jail and the court house. A few men were lounging about. The sheriff lifted his tall form into the car and stood up. He looked tired.

"Gentlemen, we're here to auction off this car to the best bidder. Property of Mike Rundell, a prisoner, who desires to clear up his—'er, obligations. Do I have a bid."

The men gathered around.

The home town men, at least, knew about Mike Rundell. He was in trouble because he had used a fraudulent check to buy goods at the Empire Store. Mike had insisted that he was only an innocent party. He had taken the check from another man, believing it good, so he claimed. The sheriff felt sorry for Mike, despite the fact that Mike's past record was not good and that he had run with a bad bunch. If Mike could raise the money, he'd probably go free. Mike's family needed him.

"Speak up, gentlemen," said the sheriff.

"I'll give thirty-five dollars," said some one.

"Thirty five I'm offered. Who'll raise it," said the sheriff.

"Forty."

"Fifty."

After a pause some one said "Sixty".

Sheriff Handy waited again, then said, "Come now, gentlemen it's worth more than that to anyone."

"I'll bid seventy-five dollars," came a voice from the jail window. "I won't see it given away."

It was Mike Rundell himself

"I guess we got to recognize Mike's bid," said Handy. None went higher.

"Where'll he get the money?" some one called.

The sheriff hadn't thought that out at all. He paused. One of the strangers spoke up.

"I'm a friend of his. I'll lend him the money on his note. Take me in and I'll fix it up."

At the cell door Sheriff Handy took out a big key and turned it in the old-fashioned lock. Inside was Mike Rundell, whose black eyes glowed strangely as the pair came near. Mike really was mild looking. The sheriff started to pull the door open outwardly when he felt something hard pushed against his back.

"Hist your hands, sheriff, and keep quiet. No funny business now." A hand slid over the sheriff's clothing searching for weapons.

"Now get inside, sheriff. Keep quiet. You can come out now, Mike."

Inside the cell the sheriff turned slowly to get a better view of his visitor, something he had neglected to do before. The man had meanness written all over him. Mike made no move.

"Come on, Mike," said the man. "I ain't coming," he said. "I'm through with you, Bleeker. You got me into this mess in the first place. You better git."

Bleeker stared, mouth agape. Then he swiftly slammed the cell door shut and left quickly, saying, "Stay here and rot, then I'm throwing this key into the river."

Sheriff Handy leaned at Mike. "Know him, do you?" Handy asked.

"Sure. Hadn't been for him I wouldn't be here. He fixed the check, then tricked me."

"We'll get him," said the sheriff. "I know where to find him."

Sheriff Handy stepped forward, put his hand through the bars and opened the door.

"Spring's broke in the lock. Door hasn't really been locked for a year. Just a bluff."

"You mean I could have walked out any time?"

"Sure. I knew you wouldn't go far. You can go now. I'll see that you get the money for your car—unless you need it yourself."

"Thanks, sheriff. I got a little boy. Don't want him to know his daddy was a jailbird."

Members of the Mt. Pleasant Church had all-day services at the Plantersville Methodist Church last Sunday. The Rev. Blair, pastor of Mt. Pleasant Church brought the eleven o'clock message. A nice dinner was spread under the huge oaks on the lawn and an hour of fellowship was enjoyed at this time. Rev. F. E. Bagby of Plantersville Route 2 a retired Presbyterian minister taught the adult Sunday School Class in the Methodist Church. This class reported a very interesting lesson taught by the Rev. Bagby. Singing was enjoyed during the afternoon.

The annual Southern Scramble Woods Run, put on by Mr. Millard Reynolds each year, was an event of Sunday, March 29, 1953. A large crowd followed the run throughout the day and everyone reported a wonderful day. It was such a pretty day, the run not too strenuous and such beautiful woodland. The dogwood, honeysuckle and other wild flowers were in their glory.

The run started at 8:00 a.m. in Maplesville. Noon day check at The Alabamian. A very delicious barbecue dinner was served. Fifty riders entered the run—22 finishing. The riders praised the lay-out men, Mr. Folsum Henderson and Mr. Millard Reynolds, on the course and remarked that it was well laid out and not too hazardous. High point man and first place winner was Mr. Cecil Lane of Montgomery; second place, Mr. Claude Owens, of Butler; third place, Mr. Edward Chambles of Montgomery; fourth place, Mr. Hot Brady, of Selma; fifth place, Mr. Delma Mears, of Montgomery; sixth place, Mr. James Williams, of Selma; seventh place, Mr. Ed Rusk, of Columbus, Ga. The above men were winners in the large motor class.

Winners in the small motor class were: First place, Mr. Verlon Estes, of Montgomery; second place, Mr. Clyde Townsend, of Dothan. Nice trophies were presented each winner.

Additional contributions to the Stanton Cemetery Fund are as follows: Miss Ruth Gandy $3.13; Rev. and Mrs. Johnnie Lee Davis, $5.00. We are glad to report that the fence has been paid for in full. Additional contributions are asked at this time so the committee will have funds for keeping up the cemetery grounds. The graves of loved ones need constant care and one person will have to be hired to do this work. Grass needs sowing and a mowing machine will be needed. Send your contributions so this cemetery can be kept in good order all the time.

Rev. and Mrs. Johnnie Lee Davis and children of Anniston spent two days last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Benton and family and other relatives here. Rev. Davis is still in a cask and will be until about April 20. We are glad to report that Rev. Davis is improving nicely.

Mrs. Susie Lovelady came Saturday to be with Rev. and Mrs. Joe Davis for a while. She wants her relatives and friends to visit with her each chance.

Revival starts at the Pleasant Grove Church next Sunday. Rev. Joe Davis pastors this church. A cordial invitation is extended to all to worship with them. A different minister will fill the pulpit at each service.

Sunrise service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gin Nichols in the Pleasant Grove Community April 5th, at 6:00 a.m. Everyone is invited to witness this service.

Mr. and Mrs. Euel Jones, Mary, Johnnie and Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Jones, Gordon and Joe; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Satterfield, Charles, Lillie Ruth and Evelyn of Bessemer were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Cole and family last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean of Birmingham visited Miss Ruth Hicks and her mother last Tuesday. Mr. Dean was sales manager of the firm Miss Hicks worked for ten years.

If you have any information on Old Ebenezer Church at Stanton, call Mrs. William Ruddick 4944 or Miss Ruth Hicks 4614. This history will be compiled soon and they will appreciate your help in this work.

News Of Jemison

Easter—

John 11:25 — "I am the Resurrection and the Life: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

God sends us the joy of Easter
To brighten each new day,
God sends us the hope of Easter
To light each glad Spring day,
God sends us the faith of Easter
To bless each heart anew—
May all of these His blessings
Make Easter glad for you.

Two thousand years ago, the Risen Christ stood in the guest room of a house in Jerusalem and spoke to His disciples, saying: "Peace be with you." The message of Easter is one of hope, the Spirit of Easter is one of love.

At this time new life is seen everywhere. Let us take into our hearts afresh the blessed fact of our Lord's Resurrection, the season of joy and mystery. Easter symbolizes hope and should mean more to us than ever before. There is so much confusion and unrest that we need to have faith in the future.

"For I know that my Redeemer liveth."—Job 19:25.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Nice Try, dear."

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH

We had eighty-one out for Sunday School and the beginning of our revival Sunday. Everyone who missed Bro. Cox's messages Sunday and Sunday night missed a blessing.

We hope everyone who sings or loves good singing will attend the Easter singing next Sunday. Bro. O. L. Devaughn is chairman.

We need everyone who can come and help us in Training Union. There's a great blessing for each one who comes out to worship a true and living God.

Our pastor preached at Maple Springs Church Sunday, and we appreciate them having their service early and coming to our service Sunday night. We were happy to have all our visitors Sunday and Sunday night. We hope everyone will attend our revival services and pray that every Christian will do their share of winning the lost people to Christ.

Our hearts are sad by the passing of our dear pastor's mother. We cannot find words to express our sympathy to him and the entire family. He is so good and has so many comforting words for each of us when sorrow comes our way, and it seems we can't do anything to help them. But our prayer is that God may bless and comfort them. For God Who doeth all things well has seen fit to call mother from this world of suffering, and has also made it possible that each one can join her some glad morning. So may we all be prepared.

Mrs. Rena Thornton has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Adell Thornton and children. They brought her home to visit relatives in Clanton this week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Williams spent the week end with Mrs. John Cox and Lee.

Mrs. William Nelson visited relatives in our community over the week end.

Mrs. Dave Jones has been visiting her sister in Clanton who is very ill.

The Sunbeam leader is giving an egg hunt for all the little children next Saturday afternoon at one o'clock at the home of E. W. Hill. All the G.A. girls are invited to come and hide the eggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wormock and children of Pepperel visited relatives here over the week end.

Glad to have Jimmie Thornton and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Popwell at church Sunday. We miss all the people who have moved away and are always happy to see them back.

Chestnut Creek News

We thank God for the wonderful worship services and fellowship we enjoyed at church Sunday. Bro. Atcheson brought two inspiring messages to a large congregation. The beautiful part of the morning service was when a young woman who is confined to a wheel chair was pushed forward to accept Christ as her Saviour. We thank God for her and the young man who also accepted Christ in the same service. It seems that God is pouring down His special blessings upon us and we are so thankful to Him. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread and everyone enjoyed eating and talking together. There were lots of visitors present and we invite them back.

Plans are being made for a Sunrise Easter Service at our church next Sunday morning, beginning at 4:30. This will seem a little early to get up on Sunday morning, but can't you get up a little early just once, and see what a great blessing you will receive when you attend a service like this. Other churches that are not planning Sunrise services are especially invited to come to our service.

There will be an egg hunt Saturday afternoon in Mr. N. J. Robinson's pasture. All children that would like to go to this egg hunt are asked to bring colored eggs and meet at the church at 2 o'clock. Then you will go from there to the pasture. Don't miss this, children, it will be lots of fun.

Elementary P.-T.A. To Meet Tuesday

The Grammar School Parent-Teachers Association will hold their regular meeting on Tuesday, April 7th. The guest speaker for the afternoon will be Mr. Chas. O'Guin, State Safety Patrol Director.

The election of officers for the coming year will be held.

The second grade room mothers will be in charge of the social hour.

CLOTHESPIN BOX . . . The man of the house, if handy with tools, can make the above clothespin box without difficulty. It can be made of scrap wood and mounted at a handy spot. The hinged roof makes the pins accessible.

After an ice cream freezer has been properly packed with cracked ice and salt, pour a quart of cold water over it. The water will cause the ice and salt to combine more quickly and freezing will be hastened.

The tedious job of removing pin-feathers from a fowl can be simplified by using a strawberry huller with which you can grip the feathers close to the skin of the bird.

It is estimated that the free world output of nickel in 1952 exceeded 315,000,000 pounds, compared with 295,000,000 pounds in 1951. Canadian production amounted to approximately 280,000,000 pounds, or about 90 per cent of the total.

A good rule of thumb is to use one ton of pure ground limestone per acre on sandy soils and two to three tons per acre on clay soils. And the lime should be spread evenly.

JEMISON ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PRESENTS OPERETTA

On Friday night, April 3rd, the Jemison Elementary School presents the clever little operetta, fresh off the press, "D. Boone Killed A Bear."

This new operetta affords one hour and forty minutes of genuine delight of early frontier life. See Daniel Boone outwit the savage Indians; witness the bravery of the pioneer women while Boonestown is under seige. Hear the weird Indian songs, enjoy their rollicking war dance; marvel at the courage of the tough frontiersmen; laugh at the antics of the Negro interpreter as he seeks a hiding place during the Indian attack. This merry little program is presented by the 1st, 5th and 6th grades. Eighty-three characters participate.

VERBENA HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUB CONCERT

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

You will be missing "Around Our House" written weekly for the Chilton County News by Mrs. Kathryn Tucker Windham. Because of severe illness in the family she will be forced to discontinue the column for a while. We certainly hope she will soon be back as a regular on our Editorial Page. She has many fans among our readers. Too, we regret deeply to learn of the sickness in her family and hope all will turn out for the best.

'Twas' a beautiful Easter, wasn't it? We never saw so many pretty things in pretty things. For a week before the day we heard nothing but, "Does this go with this," and, "This goes with this." Anybody knows if you have two pieces of clothing and you wear them both, they goes together. They goes together everywhere you goes until you take them off. Anyway, everything turned out just fine, and according to the ladies Easter outfits one would think that it was Decoration Day.

A committee from the Clanton Country Club visited us Monday afternoon, and a most beautiful committee it was too. They were interested in getting things started again down there in South Clanton and were calling all the old members to "take a hand" and help out. Wednesday of this week in the afternoon they are asking the men to come down and help in building a fence and playground for the kiddies. At the same time the wives and sweethearts are to come along and bring a box supper so then when the work is over all can join in a picnic supper at the Country Club. The Club is a very worthwhile project to the grown-ups and the children of our town and a project that we should take more interest in. For one, we know we have let them down, but starting from here we are going to see if we can't lend a helping hand to the Country Club. How about you other backsliders making an effort too.

Mrs. Shortly was discussing the latest fashions with a caller.

"Did you say your husband was fond of those clinging gowns, Mary?"

"Yes. He likes one to cling to me for about three years."

In a proclamation setting aside April as "Cancer Control Month" in Alabama, Gov. Persons has called upon all citizens of the State to give of their time and resources during the 1953 Crusade of the American Cancer Society in support of it's research, education and service programs. Shown in the above photo with the Governor as he signs the proclamation are, left to right, Redus C. Collier of Decatur; Mrs. Lillian G. Meade, Birmingham; Dr. T. Brannon Hubbard, Sr., Montgomery; and Dr. D. G. Gill, Montgomery.

Month Of April Is Proclaimed Cancer Crusade Month Here

Just as Governor Gordon Persons has proclaimed April as the Cancer Crusade month, so have several of the Chilton County officials made about the same proclamation as members of the Clanton Lions Club and the Thorsby-Jemison Lions Club, under the direction of Sheriff Luther Kendrick, start their drive to put Chilton County over the top to help fight this dread disease. The County drive got underway this week as committee chairman of both county Lions Clubs assigned their workers in an effort to end the drive as soon as possible.

Headed by Sheriff Kendrick, other chairmen include Gordon Robertson of the Industry and Organization groups, Charles E. Tucker and J. O. Miller to head the business houses campaign; Ott Miller, Louis Headley and Ralph Morrison to head the individual canvassers, Erle Ellis and Bernard Adams to head the special gifts committee, and J. E. Easterling to head the Coffee Day Committee.

Other officials of the general committee include Francis Speaks, treasurer, and Bob Taber, publicity.

In Thorsby and Jemison the committee chairmen include Crawford Young, business houses; J. Archie Ogburn, publicity; Askew Davis, individual canvass; H. K. Christianson, coffee day; and Naemi Turnquist, treasurer. This group is headed by W. R. Kendrick.

REVIVAL SERVICES THIS WEEK AT MULBERRY CHURCH

The revival service that started last Sunday at the Mulberry Baptist Church are continuing this week and members of the church are inviting their friends to visit them in this revival.

Rev. L. E. Daniel, of Thorsby, is bringing the messages daily. Services are held each evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Jones is pastor.

CONCORD CHURCH TO BUILD NEW CHURCH PARSONAGE

The members of the congregation at Concord Church have combined their efforts and materials and have arranged to build a new parsonage for their pastor.

They have purchased the Morris Mims place and construction will start immediately on the project. The lot was donated by two members of the church, another donated the foundation, another the framing, and so on, until a full parsonage had been contributed. The only thing that is yet to be donated is the roof and members of the church are expecting this to be contributed any day now.

Local carpenters have guaranteed the building of the new parsonage and the painting and floor finishing has been arranged for the same way. Local plumbers have arranged to do the plumbing.

Rev. Homer Carroll is the new pastor at Concord Church and will be first to occupy the new residence.

CHANGE OF OWNERSHIP AT THORSBY LUMBER MILL

Guy M. Higgins of Clanton has become the owner of the former John M. Higgins Lumber Comgpany at Thorsby, Alabama. The name of the business has been changed to Guy M. Higgins Lumber Company.

This mill has been operating since 1940 at its present site.

DAV'S WILL MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

Chilton County Chapter No. 33 of the Disabled American Veterans will hold a special meeting Friday night, April 10th, at 7:30, upstairs over the Triple A Cafe.

This is a very important meeting. Final plans will be made for the beginning of the building of the Veterans Home. Everyone is urged to be present.

Tuscaloosa Pilots To Entertain State Pilot Convention

FIVE CLANTON MEMBERS PLANING TO ATTEND

Convention fever, not Spring fever, has attacked members of the Tuscaloosa Pilot Club. Approximately 300 delegates and visitors from 30 Alabama cities will converge on Tuscaloosa April 10-11-12 for the Annual Spring Convention of District Two of Pilot Inferna tional.

Mrs. Helen Talmadge of Selma District Governor, was a recent visitor to Tuscaloosa to confer with Dr. S. Neige Todhunter, convention chairman, and other members of the local club. Plans are complete for a full program of instruction and entertainment for the three-day session.

All business mettings and social events will be held on the campus of the University of Alabama with Doster Hall as convention headquarters. Registration will begin Friday afternoon. A cruise up the Black Warrior River with supper aboard the E-Z Kraft has been arranged for early arrivals through the courtesy of the Gulf States Paper Corporation for Friday evening.

An informal reception with members of the Demopolis Pilot Club in charge will take place during intermission at the Saturday morning business session. The election of new officers will also take place Saturday.

Guided tours of the campus and historic spots of the Druid City have been arranged for Saturday afternoon. A special attraction will be the Open House at the University School of Nursing when honor guests will be the students who have been awarded Pilot Scholarships. Each fall since the collegiate School of Nursing opened Alabama Pilots have made available a $500 gift scholarship in honor of Miss Pearl Sparks, author of the Pilot Code of Ethics.

Highlight of the day's events will be a banquet in Tutwiler Hall Saturday evening at which time Miss Mauring Sublett, Dean of Women at Florence State Teachers College, will preside. Principal speaker for the occasion will be Dr. James I. Brakefield, Director of Public Relations of the Liberty National Life Insurance Company, of Birmingham. Following the banquet the Pilot Club of Selma will entertain with an elaborate reception honoring the District Governor, Mrs. Talmadge.

Installation of newly elected officers for 1953-1954 will be conducted by Mrs. Anne Davis, Director of Pilot International, on Sunday morning. Mrs. Davis, a member of the Opelika Club, is widely known in radio work and is a member of the American Women Broadcasters Association. She has served 3 years as a member of the Board of Directors of Pilot International and represented the organization at Charter Night of the London, England club. Mrs. Davis organized the Pilot Good Will Tours of Europe which were sponsored the past two years by this International organization.

Other distinguished visitors will include Miss Billy Russell of Houston, Texas, official representative of the Executive Committee of Pilot International. Miss Russell, a brilliant attorney and a dynamic speaker, is at present Treasurer of Pilot International.

Miss Mary Reynolds, Budget director in the Finance Office at Fort Benning, Columbus, Georgia, and Chairman of the Coordinating Committee of Pilot International, will be among the many out-of-state guests who are to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Talmadge, District Governor, is Director of the Dallas County Tuberculosis Association. She will be assisted during this convention by Mrs. Billy Ruth Stowe, Opelika, lieutenant governor; Mrs. Louise McDonald, Mobile, district treasurer; and Miss Frances Acker, Selma, district secretary.

The Pilot Club of Tuscaloosa was organized in March 1922 and is 4th oldest club in Pilot International. The first club, Macon, Ga., was chartered in October 1921 and was closely followed by Montgomery, Alabama, then Selma and Tuscaloosa, to form the nucleus of the present organization which numbers over 8000 members in 6 countries of the world.

Miss Marine Brown, president of the Tuscaloosa Club, Dr. Margaret Quayle, president-elect, and Miss Ruby Neighbors, convention co-chairman, will be assisted by all members of the local group in welcoming the representatives of this outstanding civic and service organization to Tuscaloosa.

Members of the Pilot Club of Clanton who will attend the Convention are Mrs. Ellen Brinker, Mrs. Edna Williams, Mrs. Ruth Waters, Miss Gertrude Jones, and Miss Marguerite Perry.

Census Bureau To Ask Supplemental Income Questions

Supplemental questions on consumer income and family characteristics will be asked of a sample of Chilton-Perry area families in the Census Bureau's Current Population Survey in April, according to District Supervisor Mary G. Auburtin. The supplemental questions will be in addition to the regular employment and unemployment inquiries asked each month.

Similar supplemental questions on consumer income asked in the Current Population Survey in April of last year revealed that the average person's income was up by ten percent between 1950 and 1951. For all persons 14 years old and over receiving any money income, the average (median) income was estimated at $2,200 in 1951 as compared with $2,000 in 1950. Both farm and nonfarm residents shared in the increase in average income.

Supplemental questions on family characteristics asked in the April 1952 survey revealed that within the span of two generations, the average size of households in the United States declined to the smallest on record, from about five persons (4.93 persons per household) in 1890 to a little over three persons (3.33 persons per household) in 1952. Urban households in 1952 averaged slightly more than three persons (3.19) while rural houshold averaged nearly four persons (3.96).

On the basis of the April 1952 survey, the Census Bureau estimates a total of 45.5 million households and a combined population of a little more than 151.5 million persons living in households. Nearly seven in ten households are located in urban areas, two in ten in rural-nonfarm areas, and a fraction more than one in ten on farms.

The Current Population Survey will be conducted locally and in 67 other areas of the country during the week of April 12. Supervisor Auburtin emphasized that all information about individuals furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to obtain summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages for various groups in the population and not to show information for particular families or individuals. The information given cannot be furnished to any other Government agency and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation, or regulation.

Telephone Service Restored Between U. S. And Seoul

Telephone service between the U. S. and Seoul, Korea, was restored recently for the first time since the outbreak of the Korean War.

Service from the U. S. to Seoul is limited to calls from government, military and press personnel, but soldiers can make personal calls to this country from Korea. Rates are $12 for three minutes on weekdays and $9 on Sunday.

Service Stations Will Distribute "Gas Tax Dollars" In Alabama

If your service station dealer hands you a dollar bill the next time you buy gasoline, look twice before you try to spend it.

For W. G. Teal, chairman of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee, has announced plans for a campaign to impress on motorists the hidden burden of the gasoline tax. So what you receive may be a "Gas Tax Dollar."

Teal said the "Gas Tax Dollar," a small handout, printed in green about the size and shape of a dollar, has added to it a red flap which shows the gas tax paid by motorists in Alabama amounts to 38 cents on each dollar's worth of gasoline.

"You pay $1.38 for a dollar's worth of baseline because state and federal taxes add 38 cents," he said, explaining the organization decided to distribute these "Gas Tax Dollars" because surveys show few people realize how quickly the 8 cents combined state and federal tax on each gallon adds up on the average purchase. In addition more than 180 cities and 10 counties also tax gasoline.

"The gasoline tax is perhaps the best-hidden tax there is because it's added right in on the automatic computing pumps and people pay it right along with the price of the gasoline," he said

"If the motorist does know there is a gasoline tax, he thinks of it in terms of a few pennies per gallon—not realizing these pennies add up pretty smartly on the average purchase at the pump."

JEMISON F.H.A. EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MET

The Jemison F.H.A. Executive Committee met March 31 and nominate officers for the County Council.

This year we had the privilege to elect the president and secretary. For President, Janice Miller was elected; for Secretary, June Northcutt. — Reporter.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

By more than a two to one vote, the House recently passed a bill which, if finally enacted into law, will probably settle the dispute over who owns title to the submerged coastal lands. The Senate is now debating a bill dealing with the same subject and may have voted on it by the time this column is published.

Along with the majority of the House and the majority of the Alabama members of Congress, I voted in favor of reaffirming state ownership of the offshore lands. This is the third time the House of Representatives has passed similar bills, but final enactment of the previous bills was prevented by President Truman's veto.

The bill just passed by the House would grant to the states along our coastline a clear title to these submerged coastal lands out to their historic boundaries. Land beyond that limit would go to the federal government. Alabama, of course, will be affected by a final passage of this legislation and, like most of the other coastal states, its historic sea boundary is three miles out from the point where the tides ebb at low tide. Only a few of the states came into the Union with their boundaries slightly further out to sea.

The states have always claimed ownership to this submerged land, and this ownership was never seriously questioned until 1936 when the Secretary of the Interior reversed all previous court decisions and legal opinions, including his own, to hold that these lands and newly discovered oil thereon should belong to the federal government. Since 1947 the Supreme Court has ruled three times that the federal government has paramount rights to the offshore lands. It might be pointed out, however, that these decisions were not unanimous and prior to 1947, the Supreme Court had ruled, in effect, that the states held title to these submerged lands. Lower federal courts and state courts had made the same decision some 244 times before an adverse decision was made by the Supreme Court six years ago.

Over a period of years, many decisions of the Supreme Court have been legislated out of existence by Congress, whose members are elected representatives of the people. This will probably be the case in this controversy. Of course, the final action by Congress on the submerged lands issue will be subject to review by the courts.

State ownership of these submerged lands to their historic boundaries will not in any way interfere with the federal government's power to provide police or naval protection to the shores of our country. It will not interfere either with federal regulation of navigation on the coastline.

Contrary to the ideas of many people, passage of this bill will give the federal government title to the largest part of the submerged land that lies between the coast and the edge of the continental shelf. It is estimated that nine-tenths of the area covered by this measure will go to the United States, while only one-tenth will be owned by the coastal states. Experts estimate about 26,000 square miles will belong to the coastal states, while about 237,000 square miles are located in the continental shelf beyond the state's historic boundaries and will be owned by the federal government.

As long as this controversy remains unsettled, the further development of minerals in these submerged lands will be virtually at a standstill. No department of the federal government has any authority under existing law to develop this area, and private development will not go forward as long as title is disputed. In the meantime, we need oil for national defense and security. We cannot afford to let these submerged lands lie idle any longer.

The bill which passed the House settles the title controversy by reaffirming the ownership of the coastal states to submerged lands within their historic boundaries and giving title to the federal government to that portion lying between the historic boundaries and the edge of the continental shelf.

To Give Radio Talks—

While Congress is recessed for a short Easter vacation, I plan to be in the District to give several radio talks. These broadcasts will be informal reports dealing with my activities as your representative and with the major issues which have come before the House of Representatives this year.

Since I will be in Alabama for only a few days and it will be impossible for me to cover thoroughly all eight counties of the Sixth District in such a short period of time, I feel the best way to reach the greatest number of people is through the medium of radio.

On Thursday, April 9th, my report will be broadcast over WTBC-AM and FM in Tuscaloosa at 11:30 a.m. At 1:45 p.m. the same day, I will speak over Tuscaloosa stations WJRD and WNPT. I plan to be in Marion on April 10 and will speak over station WJAM beginning at 10:45 a.m. That afternoon at 5:30 p.m. my report will be given over radio station WKLF in Clanton.

I have accepted an invitation to speak at the dedication ceremonies for McKenzie Courts, a new housing project in Tuscaloosa, on April 12.

Although I shall be in Alabama during the week April 6-12, my Washington office will remain open throughout that period. Any mail for me should be sent to that office where it will be held until my return. Since I will be in the District, there will be no regular column in the papers on April 15 or 16, but my weekly report will be resumed the following week.

MONDAY HOLIDAYS

The World Calendar Association reports that bills are being introduced in thirty-four State legislatures to change the observance of several legal holidays so that they will always fall on Mondays. The idea is to utilize holidays to give workers long weekends by combining the Monday holiday with the normal Sunday holiday.

From a business standpoint, especially the standpoint of the large business man, the proposal is attractive since it will eliminate some midweek holidays, which are admittedly a major expense involving shutting down and reopening again in midweek. It has been estimated that the annual production loss, resulting from midweek holidays, amounts to several billions of dollars annually, although we know of no generally accepted figure.

Most of the changes proposed would establish four stable Monday holidays. They would be "President's Day," which would fall on the third Monday in February, Memorial Day, which would fall on the last Monday in May, Independence Day, which would fall on the first Monday in July, and Thanksgiving Day, which would fall on the fourth Monday in November. Thus the traditional Thursday Thanksgiving holiday would be changed to Monday under this program.

Calendar reformers admit that this proposal is only the beginning of their efforts to change other features of the calendar which they consider completely outmoded. We believe that, from a business standpoint, the four Monday holidays might be desirable, although we are inclined to feel that many workers like to see Thanksgiving Day fall on Thursday, and welcome a break in the week when a holiday falls in midweek. Whether the calendar reformers can get the most of the states to adopt their plan before opposition develops to it seems to be the question.

Farmers Asked To Again Try For Big Corn Yield

Auburn, Ala.—Last summer's drouth didn't wither the hopes for an all-out more-corn-per-acre campaign over Alabama this year.

The campaign to encourage better practices for higher production brought corn yields from an average of 13 bushels per acre in 1946, the year the program started, up to 22 bushels in 1951. Last year's yield was a disasterous 10 bushels per acre because of the drouth.

Farmers would be wise to make every effort to try for big yields again this year. It is hoped that the more-corn-per-acre campaign will increase the state corn yield to about 30 bushels per acre within a very few years.

Rain Need Not Cause Damage To Farms

Auburn, Ala.—Like many of Nature's blessings, rain is not always as beneficial as it might be. Often it destroys that which it might help. It washes away crops or the soil around root systems, starts sheet and gulley erosion, silts streams, and clogs rivers.

Yet with proper land use and management and the right tools, farmers can pretty well prevent the destroying effects of rain. This means keeping the rain on the slopes where it falls with terraces, contour cultivation, sod farming, grassed waterways and farm ponds.

When fruit juice is spilled on table linen, sprinkle the spot at once with salt to prevent a permanent stain.

Sparkman Backs Farm Export Plan

Senator John Sparkman, Alabama, has joined a group of Senators, mostly from the South, in a plan aimed at greatly increasing our farm exports.

Sparkman explained that the plan calls for the establishment of an International Food Reserve, to be administered through the United Nations. He said that details would be worked out by our representative in the U. N. Sparkman stated that the plan is expected to be self-supporting and could even make possible a considerable reduction in our program of direct aid to friendly foreign countries.

Senator Sparkman said that in addition to increasing farm exports, the International Food Reserve plan would:

1. Help to assure the farmer a fair price for the product and thus maintain a stable agricultural production in the United States.

"A stable and expanding production is necessary," Sparkman said, "to meet the future needs of our own expanding population. By 1975 it is estimated that there will be 35,000,000 more people in the United States than shown by the 1950 census. Even with present standards of living, this increase in population would require a 25 percent increase in food production. Thus we cannot afford to permit temporary surpluses to exert ruinous effects on farm prices and farm incomes and destroy investments made in soil conservation, farm machinery, etc."

2. Help to make for a stable economic condition.

Sparkman said, "25,000,000 of our people, or more than 40 percent of all our workers, are directly or indirectly dependent upon agriculture for their jobs. A depression in farming is almost certain to bring about a depression in business and industry."

3. Help in the fight against communism and contribute to world peace by encouraging widespread economic development, expanded trade, and better living conditions and by strengthening friendly relations among participating countries.

Sparkman said that cotton, corn, wheat, and peanuts are among the crops included in the plan.

He said that it would tie in with Secretary Benson's recent announcement that he would make special efforts to find foreign markets for our surplus farm goods. Sparkman said he approved of this goal of the Secretary and also of his statement that he wanted to expand our research program to find wider uses for and more economical production of our farm products. He added, "These are important parts of what must be a more complete program of farm aid."

Other Senators working with Sparkman on the plan include Hill, Alabama; Eastland, Mississippi; Young, North Dakota; Mundt, S. Dakota; McClellan and Fulbright, Arkansas; Hoey, North Carolina; and Maybank, South Carolina.

Beef To Fit Budget Heartens Housewife

Auburn, Ala.—Beef that fits the budget is not an unheard of thing these days.

Prices on the retail meat counter are lower now than they have been in some time and housewives can make use of the many beef cuts in adding main dish elegance to their meals.

There are between 30 and 40 different cuts of beef that could be sold at meat counters. While all of these cuts are not always available at one store, there is usually a wide choice from which to select.

The less popular cuts from lower grade beef animals have declined in price even more than the more choice pieces, but all are price levels lower than at this time a year ago.

The lower grade meats are just as nutritious as those with better eatings and can be used to advantage by the meal planner. For example, the flank steak is one of the less tender cuts. It is an oval shaped, boneless steak with muscles running lengthwise. For this reason it is usually scored before cooking. This cut, along with other less tender ones, requires moist heat when cooking. A greater length of time is also necessary for cooking the tougher meat pieces, but the smart housewife will give these meats the added attention needed and provide her family with tastier meals at less money.

Know Your Schools

by W. J. Terry
STATE SUPERINTENDENT

The Alabama Legislature of 1919 enacted a law that reads, "Every public school and private or parochial school shall carry out a system of physical education, the character of which shall conform to the program or course outlined by the State Department of Education." This law is still in effect.

The Alabama State Board of Education, on June 19, 1925, made the following regulation: "After July 1, 1928, NO applicant may receive, renew, or extend a teacher's certificate who does not present satisfactory evidence of having completed [illegible] approved course [illegible] semester hours of physical and health education in an approved institution." This requirement was deemed necessary because of the fact that physical and health education is a required subject in the Course of Study.

The ALABAMA COURSE OF STUDY AND GUIDE FOR TEACHERS, GRADES 1-12, 1950, makes provisions for adequate physical education, health education, and recreation for all boys and girls from grades one through twelve.

The American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, Department of the National Education Association, believes that: "Individuals who possess vigor, strength, and character are the greatest resources of a nation and are indispensable in times of emergency. Health, physical education, and recreation contribute to the total fitness of all citizens who in their accumulated strength guarantee the SECURITY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA."

The State Department of Education promotes this program of physical education, health and recreation through helping to establish sound principles, policies, and standards that should govern the development of programs of physical education, health, and recreation from the simplest to the most highly organized schools of the state. It helps to make each school a vital center for developing fitness—physical, social, emotional, mental—for children, youth, and adults.

Broken Eggs Can Cut Profits From Flocks

Auburn, Ala.—Breakage of eggs in the nest and while handling is expensive.

As much as $250 to $300 worth of eggs per year is being lost by many commercial and hatching egg producers in Alabama, it was reported here this week.

The danger from this type of loss becomes greater as the weather becomes warmer. Care in handling eggs during the next few months will help reduce this loss a great deal.

Here are a few observations made as to how some poultrymen are reducing egg breakage. They provide one nest or one square foot of community nests for each five layers, keep nests filled with clean bedding, use plastic or rubber covered wire baskets to gather eggs, avoid frightening birds on nests when gathering eggs, use care in collecting eggs and carrying baskets, collect eggs three or more times a day, keep eggs level in basket, avoid filling baskets too full, pack extra large eggs separately, and use only strong cases, fillers, and flats.

Better Check Trees For Insect Damage

Auburn, Ala.—Alabama farmers need to keep a sharp lookout now for southern pine beetle damage to trees that are next to burned areas.

Partly burned trees are a prime target for the insects because the wood becomes sour in spring. After working on damaged trees, the borer is ready to move on to unburned stands of timber. In these, of course, the pest can run up a big bill for the timber owners.

The signs of the beetles are those small patches of pitch on the bark, resin flowing down the tree, and sawdust around the tree's base.

The infested trees should be removed immediately and either used or destroyed.

A card table under the ironing board will keep long pieces from falling to the floor.

"Crown or Crown Extra?"

YOUR STANDARD OIL DEALER offers you your choice of two great gasolines — CROWN gasoline, and CROWN EXTRA, a premium grade. He does this because one gasoline cannot provide maximum economy and top performance for all cars.

New cars with high-compression ratios need a premium gasoline, with an extra high anti-knock rating, for top performance. These cars should use the new, improved CROWN EXTRA gasoline.

Many of the older cars will give entirely satisfactory performance on Standard Oil's popular regular-grade motor fuel — CROWN gasoline.

Which should you use? Why not try both — and let your car decide! Both of these gasolines are the leaders in their respective fields in the area served by Standard Oil dealers.

WHY NOT LET YOUR CAR DECIDE?

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

FAINTING

When a person falls into what is called a simple faint, a state of temporary unconsciousness is endured, which is not necessarily serious. However, when the person does not return to consciousness immediately, the condition may not be a simple faint at all but one of the symptoms associated with many diseases, such as diabetes, uremia, meningitis or brain abscess.

Simple fainting is caused by lack of blood in the brain brought about by inadequate distribution of the blood. A feeling of weakness, a blurring of vision, a failure of circulation so that the face becomes pale, and the presence of cold perspiration are symptoms, appearing either singly or collectively, that precede a fainting spell. There may be dizziness and a feeling of lightheadedness.

The victim of a faint should be kept lying down. If this is not possible, he should sit down, lowering his head between his knees. However, if the face seems to be extremely flushed, it may be wiser to keep the head raised.

Inhalation of smelling salts, the application of cold water, or the drinking of a half teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in water are all of benefit to the victim of a simple faint because of their stimulating effect.

The person should be kept [illegible] until he has fully recovered a feeling of normal well-being. If the person does not regain consciousness immediately, or appears to fall into another faint, a physician should be summoned at once.

Simple fainting is associated only with a fleeting or temporary state of unconsciousness. If the condition is prolonged, more serious involvement can be suspected.

A New Angle for Anglers

The Rod and Gun Club met the other night and the chief topic was the prizes for members during the coming season.

"Squint Miller" got the floor and pulled a surprise. He said, "Aren't we awarding prizes to the wrong people? We ought to give them to the farmers who let us fish on their property!"

Well, that caused much comment and when "Easy" Peterson got the floor he made a motion: "I move when prizes are awarded to members, twice that prize go to the farmer on whose land the fish was caught!" The motion was passed—unanimously.

From where I sit, we can all be proud of the way the Rod and Gun Club acted. Cooperation always makes things pleasanter all-around. The same principle is followed in the Self-Regulation program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. Beer retailers cooperate in keeping their places clean and orderly. The "prize" they get is community good will.

They'll Try Again

For More Corn This Year Follow These 8 Big Steps

THE corn talk that's going on in all corners of the state certainly prove that farmers are not discouraged by the low corn yields made last year. They are going to try to beat the all-time high yield for Alabama which was 21.5 bushels per acre in 1950.

If you are among the farmers determined to help set this record, here are some points you will want to follow in order to raise that yield, says D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist.

1. Plant corn on land to which it is adapted.
2. Prepare a good seedbed.
3. Use good seed.
4. Plant enough seed.
5. Plant on time.
6. Fertilize well.
7. Space according to variety and fertilizer used.
8. Cultivate early and shallow and lay-by early.

Don't overlook the importance of a good seedbed. It often determines the kind of stand you get. Break the land early and harrow enough to break up clods. Allow the seedbed to be settled by rain if possible before planting.

The next step is to get good seed, which means a recommended hybrid. Be sure the germination is 90 per cent or better. You should contact your county agent and get the recommended hybrids for your locality.

If you want to have a big yield, do not spare the seed. Plant enough to produce a good stand. This means a minimum of one gallon per acre. Of course, the amount of seed needed will vary with the size of kernels and the spacing in the drill.

The corn crop will need lots of water about tasseling time, so plant with this in mind. Weather records for the past 50 years show that good rains usually come in early July. This means most varieties should be planted in late April or early May in order to "hit" these rains.

Harbor reminds you that tests by farmers and experiment stations prove corn needs lots of fertilizer, particularly nitrogen. If corn does not follow a winter legume, in most parts of the state you should apply 60 to 90 pounds of nitrogen, 20 to 30 pound P_2O_5, and 20 to 30 pounds of K_2O per acre. This may be supplied by using (1) 300 pounds of 8-8-8 or 4-10-7 per acre, or (2) 250 pounds of 4-12-12 ahead of planting plus a side-dessing, at the second cultivation, of 50 to 75 pounds of extra nitrogen. To supply 50 to 75 pounds of nitrogen you should side dress with 300 to 500 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or 150 to 250 pounds of ammonium nitrate. Other sources of nitrogen may be used to supply an equivalent amount.

Where corn is to follow a good crop of win-

Be Prepared

Cotton Insects Are Still Around

By W. A. RUFFIN
API Extension Entomologist

JUST because boll weevils have been easy on cotton farmers for the past two years doesn't mean they aren't planning a knock-out blow this summer.

Evidence is that there will be a thriving population of weevils in cotton fields when the growing season starts. Above the average number of weevils went into winter quarters in good condition. Tests made by the API Experiment Station showed as many as 43,000 on some acres—the average per acre was 12,000.

The weather, too, has been working for the weevil. It has been ideal during the hibernation period. If we should have a wet cotton growing season this year, the chances of a heavy weevil infestation are very good.

Besides the boll weevil, other cotton insects are to be considered. An unusual population of bollworms last summer points up to the fact that this insect will give trouble this year. Aphids and other cotton pests will likely be present in their usual numbers.

Therefore, it appears that farmers would be wise to plan their operations in advance and equip themselves with poison and machines to be ready for the battle with the bugs.

Insecticides that are effective in the control of cotton pests are cheaper now than they have been in the past. So it seems like a good time to buy at least one-half of the amount of poison needed for a good control program this summer.

Contact your county agent about the kinds of poison to use.

Don't Neglect Sericea

BE sure you get the best results with your sericea this season. Here's how:

Start grazing stands one year old or older when the plants are four to six inches high. This is important because livestock will not graze the plants after they get big and woody.

After grazing has been started, run enough animals on the area to keep the plants grazed fairly close to the ground. This will keep them tender and the cows will like them better.

If you are planning to save sericea hay, cut it when the plants are about six inches high.

An application of fertilizer should be put on the sericea if it has not already been done. And remember to take good care of the plants since most fields were grazed pretty hard last year.

The national spring pig crop was officially estimated to be the lowest in 15 years. Lower feed cost prospects coupled with reduced hog numbers should favor swine growers in the months ahead. The experts say the increase in beef supplies will be as great as is the decrease in pork and that both will be competing for the consumer's dollar. Already the pig market has jumped from $3 to $13 in places. It's a sure thing that if the normal corn crop is made, the demand for pigs in Alabama will exceed the supply. Saving every spring pig possible will pay.

Plan To Rest Permanent Pastures During Hot Dry Periods In Summer

DON'T be caught short of grazing this summer. It is not safe to depend on the permanent pasture to furnish enough feed for your livestock during the hot dry months.

Just to play the game safe plant some annual crops this spring for temporary grazing. This is especially important if you are getting started in a new pasture program, as overgrazing of newly established pastures is especially harmful to them in dry weather.

If you are a hog grower or a dairyman, you should plant Sudan grass, cattail millet, and Otootan soybeans. These crops will provide good dry weather grazing for your animals.

Other plants which furnish good grazing during the summer are Kobe, Korean, and Common lespedeza. Land planted to these crops can be turned in time to get winter grazing crops planted this fall.

4-H'ERS BOOST COOPERATIVES—The American Institute of Cooperation recently awarded a plaque to the 4-H Club council of Conecuh County in recognition of the educational program which its members conducted on the advantages of cooperatives. The 4-H'ers in this South Alabama county did a good job pointing out to farmers and others what cooperatives are, what they do, and how they operate. A. G. Bolton, center, manager of the Conecuh County Exchange, presents the plaque to Robert Smith, right, president of the Conecuh County council, as Assistant County Agent Ray Helms looks on.

Along the Way with

P. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, A.P.I. EXTENSION SERVICE

COTTON is in another squeeze. A good crop in 1953 means, very likely, marketing quotas (acreage allotments) in 1954.

Good crops the last two years and a reduction in exports combine to make the supply situation above current needs. It is enough to make marketing quotas mandatory under existing federal laws.

It's possible, of course, for exports to increase and other things to happen which will reduce the supply of cotton by the end of this year eliminating the need for acreage allotments in 1954. But this is doubtful.

Any farmer can plant in 1953 as many acres in cotton as he chooses, but growers know what's ahead of them. Secretary of Agriculture Benson says that we need a production of 12 to 12.5 million bales in 1953.

To hold the total crop down to this amount, the acreage with average yields should be reduced 18 per cent from 1952. To make a reduction of 18 per cent, the average farmer would plant this year about 5 acres where he planted 6 acres last year.

But land is not the only factor in cotton production. Good cultivation practices are most important. This includes good seed, enough fertilizer, thorough preparation of the soil, proper cultivation, and effective insect control. In brief, it means good farming which is sound and wise any year.

An important fact about the 1953 acreage is that it will not figure in acreage allotments next year. Secretary Benson made this clear, as follows:

"The acreage of cotton planted in a state or county in 1953 will not affect the size of that state or county acreage allotment in 1954 if the provisions of law remain as provided in present legislation.

"Since the vast majority of individual farm allotments, under present provisions of law, are controlled by the cropland on the farm and a uniform county percentage factor, the 1953 farm cotton acreage will not affect the 1954 farm allotment on most farms."

Mr. Benson's statement on cotton is in line with recommendations made to him by his Cotton Advisory Committee, of which President Walter L. Randolph of the Alabama Farm Bureau is a member. This committee met in Washington, studied cotton from every angle at home and abroad, and made sound recommendations.

They urged that all steps possible be taken for expanding exports, realizing that a reduction in exports is causing much of our current supply trouble.

Farmers who reduce their cotton acreage must consider what to do with land out of cotton. One good use is to plant it to corn, provided it's good land for corn. This statement is made with full memory of two short corn crops due to unfavorable weather the last two years. But I'm still optimistic about corn in Alabama.

Normally we should produce good corn in Alabama, provided it is planted properly at the right time, including good seed of a good variety and enough fertilizer.

Planting should be followed by about three very light cultivations to control grass and weeds. An application of nitrogen fertilizer as a top-dressing should pay big returns.

More corn is the key to more livestock. Since we are producing more livestock, we need to produce more corn; and it looks like 1953 is a good year to do it.

He's Happier Now

Former Garage Mechanic Now Successful Farmer

DOWN in South Monroe County a former garage mechanic says he makes a good living on his farm by working three months out of each year.

How is this possible?

Says T. H. Pickron of Uriah, "It is easy. I just take a three-shot method at success by growing pecans, crimson clover seed, and cows on the same land."

Back in 1945, Pickron decided he could live longer and be much happier on a farm than in the garage business. So he bought a 91-acre pecan orchard that was rundown and making a crop of nuts only one year out of three. His big problem was to get the orchard back in good production so he could make enough money to pay the family bills.

The first step was to stop growing row crops on the land. During his first summer on the farm, the orchard was fallowed to control weeds and that fall—and every fall since then—each acre received 1,000 pounds of 0-14-14.

In 1948, 25 acres of the orchard were planted to crimson clover. The clover did not grow too well during the first year but in the spring of 1949 Pickron harvested enough seed to finish planting his entire acreage. And in September of that year the job of planting was completed.

His luck improved with clover in 1949 and he gathered 5,000 pounds of seed for sale. But the encouraging thing about his farm operation was the response of his pecan trees to good treatment—and that year he had a fair yield of nuts.

Each year the pecans and clover continued to improve until in 1951 Pickron harvested and sold 15,000 pounds of clover seed and 34,000 pounds of pecans. That has proved to be his best year for pecan production. However, he is not discouraged because 1952 was a bad pecan year. Then, too, the trees are now bearing each season instead of one year out of three.

Last year the 91-acre orchard produced 15,000 pounds of clover seed and 22,000 pounds of pecans.

Since the clover grew so well, County Agent A. V. Culpepper advised Pickron to add another crop by grazing cows on the clover. This would make full use of all the crops being grown on the land. The steers on the clover have gained over 3,000 pounds since they were put in the orchard in January of this year.

Pickron says that last year he grossed over $100 per acre, not including the cattle gains.

What has been the secret of this success? Says Pickron it is the use of plenty of fertilizer and adding minor elements, including zinc sulphate and 50 pounds of borax in two applications. One application of 20 pounds was made in 1948 and another of 30 pounds in 1950. Of course being a good mechanic has helped because, "when any of the farm machinery breaks down I do the fixing myself."

Pickron says the biggest job he has on the farm is harvesting his crops and spreading fertilizer. That accounts for the three months of work a year.

Keep ewes with lambs on temporary grazing crops until permanent pastures are good. Give a dose of phenothiazine to ewes with lambs more than a month old. In addition, keep phenothiazine-salt mixture before sheep at all times. This mixture should consist of one part of phenothiazine to nine parts of salt by weight.

THE BREAD AND BUTTER CROP—T. H. Pickron (left) of Uriah in Monroe County tells County Agent A. V. (Shorty) Culpepper that he depends on pecans for the major source of income on his farm. Pickron has put 1,000 pounds of 0-14-14 per acre on his 91-acre orchard every fall since he purchased it in 1945. Also responsible for the good pecan yield, which he is getting each year, is the application of zinc sulphate and borax.

COW FEED IN THE ORCHARD—A mixture of rescue grass and crimson clover furnish good green grazing for the steers on the T. H. Pickron farm in Monroe County. Pickron (left) tells County Farm Agent A. V. Culpepper that no extra fertilizer is needed to grow these winter crops when the orchard receives 1,000 pounds of 0-14-14 each year.

EXTRA PROFIT—Money received from cattle sales on T. H. Pickron's farm is considered sideline income because his main crops are pecans and crimson clover seed. However, steers are bought and put on the surplus green grazing which is produced by the clover. Since January 15th his steers have gained over 3,000 pounds on the crimson clover and rescue grass.

Pet Those Pigs

Increase Growth Rate, Feed Pig Good Starter

By G. B. PHILLIPS
Specialist in Animal Industry

ALABAMA and Iowa pork producers grow the same kind of ham, pork chops, and bacon. And, in friendly competition, they sell their products to American housewives.

To give Alabama farmers an example of the information their competitors are following, the excerpts below are taken from articles by the Iowa Experiment Station staff members.

"Feeding a good pig starter will save more pigs and wean heavier pigs with fewer runts . . . A good start means a healthier, thriftier pig with less trouble from scours and other setbacks.

"Early gains are the cheapest. So feed for maximum gains during the nursing period. By feeding more palatable, highly fortified starters, your pigs will eat earlier. And you'll be getting critical nutrients and antibiotics into them at an earlier age.

"It's cheaper to feed antibiotics directly to the baby pigs than to feed larger amounts of antibiotics to the sow in order that she may transmit part of them through her milk to the pigs. With a good pig starter, you can do a better job of supplementing the sow's milk flow which reaches its peak about 3 weeks after farrowing.

"You can wean pigs earlier if they get a good starter than you can if they eat only their mother's feed. Large litters aren't handicapped so much by a milk shortage when a palatable starter is fed.

"Avoid 'bargain counter' starters. Trying to get by with cheap pig starters is poor feed-lot economy.

"Many swine producers have used only shelled or cracked corn or ground oats as pig starters. Some feed manufacturers have used too much alfalfa meal or mill by-products such as wheat middlings. These are excellent ingredients, but they lack palatability for baby pigs. The best pig starters contain large amounts of rolled oats—not a cheap feed.

"You can't afford to 'cheat' pigs during those critical first eight weeks. Demand the best pig starters that manufacturers can build. Ask first about performance, then price!

"Palatability needed: Pigs must like a feed to eat it. . . Apparently, the texture, taste, odor, freshness and nutritional adequacy of a ration influence its palatability.

"Baby pigs like sugar: Sugar is one of the most palatable ingredients that can be used in pig starters. Pigs, like people, seem to have a sweet tooth—only pigs don't have a 'figure-to-watch' problem!

"Sugar coating has been used on candies and medical pills for a good many years. But it's a 'new look' on pig starter pellets."

Irrigation for 1953 should be planned in the next 30 days. It will take some time to get equipment.

HERE'S HOW TO GET YOUR SOIL TESTED

1. If you are interested in having your soil tested at the Soil Testing Laboratory at API, you must first contact your county agent and get cartons and information for taking the samples. Your county agent will also tell you how to fill out a form that asks for the past history on the fields you wish to test.

2. The next step is to take the samples according to the instructions given by the county agent. The analysis will be worthless unless the soil sample represents the whole field.

3. Fill out the information sheet; pack the cartons, and mail both to the laboratory at Auburn.

4. Upon arrival at the laboratory, the soil is pulverized and placed in a drier to remove the moisture.

5. The sample is then analyzed to determine the pH and the available phosphorus, potash, and calcium content.

6. When the analysis is finished, the results are turned over to Dr. Clarence Wilson. He then makes his fertilizer and lime recommendations, based on the soil test results, field history supplied by you, and fertilizer needs of various crops as determined by the Experiment Station. Although the soil is not tested for nitrogen, a general recommendation for top dressing or side dressing with nitrogen is made where needed. The amount is expressed in pounds of N or nitrogen.

Beef Business Still Sound, Opinion Of Successful Growers

BEEF cattle farmers in Alabama who are raising good grade animals on home-grown feed have no intention of reducing their operation as a result of the recent price setback.

This is the opinion of Bob Farquhar, API Extension livestockman, after talking to cattlemen in all sections of the state recently. He said there is plenty of evidence that the state's livestock business will continue to increase as more pastures are built and more cattlemen from the older livestock areas continue to move into Alabama.

Farquhar explained how Alabama and other southern growers could market their cattle during the summer, prior to the heavy selling season in the Midwest. This allows producers of this area to take advantage of the higher prices of cattle during that time.

MEASURE, MIX AND BAKE—The recipe says that's all there is to the business of baking cookies. But everyone knows it takes the baker's art to do these things in the right way to make a finished product that has a fine flavor. Fay Bewley of the Evergreen City School 4-H Club has that know-how too and here she is turning out some oatmeal cookies that anyone would enjoy sampling. Fay does well with other projects in her club work, too. She was the owner of the second place winner in the Conecuh County beef calf show last year.

ALMOST AN INCH A YEAR—Pine timber grows fast in Choctaw County. A. H. Chesnut right, of the Black Creek community points out the annual growth rings to M. S. D. M. Qureshi of Pakistan. Chesnut said that he made a crop in the field where the timber is growing in 1923 after returning from World War I. Timber cut in 1949 from the five-acre tract brought $450.

A Good Crop

Trees Grow Fast In South Alabama

TREE growing is a profitable crop for farmers who do a good job of controlling fire and harvesting their timber. This statement has been proved by A. H. Chesnut of the Black Creek community in Choctaw County.

"The timber growing here is the second crop on the same land since 1923," said Chesnut as he walked across five acres of his forest land. He recalled how he had made a crop on the field after returning from World War I. The land was taken out of cultivation after that year. And in 1923 a stand of pine seedlings came up from seed which fell from nearby trees.

"The small five-acre tract had a perfect stand on it and it grew fast," said the Choctaw County farmer. "In 1949 when I decided to cut some of the logs from the area so the trees could grow faster, I was surprised when my check from the timber sale came to $450. Some of the trees had grown to be 24 inches in diameter in those 26 years.

"I left a good stand of my best quality trees, which at present would measure about 10,000 board feet per acre. From these I can cut logs again in 1959.

"The success secret of the timber business, is, without a doubt, keeping fire out of the woods and cutting on a selective basis," continued Chesnut. "A farmer should always mark the trees he intends to sell. This practice would help him get more for his timber and keep a stand on his land."

The South Alabama timber grower went on to say that he believes it pays to leave just a few more trees on the land than experts recommend. Said he, "If you do this, you have some extra insurance of a good crop coming on for the future."

He also believes the pine forests are improved when some hardwood trees are mixed in with the pines. This he thinks improves the soil condition and increases the growth rate.

In addition to the forestry land, there are on the Chesnut farm 150 acres devoted to the production of row crops and livestock.

From A Single Calf

100 Cows Trace Back To One 4-H Dairy Calf

AN almost believe-it-or-not farm item has been reported near Selma in Dallas County:

Every cow in James McCain's 60-animal purebred dairy herd is a direct descendant of a 4-H Club calf he raised back in 1928. Moreover, he has sold 40 head of other cattle that can be traced back to the same calf.

When the Dallas County farmer set his mind to grow into the dairy business, he did it up right, commented Bill Arrington, assistant county agent, in telling of the extraordinary feat. "Practically every farmer buys at least a few heifers or cows, especially if he has been in business as long as Mr. McCain," he explained.

"I know of no similar case," said Arrington.

McCain has not only done an unusual job of growing into the dairy business, he has also used the dairy herd improvement association program to keep an accurate check on the herd's production. Using these records as a guide, the dairyman has built a 30-cow beef herd by breeding first-calf heifers and undesirable older cows to beef bulls.

"I raise the milk production of my herd by eliminating offspring of poor producers and saving calves from my best cows for herd replacements," said McCain.

Grazing crops on the dairyman's farm include oats, white Dutch and crimson clover, Dallis grass, and Ala-Lu clover. McCain must have a green thumb for growing pastures, for County Agent L. C. Alsobrook said he is one of the best pasture producers in the county.

One bit of proof of this statement is a 12-acre oat field that has carried over a cow per acre since last October and still has an excess growth. In fact, the crop was over a foot tall in late February.

McCain explained that this land was fallowed last August and seeded in September after an application of 400 pounds of super phosphate per acre. In addition, a heavily fertilized corn crop that grew on the land last year failed to produce, but made more fertilizer available to the winter pasture.

To give the oats an extra boost an application of 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre was made October 15. Then rains came the following day and made the stunted plants shoot up so fast they were ready for grazing in less than two weeks.

It's little wonder that experience has convinced McCain that the most practical way to get into the livestock business is to grow into it. "By following this method you grow in experience as you increase your herd and feed crops," concluded the farmer who has spent 25 years developing his herd of purebred dairy cows.

When working around machinery or in damp locations, use a rubber-covered cord. A rubber-covered plug and socket with a protective guard should be used on a portable light, while an armored plug and connector should be used on extension cords. Makeshift extension cords of cotton-covered lamp cord with brass shell sockets are dangerous. Extension cords of either lamp cord or heater cord are easily damaged by dragging around on the floor. They not only endanger the lives of people working with them, but they may also start fires.

Since warm weather soon will be with us, allow all broilers going into houses from now throughout the summer one square foot of floor space per bird.

A BETTER STORY—James McCain (left), Dallas County dairyman, tells Bill Arrington, assistant county agent, a good story about the grazing he has had from this field of oats. But his best story is one about the 60 purebred Jerseys now on his farm near Selma being direct descendants of a 4-H Club heifer he raised in 1928.

Cotton prices are down compared to this time a year ago. They may improve some in the next few months, but no great change seems likely. With some increase in supply and a drop in exports, satisfactory income from cotton this year depends largely on how cheap you can produce it. This means good seed on well prepared and fertilized land, proper cultivation, good use of insecticides to insure high yields per acre and high return per man day.

Turkeys for fall market should be started this month. Bronze turkeys should be started 26 to 28 weeks before market time, and Beltsville White turkeys about 24 weeks before market time. Plan your marketing program for your turkeys now; put turkeys in brooder house accordingly. Turkeys can be brooded with the same type of equipment used for baby chicks.

Steps For Increased Corn Production

ter legumes (20 or more pounds of green weight per 100 square feet for vetches, Austrian peas, clover, and Caley peas or 40 or more pounds of lupines), no additional nitrogen will be needed under normal weather conditions. However, you must supply sufficient 0-16-8 or 0-14-14 to furnish the phosphate and potash the corn will need. This will be about 200 pounds of 0-16-8 or 0-14-14.

If in past years your corn has had white buds or white streaks in the leaves you probably have a zinc deficiency and you should apply 10 pounds of zinc sulphate per acre before planting.

Work of the API Agricultural Experiment Station shows where heavy rates of nitrogen are used, such as recommended above, the one-eared varieties make highest yields when spaced 12 to 18 inches in the drill in 3½-foot rows while prolific corns have yielded best at thinner spacings—18 to 24 inches in the drill.

Corn that is planted thick and fertilized heavily should not be cultivated too much. Most farmers say when these practices are followed they do not cultivate more than two to three times. Remember to plow shallow because deep plowing will cut your yield.

They Peek Into Their Future

Members of the Henley Roberts 4-H club are making plans for future income by setting out pine seedlings on their unproductive farm land. During the past four years youngsters in this Escambia County community have set out 26,000 trees which will soon bring in some extra cash. The happy 4-H'ers receiving a shipment of their trees, are left to right, front row, Buddy Ball, Bobby Franklin, Ross Copeland, Ray Franklin, Riley Elliott, James Edward Lyree; second row, Buddy Hawkins, Darryl Elliott, DeWayne Beasley, Sherlon Hawkins, James Murphy, Lee Franklin. Back row, Buck Hoomes, Joe Carl Palmer, Joelan Overstreet, Ben Lucas, Bobby Fuqua, Elton Crosby, Gerald Franklin, and Buddy Bradley.

Let's Have Fish

NOTHING will please the fisherman in the family more than to have a good fish meal—especially if he made the catch. All kinds of fish are good food, for they are rich in vitamins A and B plus some minerals. They are easy to digest and are always in season.

The delicate flavor should not be destroyed by overcooking or adding strong seasonings. Use the sauce or seasoning to bring out the good taste instead of overpowering it. Remember the tender protein needs little cooking so don't overdo it.

To preserve flavor, cook at moderate temperatures (350-375 degrees) and remove when the flesh begins to separate from the bones.

For stuffed baked fish try this recipe:

2 c. toasted crumbs
2 t. lemon juice
¼ c. chopped parsley
1 T. minced onion
1 t. salt
⅛ t. pepper
¼ c. butter

Combine and use for stuffing fish or fish fillets. About 2 cups of stuffing are enough for a ¾-pound fish or 6 fish fillets.

As clover and alfalfa pastures become lush, watch the ewe flock for bloat. Sheep are very susceptible to this condition; a good many ewes may be lost if conditions become right for bloat.

Vaccinate all pullets on the farm for Newcastle disease and fowlpox when they are 10 to 12 weeks old. Don't take a chance on loss of production from these diseases this fall by neglecting this important job. If birds are in top condition, they can be vaccinated for Newcastle and fowlpox at the same time. However, it is safer to vaccinate for one of these diseases and then wait two weeks and vaccinate for the other.

Pen Feathers

by John Weeks

DO low egg prices in the spring and summer give you the laying house blues? Do you have the problem of getting the old hens to lay enough eggs to pay their feed bill and make enough profit to raise the new pullet crop?

If you have such problems, John Weeks, API Extension poultry specialist, says here are some tips which should help to cheer you up. The specialist says follow these practices and get a high percentage of your hens to lay.

1. Adequate feed. Don't try to cut costs by skimping on the mash. Keep the proper feed before your birds at all times so they can eat any time of the day.

2. Keep them eating. As hot weather comes, the birds may become sluggish and lazy causing a poor appetite. Watch them carefully and if this happens, stimulate feed intake by feeding a limited amount of pellets or wet mash at noon—about what the birds will clean up in 15 to 20 minutes. The more they eat the more they will lay and more money will be made on egg production. Remember that when this practice is started, it is hard to stop without throwing the birds out of production.

3. Provide fresh water. Every poultryman knows the necessity of plenty of cool, clean water. Keep the water cool by protecting pipes from the sun.

4. Control parasites. Lice, mites, and worms sap the strength of your layers and absorb food and energy needed to produce eggs. Control mites by keeping the house clean and the roost and nests sprayed or painted with some kind of oil product. There are several effective treatments for lice. A good one is two pounds of agricultural sulphur dusted in the litter for each 100 square feet of floor space. Prevent worms by keeping the poultry areas and houses clean and growing pullets on clean ground. Give all pullets a worm treatment one month before they are put in the laying house. Spray house with DDT or other residual sprays to control mosquitoes.

5. Cull the quitters. When a hen stops laying in the spring and summer and goes into a molt, she usually is through for a long time. Such birds should be removed from the laying house. Watch for those yellow legs and beaks and shriveled combs. They indicate that the old hen is loafing.

6. Keep quarters clean and comfortable. Provide a comfortable place for the hen to live. Keep the houses dry and well ventilated. Put the waterers on racks and don't let wet spots develop around them. Provide a good litter at least eight inches deep. Feed some of the grain in the litter so that the hens will keep it worked and stirred well. Open all ventilators. Be sure house is kept as cool as possible.

7. Good management. Study your management system to see that you are doing the best job possible. Provide plenty of nests, feeders, roosts, and other equipment of the proper kind. Provide a special hopper of oyster shell and grit.

(Ask your county agent for Extension Circular No. 424 "More Profit from Your Pullet Laying Flock.")

This Month on the Farm

by API EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

MILK production of all cows on Dairy Herd Improvement Association test in Alabama last year averaged 5,128 pounds per cow compared to 4,648 pounds per cow the year before.

* * *

SOUTHERN pine beetles often cause considerable damage during dry weather in late spring. This is especially true following spring forest fires. Check for insect attack and promptly apply control measures. Cut and utilize dead and dying trees before decay makes them unfit for use.

* * *

BE ready to combat garden insects and diseases before they get a head start. The Auburn-approved general purpose garden dust will control the more common garden pests. Apply once a week and thoroughly cover plants, both top and bottom sides of leaves. A fine dust which envelops the entire plant like a fog will be more effective than a lot of dust applied only on top of plants.

* * *

DON'T overgraze permanent pastures. Let white clover have a chance to make seed, especially in the southern part of the state.

* * *

SINCE we usually have very little hay-curing weather in April, it may pay to graze the early spring growth of alfalfa. Do not turn hungry cows on alfalfa and do not graze the plants when they are wet. These precautions will help prevent bloat.

* * *

LOCATE a supply of grain sorghum seed so you will be ready when planting time comes in June. This crop really paid off for many farmers when the drouth was so severe last summer. More of it is needed.

* * *

EVERY possible effort should be made to save seed of white clover, crimson clover, bur clover, subterranean clover, vetch, Caley peas, fescue grass, rescue grass, orchard grass, ryegrass, and small grains. Do a good job of processing and packing so that Alabama-grown seed will have the finest possible reputation in the trade.

* * *

APRIL is an important month for fishpond fertilization. As bluegills form eggs for their spawning beds during May and June abundant food is needed to insure a good hatch of these fish. Proper fertilizer applications will increase the amount of bluegill food in the water. The standard rate of application is 100 pounds of 6-8-4 plus five pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre of water. Applications should be made every three to four weeks thoroughout the summer through October or whenever the hand can be seen clearly at elbow length.

* * *

A patch of ripe oats coming on in the next few weeks will be excellent for sows and pigs to run on until extra early hybrid corn is ready for hogging. Even though oats have too much fiber to be the sole grain feed for fattening pigs, they are tops for growing pigs and brood sows when they comprise about one-third of the grain ration.

To Improve Your Herd

Raise Vigorous Calves

ARE you going to have the kind of dairy herd in the future that you have dreamed about? If you are careful in selecting and raising your dairy calves you are very likely to be satisfied with the cows they develop into. On the other hand, if you do a poor job of selecting the calves and let them "raise themselves," you are likely to be disappointed with the results and, what's worse, you may soon be out of the dairy business, says John Parish, API Extension dairyman.

Parrish outlines below a method which will give you good results in the calf raising business.

The first thing to do is see that the calf is born in a clean place free of both diseases and parasites. It is well to have the cow up so you can disinfect the calf's naval cord and see that it nurses soon after birth. It will then be sure to get the colostrum which is high in vitamin A and other natural antibiotics and which acts as a laxative to clean the young calf's digestive tract.

The specialist says a healthy way to raise dairy calves is to put them in a portable pen within 24 hours after birth. (This pen is 5 by 10 feet and is 36 inches high.) Place the pen at the foot of a well drained area and move up the hill 10 feet every seven days. This will help keep the calf from getting infested with coccidiosis or internal parasites.

The Cedar Crest Jersey Farm at Faunsdale has lost no calves since they started using this system three years ago. And W. L. Howell in DeKalb County has used this plan very successfully. Prior to the time he started using portable pens, he was losing over 50 per cent of his calves.

In 1952 the portable pen system was used with success in 39 counties where a total of 3,440 calves were raised in them.

Of course, if you have a successful plan for raising calves that is working, you may not want to adopt this plan.

The two most common feeding systems for dairy calves is whole milk and milk substitute.

If the whole milk method is used, Jersey calves should have from five to six pounds per day—weak animals being fed three times daily. Larger calves such as Holsteins, should have more milk. A good rule to follow is to feed one pound of milk for each 12 pounds of body weight.

In many instances it is wise to dilute the milk with water, using two parts milk and one part water, until the calf's stomach is adjusted. All liquid fed to calves should be 100 degrees F. in temperature.

SALVAGING SWAMPLAND—Joe Thompson (right), Tallapoosa County dairyman of the Daviston community, watches as John Hinson, assistant county agent, places dynamite in the process of ditching a swampland caused by overflow from a pond. When this area was drained with a 300-foot ditch, the swamp disappeared and the land can become a valuable grazing area.

And, remember, it is better to underfeed calves than to feed them too much.

If the whole milk method of raising calves is followed, they should get milk until they are four to five months of age. The calves are then put on pasture and a home grain mixture made up of 40 pounds of ground corn, 40 pounds of ground oats, 20 pounds of cottonseed meal, and one pound of salt. The grain feeding should be continued until the calf is at least one year old.

If you use the milk substitute method, Parrish says you should feed the calves whole milk until they are about six weeks old then switch over to the substitute you have selected. This feed should be continued until the calves are at least four months old. They can then be switched to the grain mixture given above.

Other management points to keep in mind are proper identification, removal of extra teats and dehorning.

THEY DID THE BEST—In a county-wide contest sponsored by the Tuscaloosa County Farm Bureau the boys' Sr. 4-H club in Montgomery School has been named the winner. For their efforts, the club is receiving a banner and a check for $25. Shown, left to right, making the award is J. L. Harper, president of the Tuscaloosa County Farm Bureau; T. D. Humphries, local leader of the club; T. E. Roberts, School Principal; and Marvil Patterson, president of the 4-H Club. Each club is judged on the basis of its members' attitude at the meetings, the home projects which they carry, the number of project reports turned in, and the percentage of the 4-H'ers parents belonging to the Farm Bureau. The Sr. Girls' club in the Montgomery School was also selected as the winner in the girls division of the county contest.

It's Good Business

Boost Milk Production With Good Silage

WHY use silage in a dairy feeding program?

"For many reasons," says C. H. Coley, part owner of the Coley brothers farm near Piedmont. "One point in favor of good silage is that we can have a green succulent feed in summer when grazing crops are not very good. With the milk we sell during this period determining the amount we may sell during flush grazing seasons, it is very important to keep cows in high production.

BOOSTS PRODUCTION—Corn and sorghum silage is a great asset to the Coley brothers dairy farm of Piedmont Rt. 3. By using silage to supplement summer and early fall feeding the dairymen have boosted their herd's production to 6,000 pounds a year for each cow, a figure higher than the national average and twice the production in Alabama. Scooping out the daily silage ration is C. H. Coley, one of three brothers that operate the 3,000-acre farm.

"I wouldn't try to operate a dairy without silage for summer and early fall feeding," continues the Cleburne farmer. And his brother-owners, C. T. and M. D., agree with him. Last year their silo was filled with 150 tons of corn and sorghum silage that came in mighty handy during last summer's drouth.

Plans are to have plenty of silage again this year. In addition to a concrete silo, a temporary structure of wire has been made and should be just as good and much cheaper, said the Coley brothers.

Another main use of silage in their farming program is for growing replacement heifers to maintain their 140-cow dairy herd. These heifers never get any feed except silage and grazing.

M. R. Coley, father of the three brothers, watches with pride as the boys add another 50 acres of pasture each year. To date, 500 acres have been seeded on their 3,000-acre farm. Two bulldozers are kept as part of the farm equipment and used for this job.

Grazing crops include crimson clover, ryegrass, ladino clover, rescue grass, Dallis grass, Sudan grass, lespedeza, fescue and alfalfa. coastal bermuda grass will be added this year. The cows graze on the rolling green pasture lands during the days and are kept in individual stalls in the barn at night. The huge barn will hold over 100 cows in bad weather. In fact, the cows are kept in this barn on rainy days and fed nothing but hay and silage. From this ration, milk pails are just as full at milking time as they are on days when cows are permitted to graze on the crimson clover and ryegrass.

By using silage when grazing crops are scarce, the herd of grade and registered Jerseys averaged 6,000 pounds of milk per cow last year. This, according to County Agent Tom Ventress of Heflin, is not only one of the best records in the county, but is more than the national average and twice the state average.

In addition to their dairy program, they plant 140 acres of corn, which is marketed through 200 top hogs each year.

The Leader

Tuscaloosa 4-H'ers Elect Their President

PROGRESS and achievement of an organization is no greater than the ability of its leaders.

For this reason members of the Tuscaloosa County 4-H Clubs have picked one of their best members to head the work of the county council. She's Mona Lisa Earnest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed W. Earnest of the Lafow community.

Mona Lisa has been in the 4-H Club for seven years and at different times has held every major office in her local club. Not only has she shown rare qualities of leadership, but has also done a good job in her projects of frozen foods, canning, gardening, room improvement, home improvement, sewing, cooking and poultry.

The farm girl was named second place winner in the 1952 state frozen foods contest. She also won the county leadership award last year and the achievement award in 1949.

Mona Lisa does well as a member of other organizations too. She is secretary of the student council at Tuscaloosa County High School and a member of the national honor society. She took part in the district Civitan sponsored oratorical contest and finished in second place.

After graduating from high school this year, Mona Lisa plans to study home economics at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

HEADS TUSCALOOSA'S 4-H COUNCIL—Mona Lisa Earnest, a farm girl whose home is in the Lafow community, is the new president of the Tuscaloosa County Council of 4-H Clubs. She was named to this top place in the 4-H county program after seven years of leadership and project work. Mona Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed W. Earnest.

Research Results

SWEETPOTATO SLIP OR SPROUT TREATMENTS showed increases of 36 to 80 per cent in yield of marketable and total weight of roots. Either liquid Parzate, D-14 (2/5 pt. to 10 gal. water), Semesan Bel (1 lb. to 10 gal. water), or Phygon-XL (1 lb. to 8 gal. water) gave these yield increases at one or more locations in Alabama in 1952. The slips were immersed up to the soil line in the fungicidal solution before setting in the field.

WHERE TO FISH IN PONDS. In April, ponds warm up and practically all fish move out of the deep waters into areas from 1 to 7 feet deep. During the rest of the spring and summer, they will remain in these shallow areas and will move back into deeper water only during high winds.

SOIL FUMIGATION FOR VEGETABLES. Two years' results at Auburn show that when the rows were fumigated with EDB the yield of cucumbers was increased 61 per cent, beets 27, and carrots 79. When the entire area was fumigated, the yields of the respective crops were increased 42, 25, and 88 per cent. In the non-fumigated plots, yields were 163 bushels for cucumbers, 4,437 pounds for beets, and 3,673 pounds for carrots.

TREE PLANTINGS MUST BE COMPLETELY PROTECTED from both fire and grazing for the first few years after planting. During a recent study, fire and grazing were found to be responsible for more forest tree planting failures than all other causes combined. It is practically useless to plant trees on areas that are burned regularly or grazed heavily.

THE DWARF JUNEBERRY IS A GOOD YARD PLANT. It is easily grown, requires comparatively little attention, produces small attractive white flowers in early spring and almost always produces a heavy crop of edible, quite sweet berries that ripen about June 1. Berries are about the size of blueberries or huckleberries. Full grown plants are 8 to 10 feet high, but they naturally increase to form several plants in a clump that may be trained to the size desired or as a hedge. Success is a good variety.

TO SUPPLY MANUFACTURING MILK Alabama farmers must be prepared to sell it at prices comparable with those received by farmers in such surplus milk-producing states as Wisconsin and Minnestoa. If they are successful in doing this, they will be supplying milk for products that can be marketed not only in Alabama but also in other sections of the U. S. Accordingly, they will have outlets to which they can sell more milk than that used in manufactured dairy products consumed in this state.

FLAVOR OF CANTALOUPES was not affected by increasing the fertilizer rate from 1000 to 1500 or to 2000 pounds per acre. The cantaloupes from the different treatments were of high quality.

Unsteadily he stood there before the mirror. Mournfully he surveyed the bloodshot eyes. His head ached. "I'll just settles it," he said. "I've got to stay away from that bar. Television is ruining my eyes."

The preacher met one of the members of his church walking along the street, and they stopped to talk. "I felt sorry for your wife last Sunday," the minister said. "She had such a coughing spell and everyone stared at her."

"Don't be too sorry," the husband replied. "She was wearing her new spring hat."

Growing Cattail Or Pearl Millet For Summer Pasture

Pearl millet, sometimes called cattail millet, is a summer-annual grass. Grown as an annual, it will not become a pest like Johnson grass. On sandy soils Pearl millet may reach a height of 6 feet or more. The stems are coarse and in clumps. The leaves are about an inch wide, and may reach a length of 2 to 3 feet. The heads are quite numerous.

Pearl Millet is used for grazing, hay, and as a soiling crop. Under favorable conditions it will produce large amounts of green fodder which can be cut several times during the season. The seed of Pearl millet can be produced in Alabama. The quality of the forage is not as good as some other plants, but its volume of growth makes it popular with many farmers.

Soils: It requires a fertile soil for best growth.

Place in Cropping System: It fits well into cropping systems on many farms because it can be planted after the danger of frost is past in the spring until about July 1st. Therefore, Pearl millet can follow winter grazing crops, winter legumes harvested for seed, small grains and early harvested row crops.

Seedbed Preparation: Prepare land for planting, disking and harrowing to form a well pulverized firm seed bed.

Fertilization: At planting time apply 300 pounds of 8-8-8 or 4-12-12 per acre, and when plants are up well stand, top-dress or side-dress with 225 pounds of nitrate of soda or 150 acre or equal nitrogen from other sources. If the millet follows a good crop of winter legumes, the plowing under top or side dressing will not be needed.

Seeding: Broadcast 20 to 25 pounds of seed per acre. It is better to drill 4 to 6 pounds of seed per acre. Cover 1½ to 2 inches deep on heavier soils and 1 to 3 inches deep on lighter soils. Plant rows about 3½ feet apart. The advantage of planting millet in rows is compared with broadcasting is that the animals do not tramp it as much in grazing as where broadcasted.

Cultivation: Shallow cultivation is enough to control grass and weeds until the crop takes charge of the land is necessary.

Grazing: Have several areas of pasture so livestock can be moved to a new area when the plants are about down to a height of 6 to 8 inches. Apply nitrogen to areas as mowed down and give the plants a start to make good growth.

TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY — The new Chilton County Training School building, pictured above, will be dedicated Sunday, April 12th, at 3:00 p.m. Dr. W. J. Terry, State Superintendent of Education, will deliver the dedicatory address, and the 50-voice Training School choir will render the music. Prof. E. D. Sledge, principal, will preside. Many white friends are expected to join in the celebration and witness the dedication.

Training School To Dedicate New Building Sunday

State Superintendent of Education N. J. Terry will speak at the Chilton County Training School next Sunday. He will be the principal speaker in the dedication ceremonies to be held at the school.

Prof. E. D. Sledge, Principal of the school, extends to all a cordial welcome to be the school's guests on that day. Many notables from throughout Chilton County will attend the dedication of the new school building.

The Chilton County Training School was opened in 1924 and was the only high school for colored children in the county. Since that time it has grown steadily to become one of the finest in the state.

The old building was destroyed by fire in 1949 and the new building was constructed and finished in 1951.

Faculty members are: E. D. Sledge, Principal; William A. Bell, Science; Elizabeth Lawrence, Librarian; Rose V. Lee, Home Economics; John T. Simes, Vocational Agriculture; Ruth C. Sledge, Co-curricular; Marie Herring, English and Music; Rev. E. W. Burt, Elementary grades; B. T. Whittington, Mathematics and Science; N. K. Calloway, Mathematics and Social Studies; Surlena Persons, Elementary; and Vivian T. Williams in the Primary Department.

Beef Cattle Marketing Situation

Indications are that the sharp decline in beef cattle prices is about ended for the current marketing season. Also some up-trend is expected. Prices for all grades of cattle have been fairly steady for the past month with improvement in the prices of some grades.

There are other indications that point in the direction of stronger prices during the next several months. (1) Many cattle were dumped on the market as a result of last summer's drouth, contributing to a greater than usual seasonal price decline. (2) As cheaper beef is offered to consumers, they will eat more. (3) Prices for stocker cattle will likely go up with the coming of spring and more grazing. (4) A lighter than usual percentage of cattle now in feed lots is expected to be marketed soon. (5) The summer months usually find fewer finished cattle being marketed than other seasons of the year. 1953 will likely be no exception and the price outlook for good or better cattle next summer looks attractive now. (6) In spite of increased cattle marketings, the total supply of meat per person this year will likely be no more than last year. This is due to the sharp drop in marketings of hogs and the steady increase in population.

PARTY FOR NEW SCHOOL STUDENTS

On Thursday, April 16th, at the Clanton Elementary First Grade, there will be a party for all children entering first grade next year. All children are urged to come and have fun from 9:30 until 11:30. Lunch will be served. There will be ice cream and favors, too. First Grade teachers: Mrs. Mims, Mrs. Yeager, Mrs. LeCroy.

JOE GROOMS PLAYS COLLINE IN AUBURN PRESENTATION

"La Boheme" an opera of Bohemian life in the Latin Quarters of Paris, will be presented by the Auburn Opera Work Shop this week. The part of "Colline" will be played by Joe Grooms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Grooms of Clanton.

Joe graduated at Chilton County High School last year.

New Salem

Attendance here was good last Sunday. Almost one hundred were present. We are hoping to soon reach one hundred now that the weather is getting nice and most of the sickness is over. Come on out and enjoy good services.

Our pastor, Bro. Billy Carter, brought wonderful messages this week, which we all enjoy better from time to time.

The singing last Friday night was good. We wish to thank all who came and helped make this a success. If the good Lord sees fit, we hope to have these singings again next winter. Also we want to mention our homecoming at this place the first Sunday in May. This is an annual affair which has been going for many years. All former pastors, former members and friends have an invitation to worship with us on that day. Especially singers are invited. The day will be spent in worship service and song service. We hope you will be with us.—Reporter.

Jaycees To Meet Monday Night

The Clanton Junior Chamber of Commerce will meet next Monday night, April 13th, at 7:30. The meeting will be held in the private dining room of the City Grill.

Miss Oglesby Named Officer In CC Club

Montgomery, Ala. — Lenore Oglesby of Clanton, was elected to serve as secretary-treasurer of the Chemistry Club of Huntingdon College for the 1953-54 school term. The election took place at the regular club meeting April 2nd.

Miss Oglesby is the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby, of Clanton, and a graduate of the Chilton County High School. This year she is serving as president of the Scribblers Club and as secretary of Huntingdon's freshman class.

LIBERTY HILL W.M.U. CIRCLES MEET

Circle One met at the church with nine members present. The meeting opened with a song. The devotional was given by Mrs. Odell Melton, after which a very interesting program was given in which several members took part.

Business was discussed and the minutes were read by Mrs. M. O. Nelson.

The meeting closed with sentence prayers.

Circle Two met at the church on April 6th with 16 members present. The meeting was opened with the song, Christ for the Whole Wide World. Prayer was by Mrs. Reid. The program was taken from Ambassador Life and Royal Service.

Business was discussed and the meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Lanell Johnson.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

Montgomery, Ala. — Chilton County contributed 39 to the state total of 6,935 Alabama deaths reported in the last three months of 1952, according to the State Health Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The announcement was based upon provisional reports prepared by the Bureau. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

Kathryn, I wonder if you would allow me, a reader of yours, to pinch-hit for you while illness prevails in your family. I have not met you, personally, but I can tell by your column that we have much in common. I have a six-year-old, a ten-year-old, and a less-than-one-year-old. The latter keeps me running physically and the others keep the mental faculties going in high gear. The other day the six-year-old greeted his parents in the morning with this: "I don't think I'll go to school today. I'm gonna quit school." This is the third time he has "quit" school in his first year. How do we go about instilling it in children that they don't always do what they want to do at the moment? With much persuasion he went on to school, but I'd like to know a way to impress on him that his schooling will last a long time and he might as well get used to the idea.

At the P.-T.A. meeting the other day I was appalled by the small number of people present. The speaker gave us some facts about safety that may help us save our own lives and the lives of our children. I listened closely about crossing at signal lights, never jaywalking, cautioning the children about being careful, and many other safety points. Then I left the meeting and jay-walked to get to the car. That's just about the way all of us apply safety rules, I'm afraid. That set me to thinking and now I have all ready in my mind prepared a little one-sided discussion for my children. As soon as the opportune time arrives, I will tell them again what we expect of them as good citizens regarding traffic safety. I was glad to learn that our State is putting forth much effort to insure the safety of Alabamians and I hope we, as citizens, will help in this effort. The third annual Alabama Safety Conference will be held in the Montgomery City Auditorium April 30 and May 1, 1953. The public is invited. I, for one, would like to go and help support this fine movement.

Kathryn, I'd like to know the "mother down the street with the big family." She sounds so practical; and this household could use lots of practical ideas. I discovered one thing the other day that will save some of the man-of-the-house's hard-earned money. The ten-year-old has out-grown most of her school dresses. Most of them still have good material, so I ripped the seams of one, washed and ironed the pieces, and cut a sleeveless blouse out of the pieces. After looking around I find I have four other dresses with enough material to make blouses. She can wear these "top" (as she calls them) with shorts, jeans, and cotton skirts.

Citizens Of Chilton Urged To Take Advantage of Free X-Ray

Chilton County Singing Convention

The Chilton County Singing Convention will convene at the Courthouse in Clanton the fourth Saturday night and Sunday of this month, April 25 and 26 in the regular Spring session.

We are inviting all our friends to join us in having the greatest convention ever held in Chilton County. Singers from all adjoining counties are expected to attend as well as the local singers. Special guests for the day include Prof. John M Dye, James D. Walbert, and M. J Beasley from Birmingham. Of course, Prof. W. M. (Pappy) Devaughn will be here along with many other good singers.

Let me urge that you make your plans to be at the Courthouse for this Convention and help to make it a great day of gospel singing.—Marvin Lowery, Chairman.

MRS. L. H. REYNOLDS DIES

Mrs. L. H. Reynolds died at her residence in Clanton, Alabama, on April 7, 1953. She was 85.

Mrs. Reynolds was the widow of the former Probate Judge of Chilton County and made her home in Clanton for many years.

Mrs. Reynolds was born in Watkinsville, Ga., on March 10, 1868, and was married to Judge L. H. Reynolds on February 26, 1887. She had resided in Chilton County since 1887 and in Clanton since 1904.

She is survived by two sons, Grady and Omar L. Reynolds, Clanton; two daughters, Mrs. John O. Newell, Clanton, and Mrs. John M. Bridges, Bessemer. There was a deceased son, L. C. Reynolds. Also 16 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Reynolds was a life-long member of the First Methodist Church and the widow of the late Judge L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, Chilton County for 24 years, who died in 1944.

Funeral services were conducted by the Reverend Marvin Vickers from the First Methodist Church of Clanton on April 9th, at 3:00 p.m. with Spigener Funeral Home in charge. Interment in the Clanton Cemetery.

Rev. Fred Lowery Preach At Mt. Nebo

Rev. Fred Lowery will be preaching at Mt. Nebo on Saturday night, April 11th, at 7 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.

Last year we made shirts for the six-year-old out of daddy's old shirts. Of course, this is an old trick, but it still saves money.

Have you been to the river lately? If not, you have missed a treat. The woods are full of honey-suckle, dogwood, violets, and other wild flowers. The different shades of green, yellow, and brown in the trees is a feast for the eyes. Last Sunday down around the ferry crossing there were mountains of beautiful sights. From the looks (and smell) of our refrigerator fish are biting too. The man-of-the-house has a few fish stories of his own these days. Thanks to some of the Chilton County fishermen he is learning some new tricks of the game. The results sure taste good with hus-puppies, shoe-string potatoes, and cole slaw.

Kathryn, I don't know a thing about number of words, journalism rules, and so forth, so forgive me if I embarrass you. I just like people and like to share ideas, opinions, and so forth with them. I hear Arthur Godfrey's program just coming on so I'll run now. I don't want to miss Lou Ann Sims. She is so cute!

Your readers thank Ben for telling us what happened to your column and all of us sincerely hope the sickness in your family will soon be over. You may be sure we will be hoping and praying for you.

Yours truly,
MARZEE KING TEW.

P.S. Don't let the name frighten you: I do not believe I am as odd as the name indicates.

State Law Requires Chest X-Rays Of Persons 13-50

Dr. G. M. Taylor, Chilton County Health Officer, was in the county Wednesday checking X-ray clinics and stated that he felt that the citizens of this county were not clear on the requirements for the chest X-ray now being offered the people of this county. The Law of Alabama require all persons between the ages of 13 through 50 to be chest X-rayed for tuberculosis and [illegible] has made an appeal for all children of school age and those persons over 50 to take advantage of this free service.

[illegible] purpose of this program is to [illegible] a large a portion of the [illegible] as possible of this disease [illegible] this means [illegible] a definite control of tuberculosis [illegible] establishment of [illegible] in regard to the [illegible] tuberculosis [illegible] one of the greatest [illegible] diseases. It should be understood that it is a preventable, controllable and curable. The cure of tuberculosis usually depends on its stages when diagnosed. It is foolish to assume that as long as you feel well that you are in good health for like most hidden diseases tuberculosis may only show it's symptoms after great bodily harm has been done.

It is hoped that every citizen of Chilton County will join this crusade against tuberculosis. Remember that how you feel today does not determine your physical condition of tomorrow.

ONE-CENT SALE AT THE UPCHURCH DRUG CO.

Upchurch Drug Store is holding their annual Rexall one-cent sale beginning next Wednesday and running for four days.

Ralph Johnson stated this week that articles sold during the Rexall One-Cent Sale were regular stock and items that could be purchased at all times at his store. The four-day special sale only gave his customers a chance to get special values during these days.

Lucky one-cent pieces will be given away and also free balloons will be there for the kiddies. It's time to stock-up during Rexall's One-Cent Sale, so get ready for the big event next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT PROVIDENCE SUNDAY

A large crowd of people attended Sunday School and Church services at Providence Baptist Church last Sunday. Seventy-eight were registered in Sunday School and several more came for preaching service. Our pastor, Rev. W. E. Robinson, brought a very fine message which was thoroughly enjoyed by the congregation. May we all take advantage of this beautiful weather and opportunity and attend church every Sunday. We only fell short of 100 present Sunday but 22. Let's try a little harder and make our goal of 100 in the very near future.

Our organization of a Bible Training Union was postponed until the third Sunday night of this month on account of a shortage of some of the literature. Everybody be sure to keep this date in mind and be there. We are expecting a visiting church on this night to take part in the organization.

A DOVE IN THE KREMLIN?

In addition to the latest peace proposal from Chinese Premier Chou Enlai, interpreters of the trend in international relations may be optimistic in expressing possibilities of a new Soviet policy of eased relations with the West. Nevertheless, the optimists have several factors which argue in their favor until actually proved otherwise, despite the tough tone of the USSR at Lake Success.

In the first place, Western observers have noted a slow-down in the cold war in Berlin. There has been an obvious lack of new pressure, which is thought to be significant, especially in view of the approval of Western defense pacts in Germany. In addition, a top Soviet official recently suggested to his British counterpart in Berlin that they get together in an effort to prevent a repetition of the serious air incidents which occurred over Germany recently.

In that accident the lives of several British airmen were lost and the relations between Britain and Russia were strained even more than normally. Another possible straw in the wind was the recent change of tone in the propaganda line from Moscow. In what was thought to be a switch of the old propaganda line, one of Moscow's best known radio commentators informed Russians and other listeners, that it was harmonious cooperation between the Soviet Union which produced the World War victory.

As most readers know, the Russians have insisted for years that the war was won by the Red Army, and that the capitalist states used the war as a method to accumulate wealth. After the radio broadcast, which aroused widespread interest among Western diplomats, there was much speculation about the change in tone from the Moscow radio.

Another sign pointed to by the optimists is the promise from Moscow to arrange for the return of British civilians and a missionary who have been held in North Korea since the outbreak of hostilities there. Efforts to obtain the release of these prisoners had been of no avail during the reign of Joseph Stalin.

Added to these signs are the words of Premier Georgi Malenkov, who has stated flatly that there is no reason why Russia and the democracies cannot live peaceably together and settle their problems. Also, there has been a sharp curtailment of the usual propaganda from Moscow which spoke of the Americans and British, and other nations, as "warmongers."

There is also new hope at the United Nations, many observers believing that the Russians might be more inclined to support some sort of proposal for settling the Korean War, now that Stalin is dead. Whether all these signs are what they are interpreted to be by present-day optimists in this country is still a question. However, they are interesting to say the least, and constitute more meat for those who believe we can live with Russia peacefully than has been provided by the Communists in years. The Western world holds its collective breath to see if this is once again propaganda or a genuine change of tune in Moscow's policies.

FIN-FAN ITEMS

By— R. L. SCOTT

Generally, fishing results during the past week were only fair. Pre-Easter winds and showers slowed Crappie and Bass catches to minimum strings. Reports from most boat docks say that fishing was spotty and no outstanding strings, for this time of year, were taken. However, there are always those that bring in nice strings regardless of existing conditions. Mr. Johnny Harris, 1123 North 23rd Street, Birmingham, and Mr. Lewis Latham, 3946 North 37th Avenue, Birmingham, fished about the mouth of Chestnut Creek, Lake Jordan, and creeled 10 Large and Small-mouth Bass. The largest weighed in at 4½ pounds; medium running plugs were used in making the catches. Mr. Charlie Metcalf, Prattville, used live minnows to bag his nice string of Bass and Crappies. He fished the river sloughs of Jordan. Mr. Hastings, Bessemer, caught creel limits of Crappie, two days in a row, from Paint Creek, Lake Lay, using live minnows for bait. Jack and Willie Pitts, Bessemer, fished river sloughs with minnows and caught the limit of Crappie.

Likely locations for this week are as follows:

Lake Martin — Britt, Sandy, Blue and Parker Creeks.

Lake Lay — Paint, Spring and Cedar Creeks, also river sloughs.

Lake Mitchell — Yellow Leaf, Walnut and Bird Creeks.

Lake Jordan — Soft-shatchee, Shoals and Chestnut Creeks.

Each year the recreational population on the beautiful Coosa and Tallapoosa Lakes increase by leaps and bounds. More and more Alabamians and out of Staters are finding their way to the wholesome relaxation found only on the peaceful evergreen lake shore. Friendly boat dock operators are always glad to welcome visitors and are constantly striving to make their places more attractive to all. Picnic grounds, safe boats, comfortable cabins and other accommodations are available on all Lakes.

One of the most recent commercial developments on Lake Martin is Kowaliga Beach Resort, near the Kowaliga Bridge on Alabama Highway No. 63. Mr. John W. Hodnett, Manager, Alexander City, is now open for business and if you are wondering where to spend your vacation, just drop him a line for details. Modern cabins by day or housekeeping cabins by week, meals, groceries, boats, bait, swimming and all other facilities for those that want to fish or just relax.

We are proud to have a vacation resort of this high type on Lake Martin and extend every good wish to a great success to Kowaliga Beach.

Scanning the News

IT IS becoming more evident every day that the administration is about to crack down on the free-wheeling members of congress who have been having a field day during recent months. Like an actor awaiting his cue, President Eisenhower has been standing in the wings with his legislative program in hand. He has been unable to get the legislator's minds off of investigations and a number of other extra activities.

One of his most recent moves was his statement on reducing taxes before the budget is balanced. All that Eisenhower said was that he preferred to have the revenue the government would get if the tax cut measure was not enacted. But that was enough.

Daniel A. Reed, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who had a measure in the mill for a 10 per cent reduction in personal-income taxes, said he would abandon his efforts. He did not do it gracefully, however. Bitter and disappointed, he denounced the Republican failure to cut taxes as "dishonest and getting office under false pretenses."

The episode indicates the Eisenhower's prestige in the country is greater than he perhaps realized. It is also an indication of what will happen when the President makes a stand.

Another indication of a stand by the administration was President Eisenhower's statement that he doubts that any major cutbacks can be achieved in former President Truman's 46-million-dollar defense budget in the face of today's world tensions.

There had been talk in congress that one way to balance the budget would be to cut down on defense spending. To put it bluntly, this is very unlikely.

Many observers go so far as to say they expect just the opposite—an increased military and civil defense spending. Such a belief seems to have a good foundation in fact. President Eisenhower admitted at a recent news conference that his staff has been studying a proposal that would authorize such increased spending. He said, however, that no conclusion had been reached. It is a decision that the President will have to make himself, because his cabinet is reported split on the question.

This can be expected if the President decides now that greater defense outlays are necessary: it will unbalance the budget even further, delay tax cuts, and give the Democrats ammunition for the 1953 campaign.

And while this type of thinking is evident in some sections of the cabinet, Secretary of Defense Wilson told a news conference he does not think we are fully prepared to defend this country. At the same time he expressed a belief that defense spending could be cut.

● The recent explosion of another atomic bomb in Nevada furnished scientists, military men and others with considerable important new facts.

One of the most important was the fact that this country needs an expanded civil-defense program—one in which every community can participate. It needs new officials, new money, and new enthusiasm. The sooner the better.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

I PILED the kids into the flivver and we took off for the state high school tournament.

The game started and my team—Buzzard's Roost—got the first field goal. I came to my feet with a roar like days of old.

"Sit down," the lady behind me says. "Whatcha mean by yelling for them scrubs. Dontcha know this is the Paint Lick section."

"Madam," says I with great dignity, "this is a democracy and one can scream for whom one pleases."

"Not in this section," says she and pops me on the head with her pocketbook. She apologized and explained that her team had just made a goal, too.

With three minutes to go and the score tied at 61-62 one of the boys tugs at my coat tail. "I've got to go to the bathroom, Pop," says he.

"Can't you wait a minute?" says I.

"No," says he.

"Please," I begged.

"Not a chance, Pop. It's now or never."

I grabbed for the nearest boy, keeping one eye on the game, rest room. In almost nothing flat we were on the way back into the gym.

Then there was a mighty roar. The doors flew open and out poured the fans.

"Who won?" I asks the first guy that passes me.

He looked at me like I was crazy. "Who do you think," says he and marches on.

"Who won," I screams.

The crowd marched by.

An hour later I found the oldest son still sitting in his seat. "Why didn't you meet me outside," says I. "Whatcha sitting here for?

"You grabbed the wrong one, Pop," says he with a sigh. "I was the one who wanted to go to the bathroom."

WEDDING STORY

By Virginia Peden

MAUDE PALEY had been writing wedding stories for a good many years now, but it had been a long time since one had been important enough to attend personally. Usually she phoned the family for details, or they sent the information to the Point News office.

However, Ed Reilly, owner of the newspaper, had said this morning, "Hear that's going to be quite a shindig at the church on Laurel Ave. this evening. Think you can cover it, Maude?"

"For curiosity's sake, alone, I wouldn't miss it," the reporter had replied, her wide-mouthed grin creasing her thin cheeks. "It's liable to be the event of the season in more ways than one, you know."

"How so?" inquired Ed, stretching his lanky length in his swivel chair.

"Mary Anne Smith is to be maid of honor. And she's had her eye on the bridegroom, Johnny Kirby, for years. In fact, they were together a lot until the wedding announcement."

"Who's the bride?"

"My next door neighbor, Luella Jamison. Mary Anne's her first cousin, so I suppose that's why she's the main attendant. Anyway, Mary Anne has temperament—the hair-pulling kind. Never can tell what might happen."

Maude arrived at the church early and went to the basement, where the girls were getting ready.

The ring bearer, on the verge of a tantrum, had everyone on edge. And Mary Anne kept glaring at Luella.

Luella remained cool and quiet, her serenity a trifle annoying at a time like this, when it seemed more fitting for her to be flustered.

Maude went upstairs and settled her spare frame in a back pew.

Candles were lit and the church darkened. Apprehension as well as happy expectation was evident in the whispers and soft talk.

A hush settled as the organ soared into the wedding march, and the procession began. As the maid of honor walked past Maude, the latter noticed that the rejected girl's lower lip quivered ominously. Mary Anne clutched it quickly in her teeth, and raised her chin a trifle.

Maude remembered hearing Mrs. Smith whispering advice to her daughter to keep her pride and not to let on she cared. The reporter wondered how long Mary Anne would be able to keep her composure.

The bride paced slowly along the aisle, dark-haired, large-eyed, and solemn. She was almost as tall as her father, on whose arm she leaned.

Her lace-edged veil cascaded down from an orange-blossom halo, and her satin gown rippled into a frilly, full court train.

The party grouped itself in the amber, dusky glow of candle-light before the minister. His words were high-pitched and nervous, for this was a very special occasion for him and he was young for his job.

People strained forward, trying to catch every dignified syllable.

When Johnny, shining with relief, had slipped the ring on his bride's finger, and they had received a brief blessing from the pastor, they turned to leave. A photographer took pictures while they posed for a few minutes, anxious to get away.

Then they hurried faster than they should have, past hundreds of indulgent, glad smiles. They reached the door to be showered in the vestibule with rice, kisses, best wishes, and congratulations.

Miss Fratchett played on, triumphantly now, for all had gone well, at least in the church. She could only pray that all would go as smoothly at the reception.

Maude huddled over her bundle of copy paper, scribbling fast. She wanted to get it all down while it was fresh in her mind, and while she was feeling inspired. Readers would want to read every little thing about this affair.

For in all the years Maude could remember, this was the first time there had ever been a Tom Thumb wedding in town.

Poplar Springs Church

Our Sunday School was omitted Sunday for the Easter singing and we really enjoyed a good day of singing. May God bless each one who had a part in any way, making the singing a success. Especially do we thank Mr. O. L. Devaughn who was chairman. The following directed songs in the morning: Mr. O. L. Devaughn, prayer by J. R. Robinson; T. W. Whitehead, J. R. Robinson, Arra Grant, S. V. Miller, Jack Jones, W. M. Devaughn, Marion W. Easterling, Mack Ray Hammons, M. J. Hammons, A. L. Brown, Edward Jones, J. B. Hammons, P. C. Garrett, Mesdames T. W. Whitehead, J. B. Hammons and Darlene, P. C. Garrett, Jack Jones, A. L. Brown, Lena Mae Devaughn, Misses Ira Mae Grant and Nell McDowell. Specials in the morning were by the Melody Girls from Birmingham; solo, Johnnie Fay Grant; duet, Mary and Betty Joyce Patterson.

Brief, but inspiring, was the remarks given by our pastor, along with the invitation for all to enjoy the good dinner spread. We were then dismissed by him in prayer.

In the afternoon directors were: O. L. Devaughn, T. E. Wyatt, Oliver Boone, A. O. Boswell, Steve Stanley, Floyd Little, Phillip Headley, W. M. Devaughn, E. J. Grant, Jesse C. Jones, L. T. Grant, Marvin Lowery, Ralph Grant, H. M. Littlejohn, Raymond Jones, Pete Wilson, Mack Ray Hammons, S. L. Baker, Boswell Brothers, William Lowery, Jack Jones, T. W. Whitehead, Mesdames Vance and Lois Mingledolph, and Miss Nelba Jo Burkhalter.

Specials were: Boone Family Quartet, solo, Mrs. T. W. Whitehead, Wyatt Sisters trio, Liberty Hill Quartet, Rhythmettes from Liberty, solo, W. M. Devaughn, solo, Ralph Grant, Cook Girls of Liberty, duet, W. M. Devaughn and Mrs. T. W. Whitehead. Closing song by O. L. Devaughn.

Pianists for the day were: Mesdames Lois Mingledolph, Howard Wyatt, T. W. Whitehead, Lena Mae Devaughn, Reedie Patterson and Miss Ira Mae Grant.

We were hapy to have Bro. Castleberry from Prattmont in the afternoon and Bro. Marion McKay from Sylacauga, Bro. Bill Cox, and possibly other ministers. If we have missed anyone, we are sorry. Again we say we are happy for each one who came this way.

Everyone be sure to remember to come to Sunday School at 9:45 next Sunday morning. We will take up our Easter lesson, then the one for Sunday. So study both and be sure to come. It's regular preaching day, so come praying for a great message from God's Word. Come to Training Union and worship service Sunday night. We are looking for every one at prayer service Wednesday night. Bro. Cook will continue teaching the Book of James.

Our revival services closed Friday night. We had good services and we trust that every heart has been revived and that we'll all be witnessing for Jesus more each day, and may we continue to pray for lost people.

Our W.M.U. met with Mrs. Barkley who is a shut-in last Thursday afternoon. We received a warm welcome in her home, and are sure every one enjoyed the program. Refreshments were served to ten members and two visitors.

If you aren't attending church some other place, we beg that you come to our services any time it's possible. Pray for the sick and the boys in service. — Reporter.

Chestnut Creek News

The Sunday morning sunrise service, as well as other services of the day, were well attended at Chestnut Creek. Bro. Atcheson brought inspiring messages in each service. We thank our Heavenly Father for such a beautiful Easter Sunday and for the large congregation that attended the worship services.

We have seven candidates waiting to be baptized. Plans are being made for the baptismal service to be held at the First Baptist Church, Clanton, next Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Atcheson will be holding revival services at Maple Springs Baptist Church beginning next Sunday night. Let us all pray that God will send them a great revival.

Bro. John Sorrell will be filling the pulpit for Rev. Atcheson at our church. Everyone be sure to come out and hear Bro. Sorrell, as he has just started out in the ministry and he needs our prayers and encouragement.

The people of this community extend our heart-felt sympathy to Mrs. Harley Calloway in the death of her sister, Mrs. Ray, who was laid to rest in the Pates Chapel Cemetery last Friday afternoon.

Stanton News

The Easter sunrise services held at the Plantersville Methodist Church by the different churches in Plantersville was very beautiful and impressive.

Mrs. Cora Fuller, Mrs. J. W. Swindal, Mr. Royston Swindal and daughter, Charlotte Ann, came from Tuscaloosa early Saturday morning to bring flowers to the grave of Mr. R. R. Fuller and other relatives. They popped called on several of their friends while in this section. The members of the Fuller family are always welcome back. They have many friends and relatives in this section.

Additional contributions to the cemetery fund last week were: Mrs. Henry Adams $2.00, Odean Harrison $2.00, Robert Latham $1.00, Mrs. H. F. Wilkins $5.00, Mrs. Frank E. Hines $5.00, Mrs. W. C. Dyer $5.00. Please keep sending these donations to this fund as the cemetery needs cleaning off, grass sodded and a mower will be needed to keep it in good order at all times. Help with this fund and keep the graves of your loved ones in good shape. Show that you care by doing your part. Your contributions are needed.

Miss Elsie Schurter of Silver Springs, Maryland, came last Friday to spend the Easter holidays with her mother, Mrs. Alma Schurter and other relatives.

One hundred and ten attended Sunday School at the Baptist Church last Sunday. A very nice crowd at the 11 o'clock service too. Rev. J. R. Robinson, Jr., brought a very enjoyable and inspiring message. You are always welcome to attend service and worship with these folks.

The Wesleyan Methodist Church also extends a welcome to all to worship with them.

Mrs. E. B. Huff gave an Easter egg hunt at the schoolhouse last Friday afternoon at 1:30. Everybody reported such a nice afternoon. Several mothers were present and they are always welcomed at this school. Those present were: Mrs. Brown Woolley, Mrs. Lottie Klinner, Mrs. Murline Harris, Mrs. Dollye Jean Burnett, Mrs. Maudine O'Neal, Mrs. Agnes Dennis, Mrs. Buck Burnett and Mr. Buck Burnett. The children enjoyed eating eggs after the hunt and Mrs. Huff gave each child blow gum and asked that they enjoy it during the afternoon. Ice cream and iced drinks were served by Mrs. Huff to this group.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Sherrer, Jr., of Marietta, Ga., came Friday to spend the Easter holidays with Mr. and Mrs. John T. O'Neal and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Lester Sherrer, Sr., and family.

Mrs. John McKinney enjoyed having all of her children and their children with her last Sunday. In the afternoon the children enjoyed very much an Easter egg hunt. Mrs. Nick Harrison of Plantersville also spent Sunday in this home.

Airman and Mrs. Bob Ed McKinney of Montgomery spent the week end with Mrs. John McKinney and family and Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan of Maplesville.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston O'Neal of Demopolis were week end guests of the Earl O'Neals and Mr. W. M. D. O'Neal.

Mrs. Fred Veazey and children and Mr. Burton Carter of Birmingham and Miss Artie Hathcock spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carter.

Mrs. John S. Carter has just received a letter from her son, S-Sgt. Donald Carter who is in Korea. Donald has just completed his 56th mission and writes that he thinks he might be home by June.

Mrs. Calvin Giles returned to her home from the Baptist Hospital last Friday. Mrs. Giles is improving nicely.

Mrs. Joe Hethcox of Plantersville remains a patient in the Selma Baptist Hospital. Her physician told her last week end that she would have to remain in the hospital for a week or more yet. Mrs. Hethcox fell and suffered a fractured bone in her right knee which has caused her considerable pain.

"The Parade of the Fairies" given at the Plantersville Grammar School last Friday night was very enjoyable.

Mrs. Sallie Davis is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Olon Capitini have returned to their home from a Selma hospital. Mrs. Capitini is doing nicely. Mr. Capitini was pretty badly injured in the truck-car accident at the intersection just this side of Maplesville.

Mrs. William Ruddick accompanied Rev. Eddie Ruddick to Big Springs Baptist Church Sunday morning for Easter sunrise service. Rev. Ruddick was soloist. A very inspiring service and a very enjoyable one.

Mr. Lester Earl Pickering of Plantersville underwent surgery at the Veterans Hospital in Memphis, Tenn., recently. Earl as he is known by his host of friends here will be in this hospital for a month or longer, and from reports he has had it tough. If you care to write him or send him a card or message of some sort you can reach him at Kennedy Veterans Hospital, Ward 28, Memphis 15, Tenn. Earl is improving and we wish him a very speedy recovery.

Your local P.-T.A. meeting last Monday night was postponed until Tuesday night, April 14th due to stormy weather. At this meeting officers for the coming year will be selected. Attend your P.-T.A. and support it. Mrs. John Parnell has led this group this past year as its president and has made a very successful year of her work.

Friends were shocked to learn of the passing of Mrs. Foy Peacock, mother of Mrs. Kenneth McGee of Selma, Ala. Funeral services were held at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon. More details of this death will follow next week.

A family gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Graham last Sunday. Present to enjoy this day together were: Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mathis and children of Maplesville, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Carroll and children of Rome, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Preston and children of Anniston; Mr. and Mrs. Milford Harrison and son, Dalton, of Georgia, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe McGee and daughter of Selma; Mr. and Mrs. Hershel Graham and family spent last week end in Aragon, Ga., with Mr. Graham's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Cubby Jones of Birmingham spent the week end with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Maddox, and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin E. Smitherman and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Scott attended the baseball game in Birmingham on Monday.

Mr. James Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Harris was home from Detroit, Mich. He reported to Columbia, Tenn., to a new job Sunday.

Mr. Aubrey Neeley of Montgomery visited Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Harris last week end.

HIGHLAND

Attendance was fairly good to both Sunday School and Training Union this week end. There are many in our community who are not attending church as they should so let's everyone try to visit some one during the week and invite them back to church and see if we can have a large crowd out for church next Sunday. Bro. Deason will be with us as it's our regular preaching day.

Everyone remember Sunday School at 10 o'clock and Training Union at 6 o'clock. Let's read our Bibles and pray daily, then come to church and study together that we might learn more about God's plan for us and how we can do in His Kingdom work here on earth.

It has been one of the worst sent for several Sundays we have been trusting and praying to see us at church next Sunday.

We were glad to have some visitors Sunday and invite them back again very soon. Reporter.

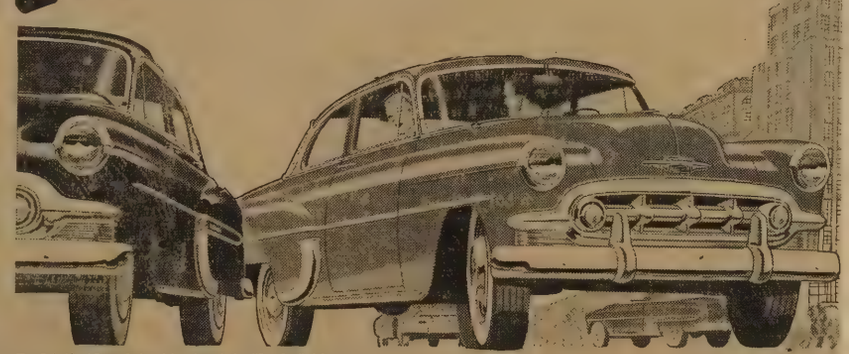
Chevrolet is the only low-priced car to offer...

Extra-Easy Power Steering



The Bel Air 4-Door Sedan (above) and the "Two-Ten" 2-Door Sedan (right)—two of 16 beautiful models in 3 great new series.

You park and steer with finger-tip ease; yet the familiar feel of the road is still there. Driving is easier—and safer than ever!

CHEVROLET

MORE PEOPLE BUY CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR!

Power Steering! It's yours in Chevrolet for 1953 and in no other low-priced car!

This wonderful new feature, optional on all models at extra cost, marks the most important advance in driver convenience and safety since the automatic transmission, which Chevrolet also introduced into its field.

Power Steering makes steering virtually effortless on all roads and at all speeds. It permits you to park, even in a tight space, with finger-tip ease. It cuts steering effort approximately 80%; reduces driver fatigue; makes driving simpler, safer and more enjoyable than ever before.

But come in! See and drive Chevrolet for 1953 with Power Steering and all its other exclusive advantages!

Continuation of standard equipment and trim as illustrated is dependent on availability of material.

Mrs. Kathryn Goff, Phone 2571

The Senior I class of Maplesville High School chartered a bus and took a trip to Montgomery in conjunction with their study of History.

The bus left the schoolhouse about 8:45 and proceeded to Maxwell Field, their first stop. They obtained a permit and the services of a guide to go through the base. They were carried through the many part of the training center was in. They were escorted to the edge of the run-ways where they were shown a rescue boat and a plane. The Lieutenant explained the work of Air Rescue Service from Maxwell they proceeded to the park. After lunch they scouted around the park. They next visited the Capitol. From there they visited the White House of the Confederacy. The Department of History and Archives Building were very interesting. Later on they treated themselves to a movie after which they returned to their respective homes. Mrs. Georgia Billingsley chaperoned this trip.

MOUND STATE PARK AND SMITH HALL INTERESTING TO BETTER SPEECH CLUB

Each Spring for many years the Better Speech Club has made trips to Mound State Park to view the remains of a remote Mongoloid race. All through the year we have been anticipating the pleasure of such a trip, but when we learned of the many unearthings that had been made in, not only our own nation, but Mexico, Central America and Peru, our interest grew and grew.

Friday, April 3rd, a perfect sunny day, our interest was climaxed in a reality when several mothers and fathers lined up in cars at the front of our school building to take us.

After our squad leaders had met Mrs Montgomery, our guide, we filed into the monument by squads and were deeply impressed by the displays in the various cases and counters. We were shown the difference in the skull bone of a male and female. A replica of a Mounvillian dwelling and its surroundings were of special interest. We learned that the ancient people were peace-loving farmers. They liked to decorate their bodies with hand-made jewelry. They were fishermen of skill and show evidence of being deeply concerned about religion.

We were amazed as we gazed into those burial pits and learned that as many as three thousand burials have been uncovered. The depth of a burial depended upon the generation to which that particular family belonged. One evidence of their religious nature is the fact that they buried food and drink near the head of their dead.

After we had examined the various displays, made drawings, and snapped pictures of items of special interest, we left the monument and drove down to the picnic area. In that lovely spot on the bank of the Black Warior River, we enjoyed our picnic lunch and iced Cokes furnished by Mrs. Teel and Mrs. Wade.

Leaving that enticing spot, we drove arund to Mound B, a great huge mound, fifty-eight and one-half feet high and covering a two-acre area. In a race to the top, Joseph Knight was the winner. Several other mounds were visited before we left for Alabama's Museum of Natural History in Smith Hall at the University. In this Museum we saw incredible displays of stone formations, and remarkably life-like stuffed animals. Alabama's rich resources were also shown, as well as cultures of foreign lands.

We were a tired and greatly appreciative group as we hurried home from that most remarkable trip.—The Better Speech Club.

News From Isabella

Mulberry Church—

Bro. Jones delivered a wonderful sermon on the Resurrection Sunday morning. There were 100 in Sunday School, and more for the preaching service.

Bro. L. E. Daniel of Thorsby is the evangelist for the revival this week. He began his messages for the week on Sunday night. It was a great sermon on the need of a revival.

Visitors attending service at Mulberry Sunday night were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Davenport of Thorsby, Miss Lorine Lecroy of Gadsden and Bro. Daniel's daughter, Louise, and Bro. Jones's daughter, Evelyn, of Thorsby.

We were happy to have Mr. and Mrs. Luther Lecroy in our service Sunday morning. They have been absent all winter due to the illness of Mr. Lecroy.

There was a fair crowd out for family night Wednesday night, but only a few young people. We are very anxious to have out boys and girls with us on family night.

The W.M.U. had their regular business meeting. The Union voted to sponsor a drive for funds to buy more library books immediately after the baptistry is completed. A mission program was given from the Royal Service on Mexico. A good number of women were present.

The Brotherhood elected their officers. They are: President, W. T. Tucker; vice-president, Malcolm Lecroy; secretary-treasury, Casey Cummings. Bro. Jones gave a talk on the Brotherhood activities. Some of them were visiting the sick and needy; inviting men to church services, Sunday School, etc., working with boys, winning the unsaved to Christ and a number of others. All our men are invited to join the Brotherhood.

Keep the third Sunday in May in mind, it is homecoming day at Mulberry. Invite all your friends and relatives to be with us. There will be a guest speaker for the day, and special singing by quartets. Rebecca Hardy, her mother and sister will be with us.

The Quarterly meeting of Chilton Association Group Three and Four will meet at Highland Church on Wednesday, April 15th, at 10:00 a.m. Mrs. Conway, the W.M.U. president, urges all who can to go from Mulberry. She would like for our church to be well represented.

Mr. Homer Ratliff is doing fine after a recent operation on his eye. He had the bandage removed from his eye Friday. Mrs. Ratliff, who is under the doctor's care, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Tucker, Mrs. Leauna Gibbs and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Jones of Birmingham and Mr. and Mrs. Coy Rasberry of Macedonia Community were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jones.

Miss Lorine Lecroy of Gadsden was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy, this past week end.

This community extends its sympathy to the W. T. Tucker family in the recent death of their brother and uncle, Mr. Jim Tucker. He died in the Baptist Hospital in Selma Thursday, April 2nd. He was buried at Enon Church near Montevallo, on Saturday, April 4th. Besides the family who attended the funeral from Mulberry were Mrs. Emma Manning, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wells and Rev. J. W. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Conway and children of Birmingham visited relatives in this community Sunday. They attended services at Mulberry Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinton White and three girls of near Wetumpka and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin White and little daughter of Jasper were Sunday afternoon guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White. They all enjoyed an Easter egg hunt together.

Mrs. Jerome Conway and son, Jerry, went with her husband on a trip to Chicago last week. They enjoyed sight seeing along the way. They returned home on Monday.

This community extend its sympathy to Mrs. Quinton Cummings in the recent death of her brother. He died last week in a hospital.

For hundreds of years it was believed that European swallows spent their winters buried in river mud. Actually, they fly to Africa in small groups.

(By William Crowe)

HEALING WATERS

Read carefully II Kings, chapter 5.

"Are not Abana and Tharpar, Rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel?. . . So he turned and went away in a rage." —II Kings 5:12.

These words expressed the indignation of Naaman, a distinguished officer in the Syrian army. Though a gallant soldier, he was blustering swashbuckler who had been spoiled by the adulation of the king and the royal court. Naaman's glory was somewhat bedimmed however when it was discovered that he had become a victim of leprosy, a disease beyond the healing power of any medicine of his day and country.

Learning from a Jewish slave girl in his own house that the prophet Elisha in faraway Israel could cure his ghastly malady, the lordly Naaman took a hurried journey thitherward. He would impress the prophet with his importance by traveling in great state accompanied by his official staff. Arriving in Palestine and upon inquiry, he was directed to the lowly dwelling of an apparently obscure peasant, Elisha by name. The illustrious applicant's chargrin was increased beyond the limit of his patience by the conduct of Elisha, the supposed master of the disease that had baffled the physicians of his own land. Instead of treating his pompous visitor with obsequious deference, the prophet simply sent word to him to go to the River Jordan and wash his body therein. Such bluntness in dealing with so important a person brought forthe the above-quoted reply. Only after the sympathetic exhortation of his courtiers did the mighty Naaman condescend to obey the prophet's order. Having at least brains enough to take some wholesome advice he found the desired remedy, and later even went so far as to confess that Jehovah, the God of Israel's prophet, would thereafter be his God.

What inferences of constructive value can we draw from that ancient incident? One is that in dire human emergency God alone is able to meet human need. "To whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." Another is that arrogancy gains no access to the God of infinite power and mercy. "Blessed are the poor in spirit; for their's is the kingdom of heaven." Pride of intellect, or of social position, or of earthly possessions, is an invariable block across the road that leads to eternal life. In the eyes of the Creator, superiority is measured by the quality of one's heart, and not by circumstances, however glamorous they may be. The Elishas always tower above the Naamans. And yet another inference is that there is no inherent power either in the sparkling streams of Syria or in the muddy Jordan, but in the willingness on the part of any repentant person to give implicity obedience to the revealed will of God.

The crowning mission of all prophets both ancient and modern was, and is, to prove the futility of every type of human effort that is undertaken without one's complete surrender to the Will of Him Who said, "Without Me ye can do nothing."

Reader, remember: To submit your will to God's Will, and so to make His Will your own, is the highest form of self-determination and therefore the most important step towards the formation of a character that is free; in fact, it is the road, and the only road to freedom. The experience of Naaman is a case in point. Valiant soldier that he was, he did not learn the meaning of life until his impact with a prophet of God.

The Lonesome Train

Your local Montgomery-Tuscaloosa Artesia passenger train is a lonesome one. In fact, in these days of good paralleling highways and the private automobile there is an average of only 22 passengers per trip who still find her useful.

For a long time now this train has been trying to attain popularity. A sleeping car, tasty meals, comfortable chair cars, air-conditioning — are just some of the ways she has courted favor. . . .but to no avail In 1951 she attracted over 17,000 less passengers than in 1948 — and the decline continues to the present, unabated.

Today, the average passenger pays about $1.25 to ride, but with the minimum of equipment and expenses cut to the bone, the Railroad loses $4.29 for the privilege of transporting each passenger.

The train's total deficit during the latest 12-month period was more than $68,000 and this loss was only for out-of-pocket items. . .did not take in account such direct expenses as maintenance of track, supervision, equipment depreciation, overhead and other normally applicable charges.

Wages of the train crew are over 2½ times the total amount the Company collects in passenger fares.

As valued patrons and residents of the territory we want you fully advised of the facts. Wastefulness benefits no one. The money lost providing service for a scant minority could better be spent making improvements, buying freight cars, helping communities locate industries and such other constructive efforts beneficial to the majority.

The Railroad has asked the Alabama Public Service Commission for authority to remove the train. The management will be glad to answer your questions and to discuss with you personally the necessity for discontinuing the service.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

They'll break your heart at Chilton County's Crippled Children's Clinic. The most recent Clinic was held last Thursday and 44 children registered. Bright-faced little tots, middle-sized boys and girls and then the larger ones, all coming to the Crippled Children's Clinic to see if they could get help for their crippled little bodies.

A bright-faced little blond, pretty as a peach, playing as though she hadn't a care in the world and saying, "I don't want to go home." In conversation with her parents we learned that she had been awaiting this day all year. She wanted to go to "the church in Clanton where they played all day long."

Then there was the big strapping fellow—except for his shriveled legs he would have been a big strapping fellow—who was just a little embarrassed when he had to undress for the doctor and walk the full length of the basement from the dressing room to the examination room. He wanted help. He needed help, but his only chance was our Crippled Children's Clinic and he had to make use of the facilities that were offered. And being undertaken with no better facilities than are at hand we believe the Clinic Committee does a wonderful job.

A beautiful little girl was brought in her uncle's arms. She could not even get about without the help of others, but there was sunshine in her face. Fright and nervousness is practically unheard of at the Clinic now. The little ones are so busy being entertained by the nice ladies that when the doctor calls their turn they are relaxed and, according to the head nurse, are much easier to work with and help. There will be two Clinics this year. Instead of just one, the Clinic Committee has decided to have one in the Fall too. This decision eliminates much of the crowd and confusion the workers have had in the past. Staff members and workers can do a much better job when they have fewer to work with. And so much has to be crowded into one day.

Every penny of every dollar you give to the Chilton County Crippled Children's Clinic is kept here in Chilton County for these most deserving boys and girls. The Clinic is held each year in the basement of the First Methodist Church because there is no other place in Clanton large enough to take care of the large number of boys and girls who come to the Clinic each year for help. It isn't at all suitable for the purpose of the Clinic but is all that we have and the Clinic Committee is making the best of what they have to work with.

Less than 400 citizens of the county who were sent Crippled Children stamps responded and 2200 letters were mailed out. If you still have your stamps, but haven't the money, won't you try to get a neighbor or a friend who has the money to send it in for the stamps. The money is so badly needed and the cause is so worthy. If you could work just one day with these little children who aren't as fortunate as you, you could understand.

The Clinic Committee asked us to tell all who helped so graciously that their help was appreciated, deeply. The local dairies gave milk, many of the grocery stores gave fruits, cookies, cold drinks, and many other things, ladies around town donated sandwiches.

There was a lot of love and kindness donated by a lot of lovely people. Wish you could have been there.

It'll do your heart good to be able to say that you had a part in, and were a part of Chilton County's Crippled Children's Clinic.

New Material Will Keep Those Moths Off Your Woolens

Auburn, Ala.—In spring a moth's fancy turns to woolens.

And that, of course, brings up the old problem of how to protect those winter clothes through the summer.

This year the problem should be much easier, now that there's a new mothproofing formula called EQ-53 on the market. The material, which contains DDT, can be added directly to the wash or rinse water in the washing machine.

The EQ-53 will keeps moths away, will not injure the fabric, and is relatively inexpensive.

Non-washable woolens can be protected at very little cost by spraying them with a five per cent DDT oil solution. The clothing expert warns against soaking articles with the DDT spray because too much of the insecticide will leave a white deposit.

Rubber gloves should be worn when using either EQ-53 or the DDT spray.

Dedication Of Training School Attracts Many

A large crowd attended the dedication of the Chilton County Training School Sunday afternoon.

The school was beautifully decorated for the occasion and following the program an inspection of the buildings was made.

The school was first conceived and sponsored by Rev. A. B. Craig and Prof. E. E. Tyson, who convinced the local authorities of the possibilities of a Colored Training School.

Prof. Tyson, who was then the Principal of the Center Point School, contacted Professor M. H. Griffin, who was agent for the Rosenwall Fund, as to the procedure that should be followed in order to get aid from the Rosenwall Fund. He was told that the citizens of the community, county, and state must be responsible for a stipulated portion of the total cost of erecting the building and the Rosenwall fund would pay in proportion. This information was passed on to the citizens of the community and they began working immediately toward raising their share of the total cost of the building. Only two plans will be mentioned that was used by the citizens in raising their share of the money. A number of the men were responsible for raising $100.00 each and a number of the ladies were responsible for raising $50.00 each. Patches of cotton were grown and sold. The profit going toward the erecting of the building. In a short while, the citizens had raised $2,000.00.

After the appropriate site for the location of the school had been agreed upon, the citizens purchased five acres of land from Mr. Ben Brown at $25. per acre.

The contractors agreed to erect the building and have it ready for use by October, 1924, for a total cost of $7,000.00.

The names of the principals of the school in the order in which they served are as follows:

Professors Alvin Bryant, L. C. Johnson, Ben Anderson, A. T. Gowan, R. B. Hunter, J. T. Gaines and E. D. Sledge.

December 6th, 1949, this frame building was destroyed by fire.

The present fire-proof building was erected in 1950 at a total cost of $90,000.00. The colored citizens and a few white friends contributed several thousand dollars in the way of free labor, toward the erecting of this new building, since the County only appropriated $70,000.00.

Mr. Howard Foshee was the Superintendent when the first building was erected. The present building was erected under the present Superintendent, J. H. Boockholdt.

The following persons in the order named, have served as County Superintendents of Education:

Messrs. Howard Foshee, B. Lawrence, Luther Little, Rascoe Maddox, D. P. Culp and J. H. Boockholdt.

Historical Associat'n To Convene In "City Of Six Flags"

Historic old Mobile, "city of six flags," will be the host to the Alabama Historical Association at its sixth annual meeting April 24 and 25, it was announced today by Dr. Ralph B. Draughon, president.

Dramatic episodes and colorful events and personages in Alabama history will be presented in a varied program of papers by recognized authorities on their respective subjects. An entertainment program, which includes a tour of Mobile's many places of historic interest and a visit to beautiful Bellingrath Gardens, has been arranged by the Mobile host committee, of which Mrs. F. J. Sauer is general chairman.

Following the registration, which is scheduled to beign at 10:00 a.m. Friday, a luncheon and an afternoon session will be held at the Battle House, with a complimentary dinner Friday evening at the Mobile Country Club. Following the dinner, an evening session and reception will be held at Springhill College. Sessions Saturday begin at 10:00 a.m. and conclude with a luncheon meeting and sight-seeing trip.

James F. Sulzby, Jr., secretary, has requested members and guests to make early hotel reservations, in view of the large anticipated attendance from all sections of the State.

Don't Overgraze Your Kudzu

Many a stand of kudzu has been killed simply by grazing it too early in spring and by overgrazing it later in the season. Allow kudzu to get well started before grazing is begun. Never graze the crop to the point where the remaining growth does not cover the ground well.

Soil Testing Available To Chilton County Farmers

Farmers of Chilton County are urged to take advantage of a soil testing service initiated by the Alabama Experiment Station and the Alabama Extension Service. The laboratory, operated by the Alabama Experiment Station, will open and be ready to take samples on February 1st. This is another service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Alabama's Land Grant College, to help farmers of Alabama do a better job.

We emphasize that this soil testing service is not to replace our general fertilizer recommendations which are based on field research by the Experiment Station over a long period of time. But soil tests can be helpful to many farmers in determining more exactly their fertilizer needs for particular crops and under peculiar farm situations.

All soil samples sent to the laboratory must be sent in cartons and shipping containers furnished by the laboratory. Each soil sample must be accompanied by an information sheet about the particular field from which the soil sample is taken. The information sheets, cartons for the soil samples, and shipping boxes are available at the county agent's office. All farmers taking advantage of this soil testing service are urged to follow instructions very carefully in taking the soil samples, transmitting them to the laboratory, and filling out the information sheet. The value of soil tests depend on how the samples are taken and the information about each sample submitted.

It is planned to conduct a series of meetings and demonstrations on how to take and submit soil samples throughout the county within the next few days.

There will be a charge of $1.00 per sample of top-soil sent in. Each top-soil sample must be accompanied by a subsoil sample.

Farmers who would like to know more about the reasons for testing soils, how to take samples, and other phases of this work are urged to attend the meeting to be held in their community, later on.

For more information regarding this service we invite you to come by our office or drop us a note.

Woman Dead After Shotgun Attack By Neighbor Saturday

Aukelee Cleckler is in the county jail charged with first degree murder in the death of Mrs. Clydie Robinson, last Saturday about noon. Reports are that Cleckler shot Mrs. Robinson in the [illegible] with a shot gun and then reloaded the gun and shot her again in the back as she ran. She died a short time later at Central Alabama Hospital. Exact cause of the trouble has not been determined according to Sheriff [illegible] Roderick Monday morning.

Mrs. Robinson was 49 years old and a widow. She was the mother of eight children. Their home was near Alabama Mills Village.

Funeral services was held for Mrs. Robinson from Faith Tabernacle Monday afternoon and burial was at New Harmony. Spigener Funeral Home was in charge.

History Of 31st Dixie Division to Highlight 6th Historical Meet

A colorful and vivid history of the famous 31st Dixie Division during World War II will be presented by its commanding officer, Lt. General John C. Persons, at the sixth annual meeting of the Alabama Historical Association in Mobile, Friday, April 24th.

General Persons, now chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Birmingham, will deliver his address at the association's luncheon meeting Friday noon at the Battle House. Former members of the 31st Division and their wives and parents have been given a special invitation to attend.

General Person's first hand account of the division's operations in training and in combat in the Pacific theater is expected to be one of the most interesting recitals of military history ever heard in the state. It will inaugurate a two day program, featured by many interesteing papers on eventful episodes and distinguished personages of Alabama's history. Members and registered guests will be entertained at a dinner at the Mobile Country Club at 6 p.m. on Friday. Another highlight of the two-day sessions will be a reception at beautiful and historic Spring Hill College. Of widespread interest also is a scheduled tour Saturday afternoon of historic sites and modern points of interest in Mobile, conducted by the Historical Mobile Preservation Society.

The meeting has created statewide interest, with advance reservations indicating a record attendance.

POLK BROTHERS MOTOR COMPANY HAS CHANGED OWNERSHIP

Troy Maddox has bought the Polk Brothers Motor Company and the firm will be known as the Troy Maddox Motors.

Maddox, who is well know here for his business ability and progressiveness, will be in charge of the new business personally and has surrounded himself with a competent personnel, both in the office, the parts department and the garage and body work departments.

W. M. Polk, Jr., and Marvin Lowery will handle the sales; Marjorie Headley, bookkeeper; [illegible] Wright, parts manager; Fonzie Cox, manager of the body shop; Curtis Hurtt, J. D. Thompson, Garvis McKee and Henley Carter, will be in the service department.

Side-Dressing Of Vegetables Brings Increased Yields

Extra nitrogen on those garden and truck crops pay off in higher yields.

That's especially so on the lighter soils, from which nitrogen leaches out rather quickly.

Auburn recommends that the extra nitogen be applied as a side-dressing after the plants are up to a good stand and growing well.

RURAL MAIL BOX IMPROVEMENT WEEK

The Post Office Department has designated the week ending April 18, 1953, as Rural Mail Box Improvement Week.

Rural mail boxes which are not properly erected or in good serviceable condition retard the delivery of the mail and expose it to damage from the weather.

It is the desire of the Department to encourage patrons of the rural carriers service to provide suitable mail receptacles and to erect them so that they are easily accessible to the carrier and present a neat appearance.

It is especially desirable that the boxes be maintained in a condition that will assure proper protection to mail placed therein, that the names of box owners be inscribed on the side of the boxes visible to the carrier as he approaches them, and that the boxes and their supports be kept painted.

Patrons who have unapproved boxes of top-opening, revolving door or other type are not required to discard them provided the boxes have been in use by the present owners for several years and are maintained in good serviceable condition. Any boxes not of the present standard type which are of such design that they cannot be properly served by the carrier from his vehicle or are in such condition as not to protect the mail, should be replaced with boxes of the approved types. Boxes, regardless of type, should, of course, be of such design and such condition that there will be no likelihood of the carrier's being injured when serving them.

Most of the people on the rural routes know the requirements for the erection of their boxes, if not you can get this information by asking your rural carrier to give you a Form 4050. It is desirable wherever possible, that boxes be erected in groups. A simple and practicable support for this purpose consists of a board erected on posts firmly planted with the height of the shelf upon which the boxes are placed about 3½ or 4 feet above the surface of the ground.

Look at your mail box and see if there is any improvement you can make. Perhaps you can with a little effort make it more convenient for your carrier, and a brighter and prettier spot near your home.

Won't you try?

A Postmaster.

Time To Treat Posts

Dry weather in late spring is a good time to begin getting posts ready for treating. Be sure posts are thoroughly peeled before putting them in open stacks to dry. Posts should dry for three months in summer before being treated with a preservative.

MOVIE ANSWER TO TV

One Hollywood studio recently announced that its answer to TV night movies would be a twenty-four premiere of its first three-dimensional picture. The premiere will run through the night is expected to draw in viewers at all hours throughout the twenty-four-hour period.

The premiere will start, oddly, at midnight and will end the following midnight. The first show will be called a "spook" premiere and will be followed by an aircraft swing-shifters' premiere at 2:00 a.m. Next in line will be the milk man's matinee at 4:00 a.m. in the morning.

The schedule continues throughout the twenty-four hours, ending with a daters' premiere. We are not sure that this is the appropriate answer to movies on TV. In fact, we do not feel that there is any need for competition at 4:00 a.m. in the morning. Certainly, most Americns are not interested in a movie at this hour, with the possible exception of milk men.

We even doubt that many milk men will attend the milk man's matinee at 4:00 a.m. in the morning and those who do we would rate tops in a taste for moving pictures.

LIFE SPAN RISES—

A major life insurance company recently reported that the average American wage earner's life had increased by more than four years in the last decade. This finding is based on 1952 figures for industrial policy holders.

The average length of life for the American wage earner is now sixty-eight and one-half years. If the rate increase continues, by 1962 the average wage earner's life span will be over seventy-two years.

When considering this figure as an average, one can easily see the progress being made in this direction. Despite a record motor vehicle toll in 1952, the death rate among wage earners last year was near the all-time low recorded in 1950. The death rate for every one of the major chronic diseases of middle and later life declined. This is especially encouraging and includes such diseases as heart, artery and kidney diseases, in addition to cancer and diabetes.

These figures cover the American wage earner. The increasing pace of a faster life, increased tension and other added tensions of modern-day life have not combined to offset the progress being made in the medical field. We wonder, however, if the mortality rate for executives and business managers, and especially editors, is not still rising. From all outward appearances, it would seem that the fast pace of modern life is causing a heavier toll in this class, although we will be glad to correct our assumption if figures prove otherwise.

In the meantime we suggest that all business men slow their pace, and extend their lives along with the wage earners.

THE DESTRUCTIVE PRINCIPLES

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

FEAR

Fear is an abstract quality intimately linked up within ourselves which may or may not be normal. Fear may be normal if one is faced precipitously with an accident, such as an oncoming head-on collision, but fear engendered by thoughts of what is to come and not influenced by fact is not normal.

Fear is a feeling of apprehension. Lacking a real or concrete substance, fear is influenced by the mind to take various shapes and forms from the outcome to the protagonist. As we stress in this unreasonable feeling of apprehension that is fear, it becomes really ill

Many persons have fears or phobias ranging from one to several. The list of phobias is long and fits all fears. Strangely enough many persons are never faced with the situation of their phobia, yet live in a constant state of apprehension that they may.

Fear of disease could be a natural fear because no one wants to be sick, but to live in a morbid state of apprehension that disease will strike is not normal. For example a pain in the chest does not always mean heart disease, nor does the presence of a lump always mean cancer. Why not supplant the fear with a reasonable curiosity and find out the meaning of these symptoms? Remember that greater recovery is assured if any condition is detected early. Dispel your fear. Find out.

Don't worry about the past that can't be relived. The past is gone, but there is today and tomorrow. Living in a constant state of apprehension builds up tension which, in turn, creates psychological and physiologic manifestations. Physical as well as mental disturbances result.

"Don't cross your bridge until you come to it" is an applicable aphorism in overcoming your fear. Don't anticipate and worry about a situation until fact confronts you with the problem. Keep yourself in good physical and mental health. Then should a situation arise you will be equipped to cope with it.

Know Your SCHOOLS

by W. J. Terry
STATE SUPERINTENDENT

The State Department of Education, in an effort to promote a sound program of physical education, health, and recreation, seeks to cooperate with the personnel of all state and local departments of education, public health, teacher education institutions, and children and youth serving community agencies.

Health is the first of the seven Cardinal Principles of Education and, therefore, is required of every pupil. Along with other opportunities in the curriculum, physical education provides a wealth of experiences that help youth to develop and maintain: (1) Maximum physical efficiency, sound body, strength, endurance, quick reaction, speed, sense of balance, and good posture; (2) Useful skills in walking, dodging, gauging moving objects, and lifting, all of which are essential to living safely and successfully; (3) Skills in swimming, team sports, and rhythms which contribute to physical and social efficiency at each stage of life of the pupil. A cordially mature person enjoys, contributes to, and is at ease in a variety of social situations.

The school health program is concerned with (1) health services such as health examinations and follow-ups to assure correction of remediable defects, (2) healthful school environment including proper and adequate sanitation, heating, lighting, ventilation, seating, water supply, toilets, hand-washing facilities, and play spaces, (3) healthful school living involving wholesome human relationships, balanced program of work, physical activity, relaxation, rest, and recreation, and (4) health instruction in the teaching of scientific facts and influencing sound health practices.

Recreational activities including games, sports, music, social activities, drama, art, crafts, hobbies, and recreational reading are stressed throughout the school curriculum. Boys and girls who find joy in such activities will not be tempted to break the law to find outlets for their urges and energies.

Sudan Grass Is Urged For More Summer Feeding

Auburn, Ala.—Will you need some extra grazing in the summer?

If your answer is yes, you might take a good look at the possibility of planting Sudan grass, a crop that has been paying off well for Alabama farmers.

To point out that Sudan grass is one of the most practical grazing crops to plant in spring its advantages are listed as these:

1. Sudan grass can be seeded at any date from cotton planting time until around July 1. It is an excellent crop to plant after winter grazing and legumes harvested for seed.

2. Planted on good land and fertilized well with nitrogen, Sudan grass will be ready to graze within a few weeks after seeding during normal seasons.

3. The grazing of Sudan grass can be finished in time the next summer to prepare the land and seed for a fall crop.

Another spring-planted crop that is gaining in popularity because of its grazing value is cattail millet.

Why not give both of these crops a trial for extra summer grazing? County agents have full information on growing and using them.

Dates For Dairymen

Three big days for Alabama dairymen to remember are Saturday, May 2, when the Alabama Jersey Heifer Sale is to be held in Crampton Bowl in Montgomery; Wednesday, May 6, date of the Jersey Field Day at Dutch Bend Farms near Autaugaville in Autauga County, and Monday, May 11, when the Alabama Guernsey Club Sale is scheduled for Crampton Bowl in Montgomery.

ANNUAL REPORT MAILED SHARE OWNERS

Alabama Power Company's Annual Report, mailed to share owners on March 30, gives an excellent description, through numerous pictures, of the broad agricultural, commercial and industrial diversification in Alabama.

The report shows that in 1952 the Company's gross revenues gained 8.3 per cent, while expenses increased 9.2 per cent.

Taxes were $15,469,000, or $1,500,000 more than the previous year, and amounted to 22½c of each dollar taken in. They totaled more than operating salaries and wages.

At the end of 1952 the total investment in plants, lines and other facilities was $309,532,908.

Generating capacity was increased by 155,200 kilowatts, bringing the total installed capacity to 1,129,700 kilowatts. The report states that completion of generating units under construction or on order will bring the total generating capacity of Alabama Power Company to 1,535,950 kilowatts by 1955. Of this total, 489,700 kilowatts will be in hydro plants, with 1,046,250 in steam plants.

During 1952, the Company supplied more than 6½ billion kilowatt-hours. The steam plants of the Company consumed nearly 1½ million tons of coal and nearly 21½ billion cubic feet of natural gas.

At the end of 1952, 506,285 customers were receiving their electric service directly from the Company, and 95,000 electricity users were served through distributors purchasing their entire power supply from the Company for resale. The average annual use per urban residential customer was 2,392 kilowatt-hours.

Of the Company's 5,056 employees, nearly 800 received promotions or changes in job classifications during 1952.

In the section on "Power from Atomic Energy," the report states:

"The time of successful adaptation of atomic energy to power generation is not predictable. It involves not only the solution of the many theoretical and practical problems associated with reactors and their application to power stations, but also long range system planning with respect to new plant locations, fuel supply, fuel reserves, etc. Steps have been taken to prepare the way for the Company's active participation in the research and design studies now in progress on the development of a suitable reactor for heat generation purposes. No practical method is now known or contemplated for converting atomic energy directly to electricity."

In their letter of transmittal, chairman of the Board Thomas W. Martin and president L. M. Smith state:

"Despite continuously increasing costs, operating economies which have been made effective and the high volume of business have made it possible to avoid general increases in rates. However, if costs continue to rise, rate increases appear to be inevitable.

"The change in national administration gives hope that the policy of encroachment by the government on the business of investor-owned, electric utilities will be materially modified to end the threat of unfair and wasteful government competition and duplication of facilities.

"In presenting this report, we extend appreciation to our customers and friends for their good will, to the men and women of Alabama Power Company for the conscientious application of their abilities to their assigned and other duties, and to the members of Southern Services, Inc., an associated company, which performs many specialized services for us. . . ."

Tales About Insects

Auburn, Ala. — Just because boll weevils were not too hard on cotton farmers the last two years doesn't mean they are not planning a knock-out blow this summer.

All available evidence points to a thriving population in cotton fields when the growing season starts. Above the average number of weevils went into winter quarters in good condition. Tests made at the API Experiment Station showed as many as 43,000 on some acres. The average per acre was 12,000.

The weather, too, has been working for the weevil. It has been ideal during the hibernation period. If we should have a wet cotton growing season this year, which may come since we have had two dry summers during the past two years, the chances of heavy weevil infestations are very likely.

In addition to the boll weevil, other cotton insects are to be considered. The unusual population of bollworms last summer points up to the fact that this insect will give trouble this year. Aphids and other cotton pests will likely be present in their usual numbers.

Therefore, it appears that farmers who plan their operations in advance should equip themselves with poison and machines to be ready for the battle with the bugs.

Insecticides that are effective in the control of cotton pests are cheaper now than they have been in the past. So it seems like a good time to buy at least one-half of the amount of poison needed for a good control program this summer.

For High Cotton Yield Get, Keep Good Stands

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers who make high cotton yields—a bale or more per acre—next fall will be those who get and keep a good, regular stand of plants.

The high producers will plant in rows three to three and a half feet apart, use around a bushel of re-ginned and treated seed or 16 pounds of acid delinted seed per acre, and plant on a firm seedbed.

Sometimes these farmers may find it necessary to run a harrow or rotary hoe over the row to break the crust so the young seedlings can come through. Then when chopping time comes they will leave enough plants to have two to three stalks spaced 12 to 18 [illegible] when cultivation is finished.

Since there is no cotton [illegible] higher income next fall.

Funds Asked To Help Combat Mental Illness

FLOYD McGOWIN HEADS STATEWIDE CAMPAIGN

A call for support of the statewide campaign for funds to combat mental and emotional illnesses was issued today by Floyd McGowin, Chapman lumberman and chairman of the campaign.

Mr. McGowin is heading a statewide organization that hopes to raise $75,000 the week of May 4th. The campaign is sponsored by the Alabama Association for Mental Health.

Mental and emotional illness fills half of Alabama's hospital beds, Mr. McGowin declared.

"Its effects are all around us," he said, "in murders, crime, delinquency, accidents, broken homes, alcoholism, school failure and job failure.

"And in the un-named misery of the neurotics we meet in everyday life—the people whose capacity to live and create is crippled by self-doubt and fear.

"Our state mental hospitals are antiquated and tragically overcrowded. We have only four mental hygiene clinics in the State and they are understaffed and operate on part-time schedules.

"Of the many people needing help today, only a few are getting it. Fear, superstition and ignorance have brought apathy and neglect."

Mr. McGowin said the Alabama Association for Mental Health is working for an increase in mental health facilities and qualified personnel sufficient to guarantee skillful, prompt help to all who need it.

It seeks to extend knowledge of the facts about mental illness and mental health so that citizens will demand and take responsibility for providing mental health services.

It helps finance a national program of research to discover more effective ways of preventing and treating mental and emotional disorders.

It promotes through popular education an understanding of the basic principles of mental health so that people all over the State will use these principles in their daily lives.

"These activities," Mr. McGowin continued, are carried on by members of the association board of directors, its staff and local affiliated associations over the state.

"They use every medium of public information, such as radio, television, newspapers, moving pictures, speaking and printed materials.

"Educational conferences and workshops are made available to key groups, such as parent-teacher associations, teachers, ministers, social workers, foremen and supervisors in industry who serve disturbed people or who are in key positions to affect mental health.

'The association's objective is a chance for every person to have a better opportunity to be mentally healthy, to be a secure person, with self-respect and self-reliance, able to accept and get along with others, and to find satisfaction and happiness in living."

Corn For Poultry

Make plans now to grow at least one bushel of corn for each pullet that will go into the laying house next fall.

To wash vegetables and be sure that dirt is rinsed from them thoroughly, set an inverted wire dish rack in the sink and lay the vegetables on top. Then allow water from the faucet to run over them. A spray attachment helps to do a better job.

Reaching Out from Antioch
Lesson for April 19: Acts 11: 25-26; 14: 8-20
Golden Text: II Corinthians 5: 20

After his conversion, Saul went into Arabia and remained there three years. He must have thought through the implications and demands of his new life in Christ. Then, by way of Jerusalem, where he spent fifteen days, he went to his native city of Tarsus. There after six or seven years, Barnabas sought Saul and brought him to Antioch.

After a year, in which much growth came to the church, the decision was reached to send out missionaries, and Barnabas and Saul were chosen. They went first to Cyprus, native isle of Barnabas. From that period on, Saul was known as Paul, even as he is now known to history. When they had left Cyprus and landed at the port of Perga on the Mediterranean, Mark left them and returned to Jerusalem.

At Lystra, after the healing of an impotent man, the people thought the gods had come down to men and the priest of Jupiter prepared to offer sacrifice, but Barnabas and Paul finally succeeded in stopping this. Then see how quickly changes can oftimes come! Incited by certain Jews Paul was stoned and dragged from the city and left for dead. But as the friends stood about, he revived, got to his feet, and returned to the city, to depart the following day with Barnabas to Derbe. May we find inspiration for our own missionary efforts by the study of Paul's heroic labors.

VOLUME XXXI CLANTON, ALABAMA FRIDAY, APRIL 17, 1953 NUMBER 30

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN —By Ben

Wonder why people are always worrying so much about money? We brought none with us—and we will take none when we go.

* * *

Mrs. Durwood Broadhead is mighty proud of her son, John, this week. He won second place in a Men's Fashion Show of formal wear at the University last week. He represented Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

* * *

The DAV's are breaking ground tomorrow (Saturday) for their new building on the Enterprise Road. Red Fulmer donated the ground for the new DAV Club House and special ceremonies are planned for the ground-breaking.

* * *

Our many thanks to Mrs. Marzee King Tew for her kindness and thoughtfulness in helping out with the "Around Our House" column for the past two weeks. Mrs. Tew is new to Clanton having just moved here when her husband, J. H. Tew, was transferred here as supervisor with the Brown Service Insurance Company. We deeply appreciate her help and hope the Tew's enjoy living among us.

* * *

How many of you know the extent of the business brought to Chilton County by the H-W Chair Company? If we had a half dozen more industries like H-W we'd be booming. The company employs 60 to 70 men. Operates in 17 states and employs 35 salesmen. Was talking to Joe Williams at the First National Bank and Joe also told us that they buy all of their raw materials here and the money spent by the company stays at home. There are four stockholders in the concern. They are Troy Maddox, I. J. Brock, H. H. Wyatt and W. N. Rainey.

HOME DEMONSTRATION TOUR AND LEADERSHIP SCHOOL

Wednesday, April 8th, Food Preservation Leaders of Home Demonstration Clubs were invited to tour the Clanton Freezer Plant and to attend a Leadership School on "Preparing Foods for Freezing."

Ladies met at the Freezer Plant at 11:00 a.m. and were shown through the entire plant. After the tour of the Plant the ladies saw a demonstration of cutting and wrapping beef and pork for freezing.

At 1:30 p.m. the leaders met at the City Hall in Clanton for the Leadership School. Miss Lavada Curtis, Food Preservation Specialist from Auburn gave a demonstration on preparing foods for freezing. Valuable information on containers and paper for use in freezing was given. Foods that were prepared and wrapped or packaged for freezing were: Steak, pork chops, pork sausage, eggs, peaches and string beans.

The demonstration, "Preparing Foods for Freezing," will be given in the Home Demonstration Clubs of the County at the May meeting. Food Preservation Leaders who were at the Leadership School will give the demonstration in their Clubs. Eight Clubs of the County were represented by the following ladies:

Mrs. Ozema Green, Isabella; Mrs. Harley Calloway, Coopers; Mrs. J. C. Boockholdt, Bethsalem; Mrs. F. C. Gibson, Mrs. C. J. McCarty, Mrs. Rasberry, Macedonia; Mrs. Aubrey Smith, Mrs. Esther Childers, Mrs. Ben Wells, Poplar Springs; Mrs. Leslie Thornton, Mrs. Turner Eiland, Cedar Grove; Mrs. William C. Young, Mrs. Jeff Cargile, Thorsby; and Mrs. C. J. Williams and Mrs. G. M. Durbin, Fairview.

RURAL MAIL BOX IMPROVEMENT WEEK

The Post Office Department has designated the week ending April 18, 1953, as Rural Mail Box Improvement Week. Patrons of rural mail routes are urged to see that their mail boxes are properly erected and in good serviceable condition to protect the mail from damage by weather. It is desirable that the name of the patron be inscribed on the side of the box visible to the carrier and that the boxes and their supports be kept painted. All boxes regardless of the type, should be of such design and in such condition that there will be no likelihood of the carrier's being injured when serving them. The cooperation of the public in this regard will be appreciated. — R. W. Lowe, Postmaster.

Soil Testing

The local county agent can tell you about how to have your soil tested at the A.P.I. Soil Testing Laboratory in Auburn. The laboratory will tell you whether your soil needs lime and whether it is low, medium, or high in phosphorous and potash.

Double - Header Concert Tonight At Courthouse

The people of Central Alabama will be privileged to attend another big concert at the courthouse in Clanton Friday (tonight) of this week. This will be a double-header, with W. G. Snider and his famous Rainbow Quartet, along with J. G. Whitfield and the Gospel Melody Singers from Pensacola, Fla. The Gospel Melody Singers have never appeared in concert in this section before, and you'll want to see and hear them.

Both of these groups are real good singers, and are appearing in concert in many of the large auditoriums throughout the Southland, singing to capacity crowds. If you miss this concert, you'll miss one of the very best. Tickets are now on sale at the Calloway-Allred Drug Co.

Advance tickets 40c and 75c. At the door tickets 50c and $1.00. Get your tickets in advance and avoid the rush at the door. Come early, rain or shine and get a good seat.

DAV AUXILIARY TO MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

There will be a meeting of Chilton County Chapter No. 33 D.A.V. Auxiliary next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the City Grill.

New officers for the year will be elected and delegates to the State Convention will be named.

ENTERTAINS FOR CONGRESSMAN SELDEN

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Warr entertained Congressman Armistead I. Selden, his assistant, Tommy Gilbert, Probate Judge M. D. Tingle and Chief Clerk Bob Fullen last Friday evening at dinner. Representative Selden was here to speak before the Disabled American Veterans.

Paint stains are removed easily from the hands if they are rubbed with Vaseline before starting the paint job.

Local Textile Worker Honored

Mr. Lawson Henry Bannister of the General Shop, Alabama Mills, Inc., was presented a scroll of honor by Mr. Paul A. Redmond, President of Alabama Mills, Inc., for the distinction of having the longest record of continuous service of any employee of the Company, in the non-supervisory capacity. Mr. Bannister started to work with Alabama Mills, Inc., on October 14, 1928, as a machinist in the General Shop, which was previously located in Jasper. In June, 1945, Mr. Bannister was transferred to Clanton with the moving of the General Shop.

He is married to the former Miss Ruth Maddox of Walker County, and is the father of six children, two sons and four daughters.

PROVIDENCE TO ORGANIZE B.T.U. SUNDAY NIGHT

A Bible Training Union will be organized at the Providence Baptist Church Sunday night, April 19th, according to plans made some two weeks ago. All members and friends of this church and community are urged to come help and enroll in this worthy organization.

We would also like to remind the people that Sunday is our regular third Sunday preaching day. Sunday School will begin promptly at 10 o'clock and Bro. W. E. Robinson will bring the message at the 11 o'clock hour. B.T.U. service at 6:30 p.m., preaching following Sunday night. You are cordially invited.

SR. III CLASS PLAY AT VERBENA

For a night of fun don't miss "Here Comes Charlie." When Larry Elliot's ward arrives, he is surprised and you will be surprised too. Larry Elliot, a young broker, thinking he is becoming guardian of a small boy, is jolted to find he has taken a girl to raise, seventeen and pretty. Charlotte is called Charlie, hence the error. Why the jolt? Well, Larry is engaged to the imperious Vivian Smythe-Kersey and is further hen-ridden by a snobbish aunt. Charlie arrives from Arkansas, accompanied by Uncle Aleck Twiggs, like Charlie herself a true product of the Ozarks. Farcial situation develop from the ocial blunder of the new arrival, epecially when Aunt Fanny Farnham, determined to make Uncle Aleck earn his board and keep, tries to turn him into a society butler.

The Verbena Sr. III Class wishes you to enjoy this play with them Friday night, April 24, at 8 o'clock. Admission 25c and 50c.

The characters are as follows:

Nora Malone, cook at the Elliot home — Hilder Brigance.

Officer Tim McGrill — Nora's sweetheart — J. E. Edwards.

Mrs. Fanny Farnham — Larry's aunt by marriage — Lamerle Patterson.

Larry Elliot — a young businessman — Harold Pierce.

Ted Hartley — Larry's old-time college pal — Donald Fant.

Vivian Smyth-Kersey — Larry's fiancee — Mary Nell Stroud.

Uncle Aleck Twiggs — in charge of Charlie — Gordon Burkhalter.

Charlie Hopps — Larry's ward— Annie Fern Edwards.

Mrs. Caroline Smythe-Kersey— Vivian's mother — Barbara Mullins.

Mortimer Smyth-Kersey — Vivian's brother — Wayne Jones.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT MAPLESVILLE

Revival services will begin at the Maplesville Baptist Church Sunday, April 19th, and run through Friday night, April 24th.

Two ministerial students from Howard College will lead in this revival. Bro. Ray Watt will do the preaching and Bro. Hilton Olive will lead the singing.

Services will be at night only at 7:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Patsy Young, Senior Dress, 1st place, will represent Chilton County in the State Contest which will be held this summer. She will go to Auburn for State 4-H Camp, July 6-11th, and at that time the State Contest will be held.

Life Behind The Iron Curtain

REV. ROBERT TARZIER

An intimate picture of life behind the Iron Curtain in Soviet Russia will be graphically told by Rev. Robert Tarzier, Director of the Nordic Mission in America, Sunday, April 19th, at Thorsby Baptist Church.

If you want to know what it takes and how difficult it is to worship God in Russia and Communist held countries, you will want to hear this amazing message by a man who escaped from all the tortures that the Communists had to offer.

Mr. Tarzier, prior to his escape from Soviet Union, was pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church at Riga, Latvia, a church which since 1912 has been internationally known for its missionary and soul winning program. It had stood out as a bright and shining star—and consequently was a target for the Reds.

The father of Mr. Tarzier, who was a preacher of the gospel, was buried alive by the Russian Bolsheviks in a mass killing. He was sentenced to death in a church, which was taken over by the Communists and desecrated in the most horrible way and then turned into a revolutionary court.

Mr. Tarzier has seen arrests, imprisonments and ill-treatment at the hands of Communists.

At the close of the last World War, Mr. Tarzier escaped to Sweden in a leaky fishing boat without food or water.

His subjects will be: Morning subject, "From Communist Mass Graveside to the Preaching of the Gospel in Soviet Russia." Evening subject, "Life and Christian Living As I Knew It for 25 Years in Soviet Russia."

The messages will be revealing, challenging and inspiring. Come and bring your friends. The service will be held at the Thorsby Baptist Church, Thorsby, Sunday, April 19, 1953.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pipes and two chidren, Hardie and Susie, of Huntsville, spent the week end here with Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Pipes.

FLAG AND POLE DONATED TO MAPLESVILLE HIGH BY VFW

The Ladies Auxiliary to Maplesville VFW Post 6331 presented a ... and flag pole to the Maplesville High School at a very impressive dedication service on the front campus of the school on Thursday afternoon, April 2nd. Mrs. E. T. ... chairman of the Americanism ... the auxiliary, welcomed ... and children and ... She said that one of the ...

Families ... munity who had given the supreme sacrifice for our country were ... guests that day. ... were ... Mr. George Gillespie, Mr. ... Hamler, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix, Mrs. Jerry Ratliff; and Mrs. Morgan Ratliff. Other guests included Mrs. Joe Macon of Wetumpka, Mayor McCain, Mr. Boockholdt, Superintendent of Education, and Miss Louise Foshee, School Attendance Supervisor, and Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bazzell of Clanton.

The Rev. W. Francis Rasberry, pastor of the Maplesville Baptist Church, gave the invocation. Mrs. Van Potts, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, in presenting the flag and flag pole to Mr. Daniels, principal of the school, said that the flag pole had been given by Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix in memory of their son, Lt. Harvey M. Nix, Jr., who gave his life for his country March 21, 1953. The flag was given to the Auxiliary by former Congressman Mr. Ed deGraffenreid and had flown over our nation's capitol. A letter certifying to that was included in the presentation.

Mr. Horton Walker of Prattville, ... VFW Department Adjutant-Quartermaster and a former resident of Maplesville, was the principal speaker and challenged those persent to re-affirm their allegiance to the flag because it has been bought with a great price—it is the symbol of every high ideal in the way of American life. The red is made more brilliant by the heroism and sacrifices of our brave defenders; the white more pure because of the motives which impelled them; and the blue of the starry field more beautiful by the loyalty and unity of all our peoples for liberty and justice.

As the members of the Ladies Auxiliary watched, 10 members of the Maplesville VFW Post in their service uniforms led by their Commander, N. C. Graham, participated in a very impressive dedication ceremonial. The music for the program was furnished by the school band directed by Comrade E. T. Clapp, and the Glee Club under the direction of Mrs. Bert Snead.

The members of the Ladies Auxiliary attending were: Mrs. George Gillespie, Mrs. J. W. Graham, Mrs. Jack Hampton, Mrs. Bill Hampton, Mrs. Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. Joe Kelley, Mrs. Perry Thomas, Mrs. Curtis Rucker, Mrs. T. C. Watson, Miss Frances Reynolds, Mrs. Van Potts, Mrs. E. T. Clapp, Mrs. Billie Dennis and Mrs. Quinton Mitchell.

We know some pompous individuals who look just like they have swallowed themselves.

One reason that reading is such a chore is because so many writers have so little to say.

People who live in a nice town, like Clanton, ought to appreciate the opportunity.

Despite the short routes and quick cures, there is no easy way to anything that is worth much.

A NEW INDUSTRY

Clanton businessmen have organized a new industry known as the Chilco Cabinet Manufacturing Company.

The new organization, we understand, will employ only eight or ten men to be sure, but it is welcome to the industrial life of our community and will be, we are sure, an asset.

Even though small several like institutions could mean much to Chilton County. Good luck to the new company.

A NEW HIGHWAY?

Rumblings are still being heard about a new four-lane highway to be constructed this year through Clanton.

Well, not exactly through Clanton maybe, but within the corporate limits of the city and just east of the City Park.

Our contention has always been that it will be a great help to the business life of our little city for the highway to go around the business section instead of directly through it. What with traffic the way it is today we will have enough difficulty with local automobiles and trucks without the added responsibility of the transcient.

Anyone travelling the new highway, when it is constructed, will come into Clanton if they are interested in visiting with us a while. In the meantime we will be free of the heavy travel that is congesting our small, narrow streets.

We hope the day is not too far distant when the new highway will be a reality.

GREAT BALLS OF FIRE!

We received another letter from the Public Relations Council of something or other this week. This is the second letter within a fortnight calling us down for using a lower-case letter when mentioning a registered trade-mark.

The letter was composed by a most diplomatic young lady, we are sure, and the whole tone of the letter was one of friendliness and good will. But things are getting in one hell (oh, excuse it; that is probably a trade-mark) Hell of a shape when you need go around worrying about whether a little word is spelled with a capital or lower-case letter.

Fishing conditions on the Coosa-Tallapoosa Lakes are improving steadily, and the prospects for this week are excellent. Last week it was reported that fishing was spotty and you had to know where to go in order to "string 'em up," this week, those same spots are spreading, and it will not be long before you can lay the maps aside and just go fishing.

Entries in the Alabama Power Company Fishing Contest are pouring in fast, and give solid proof that good fishing is being enjoyed by many Whopper-Catchers.

Lake Lay—

Edgar Hardiman, manager, Riverview Fishing Camp, just above Lay Dam, reports: H. W. Branch, Lay Dam Village, Clanton, used a large silver spoon fishing the river sloughs and hooked a nice string of Smallmouth Bass, the largest weighed in at 3 pounds 12 ounces. Elmer Woods, 7208 North 2nd Avenue, Birmingham, had good luck with a Cisco Kid fishing near the mouth of Paint Creek. The string of eight Smallmouth Bass included a 3½ and 4½ pounder. Elbert Talley, 4917 South 16th Avenue, Birmingham, tied into a 4-pound, 4-ounce Largemouth Bass on Paint Creek, and during the tussle, he almost lost his rod and fish. A large Redhead River Runt was the type bait used in making the catch.

H. C. Leigh, Leigh's Fishing Camp, Waxahatchee Creek, reports: R. C. Peterson, Jemison, fished with Robert W. Reynolds, Montevallo, and between them six nice Bass and thirteen White Perch were creeled. The method used in making the catch was trolling, and the place was Waxahatchee Creek. R. C.'s largest White Perch weighed in at 1 pound, 8 ounces, and Bob's weighed 1 pound 10 ounces.

Paul Burton's Service Station, Shelby, reports: Ben Fortner, 1216 Waverly Street, Tarrant City, had a great deal of fun stringing up his whoppin' 5 pound 11 ounce Largemouth Bass. Ben used a Mercury Minnow at the mouth of Waxahatchee Creek to catch his nice string of Bass and Crappie.

Lake Mitchell—

L. F. Cox, Cox's Fishing Camp, Cargile Creek, reports: Barney Parsons, Marbury, fishes the Coosa Lakes about as much as anyone and catches fish when others come in empty-handed. Last week, Barney boated nine Bass weighing 21 pounds and seven Crappies. The catch was made down around the mouth of Cargile Creek, a Yellow Sally was used as bait. The prize catch in the string was a Dan-Dan-Dandy 5 pound, 6 ounce Smallmouth Bass.

Mrs. Mildred Traywick, Traywick's Boat Dock, at the mouth of Yellow Leaf Creek, reports: C. W. Jones, Clanton, used a Buck's Fluffy Tail Duster in the extreme upper reaches of Mitchell Lake and boated thirteen Stripes that averaged just under 2 pounds each. The best catch of the day tilted the scales to 2 pounds and 5 ounces.

F. Z. Ward, Pennymotley Fishing Camp, Pennymotley Creek, reports: Mrs. Otis Peoples, Rockford, took home the limit of Crappie, the largest weighed 2 pounds, 1 ounce. Live Minnows and Pennymotley Creek was the combination used in making the catch.

Lake Jordan—

J. B. Kelly's Store, near Swayback Bridge, reports: Mrs. Carl Smith, 1411 West Street, Montgomery, fished Sofkahatchee Creek with a hand pole and live Minnows and caught a nice string of White Perch, the largest weighing 1 pound, 5 ounces. Mrs. R. W. Flaherty, 3598 Felder Street, Montgomery, also used live Minnows and Sofkahatchee Creek to catch her 1 pound 12 ounce White Perch.

Lonnie Holland, Manager, Bonner's Fishing Camp, near Holtville, reports: W. P. "Doc" Kimbrough, 3 Cedar Street, Montgomery, caught a nice string of Largemouth Bass with an L & S Bassmaster. Doc's largest catch weighed-in at 4 pounds 8 ounces. Lloyd Fain, 618 Company Street, Wetumpka, creeled ten Crappie that averaged better than one pound each, the largest was 2 pounds even. Lloyd used live Minnows and the river sloughs to make the catch.

W. H. Sears, Swayback Bridge Boat Dock, Sofkahatchee Creek, reports: L. D. Cartee, 165 Riverside Drive, Montgomery, had a time landing his prize catch, a 2 pound 1 ounce Crappie. Live Minnows was the bait and Sofkahatchee Creek was the location where the excitement occurred.

Lake Martin—

W. L. Pemberton, owner, Lake Hills Inn, Highway 241, five miles south of Alexander City, reports: Marshall Hill, 203 Madison Street, Alexander City, fished with live minnows near New Hope Church, and caught some nice Crappie, the largest on the string weighed 2 pounds, 5 ounces.

J. B. Kelly's Store, near Wetumpka, reports: J. C. Weldon, 619 North Bridge Street, Wetumpka, brought in a 6 pound, 12 ounce Largemouth Bass from Parker Creek. A Lazy Ike was the productive plug used in making the catch.

Be sure and enter your catch in the contest, become a member of the Whopper- Catchers Club. No dues or no meetings, just enter your catch that equals or exceeds the base weights, see contest leaflet, and you will receive an attractive 8" x 10" membership certificate.

Scanning the NEWS

IT HAS long been believed by observers watching the political "hassle" in Washington, that many big-name government men talk too much. That belief is now taking firm hold of some of the men who make the final decisions in government.

As an example of what talk will do, military observers are pointing to the latest attacks by the Chinese in Korea. In this country the newspapers carried headlines for days telling of reported ammunition shortages in Korea. Military men made reports, senators investigated and talked, and the subject became a topic of discussion at every bridge table, tea party and country club across the nation.

Now the military men are saying that the Reds evidently believed, or wanted to find out for themselves, and for that reason launched their new attack which overran two U. N. positions and caused the worse Allied setback in over five months.

These investigations are getting out of hand, many believe, and are causing concern in the highest circle of government.

One senator recently shouted on the floor of the senate that the U. S. Airforce lied about the attack by Red planes on a U. S. weather aircraft off the coast of Siberia. His statement, has made excellent propaganda for the Reds. It was never explained where he got his information concerning the incident.

President Eisenhower is becoming extremely concerned over the investigations that are taking up so much time for the lawmakers and some of the results.

He said at a recent news conference that he believes congressional investigations of subversive activities can be carried to a point of damaging from within what you are trying to protect from without. And you need real wisdom to avoid that, he added.

The question of investigations was also the subject of a recent editorial in The New York Times, which said in part: "There have been many signs recently that the country is waking up the menace of attacks by irresponsible congressional committees, or the chairmen thereof, on the basic rights of American citizens. If these attacks have not yet reached a point of grave danger it is because they are mainly conducted by men of small-intellectual stature. These are not the giants of congress. They are the little men who might otherwise be overlooked. They are little men intoxicated with a bit of power and a splash of publicity. They must, however, be dealt with, preferably by their congressional brethren. We cannot indefinitely have these arrogant upstarts prying into matters which are no affair of theirs, including the private opinions of our citizens."

This editorial is quoted only because it expresses the thinking that is beginning to prevail in the nation's capital.

Another proposed investigation that has caused considerable comment was Representative Velde's suggestion a probe should be made of Communist infiltration into the churches of the country.

This investigation immediately caused a storm of protest among church leaders. At the moment it appears unlikely that such an investigation will ever take place.

Congressman, Sixth District

TO THE CITIZENS OF THE SIXTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

I am submitting, through the co-operation of the newspapers of the Sixth District, a questionnaire on important legislation or important issues which this Congress may possibly consider before its adjournment this year. This legislation or these issues may vitally affect you economically, socially, and politically, as well as the future welfare of our nation. You have a right and a duty to express your opinion to your Congressman on these vital issues. I hope you will study these questions and give me your views based upon what you believe is for the best interest of our District, State and Nation. Although it may be impossible to personally acknowledge receipt of these questionnaires, you can be sure that they will be given careful consideration by your Congressman before he casts a vote on any of these important issues. When answering, please mail to:

The many friends of Mrs. Warner Paulsen, the former Doris Williams of Clanton, will regret to learn of the death of her husband, who died on April 5th in Seattle, Wash.

Mr. Paulsen was superintendent of the American Cannery Company and spent part of each year in Anchorage, Alaska. Their home was in Seattle. He is survived by his wife and three children.

Mrs. Paulsen's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams of Clanton.

Around OUR HOUSE

Kathryn, let me pinch-hit for you once more and I'll quit. When my husband read last week's paper, he said, "Whatever possessed you to do that?" We won't try to analyze his question. It was long-winded; wasn't it? That is; what I wrote was long-winded.

* * *

The sickness in your family must not be over; I noticed that Around Our House wasn't in Tuesday's News. We are still thinking about you.

* * *

Picking a doctor in a new town can be a job. We talkekd to several people about which doctor to use. One person contradicted the other and all we accomplished was to get more confused than ever. So I just chose the one nearest our home. The less-than-one-year old doesn't like him because he "shot" her and vaccinated her on the same day. But the mother liked his manner fine. I just can't understand why people make long trips to out-of-town doctors for regular routine shots and the like when there are good doctors right here.

* * *

Have you had your X-ray yet? Or have you waited like we have? We absolutely must get that done today. We went one day but the place was crowded so we didn't wait. At least some people aren't waiting until the last day.

* * *

By now, you can tell that we are new in Clanton. So may I use this medium to ask some questions? Is there a garden club here? I'd like to join one. And do you have Stanley parties? I am out of so many things?

* * *

Easter Sunday we hid eggs at the Park and we were happy to see that new windows had been put in the hut. Let's just hope our delinquents don't break them out again. Looks as if somebody had put some new flowers out, too. The Park, as a whole, looked so much prettier than it did when we first saw it a couple of months ago.

* * *

There are numbers of meetings going on at various churches in our county. We should certainly support these meetings. Let me invite you to attend the meeting at the Church of Christ next week. We hope to be better people after hearing words of truth and after being associated with each other at these meetings.

Dress Patterns—

When a dress pattern becomes so wrinkled that it is difficult to work with, place the pattern under wax paper and iron. This stiffens the paper and smooths out wrinkles.

HIGHLAND CHURCH

Attendance was improved this week end. Bro. Deason delivered a very enjoyable message following Sunday School. Bro. Deavers from Shiloh brought the message Sunday night. All present enjoyed the service and we were glad to have him with us and invite him back again very soon. Also we had several visitors for church and we would like for them to know we appreciate their presence and invite them back.

Everyone pease remember Sunday School next Sunday at 10 o'clock, and Training Union at 6 o'clock, and make a special effort to be present for each service. If you are not there you miss a great blessing that comes from being a good Christian and worker in the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Willis and daughter of Selma moved last week to a house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Green at Dixie. We welcome this family back home.

Mr. Frank Stone of Montgomery spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. William Ruddick. Mr. Stone was principal of the Stanton Jr. High School some years ago. He has many friends in this and adjoining communities who are always glad to see him. Mr. Stone attended the funeral of his friend, Mr. Lee Ousley, at Alpine Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ruddick of Cordova spent the week end with the William Ruddicks.

Mrs. John Aultman and daughter, Myra, of Tuscaloosa came one day last week to the home of Mrs. Aultman's mother, Mrs. Stella Gregg. Mrs. Aultman is a nurse and came at this time to help with her grandfather, Mr. Lee Ousley, during his illness.

All of the children of Mrs. Stella Gregg came home over the week end to attend the funeral of their grandfather, Mr. Lee Ousley.

Bobby Burnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Buck Burnett, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Gewin Eaves and son and Mr. and Mrs. Tip Burnett in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Burnett and Brooks spent last week end in Birmingham. Bobby returned home with them.

Mrs. Buck Burnett suffered a very painful accident last Wednesday night while slicing a shoulder of meat. She cut her left hand pretty bad, however, at this time she is able to use her hand is doing the necessary jobs around the house.

Mrs. Rubie Mae Biscoe of Plantersville recently taught a class of Junior girls and boys in a study course at the Stanton Baptist Church. Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. Mrs. Biscoe asked this group to visit with her in her home. The afternoon was very enjoyable for all those present. They enjoyed riding horseback, seeing the birds and dogs. During the visit Mrs. Biscoe served orange juice and cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barnes of Vida, Mrs. Polly Barnes, Miss Ruby Nell and Miss Blossom Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Osburn and family, Mr. and Mrs. Mason McCollough, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Latham, Mrs. Harry Keener and Mr. E. A. Walker were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Barnes. Everyone reported a lovely day.

Mr. J. N. McKee of the Fairview Community and father of Mr. Cecil McKee of this community suffered a stroke some weeks ago and has been very ill at his home. We are glad to report that Mr. McKee is improving. He is able to be up at this writing most of the time and has walked to the table for his meals and can talk. His nurse has been let go and friends and relatives in his community are kind enough to see after Mr. and Mrs. McKee until Mr. McKee is sufficiently well enough for them to be left alone.

Mrs. Lillie Rebecca McCay, 56, of Plantersville died in a Selma hospital at 3:15 a.m. Monday, April 6th, after a short illness. Funeral services were held from the Awin Christian Church, Wilcox County, at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday. Breslin Service in charge. Mrs. McCay, a native of Benton, is survived by her husband, W. M. McCay, three sons, three daughters and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Foy Peacock, 508½ Mabry, Selma, died in a Selma hospital at 10:30 a.m., April 6th, after a brief illness. Funeral services were held from the Breslin Service Funeral Home at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. Rev. Ellis Andrews officiating. Burial in New Live Oak Cemetery. Survivors include her husband, Foy C. Peacock; three daughters, Mrs. J. M. Ellenberg, Kilgore, Texas, Mrs. Charles Huffman and Mrs. Kenneth McGee of Selma; two sisters, one brother and one granddaughter. Sympathy is extended the loved ones.

Mrs. Peacock was an employee of Bendersky's Jewelry Company.

Pallbearers were: Sidney Renshaw, Nathan Bendersky, J. C. Crisman, Harry Wilson, Terrell Hicks and W. R. Thomas.

A thimble-wise 15-year-old Junior-High School miss from Plantersville is Dallas County's Dress Revue contest winner. Lois Ousley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Ousley, Plantersville Route 2, modeled her way into representing that county in the State Dress Revue Contest while wearing a white-striped, two-piece 4-H uniform with a white dickey. Miss Ousley and other sewing interested 4-H Club girls from all over the county displayed their handiwork before judges at the court house on Saturday in the six division dress revue contest. Congratulations, Miss Ousley. We're pulling for you to be the State winner.

Merritt Walker, Jr., and Mrs. Valvin C. Giles were reported as patients in Selma hospitals Sunday. Both being continedi to the Selma Baptist Hospital. We wish for them a speedy recovery.

Mr. Robert Lee Ousley, Plantersville Route 2, died at his residence on his 82nd birthday, 2:50 a.m. last Friday, April 10, after a lengthy illness. Funeral services were held at 2:00 p.m. from the Alpine Baptist Church Saturday. Rev. R. W. Stuckey officiating. Burial in the adjoining cemetery, Breslin Service directing. Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Clara Ousley; four daughters, Mrs. Stella Gregg, Mrs. J. T. Walker, Mrs. E. W. Walker, all of Stanton, Mrs. Harold Smith of Clanton; five sons, T. H. and F. B. of Jones, H. T. of Montgomery, E. M. of Maplesville and Bruce of Plantersville; one brother, T. A. Ousley, Bay Minette. Mr. Ousley was loved by people from all walks of life. He loved his family and his church. He was faithful to his friends and ever ready to do all that he could for the betterment of the community in which he lived. He will be greatly missed.

His funeral was attended by a large number of sorrowing friends, neighbors and relatives. The church and grounds surrounding were filled with people and the flowers were many and very beautiful.

Special singers for this funeral were: Mr. Will B. Rush, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Harrison, Billy Davis and Miss Mattie Ruth Rush with Mrs. L. D. Harrison at the piano.

Saturday night the women of Rehoboth Church at Lawley gave the men and their husbands a surprise supper and entertainment in appreciation to their loyalty to the church especially to those of the church who worked so faithfully in building recently new Sunday School rooms for the church. In fact this entertainment was for any friends of the church that cared to attend. This was a very enjoyable get-together and the special singing by Miss Sara Guin Rush, Miss Mattie Ruth Rush, Miss Mary Charles Rush, Billy Davis, Leslie Benton and C. W. Rush, Jr., with Miss Mattie Ruth Rush at the piano. Mr. Will D. Rush accompanied this group to the church and also enjoyed this entertainment.

Your reporter would like to take this means to expressing appreciation for the nice, well kept church at Alpine; the spirit of fellowship that exists there, the kind welcome given those that are visitors there, the kind welcome to newcomers, and certainly for the friendliness shown by the people of that community in all the affairs at the church. It is a church that they can well be proud of. Then we would not forget to mention the grounds surrounding the church. They are well kept and the cemetery speaks for itself. It is well cared for. To me this is an outstanding church in every respect and I do feel the people are to be commended on the care they show for the church and their loved ones buried there.

Funeral services for Mrs. Irma Polson Walters, 48, of Selmont, was held from the Breslin Service Funeral Home at 2:00 p.m. Sunday, April 12th. Mrs. Walters, wife of Johnny Walters, who owns the Walters Music Company in Selma, died in a Selma hospital at 1:50 p.m. Friday. Mrs. Walters is survived by her husband, mother, a son, Marshall H. Walters, Selma; one daughter, Mrs. Jimmy Grindle, seven sisters, six brothers.

Many of our residents are friends of this family and extend their sympathy. The son of Mrs. Walters, known as "Bub" to his friends in this section, has been a frequent visitor and to him we extend deepest sympathy.

Nothing could be more deploring than to learn of the passing of a friend, a steadfast friend, that you have treasured for many years. Even though all the friends of Mrs. Gladys Kennerly of Selma knew she had cancer, they still clung to the hopes, that she would rally from treatments and possibly by some miracle it would be found that she would survive. News reached this section late Saturday evening of the passing of Mrs. Kennerly, better known as "Boss" by all her friends, at 7:15 p.m. Saturday in a local hospital after an illness of 10 months. Mrs. Kennerly operated the Pride Ice Cream Parlor and a refreshment center for Cloverleaf and was connected with local restaurant operations for a number of years in Selma.

She was a waitress at the Selma Del and was cashier there until the time of her illness. "Boss" made friends by the scores and was ever true to that friendship. To know her was to love her. She loved youth and had such patience at all times; so cheerful and sweet. Always greeting friends and saying a kind word or two or stopping by for a chat. The public was her life and she loved people—all kinds of people and was ever ready to lend a helping hand to those less fortunate. I'm sure that many sadnesses came to "Boss" throughout her life, but you never knew of that sadness in her actions or talk. Her life could well be an example to many. She will be greatly missed and a link from our treasured friendships has been broken, but her memory will linger—a memory that all of us who knew her will treasure our whole life through.

Mrs. Kennerly is survived by two sons, James F. Kennerly and Lewis Kennerly, the latter being with the USAF at Denver, Colo., Station; her mother, Mrs. Sam Eklune, of St. Andrews, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Doris Moates and Mrs. Hazel Crawford, both of St. Andrews, Fla.

Polio Vaccine Undergoes Test; Medical History in the Making

NEW YORK—The biggest story in medical history is in the making. It may become a completed story before the year is over.

The story is the new polio vaccine which recently passed its first human tests on 90 children and adults. A creamy vaccine, homogenized in mineral oil, gave all 90 persons protective antibodies against all three types of virus that can cause human polio.

However, Dr. Jonas E. Salks, who has worked on the vaccine, warns there will be no polio vaccine for general use this summer and that a great amount of work remains before the vaccine is ready for wide public use.

The vaccine is the result of the work of hundreds of scientists and $18,000,000 in March of Dimes funds.

It is made out of all three types of polio virus, grown in test tubes and then killed or inactivated with formaldehyde.

Disarmed this way, the viruses cannot cause polio, but can still stimulate the human body to produce antibodies, the agents to fight off invading live viruses.

Three weeks after the vaccine was injected into muscles, 90 persons all had antibodies against all three types of virus that cause human polio. They developed as many, or more, antibodies than if they had actually been invaded by live viruses.

Dr. Salk said many more careful tests must be made first on hundreds or thousands of people before the vaccine is ready for wide use.

The pace of progress is fast, he said, but must continue step by step to make sure of this vaccine It was first disclosed last January

Dr. Salk said scientists working on the vaccine want to reach their goal as quickly as they can, but it cannot be done in one day. It will be achieved, he said, if we move cautiously and with understanding step by step.

Certain things cannot be hastened, since each new step cannot be made without establishing first the wisdom of the one before. We are now faced with facts, and not merely with theories. With this new enlightenment we can move forward more rapidly and with more confidence, he added.

The tests were made on children at the D. T. Watson Home for Crippled Children, Leetsdale, Pennsylvania, and on children and adults at the Polk State School, Polk, Pennsylvania, which treats the mentally retarded.

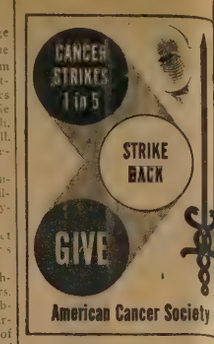
MRS. CLYDIE M. ROBINSON

Mrs. Clydie Mae Robinson, age 47, of Clanton Route 1, died at the Central Alabama Hospital from gunshot wounds at 11:45 a.m. Saturday, April 11th. Funeral services were held from Faith Tabernacle at 2:00 p.m. Monday, April 13th, conducted by Rev. Homer Carroll. Interment in New Harmony Cemetery.

Pallbearers were: Raymond Johnson, Burbie Stewart, H. G. Wilharte, Hubert Driver, Clifford Bryant, Willie Cleckler.

Flower ladies were: Margaret Martin, Drucilla Williams, Dora Conell, Clara Hunter and others.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. E. Andrews, Mrs. Agnes Driver and Miss Willie Robinson, all of Clanton; five sons, Arthur and Edward Robinson of Montgomery, Gene, Jimmie and Donald Robinson, all of Clanton; three brothers, Braskom Riggins of Birmingham, Corbit and Whalyn Riggins of Clanton; three sisters, Mrs. Nettie Melton, Mrs. Bo Price and Mrs. Ruth Oaks of C ton.



PLANTING TIME...

Wherever you see new telephone poles being "planted" and rural lines strung, it means service for folks who didn't have it before—service that helps get things done on the farm and in the home.

Every month, Southern Bell is adding about 6,000 new rural telephones. That's the kind of progress we like to report because we're devoting a lot of know-how, materials and money to rural telephone expansion.

My PET PEEVE By W. Scott Boyd

THESE spring hats the ladies are wearing are enough to give a fellow the jitters and bad dreams. I met one in the office-building elevator the other day.

I can't describe it exactly. It was a lot of straw, fish net, and gadgets. In the back there was a display of feathers somewhat similar to what a peacock's tail is supposed to look like.

The elevator is almost full when this well-padded matron pushes herself in and jams me against the back of the craft. This peacock feather display spread itself just below my nose. For a guy who is allergic to feathers that was tempting fate.

The sneeze, when I finally let it go, was a long, drawn-out one with enough wind to it to set a schooner on course at 10 knots. The hat tilted and set sail. It came to roost on the bald-headed man in front of the matron, with the tail effect tilted at a dangerous angle.

The matron screamed. The bald-headed man slapped the hat and it fell to the floor of the elevator.

"I'm very sorry," says I, and attempts to pick up the object of so much trouble. Did you ever try to pick up a hat in a crowded elevator? It can't be done.

The elevator girl became panic-stricken and punched the wrong button. We stopped with a jerk and the matron sat down on me.

"My lovely $15 chapeau," wails the matron.

I managed to get the elevator girl's attention. "Get this contraption started," I snarls.

"Don't shout at me," she weeps.

If I live to be a hundred I'll never forget the struggle that followed as they hoisted the matron and her squashed spring hat out the emergency exit.

And I'm not likely to forget that $15 hat bill when it arrives.

Lillie Bell Darby and Peggy Nell Kennedy and little Willie Lessie Wright motored to Guntersville to visit Mr. Willie James Wright. They reported a pleasant trip.

Mrs. Lillie Mae Gunn was hostess to the Franklinnite Saving Club on Monday night, April 13th. A tasty salad plate and coffee were served. Mrs. Gussie M. Saxon, president.

The monthly social of the Sunset Saving Club was held Monday night, April 6th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orell Smith, with Mrs. Lucendia Caver as hostess. After the program and business period a tasty repass was served, which all enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Calloway had a family reunion on Sunday. Besides the family here, Mrs. Calloway's two sisters, Mrs. La Dora Twitty of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Annie Huckabee, of Birmingham; two brothers, Mr. John Banks, Mr. N. G. Banks, a niece, Mrs. Gladys Foster, and daughter, all of Bessemer. All reported a most enjoyable time.

Prof. Lindsey D. Draper, principal of the Norris HighSchool, Attalla, Ala., spent Saturday, April 11th, with his mother, Mrs. L. M. Draper.

Russia Cannot Be Trusted, Says Senator Sparkman

Senator John Sparkkman, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has warned against putting trust in Russia's peace moves.

"Let her show by action and not words alone that she wants peace," Sparkman said.

The Senator expressed fear that Russia's change of tactics may mislead us and other peace-seeking nations into a feeling of false security.

"Certainly," Sparkman said, "we fervently hope that recent peace gestures are real. Such gestures have been: (1) admitting that the United States and England played an important part in winning World War II; (2) agreeing to a four-power conference on a German peace treaty; (3) directing that the Communists of North Korea accept our proposal to exchange sick and wounded prisoners; and (4) pledging full assistance to bring about a Korean armistice and indicating at long last a willingess to discuss international control of atomic power.

"We would be in error not to consider most carefully these and any other peaceful gestures made by Russia. We would, however, be guilty of a greater error should we act on the assumption that such gestures are made in good faith without positive proof that such is the case.

"While Russia's tactics have changed, it is most certain that her longrange objectives have not. Stalin, last fall, made clear that the chief Communist objective is to break up the Western Coalition, to have the free countries of the world quarrel among themselves.

"Malenkov, Stalin's successor, has repeatedly stated the same objective. He was one of the chief leaders at the world-wide Communist Conference in Moscow last autumn in planning the strategy to attain this objective.

"General Gruenther, Chief of Staff to General Ridgway, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, just recently told us in the Foreign Relations Committee that he is definitely of the opinion that recent moves of Russia are aimed at creating disunity between us and other countries. He stated that Russia has a stronger and larger army than two years ago.

Senator Sparkman declared that when Russia has talked peace in the past, it has meant either a cover-up for new aggression, or it has been a propaganda device in the cold war.

"With or without a Korean truce, the heavily armed Soviet dictatorship constitutes a grave danger to the free world.

"It would be a grave risk for us to 'go soft' on defense until there is proof that Russia is sincere.

"While we should examine with an open mind any proposal made by Russia that might lead to a lessening of world tension or to a reduction in the burden of defense, all the evidence at hand forces us to stay on guard, to continue our program of national defense, and by all meas to act in unison with our allies," Sparkman said

Chilton County Singing Convention

The Chilton County Singing Convention will convene at the Courthouse in Clanton the fourth Saturday night and Sunday of this month, April 25 and 26 in the regular Spring session.

We are inviting all our friends to join us in having the greatest convention ever held in Chilton County. Singers from all adjoining counties are expected to attend as well as the local singers. Special guests for the day include Prof. John M. Dye, James D. Walbert, and M. J. Beasley from Birmingham. Of course, Prof W. M. (Pappy) Devaughn will be here along with many other good singers.

Let me urge that you make your plans to be at the Courthouse for this Convention and help to make it a great day of gospel singing.—

Putty-Placer—
When applying putty to windows and woodwork, a good idea is to first shellac the place to be puttied. This will help to keep the putty in place while it hardens.

Rubber Gloves—
Rubber gloves can be saved from being punctured by fingernails by placing cotton in the finger tips. This will provide a cushion and prevent holes.

Thorsby Institute News—
The Christian Life Conference was well attended and very much enjoyed by everyone present. The Conference was blessed with beautiful weather and a good attendance at all the events. The officers elected for C.L.C. in 1954 are Shirley Petersen, President; Sally McLendon, Secretary; Phillip Robinson, Vice - President; and Margaret Faulk, Treasurer.

Miss Ruth Ford, a former teacher at Thorsby Institute and now a teacher at Woodlawn High School in Birmingham, attended the Christian Life Conference.

The Seniors will take their annual trip to Tuskegee on Tuesday, April 21.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cornelius of Fairport, N. Y., made a short visit to Thorsby Institute last Sunday. They were on their way to Cuba, Ala. to visit relatives.

Final term examinations will be on Thursday and Friday, April 16 and 17

Poplar Springs

The attendance for Sunday School and worship service was fair Sunday, and if you were absent you missed a blessing. So start making your plans now to be with us next Sunday, also on Sunday night for Training Union and worship service. There are many who should be in church that do not come and we are praying that you will be there next week end. Also for prayer service on Wednesday nights. Bro. Cook is teaching the third chapter of James, so be sure not to miss a time.

On account of our W.M.U. Quarterly meeting at Highland this Wednesday, we have changed our regular monthly meeting at the church until Wednesday, April 22nd. So each lady be sure to remember the change and be present for our meeting at one o'clock.

Our G.A. girls observed Focus Week Sunday night by presenting a little play before worship service. The theme of the play was to give yourself, your service, and one-tenth of your money to God's service.

All G.A. girls remember the meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Horris Gilliland at one o'clock next Saturday afternoon. Sunbeams remember to meet with your counselor, Mrs. T. J. Stewart in her home at one o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Let's all remember all the sick ones, our boys in service, and the unsaved ones in our prayers, and do all we can to win them to Christ.

Miss Tommie Lecroy of Isabella was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Mizzell.

ALABAMA MILLS

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Price and family of Sylacauga were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Melton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bates visited in Birmingham Sunday.

Everyone is taking a great interest in their yards and gardens. As you know prizes will be given to the one who has improved the most in the yards and the finest gardens. The prizes will be given to both yards and gardens. First prize, $25.00; second prize, $15.00; and third prize, $10. All the yards always look so beautiful, it keeps everyone guessing who will win the prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Price and Mr. Charlie Osley of West Point, Ga., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Price.

ENGAGEMENT TOLD

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wilburt Hayes, of Clanton, Alabama, announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Floyd, to William Gaines Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Woodriff Buchanan, of Selma, Alabama.

Miss Hayes will receive her B.S. degree from the University of Alabama in June. She is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and was named to Who's Who on the campus.

Mr. Buchanan is also a senior at the University of Alabama and will receive his B.S. degree from the School of Commerce in June. He is affiliated with the Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The marriage will take place in June.

SERMON THEMES FOR APRIL

Reverend M. K. Vickers of the First Methodist Church of Clanton will use the following sermon themes for April.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

The little follow who cuts the grass at our house will get along all right. The other afternoon he came by the house and inspected the lawn. Anyone could see that the grass didn't need cutting too bad, but he walked up to the door and knocked. When the wife answered the door the young businessman asked: "Lady, do you think the grass will be long enough to cut in the morning?"

Here's one from the SNPA Bulletin:

We sympathize with the editor of a small town who was taken to task because of an error in his paper. He had this to say about it: "Yes, we know there were some errors in last week's paper. We will further agree that there were some errors in the issue of the week before, but before bawling us out too unmercifully about it, we want to call your attention to these facts. . . .In an ordinary newspaper column there are 10,000 letters, and there are seven possible wrong positions for each letter, making 70,000 chances to make errors and several million chances for transpositions. . . .There are 48 columns in this paper, so you can readily see the chances for mistakes. Did you know that in the sentence, 'To be or not to be,' by transposition alone, 2,759,022 errors can be made? Now aren't you sorry you got mad about that little mistake last week?"

Mrs. Thera Martin has one on us. She says she has had breakfast at church. Now, we have had dinner at church and we have had supper at church, but never, so long as we can remember, have we had breakfast in church. Mrs. Martin says she ejoyed this hospitality when she attended Easter services at a church she was visiting at Troy, Ala., recently. All the church ladies, she says, brought their coffee and their hot plates and after the Easter morning service everybody had breakfast together. Sounds like fun, doesn't it?

DIRECTOR, HOMER E. KROG LETTER FROM LABOR

Dear Friend:

Among the amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act, often referred to as the Federal Wage and Hour Law, which became effective in January, 1950, is one which concerns the employment of under-age minors in agriculture. This amendment affects farmers engaged in producing commodities on the farm which are shipped in interstate commerce, either directly or indirectly and, therefore, it is extremely important that each individual farmer acquaint himself with the provisions of this amendment. Severe penalties may be imposed by the courts for wilful violations.

In spite of all the radio, newspaper and magazine publicity which has been put out constantly since this amendment went into effect, many farmers have claimed they have no knowledge of their responsibilities under the child-labor provisions of the Act as they apply to agriculture. Realizing this may well be true, the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division has decided to bring you first-hand information on the subject and has made plans for an educational campaign during which well qualified persons will discuss the child-labor amendment pertaining to agriculture and explain just how it affects your farming operation.

With the cooperation of the Chilton County Production and Marketing Administration committee and other agencies, the Wage and Hour Division has made plans for a Child-Labor-in-Agriculture Clinic to be held in Chilton County Thursday evening, April 30, at 7:30 o'clock in the Clanton City Hall auditorium. It will be entirely educational in nature. The clinic is to be held at night as a matter of convenience to you. It is realized that this is the beginning of the busy season on the farm and daylight hours are important. That is why it has been decided to hold the clinic at night when it will least interfere with your farming operations.

The meeting will not last more than one hour. Those attending will also be answered by the speakers. It is earnestly urged that you make your plans to be present. Invite your farmer friends to come with you.

Make it a date for Thursday night, April 30, at 7:30 o'clock at the City Hall auditorium in Clanton.

Sincerely,

HOMER E. KROG,
Region IV Director.

Local Officers To Attend Congress Of P.-T.A. At Mobile

Four local officials in the County Parent-Teacher organization will attend the Congress of Parent-Teachers at Mobile this week.

They are: Mrs. R. C. Williams, retiring president of the Clanton Grammar School P.-T.A. and newly elected President of the County Council; Mrs. Russell Williams, retiring president of the County Council; Mrs. Referee Lineberry, newly elected president of the Clanton Grammar P.-T.A. and Mrs. C. C. Craig.

The Congress of Parent-Teachers will hold their annual meeting at Mobile on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 23, 24 and 25th.

H. H. MILLER IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

H. H. Miller, who operates the Yellow Leaf Mill on Yellow Leaf Creek was injured in an automobile accident at Birmingham Saturday. He was taken to a hospital there, but returned to his home here Sunday. His injuries were painful but not considered serious.

Mrs. Myrtle Pitts To Attend Meeting In Washington

Mrs. Percy M. Pitts has gone to Washington, along with six other Republican women leaders, to take part in the "New Horizons" briefing and the progress of the specific objectives of the Eisenhower Administration.

The delegates from Alabama were named by Mrs. Pitts as the National Committee-woman for Alabama, and they will participate in conferences with the Women Workers Group, Republican Clubs, National Federation of Republican Clubs and the Young Republican Group. Mrs. Lonnie Noojin will act as Conference chairman for the group.

There will be a luncheon, banquet and reception at the White House and an address by the President will be the feature of the final day.

Mrs. Ed Nunn returned home last week from a visit with her son and family, Jimmy Hodges, in Memphis, Tenn.

Mrs. T. C. McSwain spent last week in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. Bill Inzer.

Moundville Trip Enjoyed By Sixth Graders

Most people here-about have often heard of Moundville and probably thought of it as just another town in West Alabama with several Indian mounds having had consideration in the naming of the town. That was my opinion, too, until I had the opportunity of visiting there on Good Friday with Mrs. Curry Thomas's Sixth Grade students.

The town of Moundville isn't any more impressive than any other small town. But, those mounds are definitely not average. They are huge things. And, there are 40 of them. They vary in height from only a slight elevation to nearly 60 feet, and from a few square yards to almost two acres in size. It is generally accepted that the reason they were ever built was for either honoring their God, or for housing the tribal chieftian and priests. It must have been a most devout religion that induced them for there are no indications that they had any work animals and, therefore, must have moved tremendous amounts of dirt by hand.

Excavations in the mounds have revealed nothing, but around the edges have been found all sorts of things that tell something of the inhabitants nature and history. Stone discs and pendants, shell gorgets, copper breast plates, beads, fishhooks, and pottery have been discovered. Nearly all the items are delicately carved with designs of the skull and arm-bone, the hand and all-seeing eye, entwined rattlesnakes, and the horned or plumed serpent; all of which leads us to believe that they were skilled artists and highly religious.

Our Mrs. Thomas happened to be a member of the first group that accompanied Dr. Walter B. Jones, Alabama State Geologist, on the original tour of these grounds. At that time the entire area was largely covered by forest. In the early thirties the State set aside some 300 acres, and began construction of buildings to house and protect the obects to be displayed. The main building also contains two burial pits that are especially interesting here you can see twenty or twenty-five skeletons just as they were found. Some of these have pottery near them, others have fishhooks or arrowheads apparently buried with the body for use in the other life.

There have been about three thousand such remains found in the monument area. Dr. Jones first thought that these were not Indians, but possibly a tribe of Mongolians that crossed the Bering Straits, came down through Canada, and established a camp here on the bend of the Black Warrior River maybe 2000 years ago—during the time Christ was here on earth. Later it was argued that they were Indians and the settlement dated back to the time of DeSoto traveled through America. Regardless of who they were, or when they lived, there is a strong possibility that some of your lineage is here; and, believe me, it is a strange sensation to look at them and realize that fact.

Our State has here set up a most appropriate link between our present and the past. It seems quite unlikely that anyone could look at this monument and fail to wonder just how these people spent their lives; and, at the same time, consider how you would have fared in such times. It is difficult, too, for us to imagine how each member of a society could fill such a tremendous majority of all his needs when it, is so easy for us to buy ours, but it emphasizes the dependence we have come to place in our fellow men. The time that has elapsed since these 6th grade children's parents were in grade school is almost nothing compared to the hundreds of years that have passed since these "mounds" were built, yet, such a trip as we made was practically impossible even then. Progress is wonderful indeed, but our history is the basis for much of our accomplishments.

After touring the Moundville shrine, the class went through Smith Hall on the campus of the University of Alabama, and saw still more of the unusual.

Our Mrs. Thomas is to be complimented on arranging this trip each year in lieu of some of the other activities generally associated with this particular time of year.

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

My recent visit to the District during the Easter holidays was a brief but most enjoyable one. Although I saw and talked primarily with only those whom I was fortunate enough to meet on the streets, I did have the pleasure of visiting every county in the District. During my short visit, I was able to give a radio report covering some of my activities as your Representative. This report was broadcast by the two radio stations in Tuscaloosa, the station in Northport, and the stations in Marion, Clanton and Demopolis. It was also my privilege to address those attending the dedication ceremonies for McKenzie Courts, the new 340 unit housing development in Tuscaloosa. Before returning to Washington by plane on the night of April 13, I joined with Congressman Joe Evins of Tennessee, and Mr. Karl Standish, Chief Clerk of the Committee on Veterans Affairs, in an inspection of the Tuscaloosa Veterans Administration Hospital.

How A Bill Is Passed—

In an earlier column, I promised to outline the steps which must be followed in the enactment of a law by the United States Congress. Although the procedure may seem to be a complex and lengthy one, I thought you might be interested in a brief outline of the steps involved in the passage of a bill. After reading this outline, I am sure you will better understand why it often takes months to complete action on a particular bill. The various steps follow:

1. A member of the House introduces a bill (in typewritten form) by dropping it in a box, known as the "hopper," which is located on the Clerk's desk in the House Chamber.

2. The bill is read by the House Clerk (by title only) and is then inspected by the Parliamentarian and Deputy Clerk, who assist the Speaker in designating the Committee to which the bill is to be referred for study. The bill is given a number by the Clerk and Parliamentarian and is then printed.

3. The bill is received by the House Committee which was designated by the Speaker to study the bill.

4. The Chief Clerk of the Committee, at the direction of the Committee Chairman, refers the bill to one of the Committee's subcommittees.

5. The subcommittee reports to the full Committee in writing its findings and recommandations after had hearings, either public or executive, or both.

6. The full Committee either accepts or rejects the subcommittee's report with amendments or changes. Sometimes hearings are held by the full Committee before taking final action.

7. If the bill is reported favorably, it is put on a House Calendar to await its turn for consideration, unless it is an emergency measure or is unusually important. In that case, the House Rules Committee has the power to push it ahead of other bills already on file.

8. After reaching the floor of the House, the measure is given a second reading, in full. Congressmen study printed copies of it, and friends and foes speak for or against it, debate being limited. At this stage, the bill may be amended or returned to the Committee for revision before a vote is taken. If the majority votes for the bill, it then comes up for third reading (by title only) and another vote is taken.

9. The bill is then passed or defeated either by a voice vote, a Teller's vote, or by a yea or nay (roll call) vote.

10. The bill, upon being passed by the House, becomes an Act, and, after it is enrolled and certified by the Speaker and Clerk of the House, it is then referred and sent to the Senate.

11. A procedure almost identical to that in the House then takes place in the Senate.

12. If there are material amendments or changes in the Act after it is passed by the Senate, it is then referred by the Senate (or vice versa) to a Conference Committee, designated by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, respectively. Such a Conference Committee generally consists of members from each Congressional body who are members of the particular Congressional Committee having reported the bill to the Floor.

13. When a Conference Committee reports it has reached an agreement, the House and Senate generally approve the Conference Committee Report.

14. When the Act is thus passed by the House and Senate, it is enrolled as being so passed and is sent to the President of the United States.

15. The President may then make this Act a law by approving it with his signature. If the President does not wish this Act to become a law, he can veto it. When he does so, he returns the bill to the House in which it originated, with a message stating that he disapproves and giving his reasons therefor. If both the House and Senate on a roll call (as required under the Constitution) vote by a two-thirds majority to override the veto, then the Act is passed over the President's veto and it becomes a law within the period specified in the Act.

16. The Act, if it becomes law, is then printed in the United States at Large.

Visitors—

We enjoyed a recent visit from Mr. and Mrs. James Q. Wade of Clanton. Mr. and Mrs. Wade spent several days in Washington last week.

Tornado Damages Thirteen Homes At Mt. Creek Saturday

When the tornadoes were striking over Alabama last Saturday afternoon Mr. Creek, Ala., was struck and thirteen homes were damaged. One was completely destroyed by the heavy winds and many outhouses were blown away.

The winds struck with such force that traffic on U. S. 45 was stopped for over an hour while rescue workers cleared trees and debris from the highway.

The American Red Cross made a tour of inspection of the disaster Sunday afternoon and reported a representative from Atlanta, Ga., would be the first of this week to lend aid to those in need.

Much timber was destroyed in the southern part of the county according to eye-witnesses to the [illegible].

American Legion Post 206 To Hold Open Meeting

The American Legion Post at Thorsby will hold an open meeting on Tuesday night, April 28th, at 8 o'clock.

Speaker for the night will be David Vess from the State Department who will speak on Americanism and Boys' State. The Thorsby Post will send a representative to Montgomery this year to attend the annual Boys' State that is held in June.

A light refreshment will be served.

MRS. J. W. THOMPSON BREAKS LEG IN FALL

The mother of Leo Thompson, Mrs. J. W. Thompson, broke her leg when she fell at her home Sunday afternoon and was rushed to the St. Vincent Hospital at Birmingham.

A large number of guests were at the Thompson home for the wedding of Mrs. Lillian Simpson, daughter of Mrs. Thompson, when the accident occurred. Martin's ambulance carried Mrs. Thompson to the hospital where she is resting as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

CHILD LABOR AGRICULTURE CLINIC TO BE HELD IN CHILTON COUNTY

To acquaint farmers of Chilton County and adjoining counties with the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act which prohibit the employment of under-age children in agriculture during school hours a Child Labor-in-Agriculture Clinic is to be held in the auditorium of the City Hall at Clanton on Thursday evening April 30, at 7:30 o'clock.

All employers of agricultural labor are invited to attend the clinic, which is being arranged by the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, with the cooperation of the Chilton County Production and Marketing Administration Committee, of which Ed M. Buckner is Secretary, the State Employment Service, Chilton County Farm Agent, and others. Plans for the clinic were made at a recent meeting participated in by Mr. Buckner, Eddie Jones, Clifton C. Parrish, and J. Carson Boockholdt of the Production and Marketing Administration Committee; R. F. Williams, and L. L. Morris of the Chilton County State Employment Service office; William A. Minor, Shelby County Manager of the State Employment Service; and Maurice L. Richardson of Birmingham, Information Officer for the U. S. Department of Labor.

Special invitations have been extended to representatives of the County Farm Bureaus, Veterans Farm Training program, Soil Conservation Service, Department of Education, Federal Housing Administration, County Farm Agents, and others to attend the clinic. Farmers of Chilton, Coosa, Bibb, Autauga and Elmore counties who employ agricultural labor are urged to attend.

John C. McFerrin of Birmingham, Alabama Investigation Supervisor for the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, will attend the clinic and explain the provisions of the Federal law as they apply to the employment of children in agriculture and the penalties which can be imposed by the courts for wilful violations. The Divisions' Information Officer also will be present.

Though the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 was amended by Congress in 1949 to include a prohibition against employment of underage minors in agriculture during school hours and this provision has been in effect since January, 1950, the Divisions have found during investigation activities that many farmers have claimed they had no knowledge of their responsibilities under the Act. This has prompted the Federal Government agency to arrange a series of clinics to give the farmers first-hand information on the subject. Chilton County was selected for one of the clinics because it is the center of a concentration of the types of farms which have traditionally employed children.

The clinic scheduled for Clanton will be entirely educational in nature. Those who attend will have the privilege of asking questions and anyone who cares to do so may submit unsigned written questions to be answered during the meeting.

Child-Labor clinics similar to the one to be held at Clanton are being planned for other predominantly agricultural areas in Alabama.

Many Reproductions Of Famous Paintings Now On Display Here

INDIAN ACTOR . . . Ram Narayan Singh, member of India's Parliament, plays role of village elder in "Son of Ind," American produced movie.

The A.A.U.W. Circulation Reproductions of famous paintings are now on display at the Chilton County High School library. This circulation includes such paintings as Rembrandt's "Head of a Girl," Pieter do Hooch's "Interior of a Dutch house," Jan Vermeer's "A Woman Weighing Gold," Hysum's "Parisian Gaiety," and several others, all of which are beautiful colored reproductions of great masterpieces.

This display is open to the public during school hours and immediately following school. This collection will be of special interest to those who appreciate good art, as well as those who simply like to look at beautiful paintings. Go by and see them.

This circulation of prints is sponsored and maintained by the Alabama Division of the A.A.U.W. in cooperation with the Birmingham Museum of Art. For a very small shipping charge this collection of prints is available to other high schools and libraries throughout the State.

GOOD FIRE EXTINGUISHER

Recently, two patrolmen in a police car discovered a blaze in a business establishment which sold alcoholic beverages. The patrolmen found that the fire had started under a counter and used their fire extinguishers in an effort to put it out.

The blaze would not be brought under control by the extinguishers and, although the firemen had been summoned, it continued to burn. Finally, the patrolmen began to fight it with buckets of 3.2 beer. That did the trick.

It turned out that beer is an excellent fire extinguisher. The foam from it is composed largely of carbon dioxide, which is used in many fire extinguishers. We will let the reader arrive at his own conclusion as to the moral to be derived from this story.

EDUCATION: FROM MISS TO MRS.

The National Education Association reports that the typical rural school teacher today is Mrs. and not a Miss—as was the case fifteen years ago. That conclusion was reached from the results of a nationwide study by questionaire conducted by the NEA.

Today's typical rural school teacher is in her forties, has had about thirteen years' teaching experience, and is married and lives in her own home. She drives an automobile and earns about $2500 annually.

Only fifteen years ago, however, she was an unmarried girl, boarding with her family and earning only about $867 annually. The National Education Association believes that the married teacher of today is far superior to her younger predecessor, and that she is a more stable teacher, with both experience and training to enable her to do a better job.

However, the N. E. A. finds that the rural school lags far behind urban schools in almost every respect. Because between forty and fifty per cent of all the public school pupils in the United States attend rural schools, this is a serious problem, which must be overcome.

The answer to this problem lies in the financial field. The rural citizens of the United States must make up their minds that good schools cost money and that they are the best investment citizens can make in their community. Too often, in the past, rural taxpayers have not been willing to pay a tax rate which would enable their community to operate a first-class school or school system.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW-TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

DR. SLATER M. DOZIER, 532 Knollwood Drive, Falls Church, Virginia, says he always has been a chronic worrier and was rather proud of it! When he first began practicing medicine, he many times found himself unable to sleep because of worry about his patients. He made a vigorous effort to determine the cause of his unrest and discovered that cases which worried him most were the ones in which he had not been as thorough as he should have been.

Thereafter, when this situation occurred, he would dress and go to the patient telling him he happened to be in his section of town and decided to see how he was feeling. If no lights were burning in those small town homes, he did not bother to stop as he knew all was well. However, if there were lights burning, he went into the home and even if it required three or more hours to complete a thorough job of diagnosis and to explain proper treatment, he remained in that home until the job was completed to his satisfaction. The employment of this method always enabled him to sleep like a child when he finally went to bed.

CARNEGIE

He believes that the presence of worry is an indication that a person is serious, conscientious and deeply concerned with the problems which confront him, but that by learning to control and direct worry we are driven onward to better, more perfect attainments. However, if we do not control worry, it can produce an emotional situation within us which will lead to frustration, misery and ill health, and determine whether we are happy and a success, or miserable and a failure.

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMERS

From C. W. McFrederick, Creston, Ohio: I remember the corn huskings, apple cuttings, log rollings and tobacco-house raisings of many years ago. The whole community would turn out to a man and the women would come along to help with the cooking and to sew on a quilt.

• • •

From Damon Withers, Wheatcroft, Kentucky: I remember when we carried slates to school. Before our arithmetic recitation we made so much noise writing on the slates we could hardly hear the teacher. The first tablet substituted for a slate I thought to be extravagant. I also remember the first woven wire fence I ever saw and for good reason. I ran right smack into it before seeing it.

• • •

From Mrs. R. W. Nobles, Chadbourn, N. C.: I remember the old cypress knee-bucket that used to hang over my grandfather's well. It was suspended from a long beam fastened to a post, called a sweep, which was let down by hand to bring up water from the deep moss-lined well. A gourd, with a curved handle and scrubbed white, hung on a nail driven in the post. Those were the good old days.

• • •

From Mrs. Clair Reynolds, Hillsdale, Michigan: I remember when it was fashionable to have a nice driving horse and carriage and to ride out on Sunday afternoons. Some of these carriages were "surreys" with a fringe on top. And some people had white leather harness for their horses and the carriages were polished to a high luster. I consider such equipage to be much more wonderful than the finest automobile that money can buy.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

A PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

What is a physical examination? To be complete, the examination should include a comprehensive case history to reveal facts that are often illuminating to the physician when he makes the medical examination. The examination also should include some laboratory tests, such as an urinalysis and blood count. Very often, if there is some deviation from the normal, more extensive laboratory studies are necessary.

Persons with moderate physical disabilities can, under medical supervision, avoid illness and injury more successfully, thus remaining more efficient economically and socially. Those in poor health can, with the same attention directed to the care of their health, frequently recapture enough good health to live happy, productive and useful lives.

A regular physical examniation is an essential good health habit, which, with others, is necessary to maintain a normal health standard. Persons who do not follow good health habits are logical candidates for partial or complete physical disabilities.

Through the physical examination it is possible to detect disease in its early stages, making it easier to be brought under control. A health examination also makes one conscious of his health, which is an excellent preventative against the fear of illness. This health - consciousness should be a natural interest in one's health and not border or develop into a hypochondriac state, which is an abnormal condition in itself. A hypochondriac is one who is always ill, no matter what anyone says.

Let a physical examination be your own insurance to achieve good health and efficiency. Armed with this health habit, follow your physician's advice to maintain health or regain a better state of well-being. Without your cooperation, the results of the physical examination will be meaningless.

Easy Does It

SAVE TIME preparing meals by seasoning three pounds of hamburger according to your taste. Make a long roll of it and wrap in heavily-waxed paper. Freeze. Cut off what you need for hamburger suppers or meat loaf dinners.

Spiced prunes are the ideal garnish for roasts, chops or fowl because you can prepare them in advance and refrigerate. Use 3 cups whole prunes, 1 cup cider vinegar, 3 cups water, 2 cups brown sugar, tightly packed, and stick cinnamon. Stick whole cloves into the prunes and simmer in the syrup made of the other ingredients until the prunes are plump.

Fruit desserts offer fine relief from hearty meals. Try fruit cocktail topped with raspberry, lime or cranberry sherbet.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Gumdrop Bars

2 cups brown sugar
4 eggs
1 tablespoon cold water
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped pecans
1 cup sliced gumdrops, assorted flavors

Beat eggs until very light; add water and sugar and beat thoroughly. Sift together flour, salt and cinnamon. Mix one tablespoon of flour mixture with pecans and gumdrops and shake off excess. Add flour mixture to egg mixture; fold in nuts and gumdrops. Pour into well-greased pan, to about ¾-inch thickness. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a moderate (350°F.) oven. Cut into bars. Serve plain or frosted with confectioners' sugar icing.

New salad combinations are always welcome: pineapple chunks, thick banana slices, halved maraschino cherries and a sprinkling of coconut take nicely to sweet French dressing or whipped cream and mayonnaise.

A colorful sundae sauce uses 1¼ cups of dry apricots ground, with 2½ cups of honey heated just below the boiling point. Add apricot and ½ cup maraschino cherries to honey and stir to blend. Try this on vanilla or mint ice cream.

Worn sheepskin-lined slippers, when cleaned and turned inside out, make excellent shoe-polishing mitts.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

Paul's Conflicts in Corinth
Lesson for April 26: Acts 18: 1, 4-16
Golden Text: I Corinthians 9: 12

During his second missionary journey, Paul was turned away from a province to enter a continent. At Troas, on the Mediterranean Sea, he recognized the Spirit's leading in the vision of the man of Macedonia, and he and his companions crossed over the Aegean Sea, to labor for a time in Philippi and other cities of the region.

In time Paul arrived in Corinth and first preached in the synagogue. When opposition arose, he shook out his garment and declared he would go unto the gentiles. He then preached in the home of Titus Justus, who lived next the synagogue. Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, became a Christian, and he and other Corinthians were baptized. At this time, Paul was strengthened in spirit by a dream.

Accused by certain Jews before the judgement-seat, the judge refused to admit their pleas as coming under Roman law and he drove them from the place.

Corinth was a very wicked city but Paul made such headway during the year and a-half that he labored there that God himself declared in the encouraging dream Paul had: "I have much people in this city." Let us never despair in our Christian work, as being persuaded that God will bless us even as the blessed Paul.

Red Cross Continues Drive For $93 Million in 1953

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Red Cross, by tradition the source to which Americans most often turn when in difficulties, has not yet reached its $93,000,000 goal for 1953, E. Roland Harriman reports. As a result he has asked Red Cross leaders across the country to continue the drive in an effort to meet the goal.

Asserting his belief that the public would not intentionally fail those who must depend upon the Red Cross for help, Mr. Harriman says vital responsibilities of the organization will be gravely affected unless the goal can be reached.

"Men in service," he emphasized, "depend upon the Red Cross for help—disaster victims look to us for assistance—the wounded in Korea and the civilian sick at home need the blood collected by the Red Cross. Also this year and next there will be great need for gamma globulin to prevent the paralysis caused by polio.

"These are the needs which must be met with funds now being collected by volunteers in the name of the Red Cross. May I urge every American to accept his share of our responsibilities by contributing as much as possible now."

Mr. Harriman said the pace of the drive was slowest in smaller cities and rural communities and he urged people in suburban areas not yet reached by solicitors to mail their contributions to their nearest Red Cross chapter or to send it direct to American Red Cross national headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Ideas from other editors

From The Firelands Farmer, Berlin Heights, Ohio: Farm machinery manufacturers report that, since farm prices dropped, the sale of farm machinery has slumped as much as 29 per cent under the same period last year.

It is poor economy to operate a farm with broken-down equipment, and more than ever in the face of a falling market when the farm must be operated at peak efficiency to show a profit. Aside from this, the money hoarded further depresses the income of the farm equipment worker who in turn curtails his purchases of farm products.

From the Newcastle News, Newcastle, Pa.: It takes guts to write local editorials in a town of less than 10,000.

• • •

From the Catskill Mountain Star, Saugerties, New York: "Our purpose is to manage the government's finances so as to help and not hinder each family in balancing its own budget," said President Eisenhower in his State of the Union address.

And now comes the first significant indications that American business was listening . . . may be taking these Presidential words as a golden text.

The manufacturer we have in mind decided that it's about time the purchasing power of the five-cent piece was restored. The company takes issue with the late Tom Marshall, believing apparently, that what the nation needs mostest and firstest is not "a good five-cent cigar," but a good five-cent toilet soap. The psychological fact of introducing a quality, nationally-known item of merchandise for five cents is all but over-powering. Maybe this soap will help us wash away our economic sins, though the people recommend it for skin, not sin.

Our new leaders in Washington are convinced the laws of supply and demand were never repealed but merely smothered. They are taking the wraps off. It's hoped that other businesses will accept the soap-makers' challenge and that the humble nickel will be money again.

• • •

From the Barbourville Advocate, Barbourville, Kentucky: We admire any man who will speak out . . . and in every case we wholeheartedly give way to his opinion as one of his own, not necessarily one that this paper might endorse, but as an individual opinion. These individual opinions can rule this country, just as effectively as any ruling or government body ever assembled. There is no better way in America, under the American way of freedom, for a group of citizens to express themselves than through the columns of the local newspaper.

From the Brownsville Telegraph, Brownsville, Pa.: The Eisenhower administration is removing the burden of wage and price controls from us . . . We will be expected to exert some self-control.

Spring Cleaning Should Abolish Farm Hazards

Auburn, Ala. — The inside of the house isn't the only place that needs a spring cleaning.

This is particularly true on the farm, where fire hazards often accumulate outside, declares William T. Cox, API Extension farm buildings specialist.

He points out that farm families alone lose some 3,500 lives and $124 million worth of property a year to fire.

To find out if there are fire hazards on your farm ask yourself these questions, Cox suggests:

Are there pieces of equipment stored in the front yard or along the drive? Do you see boards and debris piled beneath the house? Is your attic accessible in case of roof fire? Are there any frayed extension cords? Are weeds growing close to outbuildings? Are there articles in the basement that should have been discarded?

The way you can answer these questions, might mean whether or not you have a costly fire on your farm, Cox says.

Care Of Rugs And Carpets

Auburn, Ala. — Rugs and carpets are favorite foods of the spring moth crop.

However, API Extension Home Furnishing Specialist Alice Peavy says it's easy to protect floor coverings from these insects.

To protect large rugs or smaller throw rugs on your floors through the warm weather period, start by getting them absolutely clean. It's the grease and candy spots and other soiled places that the insects eat along with the rug. To clean scatter rugs, place them on top of big rugs or take them into the yard to a clean grassy spot for gentle but thorough brushing. For consistent cleaning, a hand carpet sweeper is probably the kindest to rugs. If rugs sprout loose yarn, clip loose ends with sharp scissors—never pull out the yarn. When rugs are returned to the room, move furniture from place to place to help rest the spots on the rugs.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. Zenobia Miller, Fenton, Michigan: I remember when a woman walking down the street past our house held her long skirts so high that we could see her shoetops—just above her ankles. Shocked and indignant, mother declared that while it was all right to hold them off the wet pavement, it certainly was disgraceful to hold them that high.

* * *

From Mrs. Frank Steffen, Bowbells, N. Dakota: I remember when my father would tie a rope from the house to the barn as a guide during a blizzard. It was the only safe way to get from the house to the barn to feed the livestock.

* * *

From Miss Eva Kate Wetzel, Jamesport, Missouri: I remember when my father made an ash hopper from hardwood, large enough to hold several barrels of wood ashes. For several days we would pour water over the ashes until the lye began to drop. It was caught in a large iron kettle with the right amount of fat and mother would make a good supply of soft soap to do the family washing. And I remember when women wore hightop shoes, laced in front or buttoned on the side.

* * *

From Mrs. Bertha Williams, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: I remember going to the woodland with my brothers to get spicewood. It was a great breakfast treat for us youngsters to have a cup of hot spicewood tea made with maple syrup. I remember the hollowed out wooden troughs and the wooden spiles that were used in tapping the maple trees.

Surprise Ending!

That raffle for our Volunteer Fire Department went over fine. We're going to have money to get a new engine—and then some.

Our local merchants really donated some wonderful prizes. Like Buzz Ellis, the radio-TV dealer, giving that big television set . . . and the Superior Motors putting up a brand-new car.

There was a humorous note, too. The prize of a year's supply of coal—donated by Baker Coal Yard—was won by Mrs. Thayer, whose husband is the biggest fuel-oil dealer in the county! What did Mrs. Thayer do with the coal? She gave it to a church she's not even a member of. (Her church uses her husband's fuel oil.)

From where I sit, that's real generosity. But then, Mrs. Thayer never did believe in dividing people into groups. She's "for" everybody — whatever church they go to, whether they like TV or radio, people who enjoy temperate beer, people who don't. A really warm-hearted person.

Mrs. Haywood's Fifth Grade Made Trip To Montgomery

OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

For months the Good American Club of Mrs. Haywood's fifth grade room have been planning and talking a trip to Montgomery. Finally the time came on Friday, April 10, 1953. When we came to school that morning a big Greyhound Bus was waiting to carry us. Mr. and Mrs. Haywood and Mrs. [illegible] and Mrs. Norman Roberts and Mrs. Z. U. Willis went with us. We left school at 8:15 a.m. We arrived at about 9:30 a.m.

First we went to the Coca-Cola Plant. We went all over the plant; we saw everything about how Coca-Colas were made. Then we all received a Coca-Cola and a pencil.

Next we went to the Capitol. We saw all the beautiful statues.

We went in, we went up the beautiful winding stairs. We saw how the electric voting was done. We went in one part but we had to be very quiet because they were having a business meeting. Next we were explained the pictures in the top. Then we came down.

We went to the First White House of Confederacy. We saw Jefferson Davis bed room. We saw Mrs. Jefferson Davis bed room, too. We also saw the living room and many interesting things too.

Best of all was the babies room it was small and had only a bed and two chairs. We gave a small contribution as we left.

Next we went to the Archives of History. There were very many interesting things on the first floor. We saw a statute of confederate men fighting. On the second floor we saw many beautiful clothes and many other things. On the third floor we saw many animals. There were snakes, birds, beaver, and many others.

Last of all we went to Oak Park and ate dinner. We all had a drink. Then we rode the roller coaster and the ferris wheel and many other things.

Then we started home.

On the way we stopped at a bus station and got water and ice cream. The bus driver's name was Mr. Edmunds. We liked him very much We had a wonderful time.

Jean Payne.

OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

The Good American Club of Mrs. Haywood's fifth grade room had been planning the trip to Montgomery for a few months. On Friday, April 10, the Greyhound drove up in front of the school. Mrs. Norman Roberts, Mrs. Z. U. Willis and Mrs. Eunice Hagin took the trip with us. Mr. Edmunds was a very nice bus driver. We started at eight-fifteen in the morning. We had a very nice trip.

The first place we went was the Coca-Cola plant. Two guides showed us through the Coca-Cola plant. They gave us a Coca-Cola and a pencil on the way out. It was a very interesting place.

We went to the Capitol. A very nice woman showed us through the Capitol. It was a very beautiful place. She took us up to the last floor and showed us the pictures up in the top of the capitol. We went on the grounds of the Capitol. We saw the beautiful lawn and the big statutes.

We crossed the street to the first White House of Confederacy. It was a very lovely place. We saw the beds that Jefferson Davis and his wife used. We went to the second floor and saw the baby's room. It was a very interesting place.

The Archives of History was the next place we went to. We saw the stuffed snakes, birds, owls, deer and lots of other stuffed animals. We went to the second floor and saw Indian clothes and arrow heads. Then we went to the third floor and saw beautiful gowns that women of long ago wore to balls. There were so many interesting things in the Archives of History.

When we got to the park we ate lunch and played. Some of us had some money and we rode the ferris wheel and many other things that were there. We had a very nice time. We went down to the park where the animals were. I enjoyed watching the monkeys. On the way back we stopped at a filling station and got water. We had a very nice trip to Montgomery.

Betty Joyce Dale.

OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

For months and months Mrs. Haywood's room had planned to go to Montgomery. We decided to go on April the tenth. We started for Montgomery at 8:15 and got there at 9:30. We went to the Coca-Cola plant first and saw they washed the bottles, and put the Coca-Cola in the bottles. A man gave each one of us a drink and a pencil. We went to the Capitol and got a free picture. Next we went to the first White House of the Confederacy. We went to the Archives of History. The thing I liked was the Liberty Bell they had. I liked the steam ship they had and the first light made by Edison. The last place we went was to Oak Park and we spent the rest of the day there.

C. C. Craig.

MY TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

Our room went to Montgomery Friday. When we got on the bus Mrs. Haywood called the roll. We were all there that were going so we went on to the bus station where Mrs. Haywood paid for our tickets.

In Montgomery the first thing we did was to see the Coca-Cola plant. We saw the Coca-Colas being dropped into cartons. We went upstairs and saw the barrels of syrup. We went in the next room where the cartons were being repaired. We went back down stairs and saw where the bottles were being put into the sterilizer, where they were being sterilized. The bottles were checked, billed, tapped and run thru the electric eye. They gave us a free Coca-Cola when we finished, then we went into the next room and they gave us a pencil.

We went to the bus and went to the Capitol, there we saw some of the governors' pictures and went out into the yard and saw all the monuments. Next we went to the White House of Confederacy. We went to Oak Park and played a long time then we got on the bus and came home.

Norman Roberts.

OUR TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

Our class has been planning a trip to Montgomery. On Friday, April 10th, when we got to school a Greyhound Bus was waiting under a tree. When we were ready Mrs. Haywood dismissed the class and Jimmie Tiffin and Marvin Vines led the line out to the bus. After we were on the bus Mrs. Haywood called the roll and when she had finished the driver closed the bus door. Mrs. Roberts told us a new game to play. She said to see how many cows we could count.

When we got to Montgomery we parked and went to the Coca-Cola Plant. In the first room they showed us how the bottles were washed, then an electric eye sterilized them and then they moved on and the Coca-Cola was put in them. Then they moved on to the bottle capper and were capped. The caps were put on so fast we couldn't see it. They gave us all a Coca-Cola and a pencil before we left.

We then went to see the Capitol before we went in we had our picture made and stood on the stone where Jefferson Davis made his speech. We went in and saw the room where all our state laws are passed, then we went up the spiral stairs and saw the pictures of our governors.

We went through Jefferson Davis's home. We left there and went through the Archives Building. We saw the gowns the different governor's wives wore at the inaugurations. We saw pottery made by Indians and different kinds of animals and birds that have been mounted. We left there and went out to Oak Park and ate lunch. After lunch we saw the different animals and rode on different things they had out there.

We gathered back at the bus at 3 o'clock and at 3:30 we left to come home. We had a wonderful trip.

Toby Mayfield.

MY TRIP TO MONTGOMERY

Our room went to Montgomery Friday the 10th. Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Eunice Hagin, and Mrs. Z. U. Willis went with us.

First we went to the Coca-Cola plant. We saw where they sterilized the bottles, poured the drinks, put the caps on and how they dropped into the boxes. We went up stairs and saw where the drinks came from. When we started to go out he gave us a free drink and a Coca-Cola pencil. It was very interesting.

Next we went to the Capitol. We went up stairs and up stairs and finally we reached the top. We saw all kinds of beautiful pictures. We looked up in the top and saw bright colors. They were very lovely.

When we left the Capitol we went to the first White House of the Confederacy. We saw the bed Jefferson Davis used and the one his wife used. We went on up stairs and saw his living room. We also saw where Jefferson Davis' baby slept. We saw some little rockers, too. When we left some of us gave a contribution. It was very interstting.

Next we went to the State Department of Archives and History. We saw all kinds of stuffed animals. Birds, Parrots, and many other things. We saw a queen's dress and many other dresses. We saw all kinds of guns.

When we left there we went to the park. We had very much fun there. I thought the roller coaster was very much fun. We played there a long time.

We had a good time coming home. We stopped at a filling station. Some of them got cream there. We had a very nice time.

The bus driver's name was Mr. Edmond's. He was a nice driver.

Forest Tent Caterpillar Both Menace and Nuisance

Auburn, Ala. — When the forest tent caterpillar arrives in the spring of the year it brings within itself a nuisance to human beings and a menace to shade trees. You probably can find the forest tent caterpillar on oak, gum, ash, maple and live oak.

API Extension Entomologist W. A. Ruffin says that they can be controlled with DDT dust or spray. If you have only a few trees, treat them with a three per cent or five per cent DDT dust. You may find it easier to spray a larger number of trees with 50 per cent wettable DDT powder obtained by mixing 4 pounds of DDT with 50 gallons of water. Ruffin says one application should control the pest.

Democracy Begins at Home, Well-Known Educator Says

Troubled parents seeking to strike a balance between the parental mailed fist and the kid glove will find many helpful hints on democratic discipline in Ernest Osborne's new pamphlet, Democracy Begins in The Home.

Dr. Osborne, Professor of Education at Teachers College and well-known writer on parent education, examines a variety of typical family situations to show how democracy can be learned in everyday family life.

Authoritarian parents, he suggests, as well as those who "do everything" for their children, will alike end up with offsprings who are unprepared for adult roles as responsible citizens.

Disciplining children is much more than using force on them, the author points out. In its wider sense it is teaching them to do what is necessary for people to live happily together.

Parents should not act as if they "owned" their children, but should be guided by respect for them as individuals who share in a cooperative venture. Children should be given opportunities to make simple choices from an early age—for only in that way can they learn to make decisions, and take the consequences of poor ones.

"There is no one right way for a family to operate democratically," writes Dr. Osborne, "Democracy as a way of life may be expressed quite differently in different families. What is important is that the spirit of cooperative sharing—of consideration for the rights of each in the group—is expressed through whatever is done."

The family council plan is discussed as helpful in giving children a sense of "belonging" and sharing in family problems. Gripe sessions where children air their views help some families live more satisfactorily together.

Family-centered hobbies and projects are recommended in giving children common interests with parents. Building a summer cabin together with all the children pitching in, crafts activities—stamp collecting—photography—all can contribute to the sense of family closeness that means so much.

Democratic family living not only repays us in satisfaction and happiness, concludes Dr. Osborne. But—on the larger scene—our children must be taught the essence of democracy in the give-and-take of family life if the struggle against dictatorship and statism is to be successful. Democracy as an ideal will never be meaningful to them if they are not.

The book was published by the Public Affairs Committee, Inc., New York City, a non-profit organization.

TO MOUNDVILLE

We ran around curves and hills
And experienced many thrills,
As we were on our way
To the mound that pretty day.

Bright, shining was the sun,
And gay was everyone,
As we went riding away
That beautiful April day.

We slowly walked inside,
And really almost died
When there before us lay
Grim skeletons in clay!

There were the Indian bones
And replicas of their homes.
There, too, was Indian art
My, but they were smart!

—CLAUDIA FAY LOCKHART.

TO MOUNDVILLE WE DID GO

To Moundville we did go
To see if it were so
That buried near a mound
Real skeletons could be found.

We hastened up the hills
And down among the rills.
We each obeyed the rule
That we had made at school.

We finally reached the ground
With tables all around.
'Twas here we ate our lunch.
One happy, jolly bunch.

'Tis grand to have a day
When we can learn, yet play.
When we don't need a book,
But learn things as we look.

It's a Girl

By Hannah Smith

IT WAS downright silly, after fourteen years, for Laura to break down and cry. That's what her husband Joe pointed out to her as he stood at the window with her looking out at the cause of her tears — their fourteen - year - old daughter, Rosalie. Not that anyone ever called her that. Ever since Rosalie was three and kicked the minister behind his pink clerical ear, she had been known to all and sundry as Butch.

"Butch." Laura took one more hopeless look at the jeansclad figure hanging upside down from the tree branch and groaned. "When I think how much I dreamed of having a girl!"

After three boys, it had seemed like a miracle that morning in the hospital when the nurse brought her the joyous news—"It's a girl!" And such a pretty little girl.

Lying there in bed, Laura had dreamed happily. Of pink pinafores, of dancing school and piano lessons, of fairy costumes for school plays.

When Butch was four, Laura had given the last of the ragged, grass-stained pinafores to the Good Will and bought six pairs of blue jeans with reinforced knees.

When Butch was eight, after the fist fight at the tap dance recital, Laura took her out of dancing school and let her take the swimming lessons she begged for.

And at eleven, in the sixth grade play, while the other little girls flittered daintily in gilt-splashed white crepe paper, Butch had been the Hairy Ogre in a black wig, a foot-long beard and a mouthful of horrible snaggle teeth.

"I kept hoping and hoping," Laura said almost to herself, "that she'd grow out of it."

"I don't see why you're so upset all of a sudden," Joe said. "She's always been this way. What set you off right now?"

"Don't laugh, but I guess it was seeing that boy—the one who moved in next door yesterday. He's an awfully good looking kid. In a couple of years—well, she could go to dances and—" She broke off, moping fresh tears.

"Oh, well," Joe said, comfortingly if not convincingly. "Two years is a long time. She can change, I guess."

"Not Butch. When the other girls are dancing, she'll probably be under a car fixing a plugged gasline or—"

"This the new boy?" Joe asked, as a tall, black-haired boy in grey flannels and a yellow sweater strolled toward the noisy group around the tree. Laura groaned and nodded. Just as the newcomer approached, Butch swung her legs above her head and did a neat double flip over the tree branch Laura's groan stretched to a wail.

"Look at her! Just look! Blonde hair a witch mop. Plaid shirt tail flying. Dirty jeans. And barefoot. Barefoot!"

"Watch out belowwww!" yelled Butch, letting go of the branch.

Laura shut her eyes. She turned her back to the window. "Butch, she whispered in tones of undiluted tragedy.

Joe was still watching. "Guess that flop shook her up a little," he said. "She's coming in."

The door opened. Ollie Williams was ahead. He was looking back over his shoulder, round-eyed Over Butch's head, Laura saw that the other boys were staring at the pair in the doorway with the same round-eyed bewilderment. Laura stared, too.

The girl was leaning hard on the yellow shoulder. Her blue eyes looked wide, sweet, limpid. She seemed frail, small, even ethereal.

"Does it hurt much?" Ollie was asking, in a strange new voice.

"How many times do I have to tell you, Ollie Williams," said Laura's daughter, as the tall, dark-haired boy led her gently toward a chair, "that my name is Rosalie?"

HOLLYWOOD has the uneasy feeling that television is in trouble . . . Reports persist that "I Love Lucy" will be seeking a new sponsor at the end of the year, despite the fact that the show is No. 1 in the country and has had a fantastic amount of publicity . . . Sponsors of other big time shows also are rumored to be pulling out of TV and the story is the same . . . video costs have gone up; sales have not . . . Advertisers know millions of people are watching their shows and their sales messages but they also know their products are not moving off shelves in ratio to the money being spent on television.

The TV webs are going to have to prove they can boost sales or the country soon will have to go to "pay-as-you-watch" television . . . We still feel, however, that appreciative viewers will back a good product and should the sponsor of "I Love Lucy" actually drop this fine show, they will soon see how fast their sales will drop also . . . Undoubtedly there won't be any trouble getting Lucy a new sponsor for if this program is allowed to die then television itself might just as well fold up.

PLATTER CHATTER

COLUMBIA: — Frankie Laine's finest effort to date, and he has had some excellent waxings, is the beautiful and inspirational "I Believe" . . . This should be a big seller and Frankie's rendition is tops . . . The flip side has a swift change of pace in "Your Cheatin' Heart," which would be a hit itself if not backed by "I Believe" . . . Rosemary Clooney's latest is "What Would You Do" backed by "I Laughed Until I Cried," a torchy ballad that this gal does so well.

Sarah Vaughan's best record in recent years is the beautiful "A Lover's Quarrel," a very unique song that has hit possibilities . . . Reverse has "I Confess" . . . Champ Butler's latest is "Kaw-Liga," written by the late Hank Williams who also penned "Cold, Cold Heart," "Jambalaya," and "Your Cheatin' Heart" . . . Flip has "Fit As a Fiddle."

You Should Not Overlook Good Kitchen Lighting

In arranging a kitchen for convenience, the homemakers nearly always thinks about convenience and safety.

But what about lighting?

Far too often this point is overlooked in new and reworked kitchens. Kitchen lighting should be arranged so that clear, direct light falls on sink, range, cupboards, and work counters without shadows or eye-tiring glare. Light-colored walls and ceilings of semi-gloss finish help visibility.

New Tax Rates Being Sent To Many Employers

Montgomery, Ala. — More Alabama employers are receiving reduced tax rates for unemployment compensation under the experience rating plan than ever before in history, according to Joe L. Coleman, director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

This is so because in computing tax rates for this year the unemployment charges made to the employer experience rating record for 1949 was dropped and that for 1952 was picked up. Many employers had very unfavorable experience in the year 1949 when there was a recession and considerable unemployment.

Tax rate notices have just been mailed to 7,320 employers showing their tax rate for the tax year beginning April 1, 1953. Of this number, 6,953 are receiving a rate less than the maximum of 2.7%.

Four thousand three hundred and thirty tax rates did not change from last year. However, of this number 3,203 were already at the minimum rate. The Department's records show that 2,066 employer's rates decreased, while 924 increased. The rates range from 0.5% to 2.7% depending on the unemployment experience during the past three years.

These newly assigned, lower tax rates for 1953 will save employer's money over the state. Using the 1952 taxable payroll as a basis for comparison, the average tax rate for employers would be .87 per cent for 19553 as compared with 1.15 per cent for 1952.

As the employee's tax rate fluctuates with his employer's, employees taxes in most cases will be lower in 1953.

Alabama's experience rating plan is so constructed that the rates automatically adjust upward or downward based on the past three years unemployment experience. The reserve fund at the end of March was $72,000,821.

THINK TWICE BEFORE THINNING EARLY COTTON

Farmers who now have cotton ready for chopping should wait until plants are large enough to withstand cool weather diseases and insect attacks before thinning their stands.

It's Time NOW to Buy ELECTRIC ROOM AIR CONDITIONERS

Before Buying Remember this Word of

CAUTION

IF

they are operated at the voltage specified on their name-plates. If, however, the voltage at the convenience outlet into which you expect to plug them is as much as 10 per cent lower than the voltage on the name-plate of the appliance, they won't give the satisfactory service you have a right to expect from them.

IF

the wires in your home are too small, the amount of electricity reaching the appliance will be too little for satisfactory operation of the appliance. Insufficient wiring is not an unusual situation in many homes. When they were built the builders didn't anticipate the enormous development and popularity of electric home comfort and labor saving devices. Although the wiring may have seemed adequate at the time they were built, some of the wiring in most homes is too light to permit electricity to reach the appliance at normal operating voltage.

There Is Only One Way to Correct This

to have your wiring checked by a qualified person. He can tell you if the wires leading to the convenience outlet from which you expect to use the appliance are large enough to carry enough electricity to operate the appliance satisfactorily.

"After you have determined that the voltage at the convenience outlet is too low to permit satisfactory operation of your room air conditioner or other appliance of the "plug-in" type, the best thing to do is to have an electrician put in another set of wires for this appliance. He can install wires heavy enough so that at a later date, you can use other appliances from these same wires. This will be economy for you in the long run, and will contribute much to the pleasure you expect to get from the use of these electrical appliances.

It is also desirable for you to advise our manager in your town if you are going to buy a room air conditioner. It may be necessary for us to make adjustments in the supply of power to your place. We will appreciate it if you will give us as much advance notice as possible and will be glad to help you get maximum use and pleasure from your new appliances.

GETTING the home in spanking clean condition for the new season? You'll find these tips welcome help for your cleaning sessions.

As one cleaning tool, have two pails or one pail with two compartments. One can hold your suds and the other the rinse, and you'll have both with you at the same time, as you need them.

Make your own dustless dusters for dusting furniture and woodwork. Soak clean cloths for several hours in hot suds to which a few drops of turpentine have been added. Wring and hang to dry. Keep one of these in the living room where it will be handy.

Lots of sponges make the cleaning jobs easier because they're easy to wring out, easy on the hands and lint-free. Rich lathers for cleaning build up quickly if you squeeze them accordion fashion in water and soap or detergent.

Have three mops for treating your floors: one soft mop is used on polished floors, a string, cloth or sponge mop for linoleum and tiled surfaces and a detachable lamb's wool mop for polished floors.

Keep your dresser drawers clean by wiping every now and then with a soapy cloth, rinsing with a damp, clean cloth. Use plastic sheeting for lining drawers to make them easy to dust as well as snag-proof.

Wash shower curtains in suds in the bath tub. Swish in clean water and spread out to dry, never squeezing them as this creates creases which may mar their appearance.

Hardened glue can be softened by placing a few drops of vinegar in the container.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Veal Loaves
(Makes 8)

1 pound ground veal
1 pound ground pork
1 can chicken soup
1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal
1 egg
2 teaspoons salt

Sod Crops Save Water And Soil

Good pasture is the cheapest source of livestock feed.

There is a considerable saving in feed, labor, and equipment when livestock do their own harvesting, says API Extension Soil Conservationist S. R. Doughty.

In addition, a good pasture sod is the best weapon yet found to control soil and water losses. Sod crops, points out Doughty, anchor the soil, increase organic matter, and help the soil to hold more water for the dry periods of summer.

The soil expert believes that many farmers who are still cultivating steep, eroded slopes would be wise to plant grazing crops on such land.

MORE ACREAGE

U. S. farmers will plant about 271 million acres of 16 major spring crops this year, compared with 266.7 million last year.

My PET PEEVE

By W. Scott Boyd

THE FIRST green garden snake made its appearance in our yard. It showed up at several places.

First, it must have been in the yard, because the boys brought it into the house, and the oldest held it out and said, "Look, Pop, what we found."

The scream that followed brought the wife and grandmother running. "Take it away," shouts I.

"Calm yourself," says the wife, "it's only a little snake."

"Sure, Pop," says the oldest boy. "It's cute."

"Sure," says I. "It's cute, but I hate snakes. And I hate people who frighten people who are frightened of snakes. Take it way!"

I retreated to my bedroom and tried to compose my shattered nerves. But I had made a mistake. I had told the boys I was frightened of snakes.

After dinner, and still shaking like a lamb going to slaughter, I retreated to my bed. With a good book and the radio turned low I relaxed. And then something cold crawled over my feet.

I tried to scream, but nothing came out. I fled to the living room. "Where are they," I croaked to the wife. "That snake, they put it in my bed."

"Now, dear, take it easy. They're asleep."

"Asleep or not, to the basement they go," says I and marches to their bedroom, the wife in hot pursuit.

At their bedroom door the wife catches me. "Aren't they sweet," says she pointing to the little demons. "Just like little angels."

"Huh!" snorts I, and retreated to the living room. "Then you get that snake out of my bed and call me when its gone."

"LEAVE IT TO GRANDMA!"

By Zelma Wilkes Smith

GRANDMA Watson sat alone in her daughter's living room. Bill had just left, relieved to have put the sobbing five year old Tommy into Grandma's arms. This had been the first time Bill had tried to keep the child over night.

Grandma had seen the jealous light in Bill's eyes when she had told him Sybil had gone out. She had also heard Sybil crying herself to sleep nights, during the month she had been in this house with Sybil.

"Stubborn kids!" she said in exasperation, "still in love, but too proud to give in!

Something should be done about this, but what?

Sybil slept late on Sunday morning. When she came down to breakfast she found her mother on the front porch, calling Tommy. "I declare, I don't know where that boy could be," she told her daughter.

"Why Tommy went home with Bill—remember?" Sybil said.

"No, Bill brought him home about ten last night. He couldn't get the child to sleep."

"Huh!" Sybil retorted, "he probably brought Tommy home so he could have a date with Carol!"

"That's his secretary?" Grandma asked.

"Yes, and Bill began taking her to conferences instead of me!" Sybil's eyes were flashing through sudden tears.

"Tommy had breakfast at seven, and I've not seen him since," Grandma said frowning, "Sybil, I'm worried."

"Oh, he's probably playing with the little boy down the street," Sybil said, "I'll go after him."

It was half an hour later when Sybil came home. "Hasn't Tommy come home yet?" she asked. "I've been everywhere, and no one has seen him. Do you suppose—oh, no—not clear across town!" She ran to the phone to call Bill.

Sybil was crying when she came back to the kitchen. "Bill is coming right over," she sobbed, "he thinks Tommy tried to come back to him today."

Bill and Sybil were gone for several hours. The girl called back every half hour to see if Grandma had heard good news yet.

"We've been to the police station," she said over the phone, "and Bill is calling the hospital—oh, Mom—where can he be?"

"Don't forget, darling," Grandma said gently, "no harm will come to him."

In the late afternoon, Bill led Sybil into the house and put her to rest upon the divan. "Mom, you'd better bring her a sedative, she's all in. I'm going out again soon, but I want her to rest."

When Grandma brought in the pills with a glass of water, she found Bill upon his knees beside the divan, Sybil resting in his arms.

"We've been such fools," he was saying. "As soon as Tommy is found, I'm moving my things back in here. I belong here with you and Tommy."

"I've been so miserable without you, darling," Sybil confessed.

"You were silly, being jealous of Carol," he went on, "I could never love any woman but you. You should know that!"

Grandma watched Sybil swallow the pills, then she went back to the kitchen, and upstairs by the back way. In the bedroom she dialed a number on the phone. "Hello, Mrs. Barett," she said, "you can send Tommy home now. Yes, it was because of charm. Thank you for keeping him."

Grandma was crying softly, as she replaced the receiver back into its cradle. It had torn her heart to see them torment, but surely it had been no use since it had brought them to their senses. From the corner window, she could see Tommy rounding the corner and trotting down the street. She lifted the phone and asked for long distance.

"Hello, Sarah," she said joyfully, "I'll be home tomorrow, dear. Yes, to stay!"

Tar usually can be removed from washable fabrics by rubbing lard over the spot and scraping it off as it becomes discolored. More lard is added and scraped off until the tar is out. After this, the cloth is washed in heavy suds to cleanse it of lard.

The original color of soiled lacquered surfaces can be restored by rubbing with a cloth dampened in salad oil.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

"Better loosen your hawg-laig, Pecos—here comes an ornery lookin' sidewinder, if I ever saw one!"

Scanning the News

IT IS becoming increasingly clear to Washington observers that Sen Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin is becoming a serious problem for the Eisenhower administration. And it is becoming more evident with each passing day that eventually the President is going to be forced, if he is to retain a firm grip on the reins of his administration, to "smack down" the senator from Wisconsin.

The Bohlen incident and agreement with Greek ship owners, the latter being a case where McCarthy took credit for much good work previously done by the State Department, points up the fact that McCarthy is the leader of a small group who are anti-Eisenhower.

It is reliably reported that President Eisenhower was very angry at the dangerous split that the two incidents caused within the party and the administration. The President did everything in his power to keep the peace. But many observers say he has been pushed just as far as he will go and that a showdown is in the making.

This showdown is likely to come when Senator McCarthy turns all his guns on Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. Because McCarthy is reported to have stated we're going to get Dulles' head. In other words, after having made a reputation with his attacks upon Dean Acheson, he is prepared to go forward with attacks upon Mr. Dulles.

It is impossible to believe President Eisenhower will sit on the sidelines during such an attack. He is a man of great determination once his mind is made up and in the resulting explosion someone is going to get hurt: Mr. Dulles, the President, Mr. McCarthy, one and all, to say nothing of the Republican party and the nation.

● Farm prices are still much in the news. And they are likely to be so for considerable time to come. The man who must solve farm problems is Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson.

As Congressional Quarterly points out, Mr. Benson, who got a salty taste of political storms during his first month in office, has extensive administrative powers at his command and already has used some of them in past crisis.

Benson reported March 7 that he had checked a two-year decline in cattle prices without using government financial aid. He said he turned the trick by working to end price ceilings, increase beef consumption and encourage more orderly cattle marketing.

February 27, dealing with sagging butter prices, he took a different tack, and announced he would continue for another year the government program of buying butter at 90 per cent of parity.

The Agriculture Act of 1949 and related statutes give the Agriculture Secretary broad authority to keep up farm prices. In part the actions he can take are required by law. But the statutes leave many to his discretion.

He is required to support the prices of certain commodities—the six "basics," which are corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco, and these "designated nonbasics": wool and mohair, tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and milk and butterfat products.

At present the required price support level for the "basics" is 90 per cent of parity. The support level of the designated "nonbasics" may vary within a prescribed range, set by law at 60 to 90 per cent, at the discretion of the Agriculture Secretary.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

DAVID H. MIKKELSON, 3200 Sixth Avenue, So., Seattle, Washington, is manager of the maintenance department of a trucking company operating between Vancouver, B. C., and Los Angeles, California, a position he recently assumed. In order to operate a maintenance department successfully, it is necessary to have a skillful crew of mechanics and the other necessary physical equipment for truck repairs. Equally important is a group of cooperative, maintenance-conscious drivers. So he made it a point to meet and talk to the drivers on every occasion, in an effort to make them understand that their company has the best maintenance department possible and make them know too that their problems will be given attention and that corrective action will be taken.

CARNEGIE

Recently he received a phone call from one of the drivers asking if he could see him that night. As he had a previous engagement to attend a high school amateur talent contest, David told him he could not meet him until about 11:30 P. M. This was agreeable as he seemed most anxious to discuss maintenance problems and his particular truck. At 11:30 that night David went to his hotel and listened to him talk for almost two hours. He had many good suggestions and also many problems, the solutions of which were David's responsibility. So he made notes on the things told him and assured the driver that he would take corrective action wherever possible the next time he was in Los Angeles.

A few days after this discussion he heard through several sources that he had made quite an impression on this driver because he was willing to go to the hotel at midnight to interest himself in the business. Better than this was the fact that he told other drivers about it and so David Mikkelson feels he has gone a long way in getting the drivers on his side of the fence, which is most important in running a successful maintenance program.

From The Mason County News, New Haven, W. Va.: We have lost many good things since the proverbial "good old days."

Grandpa talks about the "good old days" and the youngsters laugh. But the laugh is on them. There was something finer in life and living when people stressed the niceties, the gracious manner more.

Oh, we like the frank honesty of the modern age, but we also look backward to the era of better manners with a bit of nostalgia.

Recently our West Virginia Police have been stressing the great value of good motor manners, and they are on the right track. There's no place in modern traffic for the ill-mannered, crude, reckless speed demon or the fellow who hogs the highway or otherwise makes a fool of himself while menacing the lives of many people.

It doesn't hurt to say thank you when the girl at the counter serves you with your favorite brand of cigars. It doesn't hurt to say hello to the bus driver and thank him for giving you the correct change. It is nice to be cheerful . . . and kind to those who travel life's road with us.

But it is more than nice to be well-mannered in traffic. It is necessary—if you want to travel safely.

You'll find that courtesy, good manners, will keep you out of traffic accidents. In more than three-fourths of the fatal accidents, at least one driver is guilty of being discourteous. That ought to convince anybody.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

See where Lloyd Warr has been initiated into Alpha Eplison Delta, honorary pre-medical society at the University of Alabama. Lloyd has also been elected to "Pershing Rifles," a National Honorary Fraternity for military students. He is a member of the R.O.T.C. of the Air Force. Lloyd is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Warr, and is to be commended on his high scholastic standing and congratulated on being chosen by these two outstanding fraternities.

The school teacher was trying to drum into her pupils the fundamentals of arithmetic. "Now listen," she said rather desperately, "in order to subtract, things have to be the same denomination. This is what I mean. You couldn't take three apples from four bananas, or six plums from eight peaches. It must be three apples from three apples or six plums from eight plums, and so on. Do you understand?" One chubby-faced little fellow who wasn't exactly at the head of his class had an answer: "Teacher, my daddy takes three parts of milk from two cows."

Congratulations to Mr. T. W. (Tom) Lawson even though we do not know the gentleman. But we do know that congratulations are in order for him because he married Mrs. Lillian Simpson last Sunday and there is no finer person anywhere than Lillian Simpson — or should we say, Lillian Lawson. We wish the best of luck always to the newly wed couple.

Lamar DeLoach just left the office. He tells us that the CCHS Glee Club and Band will give their Spring Concert next Friday—that's May 1st. The price of admission has been announced as twenty-five cents so that everyone can go. Here's your chance to hear some good music and at the same time see what our boys and girls are doing in their music.

You heard about the girl who thought no man was good enough for her? Some thought she may be right. We think she may be left.

You can give Bing LeCroy full credit for the new regulation regarding the discharging and taking on of passengers on our school buses. We understand the idea is not new, but Mr. LeCroy is the one who put it in force in our school transportation system. When a school bus stops now to load or unload a school boy gets off the bus and flags traffic until the children get safely across the road or street, whichever the case may be. According to school authorities full cooperation of the City Police and Highway Patrol will be received. This step in protection for our children is what we mean when we say the barn door was locked before the horse was stolen. Congratulations, Bing!

We asked a friend down the street how he and his wife ever had a difference of opinion. "Sure," he answered, "but I don't ever let her know about it."

It is not true that the banks will be closed Monday in observance of Grady Heflin's birthday. Although his birthday is Saturday and we do hold him in much esteem, all the banks do not close to commemorate this notable occasion. Seriously we do wish Grady many, many happy returns of the day and we know no other man in Chilton County with more friends than Grady Heflin.

We'd like to be elected to the Office of Representative of Chilton County just so we could get behind Senator Elvin McCary in his fight against motorists being tried for traffic violations in out-of-the-way places by justices of the peace. Another thing is charging full license on pickup trucks when especially in Chilton County most of those driving pickup trucks also use them as family automobiles. Point fair. Then, too, there's the matter of these here. . .oh well, right is well forget it. All the things we could bellyache about right now would fill a book.

HOME DEMONSTRATION COUNTY COUNCIL MEETING

The Home Demonstration County Council met Thursday morning, April 16, at 9:30 a.m. at the City Hall in Clanton for a short business meeting. Due to the absence of the President, Mrs. W. J. Preston, and Vice-President, Mrs. E. T. Clapp, the Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Mary Louise Wright, presided at the meeting.

Miss Johnnie Martin, Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, gave a short devotion and Mrs. J. Lee Grant led in prayer. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. S. A. Jones, and approved.

Business discussed included plans for National Home Demonstration Week May 3rd-9th; District Home Demonstration Council meeting in Tuscaloosa April 30th; County Council dues; quilt blocks; and County Fair.

The following Clubs were represented at the Council meeting: Isabella, Alabama Mills, Poplar Springs, Baker, Cooper, Bethsalem and Mineral Springs.

The next Council meeting will be held Thursday, July 16th.

4-H RALLY RE-SCHEDULED

The County 4-H Rally which was scheduled for April 17th was postponed because of cold weather. The Rally has been re-scheduled for Friday, May 1st, at 8:45 a.m. at the Ball Park in Clanton.

It is hoped that most of the 1,750 4-H boys and girls of the County will be able to attend the Rally. Local leaders, teachers, parents and friends are also invited to attend.

COUNTY 4-H LAMP CONTEST

The annual 4-H Lamp Contest will be held in Clanton at the City Hall Saturday, May 2nd, at 9:00 a.m.

Many of the boys and girls have made a lamp as part of their 4-H project work, so they will have an opportunity to enter their lamps in the Contest. A demonstration on making lamps was given in all clubs in the county in November, so much interest in lamp-making has been shown by the 4-H members. Some very attractive and well made lamps have been made by the 4-H'ers. It is hoped that each lamp will be entered in the contest. All you have to do, 4-H'ers, is bring your lamp to the City Hall May 2nd.

The C.C.H.S. Glee Club and Band will give their annual Spring Concert Friday, May 1st, 1953, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

The Glee Club has made several public appearances this year and has been in continuous practice since Christmas, preparing for the Spring Concert. The Glee Club made only one trip this year due to transportation difficulties. They toured to Troy for the South Alabama District Choral Festival. The chorus also sang for various events in Clanton during the year, with one radio program to their credit.

The Glee Club will present a varied program consisting of popular, ballad, semi-classical, classical and sacred numbers. Some of the numbers are: "Ava Maria," Schubert; "The Heavens Are Telling," Hayden; "Ol Man River," Karn; "The Lord's Prayer," Malotte; "Oklahoma," Rodgers, and "I'll See You In My Dreams," Kohn.

The concert Band will be presented for the first time this year. The present band started the year with ten members, with instruments. It has now grown to the strength of twenty-five. A large part of the band began this past October and has made rapid progress. They will be on the program with the older members.

The numbers presented by the band are taken from two method books which they have been studying all year. Some are "The Plainsman," Overture; "S.Y.B. March," "Danube Maiden Waltz" and "The Seafarer," Overture.

Both the Band and Glee Club promises an evening of pleasant music. The clubs extend a cordial invitation to everyone who wishes to attend.

There will be a twenty-five cent admission charged at the door to help strengthen the musical budget for next year.

Remember the time 7:30 p.m. Date Friday, May 1st, 1953. Place, High School Gymnasium. Back your school with your presence.

Chilton County 4-H Baking Contest Held Here Recently

The County Baking Contest for 4-H girls was held Saturday, April 4th, at 9:00 a.m. at the City Hall in Clanton. All girls with cooking as a project were eligible for entering the contest

A record of other cooking the girls have done was judged along with the biscuit. The biscuits were judged for size, shape, color, texture, flavor, and general appearance.

Girls entering the County Contest were: Patsy Young, Cane Creek; Nina Sue Headley, Enterprise; Shelby Jean Glenn, Thomas Jr.; Jean Smitherman, Maplesville Jr.; Tabatha Warren and Betty Ruth Puckett, Clanton Elementary.

Nina Sue Headley was first place winner of the Senior group and Jean Smitherman was first place winner of the Junior group.

Nina Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Headley, Clanton Route 2, received a twenty-six piece baking set which was awarded by the Calumet Baking Company. She will represent Chilton County in the State Baking Contest in Auburn during State 4-H Camp, July 6-11th.

Calumet Baking Company also awarded Joan Smitherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Smitherman, Maplesville Route 1, a year's subscription to National 4-H Club News.

D. P. Culp To Speak At D. O. Convention

The highlight of Friday morning's session of the 15th Annual State Convention of Diversified Occupations Club of Alabama was a speech made by Dr. D. P. Culp, Associate Professor of Education, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Alabama. His subject, "Fundamentals of Successful Living," was divided into three parts: Communication, Accepting Responsibility, and Technological Changes

In dealing with communication, Dr. Culp stated that "Fundamental to all human relations is the ability to communicate with one another." "This communication takes one of two avenues, creative or destructive." whether creative or destructive depends upon confidence, faith and responsibility." He stressed the importance of language which permits constructive speaking rather than destructive speaking. One of the characteristics of success is the ability to listen and take advice "Young people," he said, "must do constructive thinking." "Speech is like fire—it might help you or it might destroy you." Dr. Culp said that young people must learn how to develop ability to accept responsibility. He compared this responsibility to the statement made by Thomas Jefferson: "The wall of freedom was built with the bricks of privilege and the mortar of responsibility.' He pointed out that the basis of our society is that people must accept responsibility. He emphasized that there can be no freedom without accepting responsibility. He brought out the point that trust is involved in performing a job; that trust is involved in a business deal just as a check written on a bank involves the promise to pay. He reiterated that young people as well as old people must be adequately prepared for accepting responsibility.

In speaking of technological changes he mentioned that people must be masters of change and must accept responsibility involving those changes. The secret of American production, he said, is based on technological changes. In comparing the man-power of nations, Dr Culp stated that "we cannot compete man for man against Communism." "Only by our ability to master the technological "know-how" can we ever compete.' He told us that change disturbs people and that change brings from some, prophecies of doom and failure He pointed out that during any change it is difficult for people to get along with themselves and others; and that we must summon courage to deal with change. He effectively illustrated the ability to overcome difficulties brought about by change by citing the fable of the two frogs. He concluded his remarks by challenging young people to accept responsibilities and be the masters of change because the 'best books haven't yet been written, or the best jobs yet been done."

LOCAL MAN REMEMBERED AT SOUTHERN BELL T & T

Remembrance telephone calls to retired employees of Southern Bell Telephone Company were made today by E. A. Goudelock, Company Manager, to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the Bell System's benefit and pension plan

Called was E. G. Blankenship, who retired to leisure in 1952 after serving with the Plant Department for 31½ years.

The benefit and pension plan which Southern Bell's retired employees share came into being in 1913. The Bell System was among the first in industry to adopt a plan to provide for employees after retirement. A major feature of the plan is that employees do not contribute part of their pay to the retirement fund.

At present there are 223 retired company employees living in Alabama who have made the pension plan payments a basis for the "pleasant life."

MORE THAN A MILLION pine seedlings were planted in Alabama during the year just ended under the joint sponsorship of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Vocational Education Division of the State Department of Education, and the Division of Forestry of the State Department of Conservation. Gerald Duke, second from right, a member of the Senior Class of Wetumpka High School, is planting one of a thousand seedlings he has received this year, as, left to right, C. S. Bazemore, Vocational Agriculture teacher in Wetumpka, J. C. Cannon of the State Vocational Education Department, and E. H. Wilson, Director, Agricultural Division of the State Chamber, look on. This is the first year enough seedlings have been available to permit Future Farmers of America to reach the million goal since the program was started.

TRAFFIC DEATHS HIGHER IN THE SOUTH

Figures compiled for all the states, through a major portion of 1952, show that traffic deaths in the United States averaged over seven for each 100,000,000 vehicle miles travelled during the part of the year checked. The figures also show that the rate of slaughter was running about one hundred a day.

In this connection there is a curious mortality rate in the Southern and Southwestern states. One would think that, with better weather, the fatality rate in these states would be lower than in Western and Northern states. On the contrary, as soon as one crosses the Mason and Dixon Line, the fatality rate jumps upward sharply.

The question has been raised whether human life is cheaper in the South, or the Government is less competent. Because of the continuing carnage on U. S. highways, some public officials are predicting that the Federal Government will eventually take over some of the responsibilities that states are not now meeting.

Governor Dan Thornton, of Colorado, is reported to have predicted some sort of action in this direction, or at least the attempt, within ten or twenty years. George B. Lawson, of Roanoke, Va., who is campaigning to cut down the fatality rate on highways in the South, believes the great number of lives lost recently will force the Federal Government to take over the highways in three or four years.

The question is one of Federal Government driving examinations, traffic violators appearing in Federal courts, a Congressional speed limit, and other possible eventualities. And then, too, there is the little item of one hundred citizens killed every day on our roads.

"I REMEMBER"
BY THE OLD TIMERS

From Mrs. A. R. McDaniel, Warren, Montana: I remember when father bought our supply of coffee and we had to roast it. Mother would roast the coffee in baking pans until it was a nice brown. Then it was placed in small bags of unbleached cotton and pounded with a stone until it was a fine powder.

From Mrs. Clair Reynolds, Hillsdale, Michigan: I remember when all these airplanes were not zooming all over the skies and cars of all makes careening down the highways at 80 miles an hour. Those were the good old days. We had time to be neighborly and to live long and graciously.

From Ralph E. Summerfield, Sacramento, California: I remember as a boy back home on the farm in southern Indiana the way my father used to say to me, "It hurts me more than it does you." However, I think it was a different kind of feeling, but at that, There's No Place Like Home.

From C. W. McFrederick, Creston, Ohio: I remember when all the transportation we had was by horseback. Sidesaddle for mother so she could carry the baby on her lap, and one behind, while father had one on before and one behind, making transportation for six.

From A. Brooks Withers, Montrose, W. Va.: I remember when shoe repairing was all done at home and when pepper was bought unground. Also when firecrackers were a Christmas celebration instead of the Fourth of July.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

MRS. ALICE HODGE, Roscoe, New York, was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. As far as she was concerned, she was just over-tired and very, very irritable. She was trying to help run the large furniture business while caring for three young children at the same time—two real jobs for one person! But she managed to keep going until her grandmother died. Then she was all done! She didn't eat and she couldn't sleep. Every doctor said the same thing: "Rest, relax, take it easy; go away on a nice long vacation." Fighting words when they are an impossibility!

CARNEGIE

Month after month passed and she went from bad to worse. Then one day she met an old family friend and he invited her to lunch. After listening to her cares and woes for a while, he said, "How about some advice from an old duffer? The first thing that I would do if I were you, is to try to forget about all these things that you can't possibly do anything about and try to accept the things that you must face. Few people can live their lives exactly the way they would like to live them. Besides, you have a job to do. Maybe it is a little bigger than the jobs most people fill, but I suspect you are not doing it well right now as you should—nor as you could."

Of all the people Alice Hodge had seen and talked with, this man was the only one who came up with a common sense answer to her problems. It was all the medicine she needed. From that time on she tried to live constructively instead of destructively and, although it was a long process, she gradually found herself feeling better and better. Not only that, but she says she knows she became a much nicer person to live with.

ACROSS the DESK

ideas from other editors

From the Ravenswood News, Ravenswood, West Virginia. If, as the federal reserve board appears to suspect, "you are as rich as you feel," Americans are pretty darn well heeled. To measure this mental attitude, this financial confidence of the nation, the board has had the University of Michigan interview 2,400 people in 66 different test areas during January and February.

This is the eighth such annual survey the board has made and if their sampling technique is correct:

More people are planning to buy new cars, new homes, new furniture, T-V sets and washing machines this year than in 1952. The same number, approximately, plan to buy refrigerators. And, naturally, more people think this is a good time for major purchases than did a year ago. Eighty per cent are unworried about prices, believing they will remain at present levels or go down this year. In early 1951 and 1952, more than half expected them to go up.

And even though experts are pointing with alarm to the $23,700,000,000 the American public owes the installment man; those who have to get it up are feeling no pain.

We still wonder who these people are who get surveyed. Did you ever get the treatment. We never did.

Where And How They Are

Four Clanton area soldiers have been assigned to Company C, 15th Armored Inafntry Battalion, 5th Armored Division for 16 weeks of basic training in the artillery.

They are Pvt. John J. McDaniel, son of Mrs. Nettie Mae McDaniel, Route Two, Maplesville, Ala., Pvt. Horace R. Cleckler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Cleckler, Route One, Thorsby, Ala., Pvt. Charles W. Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Bryant, Route One, Verbena, Ala., and Pvt. James Moody Smith of Jemison, husband of Mrs. Kitty Sue Smith of Route One, Randolph, Ala.

After completing their basic training, which includes instruction in artillery techniques and practice with the 150mm howitzer, they will be reassigned for duty with an Army unit as artillerymen.

Local Officers To Attend Congress Of P.-T.A. At Mobile

Four local officials in the County Parent-Teacher organization will attend the Congress of Parent-Teachers at Mobile this week.

They are: Mrs. R. C. Williams, retiring president of the Clanton Grammar School P.-T.A. and newly elected President of the County Council; Mrs. Russell Williams, retiring president of the County Council; Mrs. Reierce Lineberry, newly elected president of the Clanton Grammar P.-T.A. and Mrs. C. C. Craig.

The Congress of Parent-Teachers will hold their annual meeting at Mobile on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 23, 24 and 25th.

To make the job of clearing drains with a plunger easier, rub a thick coat of Vaseline petroleum jelly along the flat bottom edge of the plunger's rubber suction cup. This will provide a tighter seal and make the plunger more efficient.

CHILD LABOR AGRICULTURE CLINIC TO BE HELD IN CHILTON COUNTY

To acquaint farmers of Chilton County and adjoining counties with the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act which prohibit the employment of under-age children in agriculture during school hours a Child-Labor-in-Agriculture Clinic is to be held in the auditorium of the City Hall at Clanton on Thursday evening, April 30, at 7:30 o'clock.

All employers of agricultural labor are invited to attend the clinic, which is being arranged by the U. S. Department of Labor's Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, with the cooperation of the Chilton County Production and Marketing Administration Committee, of which Ed H. Buckner is Secretary, the State Employment Service, Chilton County Farm Agent, and others. Plans for the clinic were made at a recent meeting participated in by Mr. Buckner, Eddie Jones, Clifton C. Parrish, and J. Carson Boockholdt of the Production and Marketing Administration Committee; R. F. Williams, and C. L. Morris of the Chilton County State Employment Service office; William N. Minor, Shelby County Manager of the State Employment Service; and Maurice L. Richardson of Birmingham, Information Officer for the U. S. Department of Labor.

Special invitations have been extended to representatives of the County Farm Bureaus, Veterans Farm Training program, Soil Conservation Service, Department of Education, Federal Housing Administration, County Farm Agents, and others to attend the clinic. Farmers of Chilton, Coosa, Bibb, Autauga and Elmore counties who employ agricultural labor are urged to attend.

John C. McFerrin of Birmingham, Alabama Investigation Supervisor for the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions, will attend the clinic and explain the provisions of the Federal law as they apply to the employment of children in agriculture and the penalties which can be imposed by the courts for wilful violations. The Divisions' Information Officer also will be present.

Though the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 was amended by Congress in 1949 to include a prohibition against employment of underage minors in agriculture during school hours and this provision has been in effect since January, 1950, the Divisions have found during investigation activities that many farmers have claimed they had no knowledge of their responsibilities under the Act. This has prompted the Federal Government agency to arrange a series of clinics to give the farmers first-hand information on the subject. Chilton County was selected for one of the clinics because it is the center of a concentration of the types of farms which have traditionally employed children.

The clinic scheduled for Clanton will be entirely educational in nature. Those who attend will have the privilege of asking questions and anyone who cares to do so may submit unsigned written questions to be answered during the meeting.

John T. Sims, Vo-Ag Teacher at the Chilton County Training School, is working overtime with his students and with the adult farmers of his community.

One of the crops which this wide-awake agriculture teacher is stressing this year is cucumbers grown under contract with W & W Pickle Company and marketed through the Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association.

John feels that since the risks involved in marketing this crop are completely eliminated this type cucumber is a good bet for many farmers of this area, and he has played an important part in getting the 150 acres of these cucumbers signed to contracts.

LOCAL SOCIAL ITEMS

One of the most unusual parties of the Spring season, for the younger set, was held Monday afternoon, April 20th, when Mrs. R. C. Williams entertained for her little daughter, Lynn, in honor of her ninth birthday.

The party was held out-of-doors and a Western motif was carried out. The guests came dressed in "bluejeans" and cowboy clothes.

A "Scavenger Hunt" was enjoyed by the little guests, which was confined to the spacious yard of the honoree. The prizes went to Becky Gray and Danny Jean Hill. Fishing was then enjoyed in a sunken pool in the yard and each guest caught a plastic fish and was given a favor, candy and gum.

The barbecue pit was the scene of the refreshments where Mr. Williams acted as chef and assisted each one in roasting weiners and toasting marshmallows. The party table was placed near the barbecue pit and was centered with a birthday cake, embossed in yellow, holding nine candles and was decorated with cowboys and horses, racing down the cake. This was placed on a musical cake platter that played "Happy Birthday" and was placed in a "corral" made of cookies. Guns, holsters and lariats completed the decorations.

After eating the guests went inside where Lynn thrilled with the opening of each gift wrapped package. As the little guests departed, they carried memories of having attended an enjoyable and unusual party.

Those who enjoyed this courtesy were Mary Kate and George Tucker, Paula Campbell, Emily Klinner, Carolyn and Wayne McCullar, Danny Jean Hill, Susan Elsevier, Doris Dean Sanders, Martha Palmer, Jenny Lee Polk, Becky Gray, Glenda Daniel, Keron Vickers, Alec Jones, Norton Lecroy, Henry Bell, Billy Chism, Rossie Williams, Jim Mullins, Tommy Hubert, and the honoree's sister, Faye. Those assisting Lynn's mother in the entertaining, were Mrs. Sara Palmer, Mrs. Joe Campbell, Mrs. George Tucker and Mrs. Winfred Lecroy.

GIVE YOUR LINENS the proper care during holiday time, and you'll glow with housewifely pride when you set the table. Some table linens require a little extra care, but they repay you in their beauty and increased service.

Most linens do not require special stain removal before laundering, especially if you can use a chlorine bleach on them. This is best placed in the suds, so it works on the linens while washing takes place.

Soil removal is more certain if you let table linens soak for 20 minutes in clear, cool or lukewarm water before laundering. Plan to wash linens separately from other items so they do not acquire fuzz from them.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Sweet Potato Sausage Stuffing
(For fowl or roast pork)

4 medium sweet potatoes
6 tablespoons butter
½ cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ pound sausage meat
1 onion, minced
3 stalks celery, chopped
¾ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1½ cups bread crumbs

Scrub sweet potatoes; cook until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain, peel and mash thoroughly. Add butter, orange juice and rind. Beat until smooth. Cook sausage meat slowly for 10 minutes. Add onion, celery, poultry seasoning and salt to taste. Cook until meat is brown. Drain off fat. Add mashed sweet potatoes and bread crumbs, mixing thoroughly. This is a moist stuffing and should be packed into bird loosely.

Second launderings are advisable if the first one has not removed heavy grease stains. Always rinse three times in lukewarm water, or more often until the odor of the bleach disappears.

Light starch may be used to reduce loss, but stiff finishes are not desirable. Bluing, too, is unnecessary if laundering methods are proper. When used, bluing should be distributed thoroughly to prevent streaking.

Dry, but not destroy the softness of Irish linen. Dry in sunshine, but whenever possible, have temperatures as close to 70°F. as possible.

No. 2896 is cut in sizes 12 to 20; 36 to 42. Size 16 takes 4 yds. 35-in. or three 100-lb. feed bags.

No. 2283 is cut in sizes 2 to 8. Size 4, 1¼ yds. 35-in. with 2 yds. edging.

MAPLESVILLE NEWS

Mother's Day is the second Sunday in May and we are planning a big day in our Baptist Church for that day. We want to have an all-day program with dinner on the ground. Come and bring a covered dish and let's enjoy this fellowship. We invite all of our friends both near and far to be with us on this day. Also on this day our entire offering will go for our Building Program. Won't you be prepared to help in this undertaking? We will have singing and preaching in the afternoon and a visitor will be our speaker for the afternoon service. Make your plans now to attend this all-day meeting.

Vacation Bible School starts May 25th through June 5th. If you can help in this school it would really be appreciated. So far there are not enough workers. We cannot deprive the children of this privilege because adults will not help. Call Bro. Rasberry at once if you are able to help. Also encourage your children to attend this. The hours will be announced later.

In August, beginning Sunday the 23rd and running through Friday the 28th, will be the summer revival. Services will be in the morning and evening. Bro. Fred Pastma, pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Bay Minette, Ala., will be the evangelist.

Bro. Ray Watt did the preaching and Bro. Hilton Olive, two young men of Howard College, led the song services this past week in the youth revival. They brought inspiring messages in sermon and song. Tonight is your last opportunity to hear them. Won't you go out at 7:30.

THORSBY NEWS

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00
Sunday School 10:00
Visitors welcome.

The annual meeting of the Georgia-Alabama Synod was held in Atlanta, Ga., last week. Rev. Moran and Mr. Tom Rogers of Clanton, our lay delegates, attended the sessions.

The meeting was held in the new Redeemer Church on Peachtree Street. Quite the contrast to the Redeemer Church on Washington, D.C. Having been completed only about a year, this church was built at a cost of $600,000. The pastor, Rev. John K. Brokoff, has received 1,408 members in seven years. This is typical of Southern Lutheran progress.

The synod unanimously approved the purchase of a lot in Montgomery, Ala., for the erection of a new church. The lot will cost $16,000 dollars, but is in a very desirable location. We expect great progress in that city.

Don't forget set time for the Lutheran Hour on Saturday, afternoon at 4 o'clock on radio station WKLF, and also, this is the Lutheran Sunday Hour at 5 o'clock on Channel 13. Both programs are excellent for spiritual entertainment.

Reproductions Of Great Paintings On Display Here

The A.A.U.W. Circulation Reproductions of famous paintings are now on display at the Chilton County High School library. This circulation includes such paintings as Rembrandt's "Head of a Girl," Pieter do Hooch's "Interior of a Dutch house," Jan Vermeer's "A Woman Weighing Gold," Hysum's "Garden Gaiety," and several others, all of which are beautiful colored reproductions of great masterpieces.

This display is open to the public during school hours and immediately following school. This collection will be of special interest to those who appreciate good art, as well as those who simply like to look at beautiful paintings.

This circulation of prints is sponsored and maintained by the Alabama Division of the A.A.U.W. in cooperation with the Birmingham Museum of Art. For a very small shipping charge this collection of prints is available to other high schools and libraries throughout the State.

There were 141 registered for Sunday School Sunday. This attendance is good, but there are others who could come, so be with us next Sunday and get the blessing from the Sunday School lesson. Bro. Atcheson delivered two wonderful sermons Sunday to a large congregation.

We were glad to have several visitors with us Sunday. Friends who were at service Sunday who many of us had not seen in a long time was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Jones of Clanton, Mrs. Maurice Hudgins and children. We were glad to see them and invite them back, also other visitors.

The ladies who attended the W.M.U. quarterly meeting at Highland Church last Wednesday were Mesdames Hughie Taylor, Hyman Atcheson, Elbert Glenn, Harley Calloway and Lee J. Grant. On their way home these ladies visited Mrs. John Boswell, Mrs. Jim Mitchell and Rev. Fred Lowery in Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton.

Rev. Atcheson preached the missionary message for the ladies. The Unity Association Missionary Society met at Bethesda Baptist Church last Tuesday morning. He also brought a message on Stewardship for the same group at New Prospect Church Tuesday morning.

Bro. John Sorrell preached at Maple Springs both Sunday morning and Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Taylor of Clanton visited Mr. and Mrs. Archie Taylor several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Patterson, Mildred and Harold, were the Sunday dinner guests of Rev. and Mrs. Hyman Atcheson and boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kelley and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Taylor attended a Union Banquet at the Prattville Grammar School last Friday night.

Helen and Ed Driver, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Driver, who have recently been operated on for appendicitis in a Montgomery hospital, are reported to be getting along fine, and will soon be able to come home. We have missed Helen and Ed and hope they will soon be back in school.

Mrs. Irvin Crew and Danny of Clanton visited Mr. and Mrs. Archie Mac Taylor and Bob last Saturday.

Misses Myrtice Thomas and Inez Dooley returned home Saturday night after spending a week in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Davis and children were the Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Carwell and children of Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Davis and children visited Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Davis of Collins Chapel Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Eric Jones and daughter of Phenix City spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Driver.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Childs and Randy of Troy spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Moore.

ISABELLA NEWS

Mulberry—

Our church was represented at the quarterly W.M.U. meeting at Highland Church last Wednesday by a group of women and our pastor. They were: Mrs. E. C. Lecroy, Mrs. W. W. Webster, Mrs. Lewis McGee, Mrs. Casey Cummings, Mrs. D. O. Manning, Mrs. Couger Cummings, Mrs. E. Span Jones and Rev. J. W. Jones.

The missionary message was delivered by our pastor on the service of the women in mission work.

There was a mistake in our Mulberry news last week. It was Franklin Tucker instead of Arthur Tucker, who was added to Mulberry Church during the revival.

Isabella School—

The County Council P.-T.A. met at Isabella on Monday night, April 20th, with a large attendance. There were several solos sung by Randall Veasey and others. Mrs. R. C. Williams of Clanton was elected president. Mrs. Daniels of Verbena as vice-president. They were installed by Mrs. Luther Little. Miss Louise Foshee was presented with a life-long P.-T.A. membership. A film was shown, "Farewell to Childhood." Dr. Gwen McWhorter led a discussion on this subject. Mrs. Russell Williams introduced Dr. McWhorter.

Refreshments were served by the Isabella P.-T.A.

The Seniors are presenting their play in the school auditorium on Friday, April 24th. The public is invited.

This community extends it congratulations to Miss Flora Grooms and T-Sgt. Ralph K. Linsey who were married in Meridian, Miss., on Monday, April 13th. Mrs. Lindsey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Grooms.

T-Sgt. and Mrs. Lindsey are making their home in Selma where he is stationed. They visited Mrs. Lindsey's parents here last week end.

Mrs. Maggie Summers, who has been in the Jefferson Hospital in Birmingham, is improving. The last report was that she was carried to her daughter's, Mrs. M. D. Latham, in Central Park, Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Ratliff are now operating their store across the road from Mrs. Emma Manning. They will appreciate your trade.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Conway have been here in business for several years. They have moved back into their little home across the creek.

Glenn Jones and Gerald White of Auburn were here with their parents for the week end.

The J. H. Wells' guests last week end and Sunday were their children and grandchildren. They were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jones, Glenene, Ronny, Lynn and Donna, of Birmingham; Mr. and Mrs. Joe James Wells, Lanchel and Sandra, Mr. and Mrs. Erby Dobbs and Mrs. Morris Arthington, all of Montgomery; Glenn Jones of Auburn, Dale Nabors, J. C. Cummings and Mrs. Emma Manning of this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansel Grooms and baby of Prattville were Sunday guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Grooms.

Miss Lorine Lecroy of Gadsden visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Lecroy, last week.

Folks and Things ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Mr. Hocutt out at the Hocutt Electric Store has some of the nicest little Bendix "Temp-Tainers." They are for baking or freezing purposes and he gave us a sample box the other day. He has one for any of his customers who come out and let him demonstrate a Bendix washing machine. Course he wasn't demonstrating a Bendix washing machine for us as we don't do the washing at our house any more. But we did appreciate the gift and you will too, if you will let him demonstrate.

Congratulations to Miss Bobbie Gray and Miss Sue Bratton. Bobby, the daughter of Dorothy and Zebbie Gray of Clanton, and Sue, of Jemison are members of the Alabama College Chorale which made seven appearances ending Monday of this week in south Alabama. Miss Annette Broadhead, daughter of Bernice and Jabbie Broadhead is also a member of the troupe. Chilton County is well represented in the chorale this year and we should feel mighty proud of our young folks.

There'll be a big time at the Chilton County High School athletic field Wednesday afternoon late—5:30 o'clock to be exact—when the Chain Store dealers entertain the school teachers of the county with a barbecue. Cecil Ramsey says they are going to put the big pot in the little pot that night. They're looking for quite a crowd down there. Oh, yeah, want to thank M. T. Holliman for the invitation to attend the barbecued swine feast. Or will it be bovine?

* * *

Don't forget Wednesday night's Fat vs. Lean Baseball game at the City Park. There will be fun aplenty down there. Proceeds from the game will go to the County Cancer Fund. The cost of admission is small but the cause for which the money is being raised is very great. Lend your effort to make it a success.

* * * *

After all, it may be a good idea for the county officials to build the new courthouse on the property west of the City Park. Just about every town, city, or hamlet, now are hollering their heads off about parking space. The lack of it is because the City officials have had no foresight and have so constructed our towns and cities so compact that now, in the day of the automobile, we have outgrown ourselves. What is worse? To park several blocks out of town and walk in to do your shopping and trading or to drive several blocks further, have plenty of parking space and attend to your business. It's just a matter of choice we suppose. However, building the new county buildings near the Park will mean just so much more parking space in the heart of town-town Clanton for you, and you, to park your automobile. Seems to us it would be very wise for the county and city officials and all our municipalities to start considering our parking problems now while we are small and not wait to find ourselves in the same condition that Birmingham and Montgomery are in today. You know and I know that parking automobiles is now, and will continue to be, a headache to all of our cities and it seems to us the time to start worrying about it is NOW.

"Is this a healthful town?" inquired the home-seeker of a native. "Yes, certainly," was the answer. "When I came here I hadn't the strength to utter a word; I had scarcely a hair on my head; I couldn't walk across the room, and had to be lifted from my bed."

"You give me hope!" cried the home-seeker with enthusiasm. "How long have you lived here?"

"I was born here," replied the native."

"You can't marry her without permission," said the young lady's father.

"Why not?" asked the young visitor.

"Because she's a minor."

The young man looked startled for a moment, then asked: "You mean I have to ask John L. Lewis?"

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors of Annie Killingsworth Grace and the members of the Lomax Church of Christ for their many kindnesses during Mrs. Grace's recent illndess and death and for the many floral offerings.—William B. Tomlin, Mrs. W. B. Smith, Mrs. Lewis Smith.

Leaders Of Farm Bureau To Meet

Montgomery, Ala. — Hundreds of Farm Bureau leaders representing every county will gather at four district meetings early in May to discuss the organization's legislative program and plans for broadening its services to members.

Walter L. Randolph, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, announced the meetings would be held May 5 at Monroeville; May 6, at Troy; May 7 at Birmingham; and May 8 at Huntsville.

All officers and directors of county Farm Bureaus have been urged to attend, along with home demonstration club objective chairmen and county service directors.

The meetings are scheduled at a time when the legislature will be getting started in its biennial session, which opens May 5. A number of bills carrying out recommendations made at the 1952 convention of delegates representing the approximately 73,000 members will be ready for introduction.

Among these will be proposals for exempting livestock from ad valorem tax, as now done in many states; extension of the $3 auto tag to include pick-up trucks, used by many farm families as their only means of transportation; requiring licensing of scrap metal dealers; set up specifications and provide for licensing of seed-cleaning plants, and several bills aimed at the eradication or control of livestock diseases.

The farmers also will be interested in much general legislation, particularly that affecting the educational program, Randolph said. They have recommended adequate support for agricultural research, and urged the legislature to submit a constitutional amendment authorizing a school building bond issue to be retired by a fixed amount of present sales tax revenues.

Randolph said the farmers also should be prepared for any attempt that might be made to repeal sales tax exemptions on feed, insecticides and fungicides—important raw materials in food production—scheduled to go into effect July 1 under a 1951 act.

Farm Bureau members from Chilton County will attend the district meeting at Birmingham on May 7.

LOCAL GIRLS WITH ALABAMA COLLEGE CHORALE GROUP

Montevallo, Ala. — The Alabama College Chorale, under the direction of H. D. LeBaron, head of the Music Department, left Saturday, April 25th, for their annual tour, appearing at six south Alabama towns.

With seven appearances scheduled, the Chorale, composed of 27 voices were in Grove Hill Saturday night and Sunday morning; Monroeville Sunday afternoon; and Mobile at Spring Hill Sunday night where they appeared before a group of Alabama College alumnae.

Winding up their tour Monday at Chatham, Thomasville, and Eutaw heard the Chorale at 10:00 a.m., 1:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. respectively Monday the group returned to the Alabama College campus.

Frances Freeman Martin of Mobile was the featured soloist during the tour. Other special features were piano solos by Lucy Underwood, Russellville; and Betty Tidwell, Bessemer.

Highlight of the concerts, which included folk songs, secular and sacred music, were selections played on the recorder. This ancient instrument were played by Alice Rainer and Clarice Rainer, both of Opp.

Chorale members who made the tour included Coral Newton, Grove Hill; Sue Bratton, Jemison; Joan Coleman, Beeville, Texas; Jackie Screws, Opelika; Sue Smith, Eclectic; Martha Womack, Montgomery; Frances Freeman Martin, Mobile; Betty Washington, Wedowee; and Nell Freeman, Spring Hill.

George And Adeline Clanton's Latest War Immigrants

Two immigrants from far-off Hawaii reached Clanton last week after a voyage that took them on boat, plane, train, bus, and probably by air, as they carry their flying equipment along with them.

The new immigrants, George and Adeline by name, are two parrakeets owned by Mrs. Gertie Mae Smith. They were sent to her by her son, Kenneth Smith, who is in Uncle Sam's Navy, while he was in Hawaii. Cost of their travel and feeding upon arrival at Clanton was $20.00 which, according to present conditions, isn't to bad considering they traveled some 6,000 miles.

Mrs. Smith is having the time of her life looking after the presents from her son and hopes to make good Americans out of them. They talk constantly she says, but until she gets a translator she can't tell you what they are talking about.

The male is veregated yellow and the female is blue and gray. They were shipped from Hawaii on April 11th and arrived in Clanton on April 24th, in good condition.

SECOND ANNUAL ROSE SHOW AT BIRMINGHAM

The Men's Rose Society of Birmingham will hold their second annual Rose Show in the Art Museum of the Birmingham City Hall Saturday and Sunday, May 9 and 10.

Their first show was held at Vestavia Temple and Gardens in May 9, 10 and 11 last year and was hailed as a tremendous success.

The only organization of its kind in Alabama, the Men's Rose Society has approximately forty members, with several members living as far distant as Gadsden and Florence. The Club is affiliated with the American Rose Society, with the majority of its members holding individual membership in the American Rose Society.

This year's show is free and the public is invited to attend. The public will be admitted from 2:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. on both days.

FINGERPRINTS STILL TELL

Cleveland, O. — James M. Dunn, 49, was recently held by police for his connection with the theft of $4 made twenty-four years ago. Fingerprints Dunn made recently on a cab-driver application led to his arrest.

ALL FOR HIMSELF

El Paso, Texas — Frank Maldonado, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was sentenced to five years in prison on a charge of buying 10.718 grams of marihuana here to sell in New York. He denied the charge and insisted that he "planned to smoke it all myself."

Alabama School Teachers Most Underpaid Group

The average annual salary paid Alabama classroom teachers is $2,486. Salaries paid all instructional personnel, including teachers, principals, and supervisors are $2,537. Employees of the Alabama State Merit System receive an average salary of $2,960. The beginning salaries of the ten major classifications range from $2,760 paid bacteriologists to $3,696 paid statisticians, according to information received from the Alabama State Personnel Board and released by the Alabama Education Association.

When compared with annual earnings of different groups of workers, teachers' salaries again fall short. A sampling of these earnings show the following results: Textile workers $2,623; telephone and telegraph workers $2,906; bricklayers $6,000; carpenters $4,480; plumbers $5,300; plasterers $5,040. These annual earnings are based on a forty-hour week and a fifty-week work year.

When compared with school personnel of other states and in the nation Alabama teachers rank sixth from the bottom in salaries paid teachers. Other states paying lower salaries are: Mississippi $1,665; Arkansas $1,882; Tennessee $2,344; Kentucky $2,386; and South Carolina $2,434.

Sparkman Has Very Busy Week Visiting Over State

Senator John Sparkman has had a busy time in Alabama during the past few days. It is the Senator's first visit to the State since he ran for Vice-President of the United States last Fall.

Sparkman left Washingtdn after Congress adjourned Thursday night, April 16, and arrived in Jacksonville, Alabama, the next morning, in time to tell an audience of over 2,000 at the Spring Festival of Jacksonville State eachers College of the impressions he gained on a trip around the world last December.

As Chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, Sparkman visited countries of Europe, the Near East, Southern Asia, and the Far East, to check on the operation of legislation he had sponsored to assure small businesses fair treatment in connection with the Mutual Aid, and Point IV foreign assistance programs. Among other things, the Senator expressed satisfaction with efforts made to give small firms a fair break under the programs, and also with the slow but sure progress being made by undeveloped areas of the world in the development of their natural resources and in the improvement of their standards of living.

Friday evening, April 17, Sparkman addressed the alumni of the University of Alabama Medical School at their annual convention in Birmingham

He contrasted the advanced medical care in the United States with the lower standards that exist in other countries and lauded doctors and nurses for their part in giving the people of this country the best medical care in the world. He said that even so there must somehow be found some sound way to extend health care to more families.

Sparkman stated that Congress would never impose a system of socialized medicine on this country; that the joint federal, state, and local hospital and health programs now in operation were established with the cooperation and guidance of the medical profession, and that Congress would continue to respond to enlightened leadership from the profession.

The Senator spent the week end with relatives in Albertville, where on Sunday he addressed the Methodist Sunday School.

Sparkman was in Montgomery for two speeches on Tuesday, April 21. In the morning he addressed the Alabama State Federation of Labor at its annual convention.

Sparkman praised labor for its efforts in checking the spread of communism by working with anti-communist labor movements in other countries and by its support of such programs as the Marshall Plan; Aid to Greece and Turkey; the War in Korea; military preparedness; Point IV, etc.

"Contrary to the beliefs of some," Sparkman said, "organized labor has in many ways contributed to the public welfare."

At noon, the Senator met with a large group of members of Pi Kappa, his college fraternity. Sparkman was an original founder and later president of the University of Alabama Chapter.

Tuesday night, Senator Sparkman spoke in Gadsden to the Small Business Seminar of the University of Alabama Center.

University students and businessmen from Gadsden and vicinity heard the Senator describe small business as the foundation of our private enterprise system. He stated that small business supplies most of our inventions and new ideas; that it is a bulwark against monopolies; and that as the ranking Democratic member of the Senate Small Business Committee, he will continue to fight for a fair break for small business in the defense program and in the economy as a whole.

Saturday morning, April 25, Senator Sparkman spoke to the Federated Harvard Clubs at their annual conference in Birmingham.

That night, Sparkman addressed the convention of the Alabama Junior Chamber of Commerce in Huntsville.

Sparkman spoke to the Junior Chamber on the importance of our export markets to the farmer, the businessman, and labor, and said that the prosperity of all would be seriously endangered by a further drop in export trade. He said that 38% of our cotton, 26% of our tobacco, and 15% of our peanut crops have been sold to other countries over the last four years, and that our exports accounted for the employment of five million workers.

The Senators said that if we are to keep our foreign markets, we must either continue our programs of grants and loans or increase imports from countries to which we hope to sell our products. "Increased imports would be the wiser and the less expensive course in the long run," he said.

Sparkman participated in a Veterans of Foreign Wars Program in Huntsville Sunday, and returned to Washington that night.

MISS OGLESBY HONORED AT HUNTINGDON

Montgomery, Ala. — Lenore Oglesby, Huntingdon College student from Clanton, was named this week to serve as an adviser to the incoming freshmen next year.

The student advisers are a select group of upperclassmen who help the newcomers to become acquainted at the college and adjusted to campus life.

Miss Oglesby is the daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby, of Clanton, and a graduate of the Chilton County High School.

She was one of the leading participants in the water ballet, "Spring Phantasy," held last week at Huntingdon College. Miss Oglesby showed her aquatic abilities in the number, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles."

Ex-Governor Folsom In Hospital

Ex-Governor James E. Folsom was hospitalized Sunday when he collapsed while attending services at the First Baptist Church at Cullman.

According to reports his stay at the hospital would be short as "hypertension and exhaustion" was given as the cause of his collapse. It is said that he had been making numerous speeches and had been following a strenuous schedule lately.

ALABAMA RODEO AT B'HAM THIS WEEK END

Birmingham, Ala. — More than 100 of the State's top cowboys will be on hand at the Alabama Championship Rodeo April 29-30, May 1-2 at Birmingham.

The annual affair will be held this year at the Alabama State Fair Grounds in conjunction with the Birmingham Stock Show, one of the State's top stock events.

Rex Allen, top Hollywood Movie Western Star will appear in person and head an all-star cast which will appear in a Wild West Exposition to be staged along with the Stock Show and Rodeo. In addition to his singing chores which have ranked him among the nation's top record sellers, Allen will put his famous trick horse "Koko" through his paces in front of the main grandstand.

A featured attraction of the triple event will be the personal appearance of a group of Jemez Indians who were recently starred in the hit movie "Apache." They will be led by their Chief, Tony White Cloud, and will perform realistic ritual dances in full tribal dress.

Included among the all-star attractions to be presented during the four-day affair will be the famous Williams Family of trick ropers.

The rodeo event will be under the direction of Tommy Randolph and Lavell Chism, two of the nation's top rodeo producers.

J. L. Beaty, of the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce Agriculture Committee which sponsors the annual stock show, estimated that more than 300 of the State's top beef cattle will be exhibited.

In all, more than 100 Alabama cowboys and cowgirls, 200 rodeo performing horses and steers and 25 stage and screen stars will appear during the performance.

A highlight of the annual event will be the selection of Miss Alabama Rodeo Queen of 1953. The contest is open to all Alabama girls and the winner will be given a complete Western Wardrobe by Rex Allen.

FIREMAN SETS 7 FIRES

INDIVIDUAL ENTERPRISE

A great deal is being heard these days about the needs of the little man, and the advisability of the Government's providing more security, better housing, and so on, for the ordinary citizen. In the past this effort has been pressed by leaders who sometimes paint the picture as a fight for a decent break for the little man against the vested interests only to get rich through exploitation and unjustified profiteering.

As an example, we cite the recent attacks made by several public figures on various communities and civic leaders in the field of housing. Sometimes those who seek better housing for the working man seem to assume that the working man is entitled to a home of his own on the basis of his American citizenship. We do not believe this to be true, pointing out that in this country one is entitled only to what he earns honestly.

Lest we be misunderstood, we point out that we favor better housing in every section of this country and consider this problem one of the under-rated problems of the day. On the other hand, the tone of some leaders who would stir the masses these days disturbs us seriously. They approach the theme that the working man is entitled to this or that, and that all business and all wealthy people are his enimies. The theme is also often sounded that the working man must look to his government to provide these things for him.

We do not believe this is true, either. Confining our example to housing we believe that instead of looking to the government, every American should look to himself to provide a house for his family. Millions of Americans have bought or built themselves homes since the first days of this Republic. The government's role in this field, as we see it, is to insure American citizens that they have an opportunity to build or buy a home on reasonable terms and that no monopoly, or monopoly groups, are allowed to prevent the construction of housing in order to create a shortage, in which they extract high rents from dwelling units of inferior quality.

The present trend in the new Administration is one of more individual initiative for the average citizen and less dependence on big government. In this country, in past decades, the individual nature of the average American has resulted in great industry, ingenuity and a high standard of living. Though we must assume there are many fields into which the government must yet move, we should be careful not to accept the theme that the government owes any of us a living, unemployment the government owes any of us a living, unemployvarious other needs of living, which the individual must himself be responsible for in the last resort.

The best formula for a strong country and a free people is still individual initiative, enterprise and responsibility. The government's role must always remain one of insuring that the citizen is free to use his talents and ability, and energy, to make for himself a better place in the world.

NINE STATES LOSE POPULATION

The Census Bureau reported recently that nine of the forty-eight states lost popuation between April, 1950 and July 1st, 1952. The country, as a whole, experienced a national population increase for the twenty-seven month period of 3.4 per cent.

This rate of increase amounts to an annual increase of almost a million and a half inhabitants. This rate of increase is obviously a healthy one, reflecting the fact that in states where the population declined, the primary reason was an exodus of inhabitants to other states.

In this connection, the largest population increase made by any state was registered by California, which gained 804,000 inhabitants in the twenty-seven-month period. Texas came next with a gain of 447,000, while New York was third with 348,000. Michigan and Florida both gained over 300,000, although the states of Florida, Arizona and Nevada led in percentage increases, each state gaining over ten per cent.

Of the nine states which lost population, six were in the South. They were Alabama, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Tennessee, West Virginia, Maine, Vermont and North Dakota. Alabama's loss was the greatest, percentage-wise, and is estimated at four per cent. Mississippi's loss is estimated at three per cent; Maine's at 3.3 per cent and North Dakota's loss at 3.2 per cent —the highest percentage losses among the states losing population.

Know Your Schools

by W. J. Terry
STATE SUPERINTENDENT of Education)

The staff of the Division of Elementary Education is primarily concerned with the development of instructional leadership for local schools. It offers assistance at the local level in the following areas: General instruction; health education, physical education, and recreation; music education; acquisition, care, and use of books and other instructional materials; school attendance and community relationships; adult education; resource-use education; and temperance education.

During the past year the effectiveness of in-service education programs has continued to improve. As teachers, supervisors, and administrators have gained experience in initiating and developing programs designed to bring about professional improvement, they have perfected better techniques for cooperative planning, attacking problems, and evaluating activities. In increasing numbers, teachers are attempting to solve their problems of instruction through calling for the help of those who have special competencies in the several problem areas. Greater use is being made of professional literature, and consultants are being used to better advantage. Teachers are becoming increasingly concerned with better ways of teaching, and are meeting with success in their efforts to work out ways of carrying on more effective programs of education.

The elementary school program is concerned with all phases of a child's growth and development. It emphasizes the mastery of the three R's, helping the child to learn them in terms of desirable and useful activities and experiences. It seeks to help every child develop a sound body, a vigorous mind, and a stable personality. It concerns itself with the promotion of good manners. It attempts to cultivate habits of study and work. It seeks to help children develop in their ability to get along with others. It tries to help each child to express himself clearly and intelligently through the use of the spoken and written language. It wants the child to uderstand the development of his own community, state, and nation, and to appreciate the peoples of other countries.

A state committee has worked directly with approximately 200 elementary schools during the past few months to assist them to improve their programs. These schools have studied their programs and have projected definite steps in the further development and improvement of them. Two regional meetings of representatives of the schools have been held and some consultative services have been provided for the individual schools by the members of the State Committee, the institutions of higher learning, and the State Department of Education.

A study of supervision in the state is being made. It is designed and planned to determine the present status of supervision, major trends in supervision, and desirable next steps in order to improve the state-wide program of supervision. Through questionnaires and interviews the reaction of a cross-section of the school personnel of the state to supervision have been obtained.

A State Education Television Committee is studying the problem of the significance of television for education in Alabama. It has completed a survey to determine the number of stations neeedd to provide complete coverage for the state.

DALE CARNEGIE

AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING"

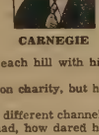
BERT LEWIS, 14 Howard Street, Vineland, New Jersey, learned a lesson from a young colored boy during moments that might have been despairing near the end of his first year at college. His mathematics professor told him that unless he got good marks in both the next quiz and in the final exam he would fail. He was worried as only a nineteen year old youngster can worry, and he had the following facts to back up his worry:

1. One quarter of his class had already been flunked out.

2. His parents had sacrificed greatly to give him his chance.

3. He couldn't work any harder than he had been doing, studying sixteen hours a day, seven days a week.

He became so discouraged that he just quit—walked out. In a field he ran across some colored boys hoeing corn. One, called Smokey, had only one leg making it necessary for him to stand with his left foot up and behind him. He had to brace himself at each hill with his crutch under his left arm in order to hoe that hill.



CARNEGIE

Smokey could have given up, he could have lived on charity, but he just did the best he could with what he had.

As Albert Lewis walked away, his thoughts ran in a different channel. If that boy could do the best he could with what he had, how dared he fail to do as much?

He went at his work with renewed vigor, and with determination not to worry—to just do the best he could with what he had.

Did he make the grade? He not only made the grade, but he learned that it was entirely up to him whether worry should conquer him or whether he should conquer worry.

Scanning the NEWS

SPRING is the time to make war —or peace. In this Spring of 1953 it appears that it will be peace. The Chinese Communists, who have waged the war in Korea against the United Nations, have agreed to exchange sick prisoners of war and proposed resumption of full-dress Korean armistice talks.

In addition, The Soviet Union continues to make new conciliatory moves toward the West. In fact, their words and actions have been so conciliatory in recent weeks the free nations of the world have become perplexed over what might be the ultimate Russian goal.

A peaceful world would be a wonderful thing. And as long as the Communist world backs up its words with deeds then the free nations should go along, political observers at the United Nations indicated last week.

The official U. S. attitude is much along this line. The U. S. will go along for the time being, but will remain alert and watchful and fully prepared to meet any emergency that might arise in the future.

Said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles: "Nothing which has happened, or which seems to me likely to happen, has changed the basic situation of danger."

At his press conference, President Eisenhower said that the U. S. should accept the Communist overtures, and proceed in the hope of making agreements.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson has asked congress for authority to limit imports of foreign farm commodities when they threaten this country's support program.

He seeks temporary authority to impose embargoes or quotas or to increase tariffs on foreign farm commodities that interfere with this country's farm program.

At the same time the Secretary of Agriculture warned American farmers that they must accept lower prices on world markets or lose many foreign customers. By supporting farm prices above the world level, he contends, the American farmer is pricing himself out of the world market.

● An announcement was made last week that may be of historic interest, and could mean, a fuller and better life for every American. It was the announcement by the Atomic Energy Commission that congress will be asked to end the government's monopoly on the possession and development of atomic energy.

This step would open the way, it is reported, for the commercial development of atomic energy for power.

Many observers regard the move as a direct result of the nation's desire to push the development of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, instead of concentrating on weapons. It could be the first step toward the day when we will cook our food, heat our homes, and light our houses with atomic energy.

It could mean a better life for every American.

Agricultural Exports

It is estimated that the value of United States' agricultural exports drop from $4 billion in 1951-52 to about $2.9 billion in 1952-53.

Fly Control on Cattle

A good mixture for controlling horn flies and lice on cattle can be made by mixing one pound of 50 per cent wettable DDT with four gallons of water. Spray once each month, or more often if needed.

Cattle On Farms

There were 93,500,000 head of cattle on U. S. farms in January of this year.

CONGRESSIONAL

Q—How did the term "pork barrel" originate and what does it mean?

A—The "pork barrel" is in reality the U.S. Treasury, from which Congressmen vote appropriations for public works and public buildings which are of special benefit to their Districts (and sometimes to their campaigns for re-election). Enemies of the first harbor improvements bill, which Congress passed March 3, 1823, charged its advocates voted for the bill for political reasons merely to get something for their Districts. The bill's opponents compared these demands upon the federal Treasury to the rush made by slaves on southern plantations when the pork barrel was opened. Later any legislation for purposes of political patronage was called "pork barrel" legislation.

Q—How long has this country had federal social security?

A—The Social Security Act became law on Aug. 14, 1935. Some observers claim that first federal participation in general public welfare programs, however, came in 1785, when lands in the Northwest Territory were reserved by the federal government for establishment of public schools in various townships.

Q—How many of our older citizens are receiving benefits under the Social Security program?

A—At the start of 1952 there were 13 million persons in the country who had reached the age of 65. About 3.3 million of them were getting payments under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Program; another 2.7 million were recipients of Old-Age Assistance under the federal-state grants program which is also under the Social Security Act.

Q—I sometimes see the phrase, "Senatorial courtesy" used in reference to appointments. How does it work?

A—This is a long-standing custom of the Senate that it will refuse to approve nominations submitted by the President if the majority-party Senators representing the state in which the nominee resides have not given their prior approval of the nomination. The practice usually does not apply to cabinet positions.

Q—What is the purpose of President Eisenhower's plan to reorganize the Department of Agriculture?

A—The President said the plan's objectives are to place administration of farm programs close to the state and local levels. The new plan would also provide for two more Assistant Secretaries of Agriculture and an administrative assistant to the Secretary to aid in supervision of the Department.

From the Pass Christian Tarpon-Beacon, Pass Christian, Mississippi: No town is ever successful when the inhabitants indulge in any extent in criticizing and backbiting and fighting each other.

Fighting is commendable, if you expend your prowess against a foe who is endeavoring to destroy you, yours, or your country.

Criticism is uplifting, when it is directed against the forces of evil.

Backbiting can be tolerated, if you confine yourself to biting your own back.

But the moment we begin to inject personalities into community affairs we begin to retard the growth of a progressive community spirit.

And without aggressive progressiveness a community will be a community, but nothing more.

• • •

From the Ripley Southern Sentinel, Ripley, Mississippi: There will always be country weekly newspapers. It is the close human relationship that they have with the people themselves that will hold them in existence all through the years.

• • •

From the Dove Creek Press, Dove Creek, Colorado: Ever hear of IGHATS? It is the slogan of a new mass movement and it means "I'm gonna holler about taxes." It had its beginning at a Cedar Rapids community luncheon where industrial workers earning $3,400 a year learned that they were paying $1,100 a year in taxes, $800 of which is hidden. It has been spreading fast. Ministerial groups, union locals, chambers of commerce and other such organizations have promised it support.

The IGHATS battle cry couldn't have been sounded at a better time. In 1929, federal spending amounted to 3.6 per cent of the national income. Now, it is estimated, it amounts to more than 30 per cent.

From the Shamokin Citizen, Shamokin, Pennsylvania: The inauguration of our new President is history, and for the first time in their young lives, most of the boys and girls saw this history made.

Witnessing on television the inauguration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, pupils of Shamokin and Coal Township received a lesson in history which will remain forever in their memories.

Gathered in local schools, in homes, and in stores, wide-eyed youngsters saw and heard the President take the oath of office, becoming the 34th President.

All the pomp, pageantry, and stately splendor surrounding the event may have left the pupils a bit breathless, and perhaps the younger boys and girls may have missed the full significance of the momentous event. Yet, we believe the impression will be a lasting one. We believe that in some way, all the pupils who viewed the ceremonies, came away with a feeling of thankfulness that they were living in a country where such blessings are part of our accepted standard of living.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

YOUR BLOOD

Tissues make up the organs of the body, such as the heart, the lungs, the liver, the kidneys, the brain, the bones, as well as many others; but all the complex substances for body building and its repair are contained in the blood which is circulated throughout the body by the heart.

Slightly less than one-half the total volume of blood is made of blood cells, while the remaining portion is called plasma in which the blood cells are in what is called a state of suspension. The plasma, which is really the base of the blood, is composed of proteins, nutritive materials and substances that have clotting power.

Blood cells which are carried along in the plasma are manufactured in special organs before they are ready to be released to the circulating blood. The important organs that take part in the development of the blood cells are the bone marrow, the spleen and the lymph glands.

Some of the functions of the white blood cells are little known, and we are not certain where they come from nor where they go. One kind of white blood cell, called a granulocyte, is actively motile and able to penetrate the tissues. When infection is present in the body, these white cells ordinarily increase, sometimes to twenty thousand or more, in their effort to combat the germs causing the infection.

The red blood corpuscles far overbalance the white in number. One known function of red corpuscles is to carry the hemoglobin, the chief component of which is iron.

The average life expectancy is now sixty-five years or longer, yet the life of our blood cells is only a matter of weeks or several months at the most. Therefore, the body requires each day about one trillion new red blood cells, twenty billion new white blood cells and five hundred billion new platelets (minute particles of protoplasm).

Good Waterway Needed To Trim Soil Erosion

During heavy rains more water falls on cropland than it can absorb, even where good terraces, contour farming, and crop rotations are used.

This surplus run-off must flow from the farm through some kind of waterway. And unless a safe waterway is provided, serious damage from erosion will result.

It is easiest and cheapiest to use the bottoms of natural draws for sod waterways. The sod may be grass, perennial legumes or grass-legume mixtures. The waterway must be designed to take care of the heaviest of rainfall. Its sod cover must be dense enough to keep water from running over bare soil.

Water For Cows

Milk is 87 per cent water. Therefore, cows need four to five pounds of clean water for each pound of milk they produce. Provide fresh water near pasture and in night barns for all cattle.

Home Gardens Are Stressed By FHA Supervisors

The Farmers Home Administration in cooperation with the National Garden Institute will this year award certificates recognizing those FHA families who do an outstanding job in home gardens and food preservation, Joe M. Murphree, FHA County Supervisor announced today.

When compared with the cost of commodities farmers have to buy, farm families will find that a good home vegetable garden will be especially valuable this year. Since the farmer's share of the consumer's food dollar is only about 45 cents, he can save more than half of the retail cost on the food he produces.

Unless adequate vegetables are home produced for home needs, many families may not be able to purchase and provide them in proper amounts for a regular balanced diet. Farm families who produce and preserve most of their food supply have the best nutritional diets, FHA Supervisor Murphree stated.

The Farmers Home Administration through the County Supervisor is working to help farmers in Chilton County achieve higher production goals in food. More food is essential to maintain our national eating standard. The average person now eats more vegetables of all kinds, fruits, and meats and less starchy foods than he did 15 years ago. Too, the national population is increasing at the rate of 7,500 per day—more than two and a half million persons per year. This means the home garden is going to be of major importance to every family. The selection of a good 1-8 to 1-4 acre plot plus a few additional rows for canning, plenty of fertilizer, good seed, variety of vegetables, and proper insect control will be deciding factors in the amount of food produced.

Our garden slogan continues to be, "Grow more, preserve more, use more," says Supervisor Murphree. The way to do this isto have the necessary garden and patch acre with the proper equipment and necessary information to grow and properly preserve fresh foods. Now is the time to plant lima beans, pole beans, sweet corn, tomatoes, okra, and sweet potatoes in Alabama according to the API Experiment Station at Auburn, and the Farmers Home Administration is ready to assist, says Murphree, County Supervisor for Chilton County. Our goal of 100 quarts of canned or frozen foods per person per year is being stressed with every family. Along with the year-round garden and food preservation, stored foods, hogs, milch cows and chickens are included in every family's food program.

Two types of award certificates will be presented through the FHA County Supervisor by the national Garden Institute. One certificate is for gardening and one is for food preservation. FHA farm families are urged to see Mr. Murphree, County Supervisor, for additional information.

Driving Through Water is Not the Time to Make a "Big Splash"

—PHOTOS BY CHEVROLET MOTOR DIVISION

Although today's automobile has progressed far beyond the point where a severe spring rain will stall the engine, it still is not an amphibious vehicle.

Failure of the engine to bring you through normal flood waters, which might cover highways, can be attributed mostly to water on the ignition system caused by splashing. Today's engines are better equipped to combat excessive moisture and driving through water, by the use of such things as improved rubber housings on the spark plug terminals.

These pictures show the splash effect when a car "plows" into a seven-inch depth on a flooded highway.

At 20 m.p.h., the water shoots high, completely drenching the underneath part of the car. At 3 m.p.h., the forward motion of the car creates a small wave running ahead of the front bumper, with control of the vehicle greatly improved.

When you encounter an inundated highway, slow your car down and approach with caution. As a safety tip, on driving through flooded areas, remember to try out your brakes at slow speed immediately after reaching dry ground. When wet brakes do not respond to pedal action, hold brake-pedal down moderately with left foot, while right foot feeds enough power to carry car forward and dry out brakes. This action, over a few hundred yards, should restore your brakes to safe driving condition.

Reproductions Of Great Paintings Still On Display At Chilton County High School

The A.A.U.W. Circulation Reproductions of famous paintings are now on display at the Chilton County High School library. This circulation includes such paintings as Rembrandt's "Head of a Girl," Pieter de Hooche's "Interior of a Dutch house," Jan Vermeer's "A Woman Weighing Gold," Hysum's "Garden Gaiety," and several others, all of which are beautiful colored reproductions of great masterpieces.

This display is open to the public during school hours and immediately following school. This collection will be of special interest to those who appreciate good art, as well as those who simply like to look at beautiful paintings.

This circulation of prints is sponsored and maintained by the Alabama Division of the A.A.U.W. in cooperation with the Birmingham Museum of Art.

AFTER washing the face with soap, it's no trick to get all the soap off if you use a vinegar rinse. Aromatic vinegar is most pleasant to use, one tablespoonful in the bowl of rinse water.

Stains on the fingernails which prove stubborn will usually yield to a mixture of 60 grains of oxalic acid dissolved in 20 grains of rose water. Wipe the nails off with a chamois. Polish with a dry towel after the treatment.

Want to perfume your handkerchiefs? Wash them with a small piece of orris root in a muslin bag. The result is a faint aroma of violets.

Hose will last longer if you run them under tepid water immediately after removing from the feet. Rub some beeswax at the heel when wearing to save wear and tear.

Soothe your tired aching feet by bathing in a basin with warm water and vinegar.

Make sachet powder for bureau drawers and linen closets by using one-half an ounce of lavendar flowers and half a teaspoon powdered cloves. Sew in a small bag.

Ivory combs need cleaning? An old toothbrush is excellent for scrubbing them. Use alcohol rather than water for best results.

Dry cleaning combs and brushes is easy if you sprinkle oatmeal over the brush bristles and run the comb through the brush until both come clean.

Dirt and grease from excessively soiled hair can be cut by rubbing the juice of some lemons into the scalp before shampooing. Use the fingertips to rub well into the scalp.

Prevent bruises from discoloring by applying a sweet oil to them as soon as you bump yourself.

My PET PEEVE By W. Scott Boyd

THAT snake that made its appearance at my house last week is still around. At the moment it is down the bathtub drain.

I believed the wife when she said it was a harmless little garden snake, but banished it from the house just the same. I thought it was gone until I started to take a bath last night.

I had turned on the water before putting in the plug. I was letting it get to the right temperature. Then behold just as I reached down to put in the plug that thing stuck its head out of the drain.

I tried to escape and ran headlong into the bathroom door. I forgot it was locked.

"Get it out of there," I screamed at the boys.

"But it won't hurt you, Pop," they insisted. "It's only a baby snake."

"Why the bathtub?" I asked.

"It's the only place we could keep it."

"Catch it and put it outside," I commanded and retreated to my bedroom.

An hour later the wife peeped into the bedroom. "It's down the drain again, dear," says she.

"That's fine," says I "Either the snake goes or I don't ever take a bath."

"Say," the boys screamed, "that a good idea. Us too."

"Now see what you've started," the wife snorted and departed in disgust.

As a result I'm still without a bath, the boys are happy, and the wife is peeved with all of us.

MONEY BACK AFTER THREE YEARS

Wright, Minn. — While shopping in a Duluth (Minn.) dime store, Mrs. E. W. Groth lost her billfold which contained between $65 and $75. On Good Friday of this year, she received the bill fold back through the mail in an envelope with a Duluth postmark. Inside was $100 and an unsigned note, in a woman's handwriting, which said, in part: "When I found your wallet I was desperately in need of money. I felt if I used your money to pay some of my bills, I would soon be able to save enough to pay you back. . .Please forgive me for not returning it sooner."

Report from Washington

BY

ARMISTEAD SELDEN

Congressman, Sixth District

The House last week took its first big step toward an attempt to balance the budget when it passed the initial money bill for the coming fiscal year.

After much debate, the Representatives voted to appropriate $451 million for use by over 20 independent executive agencies during the year which begins July 1. This is 61% or about $700 million less than agency requests and the amount recommended in former President Truman's budget. It is $400 million short of the funds requested by President Eisenhower. The Senate must now vote on the bill, and, of course, there is doubt as to whether the upper chamber will agree in full to the reduced appropriations.

Tobacco Bill Defeated—

A bill which would have made Maryland's tobacco crop marketed this year eligible for price supports even though the growers had voted against accepting marketing quotas for their crop has been defeated by the House.

Although Republican leaders gave the unusual bill full support, House members turned it down by a 212-110 vote. In the opinion of most Southerners, passage of the bill would have started a practice that could undermine the entire program of price supports.

Library's Role—

While reading last year's annual report of the Library of Congress recently, I was amazed to learn that this great institution now houses about 31 million literary items. This collection includes over nine million book volumes and pamphlets. I wonder how many people realize and appreciate the fact that the Library of Congress is probably the largest and best-stocked library in the entire world. Through a provision of the Copyright Law, the Library is furnished with two copies of every book copyrighted in the United States. The development of the international copyright and the practice of exchanging copies of duplicates with foreign libraries have helped add to the Library's voluminous book collection.

This great collection of books reflects the importance and influence which the Library of Congress exercises today. Although it is essentially a library to serve the Members of Congress, it also contributes to the education of people all over the nation and even throughout the world. People from nearly every state in the Union and from 28 foreign countries came to the Library last year for special research. In addition to private businesses and local governments, these people represented 270 American schools and 84 foreign institutions.

Other than the services it renders those who come for research, the Library of Congress answers thousands of inquiries sent from all parts of the world each year. It is often called on to assist the United States in contracts with other countries, and it works closely with the United Nations.

Members of Congress are served by the Library through its Legislative Reference Service. It was estimated that this service processed more than 51,000 inquiries from Congressmen in fiscal year 1952. The average time spent by researchers on each request was from three to four hours. Requests from the White House are also handled by the Library, and it has maintained a collection of books at the Presidential mansion since 1903.

Besides a number of other services, the Library of Congress conducts an extensive program of library service for the blind throughout the United States and its territories.

Established in 1800—

The Library was established in 1800 by Congress, and had its home in the Capitol building for many years. Its entire book collection was burned during the War of 1812. A new collection was bought in 1815, but nearly all of it was destroyed by a fire in 1851.

It was not until 1897 that the Library could move into its own building which was constructed at an approximate cost of $10 million. The building is a magnificent structure of Italian Renaissance architecture. Modern authorities in design refer to it as the "overornamental type building of the 1890's." Yet, this monumental structure is artistically perfect, even to minute details. Its interior is highly ornamental, consisting of beautiful friezes, paintings, murals, symbolical statues, marble columns and geometric patterns in the floors. A rich color effect comes from the several shades of marble used throughout. Constructed of granite, the building covers almost four acres.

An addition to the Library, completed in the latter part of 1938, is a white marble structure in modern style. Known as the Annex, the eight million dollar building is located directly behind the Main Building on Capitol Hill.

The present Librarian of Congress is Dr. Luther Harris Evans who took office in 1945. He is the tenth person who has served as head of this famous library.

In his history of the Library, one author wrote, "From beginnings modest and humble and even unsuspecting, the Library of Congress has become a powerful influence in the affairs of government and in the lives of the people of the United States."
